Historic Brownson Still Serves as Centenary Opens
A memorial plaque inscribed with the name of each of the Notre Dame men to die to date in World War II was dedicated on August 29 in the vestibule of Sacred Heart Church, Notre Dame, by Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., president of the University. Other names will be added as the sad occasions arise.

In the picture above, left to right, are Francis J. Hanley, assistant professor of art, now an ensign in the Navy, who designed the plaque; Rev. William T. Craddick, C.S.C., prefect of religion, and Father O'Donnell.

The plaque was presented to the University through the sponsorship of the Student Commission for Decent Literature of which Louis F. Kurtz, '43, Des Moines, Ia., is chairman.

$25,000 St. Joseph Valley Club Gift Leads

Local Club Campaign Sets Pace for Alumni Participation in the University’s Centenary Fund; Class Representatives and Other Clubs Swinging Into Action

Monday night, August 31, the four lay trustees of the University of Notre Dame who reside in South Bend — Messrs. Frank E. Bering, E. M. Morris, George L. O’Brien, and J. J. O’Brien — entertained the membership of the Notre Dame Club of the St. Joseph Valley at a dinner in the Indiana Club.

At this dinner announcement was made of a campaign for $25,000 to be solicited from the alumni in the St. Joseph Valley, without publicity or outside assistance. Mr. E. M. Morris was made general chairman. The three other trustees became honorary chairmen. Mr. Bernard J. Voll was made vice-chairman. Clarence Harding, president of the Club, announced the formation of two teams, the Gold and Blue, under Majors Joseph F. Donahue and Paul M. Butler, respectively. Under each major, six captains were appointed, and under each captain were ten lieutenants. Each lieutenant had ten names of local alumni, so that the 1,200 names on the Club roster were distributed for personal solicitation.

On Thursday, September 17, at a luncheon in the Indiana Club, President Harding announced that the goal of $25,000 had been oversubscribed.

With this outstanding achievement as precedent, the Alumni Association is proceeding confidently and enthusiastically to the task of asking other Clubs to achieve this signal success in this vital phase of the Centenary. Amounts will vary, but the principle — loyalty, enthusiasm, hard work, and a realization of Notre Dame’s needs — can be universal.

There are many interesting and important phases to the St. Joseph Valley campaign. Space doesn’t permit details, but here are a few of the highlights:

1. At the opening dinner, E. M. Morris, ’06, announced that $5,000 had already been contributed.

2. He announced that of the remaining $20,000 of the goal he would give one-half if the Club would raise the balance.

3. In addition to the generosity of the trustees from a financial standpoint, the success of the campaign was due in large measure to their continuing interest and liberal contribution of time in attending the meetings and daily lunch-
The Notre Dame Alumnus

4. The competitive spirit of the two teams grew as the campaign progressed.

5. The revision of the Club membership list from the contacts of the solicitors was revolutionary. Particularly valuable was the compiling of a large list of men in service.

6. The identification, from the results of the campaign, of those Club members who are workers, will serve the Club as an invaluable guide in further programs.

7. The comparison of personal solicitation as a result-getter against any other method, such as letter-writing or telephone call, reveals that the face-to-face solicitation leads by a very wide margin.

8. The appeal of the War Bond as a form of gift was proved to be most effective. While the objective of the campaign was a gift now, with an annual program contemplated along similar lines, pledges were accepted for future contributions, especially in the case of Bonds to be secured in most instances through the payroll deduction plan already operating with the majority of alumni. Most of the $10,000 secured by the Club from the bulk of its membership was in the form of War Bonds made out to the University. Many have promised to add to these so that the ultimate Club contribution will undoubtedly go considerably above the $25,000 goal.

This campaign, as will be the campaigns among the other Clubs, was based on the One-Gift plan, whereby the contribution through the Club is credited against the

1. Club quota
2. Class quota of the member contributing
3. Alumni Association gift as distinctive in previous years.

In other words, the contributor gives through his Club, gives through his Class, and pays what was formerly called his "dues" with one contribution. He is listed, as a contributor, on the football ticket preference list, receives the ALUMNUS, gets his alumni card and lapel button, etc.

Those who have already made their contribution directly through the University, the Alumni Association or their Class, are likewise credited back to the Club for inclusion in the Club's quota for the year.

The University is enjoying at best a short and rather precarious respite from the urgency of the problems which have been anticipated since last Dec. 7.

No blood, no tears, but sweat

P. C. Reilly Adds to His N. D. Benefactions

Thirteen masterpieces of Flemish, Georgian and Spanish art arrived at the Wightman Gallery at Notre Dame in August to replace the Bendix collection of tapestries that was removed recently and to add to the representative collection of Peter C. Reilly, LL.D. '39, of Indianapolis, member of the Board of Lay Trustees and identified in art circles both in Chicago and Indianapolis as a patron and donor of prize awards.

Mr. Reilly has been associated with the Hoosier Salon and other movements in Fine Arts and each year since its inception he has donated prizes to the Salon for the encouragement of work done in Catholic colleges and secondary schools.

Two paintings by Rubens and Van Dyck which were executed as part of a series for Queen Maria de Medici of France during the 17th century are important items in the new group. Rubens and his favorite pupil, Van Dyck, worked jointly on these two large canvases.

Outstanding in the series also are two portraits of ladies prominent at the court of Charles II of England, the Duchess of Richmond and the Countess of Carlisle, both of whom were celebrated beauties and were favorite models of the court painter, Sir Peter Lely.

Of interest to students of Irish history is an excellent portrait of Daniel O'Connell painted from life in 1831 by Richardson.

Enrollment this Fall is at the present time at capacity. And at the present time, with the foresight in the scheduling of games, it looks as though football games would be well attended.

But the imminence of the 18-year draft law, and further restriction on transportation point to the end of both these vital sources of revenue by the opening of the next semester, with no relief in sight for the duration.

Consequently, there is no change in the urgency of the need for a successful alumni campaign to provide some substitute support for Notre Dame, if the great opportunity which the present crisis presents to the University is to be met as Notre Dame, and Notre Dame men, want to meet it.

Class representatives are sending out letters to members of all the Classes. Response to them should be general, in the case especially of alumni who are removed from Club affiliation. Between the two we want to score, by Dec. 31 of this year, 100 per cent for the 100th anniversary.

A three quarter length study by Raphael Sanzio of John the Baptist as a youth is also in the group. Of interest to students of Spanish painting is another large canvas painted as a collaborative work by Castillo and Murillo. It depicts Christ the Redeemer appearing to St. Ignatius Loyola.

A rare item in the collection is the full length portrait by Sir Martin Shean, an Irish portraitist who later succeeded Sir Thomas Lawrence as president of the Royal Academy. The Countess of Erroll, who posed for the portrait, was a famous beauty in Dublin and London society during the reign of George III.

Other items included in this noteworthy collection presented by Mr. Reilly are: St. Peter in Despair by Giacomo Cavedona; the Cardinal's reception by Isabey; Mother and Child by Guerre; Squire Hallett by Francis Wheatley; the Artist's Sister by Carroll Beckwith, an American artist; Tribute to Pan by Barre; and two bronzes, Triomphe de la Verti by Godet and the Shepherd and Shepherdess by Piccolin.

These new gifts, together with works of art previously presented to the Notre Dame Galleries by Mr. Reilly, will be housed as a complete unit in the large South Gallery of the major central galleries of the University Library, to be designated the Peter C. Reilly Collection.
With the impress of war everywhere evident, the campus on Sept. 10 began a new semester. Soon after, on Sunday, Sept. 20, the University officially opened its centennial year with a solemn Mass in Sacred Heart Church and a special sermon by Rev. Hugh O’Donnell, C.S.C, president.

(Father O'Donnell's sermon and a résumé of plans for the Centenary observance will both be found elsewhere in this issue.)

A capacity enrollment of approximately 3,250, as contrasted with the summer semester enrollment of about 2,000, was on hand for this hundredth September in the University's history. For want of residence accommodations on the campus, many applicants had been turned away in August and early September. And students enrolled had, of course, given over Lyons, Morrissey, Howard and Badin Halls to the Navy, making necessary a doubling-up in practically every student hall except Brownson and Carroll. Many new students were quartered temporarily in South Bend hotels; but were removed to the campus as fast as readjustments could be made.

September this year marked, not the opening of a new schoolyear as in the past, but, more nearly, the second semester of a schoolyear which began last May. “The class of 1943,” which normally would have been graduated next June, will finish in December, and the enrollment will thus be cut by upwards of 500, with little prospect of replacements for several months. If the 18-19 draft is enacted, as seems likely, the campus population will be further cut. The current capacity enrollment is, therefore, very probably the last such “for the duration.”

Of chief student interest with the start of the new semester was the installation of the cafeteria system in all parts of the Dining Halls and, joined with this new system — to regulate the flow of hungry students at noon — the inauguration of 12 o'clock classes.

The cafeteria system, made necessary by the incoming of the Navy, was tried first with the Navy men in the west hall of the Dining Halls and, proved to be so successful there through the summer that its use was immediately extended. Students and administration are pleased with its operation now. Students are assigned to eat at various periods and to enter the Dining Hall through certain doors but are allowed considerable leeway with regard to their arrival time at the Dining Hall. Food is for the most part eaten from divided trays rather than from dishes. Multiple steam tables and counters, 200 feet long, are set up in each dining hall, on the side of the hall nearest the kitchens.

Two new courses, one in air raid shelters and the other a practical course in radio, have been added to the curriculum in line with the University's war program.

The course in air raid shelters, designed chiefly to study bomb resistant structures, is taught in the light of results from actual experience with structures in England. The classes will seek to turn out trained students who will be able to accept jobs in this field.

The practical radio course, offered for the first time in the spring semester, qualifies students to take examinations for an amateur operator's license. Consisting of radio theory and laboratory and code work, classes are open to students in all colleges.

Governmental sponsored war work classes, similar to those which trained hundreds of nearby workers during previous semesters, reopened Sept. 28. These courses include accounting, personnel management, radio, foremanship and scores of technical types of war industry training. Many women are included in the classes, which are held for three hours each Monday evening. Rev. James D. Trahey, C.S.C., defense coordinator for the University, is in general charge of the classes.

Several outstanding changes in faculty marked the opening of the fall semester.

Henry B. Froning, dean of the College of Science, has been granted a semester's leave of absence for reasons of health. Prof. Froning, a member of the faculty since 1920 and head of the department of chemistry, succeeded the late Rev. Francis Wemninger, C.S.C., as dean. Prof. Lawrence H. Wadinger will serve as acting dean of science during the semester, and Prof. Andrew J. Boyle will be acting head of the department of chemistry.

A rising demand of the armed forces is taking constant toll of the University's faculty.

Recently lost are Stephen H. Ronay, professor of English, now an officer in the Army Air Corps, and Francis J. Hanley, assistant professor of art, now, as an ensign, in naval training at Cornell University.

Earlier losses from the faculty included Major Robert B. Riordan, registrar; Major Dugald C. Jackson, Jr., dean of engineering; Lt. Col. Benjamin Dubois, professor of French; Daniel J. O'Grady, professor of philosophy, now in officer training at Scott Field, Ill.; John J. Fitzgerald, assistant professor of philosophy, and Thomas J. Stritch, associate professor of English, both now serving as naval officers.

Dr. Joseph Caton, assistant University physician, is in Army service. Lt. Comm. M. T. Farrar, U.S.N., associate professor of naval science and executive officer of the Notre Dame R.O.T.C., was called to sea duty during the year.

William J. Cerny, former football coach, is a lieutenant in the Navy at Glenview, Ill. William P. Mahoney, track coach, is also an officer in the Navy, as are former football coaches John Druze and Joseph McArdle.

Selective service took two instructors, William W. Arbuckle, music, and George M. Reichele, speech.

Government research projects, particularly in science and engineering, have taken a number of men from the campus.

George B. Collins, associate professor of physics and a pioneer in Notre Dame's work with the electrostatic generator; Edward A. Coomes, also a distinguished young physicist, and Alexander Petrukas, a third Notre Dame physicist of outstanding ability, are among those absent in research.

Vincent Fagan, professor of architecture; P. A. Guarino, instructor in electrical engineering; John L. Kelley, assistant professor of mathematics; John P. Nash, instructor in mathematics, and Charles Robinson, instructor in mathematics, are among those absent on government work as the semester opens.

The Congregation of Holy Cross has also sent 14 priests to serve in the War, among them four members of the faculty: Rev. George J. Welsh, history; Rev. Joseph J. Corcoran, religion; Rev. Edmund J. Murray, religion, and Rev. Robert M. Woodward, philosophy.

New members of the Congregation assigned to the faculty of Notre Dame include Rev. Thomas E. Burke, who returns to teaching English after a number of years devoted exclusively to The Ave Maria and to writing; Rev. William P. Lennartz, former South Bend pastor, and Rev. Paul Doherty, former assistant pastor in South Bend, both of whom will teach religion. Rev. William Robinson, former head of the Novitiate at Rolling Prairie, will teach philosophy. Other religion teachers are: Rev. Cletus Bachofer, Rev. Ferdinand Brown, Rev. William J. McAuliffe, Rev. Charles Mahoney, Rev. Charles Sheedy, and Rev. Alfred Send.

A few members of the faculty have retired to private business interests, among them Joseph J. Casasanta, professor of music and bandmaster, formerly director of the University Glee Club. Prof. Casasanta began his work on the faculty immediately after his graduation in 1923. Also away from teaching this year are Prof. Homer Q. Earl, member of the faculty of the College of Law since 1929, and Prof. James J. Kearney, assistant professor of law since 1938.

New members of the lay faculty, beginning work this semester are:

W. Lee Hope, professor of music and bandmaster at the University. Mr. Hope, a native of Hillsboro, Ill., formerly served as conductor of the band at Murray State Teacher's College, Murray, Ky. He received his graduate degree from the University of Michigan.

William H. Bennett, Ph.D., for the past 10 years instructor at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, is now serving as assistant professor in speech at Notre Dame. Dr. Bennett, who taught English and comparative philology at Duquesne, received his A.B. degree and his Ph.D. degree at the University of Pittsburgh and his A.M. degree at Harvard.

Arthur J. Quigley, new instructor of electrical engineering, formerly served as graduate assistant in the department.

Mr. Quigley received his B.S. degree in electrical engineering at Northwestern in 1937 and his M.S. degree at Harvard in 1939.

Eric Peterson, another former graduate assistant at Notre Dame, who received his Ph.D. at the September convocation at Notre Dame, is now instructor in physics at the University. Peterson received his A.B. degree at Oberlin College in 1938 and his M.S. degree at Notre Dame in 1940.

Carl C. Stevason, former industrial coordinator for the school city of South Bend and former supervisor of defense training classes in South Bend, is a new professor in engineering drawing at Notre Dame. Mr. Stevason received his A.B. degree at Hanover College, Ind.,
Events of Centenary Announced

A solemn Mass of the Holy Ghost on Sunday, Sept. 20, formally launched the program of the Centenary Year of the University. Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., president of Notre Dame, delivered the sermon at the Mass, which was sung by Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., vice-president and general chairman of the Centenary. Father O'Donnell announced the beginning of the series of academic and religious observances which will celebrate the completion of Notre Dame's first hundred years.

Further events to mark the Centenary, announced by Father Cavanaugh, will include a solemn pontifical Mass on Nov. 26 by Most Rev. John F. Noll, D.D., bishop of Fort Wayne, in the presence of Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, D.D., bishop of Indianapolis, and other dignitaries and prominent clergymen of the State and Congregation. This date, which falls on Thanksgiving Day, marks the actual anniversary of the arrival of Rev. Edward Sorin, C.S.C., and his Brother companions at the present site of Notre Dame. A eulogy on the founders of the University will be delivered on that day by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, D.D., outstanding author, orator and radio preacher, who received an honorary LL.D. and delivered the baccalaureate sermon in 1941.

