Bennett, of '97, Tells of the Yells That Won Ball Games Here

"They don’t yell like they used to. We used to let the games by rote," James J. Bennett, Notre Dame man of ’97, who was at Notre Dame Wednesday, made this comment on the Michigan game.

"Old yell: ‘N, hooh, ah, D., hooh-ah, N. D., hooh-ah,’ wasn’t heard out there at the game," he said. "Maybe you don’t use that yell anymore."

Mr. Bennett felt that the spirit of his days wasn’t here any longer. It was suggested that the separation of so many men from the campus may have had something to do with it, and he agreed. "But the plan looks good," he said, "and you are doing many more things and better things than we used to do, and I thought we had a smart bunch."

Mr. Bennett is now with the Southern Schoolbook Depository of Memphis, Tenn.

comes Commencement—the occasion is an elaborate; the happy days of college life become but memories. When you step into the world you may have a better chance of “going a long way”, if you trod on “KUEHN’S QUALITY SHOES”.