The Centenary Medal will be unveiled and blessed by Bishop Ritter, immediately following the Mass. Bishop Ritter's see now includes Vincennes, Ind., which was the see in 1842 that included land now occupied by the University. The Centenary Medal has been designed and sculptured by Eugene Kormendi, Budapest artist and sculptor, who has been working at Notre Dame since September, 1941. Following the unveiling ceremonies, a special prayer will be offered at the grave of Father Sorin and the six Brothers who accompanied him at the time of the founding of the University.

During the winter there will be a series of meetings of learned societies, altered considerably from the original program by the war conditions. However, sectional meetings of many of the national organizations will proceed with meetings at Notre Dame, subject to further restrictions on housing, transportation and other facilities.

Plans for the Spring of 1943 include a gala music festival, part of the annual music week program. This program will be under the chairmanship of Rev. James Connerton, C.S.C. Summer festivities will be under the tentative program including a major Centenary reunion program by Sisters of the various Orders who have attended the summer sessions of the University since they began in 1918 until the present war curtailed their attendance. A series of lectures, in large part by the distinguished educators and literary figures among the Sisters themselves, will contribute to the occasion. Plans not yet perfected indicate a pageant as one of the features of the program.

In the first week of September, 1943, the Centenary will draw to a climax with conferences on the University and problems of the era after the war. Leading scholars of this country and outstanding educators and statesmen will be invited to participate in formulating an outstanding workable contribution by Notre Dame to the post-war reconstruction.

The Commencement exercises of September, 1943, will officially end the Centenary Year, in the presence of leaders attending the conferences and other dignitaries of the many fields of social, political, cultural and spiritual life which the University has embodied in its hundred years of existence.

Commenting on the plans, Father O'Donnell said, "Many details are of course yet to be settled. Notre Dame, as always, will conform to the wishes of the Government. War regulations will be strictly observed."
Midshipman School Starts

Two New Buildings Under Construction on Campus.

On Oct. 5 the naval indoctrination school at Notre Dame became a full-fledged training school for midshipmen, known officially as the Naval Reserve Midshipman School.

The change means that, instead of spending a maximum of 60 days at Notre Dame, the naval trainees will spend approximately four months here and will then be eligible for commissioning as ensigns and assignment to posts of active duty. Previously, the trainees were sent to either Chicago or New York for their final three months of training.

Enlargement of the scope and responsibilities of the local naval station is generally regarded as an honor for the University and as a recognition of its continuing close cooperation with the Navy. The new status is likewise a tribute to the excellent training work accomplished here under Capt. H. P. Burnett, U.S.N., and his staff.

Two new buildings are under construction on the campus to meet the requirements of the midshipman school. One is a large drill hall extending out from the rear of the gymnasium into Cartier Field and into what used to be the baseball diamond. The other is a combination classroom and office building on the former parking lot to the rear of the Rockne Memorial Building. Both buildings are being erected by the Navy.

To conduct the more numerous courses of the midshipman school, the staff of naval officers on the campus has been, and is being, greatly enlarged.

Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., president of the University, hailed the announcement as an honor for Notre Dame.

Father O'Donnell said that "the designation of Notre Dame as a midshipmen's school will find a continuing and intensifying of the fine relations that have existed between Notre Dame and the navy since the inauguration of the naval R.O.T.C. unit on the campus last September, and the introduction of the V-T course last April.

"The change in status, and the number of midshipmen contemplated, will not necessitate any change in the present concurrent program of the academic side of the University. Housing, dining room facilities, and courses in the five colleges will continue on the same basis as in the spring and summer semesters.

"The success of the Navy's program operating in conjunction with the independent academic program of the University has been so marked during the indoctrination school, and the cooperation between the Navy, the University and the students under each has been so readily given, that we look forward with confidence to the continuing success of the new program," Father O'Donnell concluded.

For God and Country---
A Century of Consecrated Service

By REV. HUGH O’DONNELL, C.S.C.
President of the University

The Sermon at the Solemn Mass of Sept. 20, 1942, Marking the Opening of the Notre Dame Centennial Year.

"Let us now praise men of renown, and our fathers in their generation."
— Ecclesiasticus 44:1

One hundred years ago, come Nov. 26, there stood on the snow-swept shores of St. Mary's Lake a group of men filled with courage and hope and faith. They had just made an 11-day journey by ox-cart from Vincennes, during which they braved the severity of one of the worst winters in the history of Indiana. But they were uplifted spiritually as they viewed the scene of their future labors. They had little of this world's goods, but they had an abiding confidence in the Mother of God. They had come to carve out of the wilderness a shrine of education dedicated to Our Lady.

The superior of that little band of religious was the Rev. Edward Sorin, C.S.C. He and the seven Brothers of the Congregation of Holy Cross who came with him had left their native France in response to the urgings of Bishop Hesliandiere, of Vincennes, who sorely needed teachers and missionaries. They opened two schools for boys at Vincennes, but a year later when the Bishop offered them the tract of land where Notre Dame now stands, Father Sorin accepted the offer. The Bishop stipulated that they open a novitiate and a college within two years. Sorin, young, vigorous, and possessed of rare vision, set out at once on his noble apostolate. Despite hardships that would have seemed insurmountable to one of less courage, he founded a college in the allotted time.

One hundred years! A long time in the life of man, but a short span in the life of a university! But what a change since Father Sorin first saw the log cabin in the woods to the south of St. Mary's Lake, in which were a chapel and one living room. What a change there has been from Old College, still standing as a reminder of our humble origin. Now, more than 45 buildings on our 1500-acre campus are devoted to the five colleges and the Graduate School. The number of courses offered has been multiplied many times over, and the faculty is larger than the student-body was only 35 years ago. Thirty thousand young men have been trained under the Golden Dome.

Notre Dame changes, but remains forever the same. Notre Dame still emphasizes the discipline of the spiritual, the intellectual, and the moral. Here you will always find applied the first principles from which all true development proceeds. This is still the Notre Dame of Father Sorin and his worthy successors—Corby, Thomas E. Walsh, Zahm, Morrissey, John W. Cavanaugh, Burns, Charles O'Donnell, of Arthur Stace, Joseph Lyons, Timothy Howard, Colonel Hoynes, and all the others who, by the grace of God, wrought the miracle of Alma Mater. Their selfless devotion to the ideals of Christian education keeps their memory forever green in the hearts of every son of Notre Dame. "Let us now praise men of renown, and our fathers in their generation."

One hundred years! A long time in the life of man, but a short span in the life of a university! But Notre Dame has placed her facilities at the government's disposal. We have welcomed the Navy to the campus. Notre Dame men—alumni, priests, faculty, and students—are in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, fighting for God and country. Notre Dame characteristic response to the call of patriotism is in the spirit of Sorin himself, whose first act upon landing on these shores was to fall on his knees, and with deep emotion kiss the soil in token of adoption. All his life he gave to his foster country a devotion second only to his love of God and His Blessed Mother.

Our Centenary Year is overcast by a war even more terrible than World War I. More than nine months have passed since the wanton attack on Pearl Harbor. Our armed forces are in all parts of the world. We are geared for war, perhaps for a long war, and, as always, Notre Dame is doing her part. Why are we fighting? What is our objective? Singularly, thousands of Americans still seem to be in a daze about the war and are asking these questions. Yet President Roosevelt gave us the answer in his message to Congress last January:

"Our enemies are guided by brutal cynicism, by unholy contempt for the human race. We are inspired by a faith that goes back through the ages to the first chapter of the book of Genesis—'God created man in his own image.' We on our side are striving to be true to that divine heritage. We are fighting, as our fathers have fought, to uphold the doctrine that all men are created equal in the sight of God."

That is the purpose, reduced to its simplest terms. We are fighting for the God-given rights of man. Our homes and alters are at stake. Make no mistake about that. Let us get out of the state of indecision and unite to protect our heritage.

Our military leaders see clearly what has been obscure to many of us who have stayed at home. They know that the choice is between paganism and Christianity. Religion dominates their lives and motions. You may remember that a few months ago the name of Admiral Nimitz was on everyone's lips because of the blows our Navy had dealt the Japanese fleet in the Pacific. The spirit of the man is shown in a letter I received from him during that time. "I am sure," he wrote, "that prayer has been very effective, and that Mary, the Star of the Sea, was present to guide our battle forces in the vicinity of Midway during the first week in June." Nor is the Admiral the only leader who is keenly aware of the power of God. Perhaps you will recall General MacArthur's message from Melbourne commending American war workers. The hero of Corregidor cabled: "This mighty war production comes from free men who treasure individual liberty as a God-given inalienable right." And let me tell you an instance of this dependence on God that comes close to home. A few days ago I received a letter from a Notre Dame alumnus who is now an army officer. He wrote: I imagine my surprise when I read the heading, "Somewhere in Africa." His letter illustrates what the man in the ranks is thinking:

"A Protestant private from Missouri told me last week that he thought the whole trouble with the world was that people had forgotten 'all about the One above.' If he ever got back to his hometown he was going to get up in his church and tell them that they should spend a lot more time in prayer. . . . Wars will happen, and this one will make the others look like pink tea parties. It's tough being separated from wife and relatives and friends — God knows how long. But it's God and country."

These are the convictions of the men who are fighting for us. Have we been supporting them as we should? Do we see as clearly as they do? I think not. Strange things have been happening in our national life since December, 1941, and they must be stopped before they cause disaster. A peculiar nomenclature is rampant. It is characterized by a bitterness and hate that is not helping the war effort. Of course, a diversity of opinion is not democracy, nor is name-calling and other forms of abuse should have no place in America. Healthy, constructive criticism — yes; but bigotry in any form — no. It is not Christian. What does it matter now who was for whom or against whom before Pearl Harbor, or who was right and who was wrong? The die is cast. We must be Americans, and stand solidly with the Commander-in-Chief and Congress in the course they chart for the nation. Let us be realists. We have no guarantee that we will win this war. We could lose it, or it may end in a stalemate, which is the same as defeat. Winning the war will take our money, men, natural resources — and something more.

To restore unity; to bring the nation to its senses; to stem the tide of dangerous movements from within that provoke the anger of God; to bring added blessings to our military forces, this nation must return to the faith of the founding fathers, whose rule of life was "In God we trust." America must get down on its knees and ask Almighty God to help us and our allies in this grave crisis of Christianity. There have been other times in our history when a public proclamation was so ordered; there was never a time as urgent as this.

Mindful of the problems that confront our courageous Commander-in-Chief; ever eager to manifest our loyalty to our Christian heritage; ever responsive to our duty of supporting our armed forces in this noble crusade; we respectfully request you, President Roosevelt, to set aside for the nation a day of prayer and fasting so that we may petition God, through the mediation of Christ, His Son, to support your arm in directing us to victory, and to that peace "with justice and charity" that Pope Pius XII urges upon the victors. For if God is with us in a righteous cause, no man can defeat us. The prayer of the humble nation, like the prayer of the humble man, pierces the clouds.

Today's confusion is the penalty we must pay for generations of antagonism toward religion. Millions of our fellow citizens profess no formal religion, and millions admit no belief in God. Deny God and the fundamental liberties which American democracy was founded to protect, and for which our armies are fighting, are automatically destroyed. Deny God and man no longer has any integrity as man; the family is no longer sacred; the state is the master, and not the servant, of man. That is the road to ruin that other nations have followed. It is the road that looms up before us unless the United States wins back its national heritage, which is essentially Christian. The strength of that heritage has been drained, not by attacks from without, but by the sapping tactics of a group of secularists from within — the fruits of a false education — who deny God, the source of all truth. Unless we get back to God, the most glorious triumph of our armed forces will be a pyrrhic victory, and there can be no lasting peace.

Members of the Freshman Class, you are enrolled at Notre Dame at a time when your future is pretty well determined for you. You have two duties. Sooner or later, in all probability, you will be called to arms. But your duty as an American and a Christian does not await your induction, nor is it confined to being a good soldier. Your immediate duty — one might call it a concurrent duty — is to help to restore a true appreciation of our national heritage.

Here at Notre Dame, under the accelerated program which, with some modifications, is here to stay, you will be trained in mind and heart for that task. Make the most of the opportunities afforded you in this environment hallowed by the early missionaries. Cultivate a strong spiritual sense by taking part in the religious program characteristic of Notre Dame. Develop your intellect by a discipline of study, and strengthen your will by learning the value of fortitude. Do these things and you will always be prepared to meet the Great Teacher, smiling!

Assembled here in this church built with strong and loving hands as an act of consecration to the Sacred Heart, buoyed up with a hope based on faith which enabled the Founder and his companions to fell the murmuring pines and hemlocks as a clearing for this edifice and the infant university; inspired by the heroic deeds of our forebears of Holy Cross as we review the progress of this temple of learning, we pledge anew our allegiance to God and Country in closing one epoch and beginning another.

What though the storm clouds of a global war confront us! What though the trials and difficulties of materialism and secularism beset us! What though the enemy from within or without attempts to destroy us! We are unafraid. We are undaunted. We accept any challenge that error hurls against Truth. And as we officially open our Centenary Year, we renew our pledge of loyalty to the Mother of God in those memorable words of Sorin as he viewed in retrospect his noble consecration to her on the snow-swept banks of the lake one hundred years ago:

"From that moment, I remember not a single instance of a serious doubt in my mind as to the final result of our exertions, unless, by our unfaithfulness, we should change God's mercy into an anger, and upon this consecration, which I felt was accepted, I have rested ever since, firm and unshaken, as one surrounded on all sides by the furious waves of a stormy sea, but who feels himself planted immovably upon the moveless rock."

"Let us now praise men of renown, and our fathers in their generation!"
The U. S. Navy Shares the Campus

But, You Ask, How Has the Navy's Coming Affected the Campus Corners I Used to Know? Here is the Answer.

"Apprentice seaman Callahan reporting for duty, sir," a tanned youth in civilian clothes snaps to a serious khaki-clad naval officer seated behind a desk obstructing the doorway of one of the first floor rooms in spacious Lyons Hall.

Lieut. L. D. Reaves, one of the dental officers in Howard Hall, works on apprentice seaman R. T. Behrendt of Newark, N. J. Assisting, is L. E. Beard, pharmacist mate, third class.

"Callahan, you will be stationed for the next month's training in 322 on the third deck of Morrissey Hall. Report at once to that hall for your sheets and blankets."

"Aye, Aye, Sir."

Thus, another class of naval trainees, all college graduates, arrive on the Notre Dame campus to undergo intensive training, leading eventually to the rank of ensign in the Naval Reserve.

This naval training course at the University was inaugurated in April and has been highly publicized from coast to coast. It is felt, however, that alumni and old students of the University would be interested in understanding more about one phase of the program affecting them; namely, "how has the naval program affected Notre Dame as I know it." It is with this thought in mind that we take you on a tour of your campus, attempting to point out the various changes affected since the influx of the men in white or blue.

After parking your car in the parking lot, you wonder if the uniformed men seen heading east in marching formation are men who have recently joined Father Ryan's hiking club, but it is pointed out quickly that they are a platoon of the naval trainees on their way to the Navy drill field east of the stadium for a few hours of rigorous physical training. Such training includes never-ending exercise programs such as push-ups, pull-ups, obstacle races—during which trainees race against time and obstacles placed in their paths—physical contact games and many other exercises designed to produce toughened physical specimens.

Let's go over to the Caf for a bite to eat before continuing our tour. One platoon of naval trainees is just coming out of the Dining Hall. Notice the regular cafeteria style employed by the boys, eliminating the need for waiters required in dining hall style. Notice also that the trainees aren't given any choice as regards food (but still they're enthusiastic about the food). Although the dining hall style was given a try for the trainees, it was found impractical, and the cafeteria installed in the west dining hall. (Note: the Notre Dame students were also converted to the caf system beginning with the fall semester).

Before we go on, come on downstairs here in the dining hall and see the naval trading post established for use of the trainees in order to eliminate the rush on the Notre Dame Caf. The trainees can buy almost anything they need—from tooth paste to candy and cigarettes—without leaving the dining hall. Remember when we used to buy our tickets for the Senior Ball behind that counter?

Perhaps you are wondering just how the presence of the V-7 group on the campus affects classroom capacities at Notre Dame? The Navy has effected a schedule of formal classroom work so as to occupy rooms in the Commerce and Law buildings, as well as using Washington Hall, free from conflict with University class schedules. In addition, the religious atmosphere of the Morrissey Hall chapel has been transferred to the intellectual atmosphere of a classroom.
Perhaps the Rockne Memorial field house has been erected since your time. If so, our stop will serve a double purpose—that of giving you your initial view of the Memorial as well as showing the naval activities in that building. The chief use made by the Navy of this building is for swimming instruction and physical toughening of the trainees. Even this two-hour-a-day instruction and practice in the pool, however, does not bar the Notre Dame student from the pool. It is stressed by naval authorities that students are free to use the pool at any time.

This is as far as we may go freely inside buildings without a pass from the Navy, so Ensign E. C. Dollard, public relations officer at the naval training school, has kindly consented to accompany us through the rest of the school. Here he comes now, out of his office in the first deck of the Lyons Hall annex, formerly occupied by various bachelor professors of the University. Going down the stairs into the basement chapel of Lyons Hall, one of the most impressive features of the entire training school comes gloomily into view. It is down here in that atmospheric chapel that trainees daily practice working with gas masks. Reminding one of a modern air raid shelter, the former chapel is also used as rehearsal spot for the local Navy choir. That explains the piano in the far end of the room. Back up the stairs and across the walk into the main part of Lyons we find company and battalion offices, where trainees first come upon arrival at Notre Dame. The rest of the hall is occupied by living quarters for the men.

I suppose while we are here, you would probably like to see just what a typical navy room looks like in comparison with the ones we used to live in. Well, here we have a typical single room, with a double-decked bunk, desk and lockers. Men, who are advised to bring merely the bare essentials for a navy life, usually arrive with just a suitcase containing the contents. Reminding one of a modern air raid shelter, the former chapel is also used as rehearsal spot for the local Navy choir. That explains the piano in the far end of the room. Back up the stairs and across the walk into the main part of Lyons we find company and battalion offices, where trainees first come upon arrival at Notre Dame. The rest of the hall is occupied by living quarters for the men.

Howard Hall, long regarded as a favorite junior hall, now houses the life-line of the entire naval training school. It is here that many of the better doctors of the country provide the best possible medical care for the trainees. Here on the first deck across from the officers' quarters are three former student rooms containing up-to-date dental equipment and manned by the Navy's staff of competent dentists. Another former student room in the same row has been devoted to a "sick bay." The training station also has full cooperation from the Notre Dame infirmary and from St. Joseph's hospital in South Bend. No, the Howard Hall chapel did not survive; for it is here that incoming trainees are examined to determine if they measure up to naval requirements. Doctors are on twenty-four hour call in Howard Hall.

Finally, before you go, let's take a look at historic old Badin Hall. Badin, the latest of the University residence halls to be devoted to the Navy, now houses a naval commissary in the old Badin recreation room. Badin Bog has been largely devoted to a Navy formation field, although sandlot sports still reign. Yes, and the front door of the hall has been reopened for the first time in numerous years. Ten o'clock taps finds sentries marching serenely throughout the entire school—both on the quadrangles and on each deck of each hall.

Sweeping back over toward the parking lot to bid you farewell, note the use being made by the Navy of the old parking lot east of the Stadium. It is here that trainees do most of their drilling and partake in physical training. Obstacle races, formations and toughening up exercises may be seen in this field continuously. Just west of this field across the road and in the shadow of the Stadium, the trainees are taught the wig-wag system of signalling.

Well, pal, you've just about seen the school as it is today with the presence of the Navy. Say "hello" to everyone for me and let us hear from you soon. So Long—Raymond J. Donovan, '42

CENTENARY LAETARE MEDAL

Notre Dame's Centenary Laetare Medal, the 60th award to this annual prize for outstanding Catholic lay achievement, was presented to the 1942 recipient, Miss Helen Constance White, in Madison, Wis., on Saturday, Sept. 19, at a private dinner.

Miss White, national president of the American Association of University Women, professor of English in the University of Wisconsin, and well-known author and lecturer, was announced on Laetare Sunday in the spring as the selection for this distinction.

Paul R. Byrne, librarian of the University, made the presentation of the Medal to Miss White.

THREE MORE CHAPLAINS

Three more priests of the Congregation of Holy Cross recently left to take up their duties as chaplains with the armed forces. This brings to a total of 14 the members of the United States province of the Congregation who are in governmental service.

Those who left recently include Rev. Joseph J. Cocecan, assistant professor of religion at the University of Notre Dame, and Rev. John J. Harrington and Rev. Thomas E. Hewitt, members of the Holy Cross mission band. All three priests received Army commissions.

First Afternoon Mass Feature of Summer

The first summer semester in the history of the University produced another outstanding inauguration as the first afternoon Mass in Notre Dame's one hundred years was celebrated in Sacred Heart Church on Aug. 8 at 4:45 o'clock by Rev. Joseph J. Corcoran, C.S.C., who was to leave shortly to become an Army chaplain.

Four naval trainees were among the nine young confirmees receiving confirmation from Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., D.D., auxiliary bishop of the Army and Navy, following the Mass. The Mass was made possible (Communion being distributed to naval trainees only) by the dispensation recently granted by Pope Pius XII. Afternoon Mass was continued for some weeks afterwards,—as long as the Navy schedule of duties permitted.

Students attending the summer semester, who numbered only 2,016 in contrast with capacity enrollment of around 3,200, enthusiastically received a double-barreled entertainment program on July 22 as Prof. Cecil Birder and Rev. Matthew Coyle, C.S.C., collaborated in presenting a Gilbert and Sullivan extravaganza, "Trial By Jury" and an anthology of famous Shakespearean and modern dramas, both on the same program. The anthology, carried out as a television program and entitled "Broadcast 223," was under the direction of Father Coyle, while Professor Birder produced the light operetta.

One of the outstanding activities of the summer, the "All-Star Grid Poll," resulted in the placing of seven Notre Dame men on the squad which lost to the Bears in Chicago on Aug. 28. Juszwik and Crimmins led in their respective positions, thus gaining starting berths, while Bernie Crimmins also received the added distinction of being elected captain by his teammates. The poll on the campus was instituted by The Scholastic, which for the first time in history was published during the summer.

"Cooperation Week," a unique feature during the summer semester, was designed primarily to bring to the front a better and more evident spirit of cooperation among the students. Highlights of this week included "Cooperation Night," during which two hours of old time rough and tumble games in the gym was featured, and a special summer presentation of the annual K. of C. vaudeville show. Dave Curtin of Rochester, N. Y., served as master of ceremonies and first prize went to imitator Paul O'Connell, of Newark, N. Y.

Musical presentations for the summer included three campus concerts by the glee club under the direction of Prof. Daniel H. Pedtke and a series of band concerts which featured a different guest conductor each time.

An intensive program of interhall sports, conducted under the direction of Dr. John A. Scannell, head of the Physical Education Department, was a notable feature of the summer and aroused unprecedented student interest and participation. About two-thirds of the students on the campus took part in one or more of the following: tennis, volleyball, softball, baseball, golf and swimming.

An art exhibition of student paintings went on display early in August and served as a special feature of the first fall Commencement in September. The exhibition, the first of its kind to be held at the University, included 69 pieces of work selected from more than 125 pieces executed by juniors and seniors.

Two admirals of the U. S. Navy, Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Navy's personnel, and Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of the Ninth Naval district, were guests of the University on Aug. 25 as they inspected the naval trainees of the University. Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., president of the University, served as host.

The first fall Commencement in the history of the University was held Sept. 3, producing a graduation class of 128. Seventy-five of these received graduate degrees, while 53 received baccalaureate degrees. Rev. Thomas A. Lahey, C.S.C., associate editor of The Ave Maria, delivered the address, while Father O'Donnell presented the degrees.

Latin-American Representatives Discuss Current Problems with N. D. Scholars.

The “good neighbor” policy that caused Notre Dame to print a catalog in Spanish in 1883; that followed it up with others, and that has dotted South America with Notre Dame alumni; the interest that took Rev. John A. Zahm, C.S.C., up the Amazon and across the Andes and brought to the English language through his pen some of the best early writing on South America; the zeal that took Rev. William F. Cunningham, C.S.C., director of faculty, Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., and Edward J. Heffron and Magr. William Carroll of the N.C.W.C. secretariat.

Representing the University of Notre Dame was a group headed by Rev. William F. Cunningham, C.S.C., director of faculty. Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., entertained the delegation at a luncheon, and Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., vice-president, represented the University administration at the seminar sessions.

Faculty members speaking at the seminar were: Dr. F. A. Hermsen, Rev. Peter Forrestal, C.S.C., Dr. Waldemar Gurian, Prof. Frank T. Flynn, and Mr. Eduardo Aelayaga. Prof. Walter Longford, who teaches Spanish and Portuguese, acted as Notre Dame's interpreter for the seminar, and also spoke on post-war problems of mutual interest.

The Notre Dame seminar dealt with the contribution of Catholic universities to the solution of social, economic and political problems.

SEMINARIAN DROWNED

Hugh McGuire, C.S.C., 25 years old, of Wisner, Nebr., who was to have begun his senior year at the University on Sept. 10, was drowned in Bankson Lake, near Lawton, Mich., on Sept. 3. With other seminarians he was spending a short vacation at the Community summer camp on the lake. He lost his life when he attempted to swim ashore after a sailboat in which he was riding with another seminarian overturned. Mr. McGuire was one of a family of 15 children.

The University acknowledges with deep gratitude the following gifts:

Mr. P. C. Reilly, L.L.D. '39, trustee, for the Art Galleries of the University. Fourteen oil paintings and two bronze statuettes.

ATHLETICS

By Bill Reynolds, '43

(This story was written just before the 7-7 tie with Wisconsin on Sept. 26. The results of that game may very well alter substantially some of the statements made here, especially as to ranking of players.—Eds.)

The eyes of the nation are turned toward Notre Dame, where the Fighting Irish undertake one of the toughest schedules ever carded in collegiate football. Each opponent on the 11-game card will be gunning for the Irish, hoping to break the string of victories that began under Frank Leahy last year.

Before fall practice started Coach Leahy was pretty optimistic over the team's chances. (That is, if a football coach can ever be called optimistic.) But as the training grind progressed, Leahy's optimism has changed to almost tragic pessimism. Injuries and other losses cast a very dark outlook over Irish hopes.

Looking ahead, one can easily see that the Irish will need to be the super team that Coach Leahy says they are not in order to come through with another enviable record.

In reality, prospects look pretty bright if the injury jinx does not hit the Irish too hard and too often. The schedule must be played with a team definitely not rich in experienced reserves. There were only four sophomores who were of monogram winning calibre last year. One of them, Matt Bolger, left end, has been called into the service. The others are Bob McBride, guard; Creighton Miller, fullback; and Angelo Bertelli, left halfback.

Bertelli's passing last season was so outstanding that Coach Leahy is basing his main offensive on the Chicago Bears type of T-formation, with Accurate Angelo in the quarterslot, doing most of the ball-handling and passing. In moving Bertelli to quarterback, Leahy left a vacancy at left half. To fill this hole, Dippy Evans was returned to the position he played before Leahy used him at fullback last year. Creighton Miller, Evans' understudy last season, was shifted into the other halfback spot, left vacant by Steve Juzwik's graduation. These moves left the fullback post to three sophomores, Jerry Cowhig, Jim Mello, and Corwin Clatt, who have waged a merry battle for the starting assignment.

Graduation took a toll of five other regulars besides Juzwik. In all Coach Leahy has lost 13 of last year's 24 monogram winners. Six of the eleven lettermen returning are in different positions this season. This coupled with the installation of the T-formation means that the veterans, as well as the newcomers, are inexperienced so far as style of play is concerned.

Adding it all together — inexperience, new system, losses, and schedule — it would appear that a record of six or seven victories in 11 starts would be excellent, according to Coach Leahy.

Player Prospects by Positions

Left end — Bob Dove, All-American as a junior, was shifted to left guard in spring practice to give the team a fast downfield blocker. This left the end position open to sophomore candidates, Frank Cusick and John Yonakor. After three weeks of fall workouts Coach Leahy decided that Dove would be more valuable at end than at guard and so changed him back to his regular position. "Pigeon" was already being hailed as an All-American guard when changed. Weighing 195 pounds, he is one of the fastest men on the squad. A ball player's player, Dove doesn't care where he plays just so he plays. Cusick, lanky 180-pounder from Providence, R. I., had the inside track for the starting assignment until Dove was shifted.

Left tackle — Lou Rymkus, Chicago senior, at present holds the job vacated by Jim Brutz, chosen most valuable player on last year's team. Lou has been bothered by a bum knee and a thigh injury for the last two years. If these are cured, he will prove an able replacement for the graduated Brutz. Rymkus has all the qualifications for a tackle, standing six feet, four inches at 225 pounds, and he is full of the fighting spirit that makes a real football player. There are only sophomores to spell relief for Rymkus. Jim White, John (Tree) Adams and Ziggy Czarobski follow in that order.

Left guard — When Bob Dove was returned to his end position Bob McBride, last year's No. 2 left guard who had been filling that position again this fall, moved up to the first eleven. Standing an even six feet, and weighing 195, McBride, a junior, saw enough action last year as Bob Maddock's understudy to warrant a monogram. Marty Brutz, Jim's brother, and Bernie Meter, both sophomores, round out the list of left guards.

Center — This is another position which will be the same as last year. Wally Ziembas, Tom Brock, John (Rebel) Lanahan, and Stan Kudlaiez who ranked in that order last season are all back. Ziembas and Brock have both been plagued by knee injuries in the past; if they are not bothered this year center will be Notre Dame's strongest position. Ziembas, standing six feet, three inches and weighing 220 pounds, is an excellent center, both defensively and offensively.
Brock, as understudy, spots Ziemba two inches and 25 pounds. Sophomore Herb Coleman, who showed up well in the spring, is the third center at this writing.

Right guard — Last year Bernie Crimmins was shifted to guard after playing right half in his sophomore year and fullback as a junior. Crimmins took to his new job in fine fashion, winning All-American recognition. This year Coach Leahy has shifted Harry Wright from the backfield to the right guard position. As a sophomore, Harry (The Horse) was a fullback, last year he was No. 1 quarterback. Now as a guard, he is being counted on to turn in as fine a job as he did at quarterback. His excellent showing in the spring won him the nod for the first string over Will Riordan, last year’s No. 2 man who has since been called into the service. Filling out the list of candidates behind Wright are George Tobin, Pat Filley, Bill O’Connor and Dan Hecht in that order. All but Filley, a junior, are sophs.

Right tackle — Graduation of Captain Paul Lillis, a great leader and a very steady workman, has weakened this post. However with a little experience Bob Nef, monogram winner in 1940 who was bothered by injuries last fall, is expected capably to fill the shoes of Lillis. The 215-pound West Virginian is one of the hardest workers on the squad. Ranking behind Nef, in the No. 2 slot, is Luke Higgins, 210-pound New Jersey husky. Larry Sullivan, who at 205 pounds is but a mere skeleton of his former self, (Sully weighed 235 pounds as a freshman) and Frank Szymanski, another sophomore, complete the list. Szymanski is a made-over center.

Right end — At 170 pounds, Captain George Murphy is the lightest man on the squad — lightest in weight only. What Murph lacks in size, he more than makes up for in fight and ability. “He’s a wonderful boy and a great leader.”

This is Coach Frank Leahy’s appraisal of the Fighting Irish captain. A home town boy who made good, Murphy was born and reared in South Bend. He is a brother of John, who earned a monogram in 1937 as understudy to All-American end Chuck Sweeney. Murphy started six games last year and was the number one end until John Kovatch’s rugged-ness changed the picture for the final three games. Although he is captain, a senior, and one of two experienced ends on the squad, Murphy has had a fight all the way to keep his first string job out of the hands of sophomores Paul Limont, Bill Huber, and Gene Dwyer. Limont, from New Orleans, seems to have the No. 2 position pretty well in hand.

Quarterback — Moving into the Irish backfield, one finds Accurate Angelo Bertelli in the all-important signal-calling spot. The soph passing sensation of 1941 fits right into the newly installed T-formation. In fact, Bertelli’s passing was one of the biggest reasons for Notre Dame going in for “T.” Last year “Bert” completed 70 of 123 passes for a net gain of 1,027 yards; this year, with a system which uses more pass plays, he may do even better. John Creevey, husky Detroit sophomore, and Pete Ashbaugh, reserve signal-caller last year, are both good passers and ready to fill in for Bertelli when he needs a rest.

Left halfback — Owen (Dippy) Evans is back at his sophomore position, after an excellent year at fullback. Evans missed the spring drills and was injured in the first scrimmage of the fall and was not expected to see any action at Wisconsin. He, like Dove, has been mentioned as a pre-season All-American. “The Dipper,” last season, led the Irish scoring parade with 67 points. A 60-minute man the last four games, he also led the team in ground-gaining. Bob Livingstone, Hammond, Ind., sophomore, was running at left half in Evans absence. Tom Miller, senior who scored on the last play of last season’s Illinois game, and Cammille Piccone, sophomore, should see plenty of action this fall. Tom and his brother, Creighton, are sons of Harry “Red” Miller, ’10, famous football star and captain of his era, and nephews of the other Defiance, O., Millers of Notre Dame tradition.

Right halfback — Bill Earley, squat, blond senior from Parkersburg, W. Va., was holding down the other halfback post. The West Virginia speed merchant is the second shortest man on the roster, but his nimble feet and fiery play make him a very valuable aid to the Irish. Earley and Creighton Miller, second string fullback on last year’s team, were waging a hot fight for the position the first few days of practice, but Miller was injured in the first scrimmage. Dick Creevy, senior, switched from left to right half this fall, and Eddie Krupa have proved very capable reserves in scrimmages.
Fullback — The all-sophomore post. Jerry Cowhig, 205-pound line plunger from Dorchester, Mass., had the inside track when this was written. His job is far from being clinched as Jim Mello, West Warwick, R. I., and Corwin Clatt, East Peoria, Ill., are pushing him all the way. No matter which of the three is in the line-up, opposing teams will know that Notre Dame is not shy at fullback. Bob David and Jim King complete the roll call.

A Glance at Later Irish Opponents

Stanford (Oct. 10) — Marzhe Schwartz is returning to Notre Dame; as a rival, not as a friend. Nothing would suit Schwartz better than an Indian victory over the Irish. He has 24 returning lettermen who would like to settle an old score — the 27-10 defeat Notre Dame handed Stanford in the Rose Bowl battle of Jan. 1, 1925. LaPrade and Banducci in the line, and Cole, Frankie Albert's successor, and Fawcett, backs, will be the men to watch.

Iowa Sea Hawks (Oct. 17) — After the Fliers opening game in which they trampled Kansas to the tune of 61-0, (the worst defeat in Jayhawk grid history) it looks as though Bernie Bierman has another powerhouse team. The Sea Hawks have all-star material three deep in nearly every position. Included are: Matt Bolger, who won a monogram at Notre Dame as Bob Dowle's understudy last season; George Paskvan, former Wisconsin fullback; Judd Ringer, Minnesota, and Mal Kutner, Texas, starting ends in the Chicago Tribune's All-Star game; and George Benson, whom the Irish hoped they had seen the last of at Northwestern last fall.

Illinois (Oct. 24) — The Irish should bring a victory home from Champaign. When Bob Zuppke pulled out he left his successor, Ray Elliot, with a quartet of good backs, Capt. Jimmy Smith, Dick Good, Don Griffin, and Myron Pfeifer, good center, Ken Cheeley, and 11 other lettermen. The Illini should have a good first team, but reserve power is untried successions, and Fawcett, backs, will be the men to watch.

Army (Nov. 7) — Notre Dame has a score to settle in Yankee stadium — the only blot on last year's unbeaten season. The Army mule will have more kick than he has had since 1935. Returning lettermen include a wealth of fine backs, including: Hank Mazur, Ralph Hill, Ted Lutry, Herschel Jarrell, and Jim Watkins, And the Kaydet line — enough said. Army is scheduled to be one of the top teams in the East.

Michigan (Nov. 14) — The first meeting since 1909. The Wolverines taught Notre Dame the game of football. This time the Irish want to show them the beautiful Notre Dame stadium that football built. More than this, pupil wants to turn against teacher. Fritz Crisler's outfit will be led by signal-calling Captain George Ceithaml and Tommy Kuzma, Harmon's very capable successor.

Northwestern (Nov. 21) — Last year's 7-0 victory is looking slender as the days pass. Gone are Don Clauson and Alf Bauman. Captain Nick Burke will lead the returning lettermen and a host of reserves onto Notre Dame turf. Otto Graham, the Wildcat nomination for All-American fame, will lead the attack.

Southern California (Nov. 28) — The Trojans get a week's rest before Notre Dame gets to Los Angeles. This factor alone may prove to be the difference between defeat and victory for the Irish. The passing attack of Sophomore Mickey McCord, Paul Taylor, and Bob Musick with sticky-fingered Ralph Heywood on the receiving end is the Trojan's big offensive dish.

Great Lakes (Dec. 5) — Another one of those teams about which nothing definite can be said, the Sailors promise one of the nation's finest teams. If the array of stars, led by Bruce Smith and Pete Kmetovic, can be kept together long enough, the Irish will meet their strongest opposition in Soldier Field, Chicago. Besides many outstanding college stars, the Sailor lineup will have many ex-professional aces to go against the Irish. The line is rated one of the really great forward walls of the nation.

NOTRE DAME SPIRIT

By Ensign E. C. Dollard

Or perhaps the spirit of Notre Dame is the grin on the face of the junior, who delights in telling the navy why he joined the marines.

It might be the thrill of the Angelus at eventide, or the face of the statue in the grotto. Perhaps it's the kind, old Brother in Washington Hall, whose eyes have a way of shaking hands when he says good morning. Maybe the spirit of Notre Dame is the ancient Irish garden, who always has his wife awaken him when it rains at night so he can hear God's gift to his "children," the lawns and shrubs.

Some folks would say the spirit of Notre Dame embodies the unwritten words to the hymns the priest plays on the organ in the cathedral on quiet summer afternoons, when the breeze is gone. You have a feeling it, too, stopped to listen. Maybe it's the majestic dignity of the painted windows as they wait patiently for the setting sun to get behind them, each in turn, so that they may daily tell their part in the story of the Creator of all things.

These things belong to you and to me, Bob. You'll receive those gifts when you come here and carry them always under that spot on your tunic, reserved for medals. And you'll leave this school and this earth, knowing and believing that...

Notre Dame is truly a way of life. Sincerely, BUD.

IOWA PRE-FLIGHT SCHOOL
Lt. J. M. "Bobo" Crowley writes from the Navy Pre-Flight School at Iowa City that one of the best Notre Dame meetings he has ever attended was semi-spontaneously gathered at the Marquette Courtyard the Knights of Columbus in Iowa City on Aug. 8. Moon Mullins conceived the idea, gathered the Notre Dame men and made full arrangements with the local Knights.

Those present included Dr. Eddie Anderson, Jim Harris and Frank Cardice, coaches at the University of Iowa; Lt. Larry "Moon" Mullins, Ensign Henry Schrenker and Lt. J. M. Crowley of the training school; civilians Bill Kirwan, now manager of the Iowa City Montgomery Ward store, and Dr. Bob Jackson of the Iowa State Hospital; and Pete Vaughn of Walsch College, John "Butch" Nieniec of Bellevue, O. High School, Tom "Red" Hearden of Green Bay, and Charlie Hafren, Riley High, South Bend, all of whom were taking a civilian coaching course at the school.

Bishop Bohlin of the diocese and several priests were also present as well as a notable array of other prominent citizens, from Iowa City and other points.

BUFFALO

The club held its first golf day of the summer on June 25 at Transit Valley Country Club. Twenty-eight members and guests were present. Ed Lats hung up the low score of the day—a very neat 78. Of course, the fact that it was his home course had nothing to do with it.

Our first fling at golf was so successful that we decided to hold another, this time at the Wanakah Country Club, and although we had a slightly smaller turnout, everybody agreed that we had one swell time. The food at both places was wonderful. Playing handicaps at Wanakah, Mike Sheedy pulled down first money while Dr. Robert Burns was second. As usual, President Joe Dunn was the best dressed man on the course.

We held our first fall meeting early in September and had an excellent turnout. The new freshmen were invited, as well as the boys from the campus who were home for a few days. Plans for the fall were made; Monday football luncheons, the club Christmas Dance, the possibility of a trip to Cleveland for the Navy game. Father Landenhach was chosen as club chaplain and told the boys all about his visit to the campus last year.

The club started the fall with a luncheon at the University Club, Columbus, according to Dan Cannon, secretary. The guest speaker was Father Baciagalupe, chaplain of the Lockbourne Air Base. Those attending were: Ted Kremser, Ray Ehren­leah, Don Hamilton, Jack Cannon, Jim Wood, Harry Nesler, Joe Ryan, Jim Grace, Tim Cool, Jim Ziegler, Fritz Steinbacher, Bill Brenzn­hau, Bob Fortune and Father Mattingley, chap­lain of the club. Alumni who are passing through Columbus have a standing invitation to dine with the club on Mondays at the University Club.

Another fall activity included a stag party with the Agnis Club in Columbus, which was arranged through Dan Hamilton, who is an execu­tive officer. Pictures of the Notre Dame-Southern California game were shown. The club plans again this year to hold radio parties each Saturday at various members' homes to listen to game broadcasts.

Jim Wood, formerly of Springfield, is back in town. Bill Broker, past president of the Louisville Club, attends club luncheons once a month. Ray Miller of Cleveland was present at one of the club luncheons recently. Chet Rie is associated with the Price Administration Board in Cleve­land. Jerry Benanacy was in the Naval Reserve at Notre Dame. Judge McBride is a master ser­gent stationed in Texas. Ray Ehrenleah, Jr., is in the Air Force at Savan­nah, Ga.

The membership of our club has decidedly dropped because so many of the boys are now in the service. However, the fellows that are still here are plugging hard to fill the gap and it looks as though we will have a most successful year.

all sports were plenty. Clem Crowe did a swell job of handling the whole affair.

The ball game was up to par. Some of the high-light was Matt Thomas’ long distance hitting; Larry Johnson’s skillful managerial advice to each team; Bob Chemn’s flash in form at short; and Bert Schlemer’s speed in covering the entire outfield while five other fielders stood by.

Lefty Joe Leonard and yours truly won the horsemanship pitching tournament, while Dwight Brown gave the boys a few pointers on pole. (We now know where Dwight spent his youthful days).

Andy Barton and Jim Conway, although they paid only one admission apiece, seemed to eat enough for two. That is what active participation in sports will do for you.

Hugh Barns is now assisting Clem Crowe with the coaching at Xavier University. Emmet Crowe, who assisted Clem last year, is now in the Army. We all wish Clem and Hugh a most successful season and we certainly will be out there rooting for them.

John Crowley is now a lieutenant in the U.S.N.R. Jerry Goodman recently was inducted into the Army and is now stationed at the Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver.

We were very pleased to receive word that Bill Castlewood and his men will attend our meeting this year. Bill is now manager of the Civic Affairs Department of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Bert Schlemer recently became the father of a baby girl. The way he is strutting, it is easy to tell that it is his first.

Plans are going forward for an eventful N.D.-Navy game, with Chuck Roby and Clayton Lawry handling details.

I had a nice visit with Father Gibbons, '29, on the train recently. He is at St. Edward’s, Austin, Texas. Jerry Haidy is in and gone. Several more, too, but my sudden induction precludes any definition of same.

DALLAS (Texas)

Walter L. Fleming, '48, 4549 Belfort Place, Plano; Charles E. Meyer, '29, 6320 Stanhope, Sec.

July 13.—The monthly meeting of the Dallas Club was held in the Dallas Athletic Club. Among those in attendance were Walter Fleming, president, Bill Grady and Little Bill, age 6, Bill Crowley, Jim Foley and his father, Joseph Foley, Ed Haggar, James L. Walsh, Dr. Lloyd Bellamy, Mike Linehan, Arthur Simpson, James Swift, Pat Bazzel, George and Fred Fass and Lee Frizas. Jimmie Simmons was attending a convention.

Frank McCullough has obtained a new position as law clerk to the Federal Court, Eastern District of Texas, Sherman, Texas. This sends Frank back where he was born and reared. Frank was formerly assistant district attorney for Dallas County. The club will miss him, but is glad he is not leaving Texas.

Many of the club members are now serving with the armed forces, including Paul W. Howesfield, Army Air Corps; Jim Fekay, Naval Reserve; Ed Solon, Army Air Corps; Mike Linehan, Army Air Corps, and Jack Shortall, Army Air Corps.

Bill Grady is stockicking with pure bred Jersey cattle on his Dallas County farm.

The club is happy to welcome Charles Lahr and Jake Reichenstein, both '42, into our Dallas alumni group.

DAYTON

William J. Struck, '26, 514 Harries Blvd., Pres. and Sec.

Ensign Thomas C. Ferneling, U.S.N.R., '40, on duty on a heavy cruiser in the Pacific, was wounded in action in the performance of his duties and in the service of his country according to a telegram received by his father Judge H. L. Ferneling, ex-'96, Sept. 5, 1942, which was later confirmed in a letter received from Secretary of the Navy Knox. The judge also received a cable from his son that he is getting along nicely, and is expected home soon. His twin brother, Ensign John C. Ferneling, U.S.N.R., '40, is also on duty in the service of the country. They were the first to enlist in the Naval Reserve from this county and entered the service shortly after their graduation from Notre Dame.

William Carroll, '04-'07, an active member of our club and prominent citizen of Dayton, died Sept. 7, 1942, at the age of 54. He was a past grand knight of the Dayton Council of the Knights of Columbus and at the time of his death was an engineer with the National Cash Register Co.

While visiting my sister and her husband Captain Louis S. McFarland, '26, in Milwaukee I was surprised to find myself sitting next to a group of young lawyers at noon having lunch. I recognized John J. Burke, '25, and after pleasant conversation he invited me to his office where we met his father Frank F. Burke also in the practice and spent a pleasant hour. John is married to a St. Mary’s girl and they have two children. We have held no regular meetings throughout the summer.

DENVER

John Humphreys, '26, 1425 Race St., Pres.; John Connell, '23, 2718 Fillmores St., Sec.

The club carried on with a highly productive summer program despite the fact that one-third of its members have gone into military service. Gene Blash and Al O'Meara compiled a preliminary membership list which was sent out to members for additions and corrections, with a more accurate list to go out later as a result of the first one. They have compiled a first rate golf chart, with a swell letter which went out, with a return postcard, to long-lost alumni in Denver and in the outlying towns like Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Trinidad. The results were most gratifying: a return of more than 50 per cent and a lot of grand dope on individuals.

Then Fred Gumbart, chairman of the club’s Men-in-Service Committee, got out on Sept. 10 a perfect mimeographed letter to all the club’s soldiers, sailors, marines, etc. He included the latest news of the town, particularly of N.D. men and activities, and must have been received enthusiastically everywhere.

The club will have none of its super football trips this year, for obvious reasons. But a lot of the energy that went into arranging the trips is being transferred to taking excellent care of the many N.D. men who show up at the Army posts near Denver. And here, as with the football trips, the club is doing a magnificent job.

DETROIT

The 1942 club golf tournament was held at the Birmingham Golf Club. Through the hard work of John Anspa, chairman of the affair, a fine array of prizes was gathered for which 50 members and guests competed. Low net for the day was won by Edward Sapers with a 74; Henk Anderson, second low with 78. Low gross and winner of the first prize in the Kickers was Mal Kanes, our president.

Ed Mclarty was appointed lieutenant, junior grade, in the Navy and left for Dartmouth College on the 14th of September to begin his training. Bill Delfayes was to be inducted into the Army at Camp Carter on Sept. 15.

Congratulations to Jim Kress, from Detroit, a newly enrolled freshman who has just been appointed head drum major of the University Band. This appointment comes as small surprise to Jim’s many friends who knew that he has been among the best drum majors in the country. Jim is a graduate of De LaSalle Collegiate in Detroit and, among other accomplishments, is champion fly-catcher for the state of Michigan.

Club activities have been curtailed due to the loss of five of our members, a high percentage for a membership that was none too large at best. The skeleton crew remaining does its best to get together whenever it can.

Frank Vukovich, '33, left recently for Washington, D. C. He is now an industrial specialist in the Division of Operations, Bureau of Industry Branches. His family will join him later.

John McKevitt, '31, has been doing engineering work for the government for some time in Washington, D. C., Florida, Pennsylvania, etc. His address: "I moved."

Frank Lesley, '37, is now in Appleton, Wis., having accepted a position with the Kimberly-Clark Corporation.

The club held its seventh annual golf tournament and dinner July 14, at the Indianapolis Country Club.

A feature of the day's progress was a special ceremony in the evening dedicated to the 42 members of our club and all other Notre Dame men in the United States Armed Forces.

Coach Lesby and his assistant, Ed Krause, were our special guests. They discussed the prospects of next year's team and showed motion pictures of the highlights of last year's games.

Walter J. Stahlheber was chairman of the outing. Other members of the committee included Bob Moyahan, John Harrington and George Smith. Ninety members of the club were present. James W. Garbett won possession of the P. C. Kelli trophy with the low gross score. This is third time that Jim has won the trophy. John Harrington and George Kiley had the next best scores. John Welch and Leo Grace made the best guess on blind par.

About the only thing worth reporting on this front is that the Army and Navy are certainly making inroads on the population. A quick summer's check-up, to which we pretend no semblance, would no doubt show a change in that of Private Persson. By this writing it has been changed. Bill Carter is now in Fort Logan, Colo. T. J. Flynn, of Montclair, has successfully passed his requirements of OCS and is now a second lieutenant. Larry Carter, '29, is in the Quartermaster Corps in Washington, D. C. He is first a lieutenant. The same honor is held by Frank McClain, '32, also operating in Washington, D. C.

Sept. 23, 1942, it will be Capt. Gerald Hayes of the Air Corps. Capt. George Murphy is at Maxwell Field, Ala. Joe Moore, of Bloomfield, is now at Pearl Harbor. Dr. George McDonnell is a first lieutenant in the Navy Corps. Bill Moretz also got the call and is no longer in the Federal Trust Building in Newark but is on his merry way. It's Corp. Ray Geiger, a soldier of long standing.

Joe Sullivan is a lieutenant, junior grade, in the Naval Air Corps.

To those of you who are friends of Tony Serge, I am passing his request to hear from the boys. You can address him as follows: Sgt. Tony Serge, Headquarters of the 4th Motor Corps Division, Office of the Division Chaplain, Camp Gordon, Ga.

Phil Heins and his family have moved to Chicago. Chicago Club, please note.

The club proudly wishes to announce that it has recently bought a $1,000 bond. We hope to realize enough money from our ticket activity to make a substantial start in buying another bond.

NEW JERSEY

To tell you fellows that our club is going through trying times from a membership point of view would be stating the case mildly. On the other hand, it may just as truthfully be said that when the war is won, it will undoubtedly have come about through the efforts of the membership of the Notre Dame Club of New Jersey. Now let me tell you why.

It was only two weeks ago that John Peroero came over to say that his civilian status would soon be changed to that of Private Persson. By this writing it has been changed. Bill Carter is now in Fort Logan, Colo. T. J. Flynn, of Montclair, has successfully passed his requirements of OCS and is now a second lieutenant. Larry Carter, '29, is in the Quartermaster Corps in Washington, D. C. He is first a lieutenant. The same honor is held by Frank McClain, '32, also operating in Washington, D. C.

The club opened the fall program of activities with the annual Father-Son meeting at the Hotel Woodstock on Sept. 2. Vice-President Jack Hoyt, '28, son to enter active military service, welcomed about 45 freshmen and their guardians. Past Presidents Ed Fallen, '26, Ed Tigue, '21, Dan O'Neill, '25, Doc Golson, '26, Leo McLaughlin, '22, and Warren Ford, '23, were on hand.

The N.D. Football Highlights of 1941 were enthusiastically received by the audience. The usual door prizes were awarded. The following committee members made reports: William A. Daunt, '09, Retreat; Daniel O'Neill, '23, Scholarship Fund; and Coleman O'Shaughnessy, '31, Reunion-Rally.

The annual Retreat was held under the direction of Rev. Cosmos O'Shaughnessy, C.F., at the Pasture Retreat House, Jamaica, L. I., the week-end of September 18-20. The retreatants attended a requiem Mass offered by the club for Ensign Francis F. Kelly, '37, a club member who was killed in the line of duty in Alaska on Aug. 5.

Dan O'Neill has placed in the hands of all club members books for the 1943 Scholarship Fund Drive. Members are urged to dispose of these books as soon as possible to insure the success of this worthy club program.

The club secretary is trying to keep an up-to-date roster of all members who are serving in the armed forces. The list is far from complete because of the lack of accurate information. Parents, relatives and friends of club members now in the armed forces of the country are asked to furnish the club secretary with necessary data.

Dress is informal and special low prices have been arranged for food and beverages.

Attractive door prizes have been donated by prominent stores and manufacturers, who will be listed with the box holders as patrons in the program.

FORWARDERS, BEWARE!

When a copy of the ALUMNUS is forwarded to a man in military service, or to anybody else, additional postage is required on the envelope. The postage paid at the publication point does not, for this class of mail, suffice for forwarding, according to Post Office Department regulations. If additional postage is not added, the magazine is merely returned to the Alumni Office, Notre Dame.

For obvious reasons, the Alumni Office much prefers to use ordinarily the home addresses of military men rather than their fast-changing military addresses, and will appreciate the cooperation of the people at home in forwarding the ALUMNUS and other alumni mail.

ENSIGN FERGUS FORD KELLY, ’37

When he enlisted in the Navy Air Corps in December, 1940, Ferg was an engineering assistant in the Office of the Borough President, having worked on the East River Drive and with the Tunnel Authority on the Mid-town Tunnel in New York. He was commissioned as an ensign on September, 1941, at Jacksonville, Fla., and assigned to flying patrol bombers. First he was sent to Hawaii, then to duties in the Pacific and finally to the Alaska area where he was killed.

In the midst of a dramatic plea for the sick and the suffering, John O'Graven Mott, LL.B. '29, Litt.B. '95, collapsed from a heart attack on July 23 and died two hours later in Los Angeles.

A pioneer Los Angeles attorney and civic leader, the 67-year-old Mott was making a warm plea before the Board of Supervisors for a reduction in the assessed valuation of charitable institutions.

Turning to a group of Sisters of Charity from St. Vincent's Hospital, Mr. Mott said: "These Sisters are giving their lives—"

Then he wavered and fell to the floor. He was immediately attended by the priests and nuns present.

Mr. Mott won a Master of Laws degree from the Catholic University after finishing his courses at Notre Dame. Entering the practice of law in Los Angeles he quickly became one of the leading citizens of the fast-growing community, active and self-sacrificing in charitable agencies particularly. He specialised in probate law and corporation law and was active in the Republican party: he was delegate to several Republican national conventions. As a close friend of Herbert Hoover, he accompanied the former president on his goodwill tour to South America in 1929.

Mr. Mott, himself a pioneer, was descended from California pioneers; his mother was a member of the Sepulveda family, famous in early Cali­fornia history; his father was Thomas D. Mott, often called "the father of Los Angeles." To this union five children were born and of these one sister survives, Mrs. Georgia Vanderlee. She joins the widow and a daughter, Mrs. Grace Howard McCarthy, in mourning her father. The late Thomas D. Mott, '95, and the late Y. L. Mott, ex., '00, were two brothers.

Joseph C. Smith, a student at Notre Dame in 1889-91, and again in 1894-95, died in Chicago on Sept. 29. He was the father of two children, two of whom are widely known in the annals of the Congregation of Holy Cross. One was a sister, who became Sister M. Eudoria, C.S.C.

The other was a brother, Charles, who became Brother Alexander, C.S.C., rector of Carroll Hall and teacher of mathematics, one of the great figures of the early Notre Dame. It was Brother Alexander who supervised the rebuilding after the fire of 1879.

Into the new Notre Dame he wove not only his own ability but the deep interest and affection of his young brother, Joseph. In recent years, the distinguished figure of Joseph C. Smith has been, until illness interfered, regularly seen at Com­mercenes, football games, and all of the major ceremonies of the University year. His interest was followed up by several substantial benefactions.

Long a resident of the Chicago Beach Hotel, his activities in Catholic movements in Chicago added much to Notre Dame's interests there. His understanding, his loyalty and his encouragement of these movements will be greatly missed. Mr. Smith was buried in Watertown, Wis., his original home, where his family first came in contact with the Congregation of Holy Cross in the '70s. A nephew, Joseph N. Mott, '22, and a niece, Genevieve Mullen, survive him.

Charles N. Girsch, of Chicago, a student at Notre Dame from 1889 to 1898, died on Aug. 28. Mr. Girsch was for many years one of the most loyal and active members of the Notre Dame Club of Chicago. He was a charter member of St. Philip Ner, Council, K. of C, in Chicago. Surviving are his wife, two sons and a daughter.

Joseph J. Sheekley, of South Bend, a student and varsity football player at Notre Dame in 1899-1902, died suddenly on July 29. Surviving are two sisters and a brother. One of the sisters is the wife of Joseph B. Murphy, '11, of Dayton, O.

From Father Mac:
... All the old students of the middle ‘90’s will read with sorrow of the death of John G. Mott of Los Angeles. He took part in all the activities of his day at the University. He was an exceptionally fine actor and any one who saw his portrayal of Cardinal Richelieu at the ‘96 Commencement will never forget it. His career after leaving Notre Dame was a continuation of his marked success while there. May he rest in peace!

From Guer Miller:
Incomplete records indicate that the majority of the class of 1916 are serving in important war efforts. Fifteen are dead and 97 are alive or missing. Naturally, most of us are too fat and soft to actually carry guns.
Several indicate that they will try to see at least one Notre Dame game at school this fall. Keep your eyes open for some of your buddies.
A letter will go forward to each class member within a few weeks asking the latest report on the war effort. A complete story will be in the next issue.

Joseph M. Boland, Station WSBT, South Bend, Ind.

Alumni Contributors, 1942-43

From Joe Boland:

While this is more than a "brief pause for station identification" it very nearly came close to being just that, for want of more to write about.

We could use a bit of that stuff called news.

It's pleasant to report that Boris Epstein has finally reported, after having been paged in this department for some time past. He's with the Standard Paint & Wallpaper Co., 3839 W. North Ave., Chicago, and sends his regards to all.

John Dailey checked in with a "Here, Sir" from Burlington, la., and his hopes of law, as did Tom Dunn from the Ibbn Bldg., Morris, Ill.: Tom also announced the birth of a son, Arthur Joseph, on July 3 last, and gives word that Clarence Buddy is still at the law in Aurora, Ill.

Bill Carter, who has been in publicity with his own firm, (demonstrating his ability in his letter to Ye Scriv) left Aug. 20 for Camp Dix, as a buck private, (demonstrating his ability in his letter to Ye Scriv), and his parents hope, as did Tom Dunn from the Ibbn Bldg., Morris, Ill.: Tom also announced the birth of a son, Arthur Joseph, on July 3 last, and gives word that Clarence Buddy is still at the law in Aurora, Ill.

Bill Carter, who has been in publicity with his own firm, (demonstrating his ability in his letter to Ye Scriv) left Aug. 20 for Camp Dix, as a buck private, having assured us of his 100 per cent support in the alumni endowment drive. Maybe he'll run into Steve Ronay, until recently a professor of English here at Notre Dame, now an officer in the Army Air Corps.

Malcolm Hatfield, now Judge Hatfield of Berrien County, Mich., has outlined the story of how he got that way for his classmates. Rends good, too — so here it is:

"I was married two months after our class graduated in 1927 and took a job at Niles. For two winters and summers I took graduate courses at N.D. and received a Master's in 1929. I continued my work evenings Saturdays for a Ph.D. but this was interrupted two years later when I was asked to run for probate judge of Berrien County.

"It was a difficult decision to make but I figured that as long as I had existed long enough on the gentry starvation wages of an educator I had better get into a vocation where I could keep out of the poor-house at 60. So I traded the chances of receiving a Ph.D. for the judgeship of receiving a Ph.D. and have never regretted my action, for the chance of service in this field is enormous. If the boys will read Karl Detzer's article "Bad Boys and Good Neighbors" in the May, 1939, issue of 'Readers Digest' they will see what I mean."

(Ed. Note: Judge Hatfield has recently been appointed to the Redpath circuit, lecturing on work in the field of juvenile delinquency.)

And Johnny Nyikos, of basketball fame, popped through with regards and best wishes from his Chevrolet Motor Co. job at Syracuse, N. Y., where he is located for General Motors. Home address: 564 Berwick Road.

Frank Hagenbarth writes from Spokane, Wash., in this fashion:

"... I am hale and hearty, living in Spokane, and I am secretary-treasurer of Lomax-Grimmer Warehouses here doing warehousing and transportation business.

"... After travelling around for 13 years I am glad to have settled down now and have my own home. We have a boy and a girl now ages 2½ and 1 year.

"I was very pleased recently to find Joe Reedy in town. He is now a first lieutenant in charge of armory warehousing at the Spokane Air Depot. He is living at the Culmstock Arms Apt. Hotel, Washington and 8th Sts., Spokane. Joe is still a bachelor, but I have hopes for him. He is doing a good job here. At the rate he is going, it looks like he'll be the head of the army before very long. He is fit, and now has a head of iron-gray hair.

"I told Joe I would write you and let you know where he is. I know he would be delighted to hear from some of his classmates, and so would I."

Which, I take it, is invitation enough—saith ye writer, who now must turn character to become "Ye Spieler."

John Harwood, architect in Nashville since 1924, has been commissioned first lieutenant in the Army Air Force intelligence unit at Miami Beach, Fl.a.

Ted Berkery is vice-president of the Emergent Industrial Savings Bank in New York.

Louis F. Buckley, 4418 MacArthur Blvd., Washington, D. C.

Alumni Contributors, 1942-43

From Len Buckley:

My Labor Day mail consisted of two reminders that I must meet a Sept. 15 deadline—one from Bill Dooley and the other from the Collector of Internal Revenue. I wish I could think of a way of passing the buck successfully in the latter case as I hope I have done for class notes.

Following the guest columnist plan which has worked well for a number of years, I immediately sent a S.O.S. to Bill Kearney and Dave Smith. I am asking Bill to send in a report on the Chicago gang and Dave to give an account of the architects. If my plan works, Bill Dooley will give you the contributions of our guest writers this month.

Your Washington correspondent has picked up very little '28 news since his last report. I had a very fine session with Dick Whener who is here in Washington with the War Production Board. Bill Jones reports that Ohr Rhee is also in town with the Office of Price Administration. Phil Lyle called me from Fort Belvoir where he is stationed. I hope to get this gang together soon. Bill Jones also informed me of the death of Joe Brannon's father in Denison, la. Joe is still located in Sacramento, Calif., where he is manager of a Sears Roebuck store. I also heard that Bill Rollen is in service now and is located in Texas. It was the first I had heard about Bill since our Freshman Hall days. He had been teaching in the Washington Conservatory of Music here for a number of years.

Bernie Garber wrote during the summer from 300 West 199th St., New York, indicating that we should have our 15th reunion in the spring regardless. I would like to have suggestions from some of you on this subject. The future is so indefinite that very little can be said at this early date but let's keep it in mind for further discussion. Bernie, by the way, mentioned that George Scherer of 1203 N. Troy Ave., Chicago, had a second son born May 29.

Glenn Hatsch dropped me a note in June after reading the June "Alumnus." Glenn is in Allen town, Pa., with the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. He mentioned that he was glad to see a report in the column on Blank Massman as one of his jobs is to see that his mills keep the government well supplied with cement on a huge project in Tennessee, which is being constructed for the government by the Massman associates.
After completing my report for the month, I received a call from Tom Mahon who is now in the Navy and is stationed here in Washington in an office job. He lives at 1416 South Highland, Arlington, Va. I am glad to welcome Tom to the events of the war that are going on in Washington, even though he finds it more crowded than Superior. Wis. Tom reports that Navy Lieutenant George Casey has finished his course in Rhode Island and is stationed at Elizabeth City, N.C.

From Bill Kearney:

McKeown told me sadly that he had just been discharged—not from jail as he perhaps should have been but from the hospital and a five-week session. He started with ptomaine and ended with pneumonia. The expense and inconvenience were great, but the expense means nothing to Ed who has recently established the firm of Hassenaner (Leo of '20), McKeown and Trussell. Ed has always done a great deal of legal work for Commercial Credit (of which I might soon need some myself), and he also has the McKeown Motor Sales. If you have an order from Uncle Sam Ed can sell you a deep freeze auto. He is married and has two children, one just about to leave for a task and a place concerning which he could not tell anyone. He was formerly with the Chicago Title and Trust Company and has a beautiful five-week session. He would rather fight with guns than write. Ray McCauley, a year ahead of us, I guess, is also a man navy, lieutenant senior grade, and so is George Casey, both having the same rank.

Dick Phelan and I saw Ray McKeown the other day in his uniform. He is a lieutenant in the Armed Guard division of the Navy, had completed his training at Chicago, and was then about to leave for a task and a place concerning which he could not tell anyone. He was formerly with the Chicago Title and Trust Company and has a beautiful five-week session. He would rather fight with guns than write. Jack (Red) Cavanaugh is trying in every way possible to get into the scrop and I just heard a rumor that he won't. He is about as busy as anybody in town, running from here to South Bend to New York to Chicago, representing clients and several associations. He was married last August and has a beautiful five-week session all planned. He has the hand on the lake but somehow it does not qualify as a defense plant so he will have to wait until he can win the war. Dick tells me that John Sciter, Washington quite often, busy with his boss, the postmaster General. By the way, Bill, the General was in Chicago a year ago for Universal Notre Dame Night and he really is a grand fellow, as you no doubt know.

Spike McAdams, who recently completed a big campaign throughout the state of Illinois which drew down an article in "Life," is also trying to get into the Army, and I believe he will soon have the word. He is busy practicing law, refereeing prize fights, raising a fine family and enjoying the town with his presence. I regretted that Ed Sciter, John's brother, could not come as Ed thinks that maybe his only claim to fame, the only bachelor in our class, but I guess he moved out of the parish.

South Bend boy who is doing very well here. He is the bakery sales manager of Standard Brands. He has an even greater burden on his hands, the prompt and efficient collection of personal property taxes. It really is an important task, getting his new department organized, and Eddie is doing it. I see him almost every day, and he has the complete confidence of the public officials. Ed is as handsome as ever but so far he has managed to elude all sales. I think that his only claim to fame, the only bachelor in our class, but I assured him we could dig up some more.

Dick told me that he heard from John Ives. John, the Sandusky dynamo, is now in Gary, Ind., as assistant purchasing agent for Tubular Products, a U. S. Steel defense work subsidiary. He was married not so long ago (the story of the wedding and honeymoon as told by Ed and mine and the two of us went on a trip to Ton Cooke, '24, who for the past several years has been the head of the escrow department of the Chicago Title and Trust and Joe gave me valiant service. He lives in Winnetka and a few days away from the hospital after pneumonia. The expense and inconvenience were great, but the expense means nothing to Ed who has recently established the firm of Hassenaner (Leo of '20), McKeown and Trussell. Ed has always done a great deal of legal work for Commercial Credit (of which I might soon need some myself), and he also has the McKeown Motor Sales. If you have an order from Uncle Sam Ed can sell you a deep freeze auto. He is married and has two children, one just about to leave for a task and a place concerning which he could not tell anyone. He was formerly with the Chicago Title and Trust Company and has a beautiful five-week session. He would rather fight with guns than write. Memphis Chapter where he has done pretty well in his practice there. I looked in vain for Pete Brussewell, '29, as I hear that he is an important architect in Bay City, Mich. Our dean, W. F. Kerrick, was in attendance at the convention.

Jack Seashalter wrote from Cleveland last month with much good news about himself. He is now doing illustration work in Cleveland for armament plants to use in the instruction classes of the armed forces. My old roommate. Sam Daha, is the mystery man, though the grapevine from Libertyville informs me that he has been working throughout northern Illinois in the service of Uncle Sam. By this writing he may be one of our defenders.

I have made contact with John Igoe, now of Gary, and expect to meet him at Notre Dame the first football game, if not before. My brothers are in the home town of Crystal Lake; Ill. Vernon, '31, practicing law and Harold, ex- '28, in the oil business. My Freshman roommate, Howie Phails, has visited us and is still with the W. F. Quarrie Co. of World Book fame. Dan Fitzgerald, '27, is a yocman in training at Purdue University.

We moved here to Benton Harbor from Spring­field, Ill., in May, 1944 and I joined Walter A. Preston in practice here. Since then we have been comfortably busy in general practice, though of late mostly on industrial design. We have a daughter, Barbara Ann, two and one-half years old, and a new son, Michael John, born August 28.

From Paul Brust to Dave Smith:

Since 1928 many things have happened to me and yet I have a nostalgia for Notre Dame. Each visit back to school and each copy of the "Alumnus" have been eagerly anticipated.

After graduation I spent a year at Columbia University in New York City. Then I came home and worked in my father's architectural office in Milwaukee. Several years later a trip to European centers was a highlight. In 1933 I was in the federal architect office in Washington, D. C. While there I frequently saw Louiehugh who was in another group of that staff. John O'Neill was working in Washington with another agency at the time and we often saw him on several occasions and I met Jack Cantraha there too.

I moved to Milwaukee and became an architect­ual inspector for the Federal Housing Admin­istration, which position I enjoyed for several years. During this period, in 1936, I married and moved to a suburban location.

Later my father, brother John, '32, and myself united in an active architectural group and were fortunate in doing a sizeable quantity of architect­ural work. Our office was quite busy, even up to the present time.

During this period many of the boys stopped in this town and visited. Arnold Thomas and I took a long eastern tour together. Pat Varravie came up while doing estimating work. Now Mike has moved back. We hope he has a good reunion soon.

My father, being a regional director of the American Institute of Architects, has met some of the boys and brought back word from Many­ Ingram when they attended a Louisville conven­tion meeting.

Earl Warthering met Dad in Bloomington, Ill., last year. I believe he brought word that Bob Kowx was alive and smiling.

Early this spring I spent a month assisting the Farm Security Administration and the boys showed me drawings made by one of their Illinois men. It was the work of our beloved Sam Daha.

The Christmas cards of Roy Wedders and Ann Thomas usually have a note attached giving the latest news of interest. Al Schurr was a good correspondent.

Since graduation he worked in Chicago for three years with Tallmadge & Watson, Hollard & Root and H. L. Stevens, all architects. During the depression he, his Dad and seven brothers formed the Fettig Canning Corp. in Elwood, Ind., and Leo served as general manager and chemist.

Leo married a house town girl, Lenore Mc­Kenzie, a graduate of Mt. St. Joseph in Cincin­nati, at the Log Chapel on Jan. 26, 1932. They now report four children: Dennis Benedict, 9; Dorothy Ellen, 8; Paul Francis, 5; and Mark Lee, 2.

Leo left the canning business in January, '41, to accept a position with the Chas H. Shoock, Inc., construction company as designer and estimator and is still in the same position, in Dayton, O. He sees Arnold Thomas who is at Wright Field in Dayton.

Louis F. Buckley, of whom you have perhaps heard, had published an article entitled "The Effect of the War Upon Labor in the United States" in the July issue of "Social Science" magazine.

John McMahon, Pittsfield, visited the campus on Aug. 21, John, who is president of the West­ern Pennsylvania N.D. club, was in Chicago on business and stopped at the campus on the return trip.

Architect Al Schurr assisted the local chairman in the arrangements for the annual architects' meeting that year at Cedar Point. O. I recently, according to an article in the "Ohio Architect."

Al, who served as supervisor of "white collar" projects for the WPA during the early '30s, qualified for registration as an architect in Ohio by written examination in 1936.

After serving as special sales engineer with the Hilde and Dauch Paper Company in 1936, Al is at present situated with the Prumo Brook Federal Project.

Bill Dankey is now serving with the Army, according to a scout. And the secretary of the class was back in the office of the Judge Advocate Gen­eral in Washington, D. C., when he wrote to the Alumni Office on Sept. 14. Which makes it seem certain that we'll hear from him even less fre­quently than heretofore.

Pete Somerville, former superintendent of the Jones and McLeannan Steel Corporation plant at Munsey, Pa., has been made general manager of the Gilmore Wire Rope Division of the corporation.

From John Bergan:

Prof. Ed Coomes and Alex Petrunache of the University Club have made several trips to the Institute of Technology. Len Mager is a contract­ing engineer for the construction of a large mag­netized plant in Houston, Texas, while Paul Cushing and Paul Eauign are contracting engineers.

A son, David George, recently arrived in the home of the Joseph Debs of Grand Rapids. Joe is still the dynamic seven-day-a-week U. S. district attorney of western Michigan. Mart Downey is the business manager of the Chicago "Sun." Dick Breen has been recently transferred from Chicago to New York in his job with the department of immigration of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Mart Dowling, who has been very ill, is somewhat improved but still cannot be on the job. He would greatly appreciate a note from the gang, so let's drop him a line. His address is 63 Inglewood Drive, Rochester, N. Y.

There has been no news of George Vlk who was declared missing after the fall of Wake Island.

Frank Leahy, beginning his second season as coach, reiterates his statement of last year that the doors of the athletic office are always open to any member of the class on the campus. We certainly hope that Frank is right, and his staff looks forward to being on the most difficult schedule in the history of the University football teams. Frank is in fine shape physically after a three-weeks' illness late this summer.

Lt. Ed Kosky, USNR, is on the athletic staff of North Carolina Pre-Flight school under direction of Lt. Comm. Jim Crowley. Bill Kerigan is specialist, second class, at Great Lakes. Capt. Clarence Donovan has been transferred to Randolph Field, Texas. Frank Neill is a candidate for city clerk of Indianapolis. Frank Kapinski joined the Army and resigned as justice of peace of St. Joseph county, South Bend. Ed Hoinski, the South Bend furniture man, is also preparing to leave for the Army soon. Frank Baterier, specialist, second class, has been transferred from the V-4 indoctrination course at the University and is preparing for sea duty at Norfolk Navy base. His wife is residing in St. Paul, Minn.

About the busiest lawyer in Chicago is late halfback Bob Pigott, class of '34, who is in the General Motors plant at Seattle, Wash. His brother-in-law, Ray Ballie, the former Boston tire man, will soon be in the Navy at Boston. Dan Halpin, in the industrial division of Radio Corporation of America, spends much of the time visiting defense plants all over the country. He was a visitor at football practice early last month.

Joe Boyland enjoyed a promotion with the New Amsterdam Casualty Company. Joe resided in Grand Rapids and travels over central and southern Michigan. Bernie Leisy, recently of Camp Grant, farrowed his athletic officer's duties to attend Officer Training school at Fort Sheridan. Bill McNally, from the class whose name will be interested to see that Private Dan O'Grady, the former philosopher prof., has made officers training also.

Our Washington, D. C., branch now includes: Lieut. Jack Sanders, USNR; Bill Jones, lands division of the Department of Justice; John Manley, ODIT; Phil Konop, Federal Land Bank; Bill Karl; Norby Heffman, G0; Ensign Norm Hartzer, USNR; Gene Coyle, Internal Revenue Department; Charlie Manis, Department of Civilian Defense, and Leo Cook, Department of Justice.

LIEUT. LEON J. CRONAN, '34

Lieut. Leo J. Cronan, of the phy. ed. class of '34, was leader of the platoon winning first place in the second battalion at the Navy Pre-Flight School at Chapel Hill, N. C. Leo was physical director at Brooks School, North Andover, Mass., before he entered the Navy. At the Pre-Flight School he is continuing his outstanding work in training athletes.

Congratulations to the Rev. Charles Cavers, C.S.C., campus writer and faculty publication adviser, on the 1942 "Dome" which was one of the finest editions we have ever seen. Harold Bennett is one of the chief accountants of the Mishawaka Rubber company, a vital defense plant. Paul Fehl was recently named general manager of the Fedleg Lumber company in St. Louis. Ray Manix has recently succeeded his father as president of the Manix company, Greenville, O.

We are trying to bring our service men's list up to date, to please advise us of any member of the class in service and his address. The class has nearly 100 men in the armed forces.

Do your best to provide something for the University centennial drive this month so that '31 can reach its quota, and don't forget to drop a line to the see's office for the next issue.

Harold O'Connor, former zone deputy in the office of the internal revenue collector at Rockford, Ill., has been appointed an internal revenue agent. He is now attending a special training school in Brooklyn after which he will be assigned to one of the bureau's offices.

Jack Kinney, the former track manager, is now compensation manager for the Travelers Insurance company in Philadelphia. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and in 1941, was married. He expects to enter the Navy shortly.

From Jim Collins:

I have been working around the Canton, O., area during the week and called on Pete Streichman, recently. He is still the deputy county treasurer there, and was busy picking the last of his peaches off both trees the last time I saw him. Harry Paradis, ex-'32, is practicing law in Canton and told me he recently visited Thad Zelowski in Chicago.

Bill Waltz is with the Ohio Merchants' Bank in Massillon, and is spending all his free time trying to raise some grass around his new house which was completed in July. He is married and has two children.

I spent an extremely enjoyable evening with George O'Malley in Yonkers recently. He is the purchasing agent for the Automatic Sprinkler Corp. He told me that John Kramer is still with Standard Oil in Battle Creek. He also said that Bill O'Malley is a s a staff attorney in downtown adjusting claims for an insurance company. Also saw Ed DeBortola there; he has a construction company and doing very well with it.

I had a long letter from Baden Powell recently in which he stated that he was looking forward to being commissioned soon in the Navy after spending the past eight months in the recruiting service. He said he had seen more dry land, especially in Texas, since he joined up than any Navy man ever should. He is looking forward also to spending a training course at the campus when his commission comes through.

A card from Louie Buckley, secretary of the '28 class, states that he recently spent an evening with Ed O'Malley who is in the Adjutant General Officer Candidate School. Ed mentioned that Tom Graves is also in the same school. Thanks, Louie, I'll tip you off to some news of your class when I get it.

LIEUT. JOHN F. DAVIS, ’38

The Distinguished Flying Cross for skillful handling of his patrol bomber during a Japanese attack on Jan. 17 was awarded to Lieut. John F. Davis, ’38, according to an announcement in June. Details of John’s exploits were in the June "Alumnus."

Among the Notre Dame men in the local V-7 Naval Training School between July 6 and Aug. 6 were the following, left to right: Robert E. Sweeney, ’40, John F. Clifford, ’38, Chicago, Thomas E. Rooney, ’38, and Hiram G. McCarthy, ’38. Also in the class but absent when this picture was taken were Leonard P. Habig, ex. ’38, Thomas Hardart, ’38, and Robert C. Dyke, ’41.

"Time" (issue that appeared on the newsstands 9/10/42) in a letter to the Editor.

During the last year we considered a reporting plan very seriously. Through this idea we may be able to revitalize our columns and draw out our sleeping brethren. 1938 and 1939 have used it to advantage and now 1935 is going to initiate it. Each issue a new group of 16 men are going to have the assignment to send along all the news they can muster. Please send it to your scribe and he will get it in shape for the editor. Following are the 10 who will be responsible for the December issue, which will be the next to appear in an altered publication schedule: Phil Arndtler, George Barber, John Clark, Frank Deschampa, Jerry Foley, Harry Galvin, John Higgin, Ed Kilmurray, Art Kranzfelder, Jack McDowell.

The deadline is Nov. 15. Copy should be in our hands by Nov. 13 so that we can type it up and have it at N.D. by Nov. 15.

Tom Graves, now a sergeant in the Army, is in the Adjutant General’s Department, Officer Training School at Fort Washington, Md. Ed O’Hara has been assigned to a position in the Rochester, N. Y., public schools after teaching four years in the Hammondport, N. Y., public school.

Walter J. Harris, Jr., '38, was an aviation cadet, but Uncle Sam so far has kept the knot from taking place Oct. 17 in Frederick. All are invited to attend.

P. F. was scopied on my one engagement. It was announced in the local press two weeks ago:

Bob Browne was graduated on June 12 from the College of Medicine at the University of Illinois. And John R. Tobin, Jr., was graduated within the past month too. Frank Meyers and Nortfarup and a newly-wed. Bob Waldeck got married in May—he is in the Navy and is stationed in Washington, D. C.

Joe Callahan was last reported to be with the Second Armored Division at Fort Benning, Ga.

Ed Bartnett is in charge of preparing the hourly New York "Times" radio news bulletins. George Fitzpatrick is an ensign in the Naval Reserve.

From Hal Williams:

"We'll lead off with a card from Lt. Melville Fishwick, 342A, Camp Gruber, Okla. Sara Mel, "Just a note to let you know that I passed successfully the officer candidate court at Ft. Sill and that I am now stationed at Camp Gruber, Okla. I pinned your last column, but agree with you that more of the boys should indicate their whereabouts with a letter or a card. The class of 1928 was wondering about Joe O'Dowd. I visited him last week-end at his home in Indianapolis, Mo. Needless to say, Joe showed in his nephew, a wonderful talent." Thanks, Mel, and write again, soon.

New, Robert Holts, who is making his first appearance in this column. Writes he, "I came into the army last November through the draft and was immediately sent to Fort Bragg. I was in the FARC until July. 27 when they put me in a boat and sent me to Bermuda. I survived 5½ months there before the Army favorably acted upon my application for Officers' Candidate School. I am now (Aug. 1) at the Quartermaster School in Camp Lea., Va., and have hopes of receiving my commission around Oct. 1. Then I hope to get a furlough. I have been in the army almost nine months now and have had only three days off. Since being here I have seen three fellows who attended Notre Dame, Mike Crowe, '33, is here at the QM school and is in the class ahead of me; '38; '38; '38; and the chap named Allen, ex. '41, from Chicago; he is in my class.

"I hope to see the Fighting Irish in action this fall, but it all depends upon where I am stationed after receiving my commission. Something far more important depends upon that same assignment. I got her to say 'yes' over a year ago, but Uncle Sam so far has kept the knot from being tied. She is the same girl I was going with when I left, but her name is Alice Hood. Oh yes, it is stale news, but Bernie Mardeck, '38, is all tied down with war production at Bendix. I was his best man when he tied the knot last October."

And now, another serviceman, Lt. John Cleary: "Believe it or not, I am finally back in Indiana—this time at Camp Atterbury, Columbus, about 30 miles south of Indianapolis. The camp is new and as yet only has a cadre. . . . I went up to South Bend recently and looked over the old school . . . looks good . . . also saw some of Shepherd's old gang . . . . " Jack's address is 329th Inf., 53rd Division, Camp Atterbury, Ind.

And now Bud Shepherd. He is now in Flint, Mich. (1720 Detroit St.), his old home town. He writes that he is now in the tire business. What a business to be in now!

On Aug. 7 I received a note from Florence Hickey, '37. "A note from home just the other time I wrote you. Walter J. Harris, Jr., '38, was an aviation cadet, but since then plenty has happened. Walter is now a lieutenant in the Army Air Force; he received his wings on July 21 and pinned his wings on. What an exciting time that was, and I was so proud! On July 27 we were married here in Jersey City. Walter is now stationed in Texas, Ariz. And I plan to join him there soon."

And then there was the invitation to the wedding of John Francis Clifford and Gertrude Mar-
The local photographer was able to catch these four among the Notre Dame men who were in the V-7 Navy School from Aug. 11 to Aug. 26. Left to right are Dan O'Brien, '36, John W. Welch, '40, Clarence "Rube" Marquardt, '41, and Robert S. Howley, '41.

Wille, Cincinnati; Lloyd F. Worley, Tulsa; Ed- wards P. Wurtzbach, Notre Dame.

From Bob Sanford:
It certainly looks as though the class of '40 has taken over the Army; of course the campus is all Navy today, but, according to the mail I received, just about everyone that remembers how to write is in the U. S. Army.

The report published this month will not be up to my usual standard of literary value. Reason: I'm rushed.

From now on and until further notice, all of you who wish to write (and I know everyone of you wants to write me a note) can address the rest of the crew. We would like to hear from you who wish to write (and I know everyone of you wants to write me a note) can address the rest of the crew. We would like to hear from you who wish to write (and I know everyone of you wants to write me a note) can address the rest of the crew.

This is a fairly good spot for one to keep an eye on the N. D. men who are inducted into the Army from Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Bob Timmel of the class of '42 has been an outstanding softball pitcher for the Reception Center team. He has left here and is now at Ft. McCoy, Wis. One of my bunk mates is Ed Edmonds, '41, who works in the classification section, interviewing the men newly inducted into the army. Neal Gleason has left Ft. F. E. Warren and the QM Dept. and is now at Ft. Carson with the Engineers.

The mail came at intervals during the summer months. Gene Golden's mother wrote a short note saying, "Ensign Philip E. Golden, USNR, of the N.D. class of '40 received his 'wings' commission June 23, 1942, at Miami, Fla., and is taking further training at San Diego, Cal. He trained after receiving basic training. Am now attached to the 4th Weather Observer's Squadron, Harlingen, Tex. I have finally been able to track down Jack Piskar; sent a letter to him and Jayne at Ft. Knox, Ky., but imagine he has moved.

WHERE ARE BOD CUMMINS, ARTIE O'FARRELL, PETE MARET, C. R. McCANN, BOB BRADY and the rest of the crew? Would appreciate hearing from them or at least find out where they are.

"I was married to Patty Nelson of Longview, Wash., last Oct. 25. She got down to N.D. for my brother's graduation and met some of the boys and Paddy Bradley. Please ask some of the old gang to write."

Thanks, Jim.

Received a letter from Ireland recently and of course, John said, "You can bet your paycheck that we N.D. men will see to it that we can make it then."

Pfc. Jim Slade writes from his weather squadron and tells us, "Just a note to let you know what I've been doing lately. Was inducted at Ft. Snelling last April 25 and sent to the Air Corps Rept. Thnl. Gen. at Jefferson Barracks. Was sent to weather observers' school after receiving basic training. Am now attached to the 4th Weather Observer's Squadron, Harlingen, Tex. I have finally been able to track down Jack Piskar; sent a letter to him and Jayne at Ft. Knox, Ky., but imagine he has moved."

Last summer I enjoyed the presence of Phil Samuels and Jack Perry at the Howard capital. At that time Phil was in the Army and Jack was balancing the advertising department of the Indiana Bell Tel. Phil is now in the Army, but don't know where he is. Jack seems to be a real native. Wish we were all back at good old N. D. again, but guess a lot of the boys are married now. Would like to see section, Jim Brown, Glenn, Backscher, Gilliland, Golden, Duffy, Broncher, Reilly, Hennauwy, and the rest of the old gang. Wrote to officers' training school which has been approved. Hope they call me soon."

Lt. Frank Pieri says, "Just another member of the class dropping a line to say the army is still pretty good and taking most of my time."

"The class of '40 seems to be doing all right as far as the eight divisions is concerned. I keep in touch with a lot of N. D. men are here. Bill Golf, Jack Piskar, and myself. On Aug. 8 I joined the ranks of the married. I married home town talent, Miss Adele Lynch."

"It looks like I've got a break from the start. I graduated a second lieutenant, engineers, in April and in July received my first lieutenant commission and also a company commander's position; I am in command of Co. D., 24th Chemical Engineers. The Army is expanding and the Engineers are a great outfit. Hope to see my accounting soon when I get at the company's books."

"Give my regards to all the boys and I hope that we will all get together in 1945."

You're not the only one that hopes we can get together. The boys and I can bet your paycheck that we N.D. men will see to it that we can make it then.

Thanks, Jim.

"As for my own Army career, I donned the uniform of a buck private last October. Since then, I've managed to meet Ed Hynes, '41, and several other N.D. boys at Aberdeen, Md. Eventually I found my way to the 'old sod' of native Ireland. These Irish institutions seem to have a drawing power on me, and in keeping with the Hooiser's Irish spot this place has rain and more rain, followed by a little additional rain. The Emerald Isle is filled with many beautiful sights, both feminine and geographical, but reading the 'Alumnus' certainly makes a fellow yearn for the sight of our own beauty spot for about four years—the campus."

"I would like to go into more detail, Bob, concerning the fellows I've mentioned, but I'm afraid censorship would put a halt to very much information, so here's wishing all the men of our former class, both feminine and geographical, but readinpr the 'Alumnus' certainly makes a fellow yearn for the Emerald Isle is filled with many beautiful sights, both feminine and geographical, but reading the 'Alumnus' certainly makes a fellow yearn for the sight of our own beauty spot for about four years—the campus.

The best of luck to you, Johnny, and it won't be long before we will be back at that campus for our reunion. Here is Johnny's address, let's try and write—Sgt. John J. O'Brien—35 171 047, Finance headquarters of the Seventh Armored Division."

"Bad Bernard is an ensign in the Navy stationed at Dartmouth college. Pete Shea is stationed at Camp Lee, Va., with the Army. Tom MacAvity, '40, has been with the 23rd Infantry at Fort Sam Houston for over a year."

Johnny McIntyre reports that he is an ensign and an instructor in the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Texas. Frank Biazi is in the Army at Fort Warren, Wyo. Lt. Ben Sherman enlisted his officers' training at Fort Riley, Kans."

Lt. Robert Rodibaach has been assigned to the headquarters of the Seventh Armored Division. Carl Quinn is with the Army in foreign service, with the finance department, his address: Finance Detachment, A.F.O. 997, q/c Postmaster, Southeast, Wash. Phil Sandmaier and Carl were together in finance work at Fort Harrison, Ind. James Cleary has been promoted from second lieutenant to first lieutenant in the Medical Administrative Corps of the Army. Walter Hagen, Jr., has been commissioned second lieutenant in the armored division."

Douglas Eby was graduated as a second lieutenant from the Army Air Corps advanced flying school at Luke Field, Ariz., and transferred to an air base at Sacramento, Calif.

Joe Mulqueen has been advanced to a captaincy in the Marines. Charlie Weathers, who was stationed at the air base in Tucson, Ariz., and then sent to Miami Beach for officer training, has been commissioned lieutenant. His address is: 342nd Base Hq. and Air Base Hq., Greenville, N. C. He is squadron adjutant, mess officer, supply officer and chemical warfare officer.

Don Foskett is in the Army in officer training. His full address is: Company E, 2nd Regiment, Q.M. School, Camp Lee, Va. He reports that Bob Sullivan is with the Army Air Corps at Goldboro, N. C.

Ensign Robert J. Saggau, '41
Official U.S. Navy Photograph

Recently commissioned an ensign after training at Glenview, Ill., and Corpus Christi, Texas, Bob Saggau of football and track fame is now on active flying duty with the Navy.

A hurry-up request to John O'Loughlin, Chicago, to fill in for Sergeant Patterson of England and points east produced the following happy results:

"...I'm still with the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. The Army bescotled but I came up with a deferred classification. It's not entirely to my liking, but I can't do anything about it for the present.

My roomie, Dan Bradley, writes that he is enlisted in the Navy Reserve, and is working for U.S. Rubber in Detroit while he is waiting to be called. Another roomie, Tom Lynch, ex-'41, is in the Army.

Jim wants to know why Frank Link, who is at Fort Lewis, Wash., was so 'old' in his letter when I talked to him.

A girl who works for me was responsible for my finding the whereabouts of Jack White, the star of Washington Hall. Jack is now in the Army Signal Corps, stationed at Janesville, Wis. I also had a telephone conversation with another of our former actors, John Cepplinger. Coppie had been soldiering in Panama for quite some time, but was on his way to Texas and the Air Corps when I talked to him.

Jim Spellman has corresponded with me a good deal. Sure he's been in the Army he's traveled quite a bit. At present he is trying to get settled at Fort Lewis, Wash.

For now, I think I've given out with all the news I have. Maybe I'll have more later. I'd like to hear from any of the fellows who have time to write these days. A card addressed in care of the Telephone Company will reach me.

Ed's note: Thanks, John. You done noble, especially on such short notice. . . . For next issue, we're going to put the finger on a guy who earns his pay. Tom Gallagher, student and head of the Telephone Office for a year—Cap Jehring of Washington, D. C. Your news from the world capitals will be due Nov. 15, Jehring.

Sgt. John Patterson, class secretary, entered the army intelligence early in the summer after serving on the Sunday staff of the "Pittsburgh Press." Mrs. Annie Powers, the mother of Lt. David Powers, wrote to John with the news that her son is somewhere in the Pacific Islands. John's father wrote back that he had not heard from their son in five or six weeks and presumed he was in England or Ireland. Thomas was incorrect for they were notified recently that John was speaking the following week on the "Stars and Stripes in Britain" program which features each week a letter home from some member of the armed forces in England or Ireland. Patterson mentioned in his letter over this program that he had met the hill-billy guitar player, Joe Kallenbach, who is also abroad.

Millen Williams is now at Fort Benning, Ga., for officers' training after previously serving at Camp Claiborne, La. Maurice Stauder is now connected with the Electric Motive Corp. in LaGrange, Ill., working with Diesel motors. Michael Derhain is now with the Army at Fort Knox, Ky. Art Humby is a second lieutenant in the Army Air
Five Notre Dame men were among the class which, on Aug. 5, received the silver wings of the Army Air Force at graduation ceremonies in the advanced flying schools of the Gulf Coast Air Force Training Center. Left to right they are Lieut. R. J. Eichenlaub, Jr., ex. '42, whose father is the noted R. J. '15, of Columbus, O.; Lieut. Roger H. Henry, ex. '44, Lieut. Roman Nicholas Lambert, '38, Robert E. Langlois, '41, and Lieut. John N. D. Smith.
shipped out the next day as I did not see him again.

My old roomie from Walsh hall, James Patrick O'Laughlin, now gets saluted. Imagine that. He was commissioned a lieutenant in the Marines:

He says:

"Suffice it to say that I received my commission on Aug. 22 after a tough period of training. Vincé Daigler, Jake Morris and a couple of other N.D. men were commissioned on that same date. And then there were a few of our old classmates who missed out and returned to civilian life and the authority of the draft boards.

"The followe here are fine, I actually believe this Marine Corps is the closest thing possible to Notre Dame itself. The majority here are Catholic and Irish too. Such names as O'Connor, O'Brien, O'Heron, Murphy and Kelly are not absent from our roster.

"I met Stan Littizzate one week and at the Mayflower in Washington. He is working in the fingerprint department of FBI. Had a letter from Don Quinn. He went through radio school at Scott Field, Ill., and is now stationed in Texas. He writes to get assigned to a bomber. Jim O'Brien (so V. Daigler tells me), is a drather at Fort Meade, outside of Washington, D. C. Saw Jim McGoldrick here at Quantico last week. He is training as a special agent with the FBI. They do a lot of training on the Marine ranges."

Shuttling back to the Mid West, we get a report from Albert Plotkin, who does the impossible... getting a degree in philosophy, now working as an engineer. His report:

"I went out to school last week and I found the latest sons of Notre Dame carrying on in the same spirit whether in war or peace. I was sorry to see Dr. Fitzgerald, the philosophy professor whom I worked for as a corrector, leave for the Naval Intelligence. I spoke to Frank O'Malley, the red-headed idol of the English majors, and he told me that he wouldn't be long before he would be leaving for the service.

"After spending four fruitful years in the College of Liberal Arts, majoring in philosophy, I got a job as an engineer, testing Wright bomb ing engines for the Studebaker Aircraft Corp. a new factory in South Bend. Don't ask me what I know about engines because I was totally ignorant about any kind of mechanics. But it wasn't long before I was able to use a slide rule, learn logarithms, and distinguish between a pair of pliers and a monkey wrench and I became an engineer.

"I took special courses in a defense school at right to help me along. In my department there are three Notre Dame men from the class of '42: Charles (Tex) Lohr, Fred Beckman and yours truly. I plan to work here until the middle of September and then I will leave for Cincinnati to prepare for my theological training. I hope to later become a Jewish Chaplain in the army."

"The Class of '42 has a couple of feminine correspondents: Mrs. Loraj Lanibrook, assistant to Dean Mansion of the Law School, presents a complete picture of law students:

"There are only two 1942 law graduates who have failed to report in—one is Hank Schreiner who I understand is enlisted in the Naval Reserve, and the other, James Allen Barna of Florida."

"Of the others, four have been appointed special agents by the FBI. There are James McGoldrick, Robert Richardakis, William Murray and John Killen. The Army called James Lancaster of South Bend. Richard Swisher married the day after commencement and is now with an accounting firm in Chicago, practicing a combination of law and accounting there. James H. Neu accepted a legal position with the Columbia Broadcasting Company and is now in New York. Edward Kelly and Anthony Band and Jerome O'Dowd have enlisted in the Naval Reserve and are now on active duty. Joseph Miller also enlisted in the Naval Reserve and was awaiting call. Alexis Tassia, John Verdenk, John Ward, Ward J. Rafferty, Philip J. Hamel, H. R. Anderson, John W. Barry, E. C. Timpani, Edward M. Porten and Rocco J. Montefina were awaiting calls to army service as army engineers. William Syring was most of their last communication. John M. Specu was also being considered by military authorities.

"William Syring was appointed to a position with the Office of Government Reports in Washington."

Josephine Ragnolino, Joe's sister, writes a brief note from Trenton, N. J.: "Joe enlisted in the Army Air Corps upon returning home from graduation and is now a physical education instructor at Miami Beach, Fla., Replacement Center.

Fred Paulmann, in August, wrote from New Rochelle, N. Y.:

"I am passing the summer by working as a life guard for one of the Westchester clubs, but will enter Harvard Graduate school in September in the Industrial Management Engineering course. From this program I hope to eventually secure a commission in the Navy. Tom Kennedy is visiting Father Hoff in Montana at the present time."

We were surprised to hear from John C. (Bill) Kirby, surprised that he had been on the sick list. His letter said:

"Frank Fox is staying at Jim O'Laughlin's home in Washington for the present—he's with the FBI. After graduation, I spent a few weeks in Oklahoma with Don O'Brien. Had a fine trip."

"Last I heard, Dave Johnson was back on the campus. While I was in the hospital two weeks ago (that on July 15), I met Father Mooney who is head of the N.C.C.S. He said his outfit is proud of the N.D. boys in the camps and he should know because he had just gotten back from a tour of all the Southern camps.”

Another southern point heard from when Clarence Imboden, Jr., communicated from Morrillen, Ark.:

"I noticed our friend Joe Hrachovec is in Hot Springs. I'd like to run over and see him—if I could get his address. Recently I received my commission in the U.S.N.R., medical corps, and so I'm all set to enter Tulane Medical school in August. I heard from Vince Hogan last week—he's chaplain's aide at Camp Perry, Ohio."

Indianapolis, Ind., is present and accounted for by a report from George Uhl: "I've heard from Fred Tremble, whose address is now 813 Franklin Ave., Wilkinsburg, Pa. He is working for Westminster Electric Co., and Andy Gorka is there with him. He says that Tuck Rively and Bob Alengalous are working for Westinghouse in Bloomfield, N. J."

"Dan Howell, from school, says that Louis Richards is there and Earl Dean is somewhere in Virginia. I've seen quite a few at times here. He's working at Bridgeport Brass until called for by the Navy. John Donnelly is at Bloomington, Ind., Inspector for the Signal Corps at RCA Mfg. Co. Bill Youger is in the same boat at Rochester, and Bernie (One Blow) Wojak is in Newman, N. J., near his home town of Elizabeth, N. J. I've met some nice people here. The GYO here at Cathedral parish is quite active and I've met lots of swell fellows and girls. One little gal isn't so bad—in fact we played tennis and went for a canoe ride today."

Jim Rice, the red-headed Reedsburg, Wis., who began his coaching career at his alma mater, Reedsburg high school, this month. He spent the summer directing playground work at the same town and learned that Eddie Ostrowski, ex-42, from Pennsylvania has been transferred to Watertown, Mich., and expects to visit Rice soon.

When last heard from, Bob Uhle of South Bend was waking up the bugler at the Armory Air Forces Technical School. Keeler Field, Miss. That was part of his job. His communique states: "Now that I've finished basic training, I'm working in the squadron orderly room every other night as 'runner' for the charge-of-quarters."
I expect to be called to weather observer school before the end of August. I suppose you know Ray Donovan is assistant to Jim Armstrong in the publicity office at Notre Dame.

"The last I heard from Bucky Walters, he was unsuccessfully trying to join the Navy or the Marines. I had a letter from George Westerberger which said he was a candidate for a commission from the Navy as a supply officer. John Lauthinger is (or was, if the Army hasn't called him) working in Chicago for an advertising firm. I have only been in the Notre Dame graduate down here so far—he is John Donley, '36, from Virginia. I believe, I haven't had much of a chance to talk with him as yet, since I just happened to see his ring the other night when I gave him his pass."

Another Texas communication comes from Pvt. James J. Galt, dated Aug. 15:

"I received by 'Alumnus' today and really enjoyed reading about the other N.D. men—especially where they were and what they are doing. I was inducted July 8 at Scott Field, Ill., and arrived at Camp Swift, Texas, July 18. They really sent me a ton way from home, Shawneetown, Ill., but I don't mind it so much. The climate here is O.K. and that helps things a lot.

"I haven't received my first pay as yet, but when I do, you'll find my name as a contributor for the alumni fund now being raised. Ted Macdonald and I exchanged visits in May and we were back at school for a week-end. He's got to go back to N. D. in August or September for training in V-7. Received a letter from Jim O'Donohue of Grand Rapids, Mich., who enlisted and is now doing office work for the Army at Fort Custer, Mich."

Jack Dinges, former "Scholastic" sports editor, currently covers Patterson Field, Fairfield, O., as his home town. He writes: "I've been in the Army Air Force since June 7. I'm taking a headquarters or administration course here at Patterson Field. The idea is that I'll be trained to fit into a team forming an Air Depot group, a base to be established 'somewhere.'"

"Hank Dahm is enrolled in the summer semester, as is Norm Van Sile and Zeke Zimmer and Tom Kaufman is home in Detroit anticipating army service. I hear Johnny Kelly is married. Joe Sullivan, football star and M.D., and Marty Frankpatrick is headed for Columbia Med school. This writing is being done under trying conditions. I'm sitting on a foot locker and using a suitcase for a desk and listening to the All-Stars baseball game with one ear."

One of the fellows who helped the Eastern Army All-Stars whip the New York Giants pro league outfit the other day was Cpl. Steve Bagarua, ex. '42, the halfback whiz of the west coast, from Camp Callan, Calif.

Bud Ford, the red-head tennis ace, just got his commission from the Navy and Tommy Hoyer, hisauburn-hairied sister reports, is still at Scott Field, Ill. She also said Vince Hogan is at Fort Thomas, Ky. Where are you, Vince—Kentucky or Ohio?

From Camp Shelby, Miss., arrived a postcard "Hello" from Cpl. George M. Reiche, the speech professor. He is with the Headquarters battery.

"As for the Scooper, I'm located currently at the Public Relations Office, Fort Sheridan, Ill. Bob Timmel, of Oconomowoc, Wis., arrived here over a month ago and is currently the pitching whiz of the post softball team. In his first game, he stopped the Sheridanites 1-0 with a one-hitter, with a lone single—a run—as he beat them, 3 to 0. Paul O'Malley was also here for awhile, getting his basic training. Timmel reports that Tom Fahlen is still awaiting his call to a Navy commission."

While at a USO dance in Highland Park, Ill., a few weeks ago, who should "eat in" the Yankee college grad I was dancing with but Miland Edmonds, '40, who is also a Sheridanite. Also ran into Bob Sanford, '40, who's located in the accounting office here. He says he can forget the first two letters and let it go at 'counting.'"

The other night, Timmel and I, among 500 other Sheridanites, got a foxy thrill when Steve Julwick scampered 84 yards for the game's longest run as the College All-Stars, augmented by Capt. Bernas Cinnamint, Capt. Paul Lillis, Roy El Johnston, Eblit Bob Maddock, Jim Brits, Bob Hergets, John Kovatch, of the class of '42, did some more selling. Worst part of it all was that we were so far away we didn't know till the announcer said so that it was our Stevie who ran so far.

Pushing through the 100,000 crowd after the game, we met B. J. (Nappy) Napolitano and John Scannell of the Phy-Ed. department. Don't be surprised if Nappy reports with a Naval commission soon. Jim Hacker is still awaiting assignment back to N.D. for V-7 training.

On July 16, Tom Nash played golfr for the Leo XIII Council, K. of C., team which walked off with the Illinois State title at Elmhurst C.C., Chicago. Don Guertet was last seen selling a boat on Lake Winnabego, near Fond du Lac, Wis. Time to sign off—In the meantime, "If it's news—write Scoop."

Jones Cahill, Bob DeMoss and Murray O'Toole are doing area research work at Langley Field. Va. John Townsend is doing the same type of work in Cleveland. Bill Oehler, ex. '42, is now in the Naval Air Corps as an ensign. Pete Stewart is attending the University of Rochester medical school studying anatomy, histology, etc. He reports that Jack Donovan, ex. '42, is a second year student at the same school. Ensign Tom Gesellbracht and his bride visited the campus recently. Tom is stationed at the New Hampshire Naval Station.

Jim O'Neal, class president, is now an ensign in the Navy. After duty at a Naval Station in St. Louis, Jim reported on July 15 for a two months' training course for Naval Reserve Officers at Dartmouth.

Edward J. Sullivan, former football guard and imitator supreme, has entered a seminary in New York to study for the priesthood.

Tom Farnedning injured

Ensign Tom Farninged, '40, was injured while on Navy duty in the Solomon Island battles. When he was put on a transport to be returned to a hospital in the States, he found that his twin brother, Ensign John, was on the same boat. Tom is now in Oakland, Calif., hospital and expects to be released by December.

NOTE: Ensign John, also a Navy ensign, is still with the Navy."

The Notre Dame Alumnus

basic faults and weaknesses, though these remain as natural limitations in their characters, are chastened and refined by the event which lights up their souls and consciences with something so much greater than all their individual and selfish desires. Fearfully, helplessly, but with a great deepening joy, they share their experience intimately. And the reader, following the dramatic growth of their experience, is forced to feel, with them, an increasing reverence for the central fact in the story, the birth of the child.

The story is told largely through the experience of the father, Eddie Nails, whose character is fully established. He is angular, coarse, comparatively impractical, often very comical; he is neither heroic nor tragic; he could never fit into any great place in the world; but his basic innocence and generosity, together with his inherited beliefs, protect him from the extremes of his own weaknesses. Both his faults and his virtues are very real, but he is never presented as the Victim of his own weaknesses. He cannot escape his basic sense of responsibility as a parent and a man. He is always aware of the real force of conscience. There is no false pathos in the treatment of his character. Anna, his wife, is less impulsive, less impractical, but less generous by nature. As a character in the novel, perhaps she is less completely revealed. She is, however, very definitely established. The first child of Eddie and Anna Nails, three-and-a-half-year-old Julie, is an unusually delicate, excellent piece of characterization. She is determined, perverse, wayward, whimsical, innocent, and entirely delightful.

Summer—after Summer is developed with a severe economy of design and a force that comes from a disciplined unity of theme. It is not marred by the looseness and waste that commonly characterizes first novels. Mr. Sullivan writes with firm, mature control. He is always the master of his material, though he never exploits it for any didactic or sentimental purposes. He has written a novel in which the significance of his characters' experience—a timely significance which will be readily appreciated, especially by the Catholic reader— is implicit in the integrity and beauty of the story as he sees it.

N. B. It should be borne in mind that many class representatives have not yet contacted their classmates, and many local Clubs have not yet conducted local contact programs. The showing by December 31, 1942, when both programs have been completed, should be a highlight in Alumni support.

LETTER TO NOTRE DAME MEN FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

Dear Friends of Notre Dame:

With the advice of the University Council, I have decided to present to you, in this Notre Dame’s Centenary Year, a financial statement of all the operations of the University for the year ended May 15, 1942. So far as I know, such action has never been taken before. I hope that by it rumors will give way once and for all to the facts.

In order to reduce financial complexities to the simplest terms, I am using a condensed form prepared for me by the auditors employed by the University, Pearson and Dwyer, certified public accountants, 111 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois. This is the statement:

RECEIVED

From tuition and student fees; U. S. Navy; interest on general endowment; returns from scholarships; and from all auxiliary operations including athletics $2,822,557.53

PAID OUT

For the operations of all Colleges of the University—Arts and Letters, Science, Law, Engineering, and Commerce (including administrative and faculty salaries, pensions); for interhall athletics, student activities, and publication; for operation of residence halls, dining halls, infirmary, laundry, Reckles Memorial golf course, and general maintenance 2,836,432.43

Net loss from University and auxiliary operations $ 13,875.90

RECEIVED

From miscellaneous sources, exclusive of University and auxiliary operations (interest on investments, profit from sale of securities, bad debt recoveries, property rentals, et cetera) 34,071.52

Net credit to surplus (to be used for purchase of new laboratory, shop, classroom equipment, additions to libraries, for research, graduate departments, et cetera) $ 20,196.02

Please note that the entire surplus available for new equipment in laboratories, shop, and classrooms; for additional books and magazines in the General Library and in all the libraries of the various departments of the University; for carrying on research projects already undertaken; for maintaining twelve departments of the Graduate School, not to mention the program of social security, is a meager $20,196.02.

These are the reasons why I must urgently appeal to the alumni, to old students, and to all loyal friends of Notre Dame for special donations in this her Centenary Year and for further gifts in subsequent years. If Notre Dame is to go ahead, in fact if Notre Dame is going to hold her own, it is obvious that the University must have more endowment income quickly.

I have been informed that the alumni of Johns Hopkins are now conducting a campaign for $2,000,000 to make up the annual deficit in operation caused by the war; that Holy Cross alumni have given more than $300,000 to Holy Cross College, of Worcester, on its Centenary Year; that Fordham alumni have already raised one-half million dollars and have a goal of $1,360,000 in Fordham’s Centenary Year.

This is Notre Dame’s Centenary. I am fully confident that you Notre Dame men will not be outdone in loyalty and devotion by any other group in America. You are proud of what Notre Dame has accomplished; the opportunities for further growth are challenging indeed to every son of Alma Mater.

In the name of the greater Notre Dame of the future, and entirely mindful of the personal and family obligations that may rest upon each one of you, I appeal for assistance at once.

Yours very sincerely,

Hugh O’Donnell C.D.C.
President
