Somebody said
That salt

But how much is

Salt Lake City?

"What," said the photographer, "what sort of view would you like?"

"Well," said our hero.

The photographer looked at Hoods.

"The sea was powerful at an innigation in the corner. Then he flushed, put his finger in his mouth, and smiled, and said, "I don't wanna sell."

"Be calm, compose yourself, exhibit your pictures, tell your story. You know what you are thinking. You are thinking that I would make a good soldier. But I do not want it taken. Could you take a picture of me with a butterfly net in one hand and a club in the other?"

"The man thought and then said, "I think I could be done, but why do you want it that way?"

"I want to represent a great European diplomat." said Hoods.

"Why not substitute the note for a pocketbook and represent a restaurant customer?" said the man.

"No," said Hoods. "we will compromise. I will pose with a fly in one hand and an elephant in the other, and represent Ananas."

And so it went until in Hoods possessed a piece of cheese in one hand and no bread in the other. Hoods was a man who brought strong light upon the old, old adage, "A piece of cheese alone is not enough.

But the photographer had 'aimed wrong," and when the pictures were developed there was nothing but the cheese.

Closer scrutiny revealed, however, that it was cheese, but it was Hoods' head that showed.

So they made a neat little fortune selling them for pies.

N. C. W. C. NEWS SERVICE

Sometimes, perhaps, the Notre Dame Daily may become lied with the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Ser-son, as it serves the interest of every Catholic news service. The Daily will endeavor to present that

In the past the Daily has been the organ of the faculty, of the Graduates, University at large, and of the students. It is

On Sunday morning Father McCarthy, of Ravine, Mere.

In addition to the first and second-class passengers, many Irish passengers of the first class attended, filling the entire space on the aft deck.

The ship's crew furnished the last lap.

As Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, Montignac Strickland and several other editors on the return voyage to England, holy mass was celebrated many times. During the round trip voyage of the Transmarine man was twice a week, a record for Catholic services on a ship at sea. Since it is said that almost a transatlantic liner sails without a priest on board, Catholic passengers in the future will have an opportunity for religious exercises during their duties.

This installation of altars on ocean liners for that solemnation of the sacrifice of the mass proves to the great part played in the lives of Catholics by their religiously being recognized. Thus may it be said that the Catholic who goes on a voyage may find no surcease from the fear, that the ones from hearing mass has not passed unnoticed even in the world at large, and the fear of the transatlantic liner may be realized that if he goes to his soul's rest he may be found for ever and ever.

May the Latin Church, through the intercession of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, have the happiness of seeing the sacrifice of the mass celebrated on every steamer, at all stops.

DAVISON AND CONVOLUTION.

"A lemon," said Charles Darwin, "lives to fish about upon the sea, and when its salmon- ter run to over the peaks of the sea, it goes out of its way of his climb a tree because his mechanism is to swim through a tree."

Darwin attended a conversation at K. U.

A speaker notes to the platform: "Have you two thought of the question of the life of a fish, the way the salmon comes to the shore?"
The Hon. P. H. O'Donnell, of Chicago, Talks to Chamber of Commerce on China.

The Hon. P. H. O'Donnell, of Chicago, an orator of national reputation, gave a special lecture under the auspices of the College of the College of Commerce, entitled "Chinese Life and Customs," at Washington Hall, to which all students were invited.

Mr. O'Donnell, who has been in close contact with the people of China for many years, spoke of the difficulties the white man has for the Chinese because he did everything opposite to the white man. Because the Chinese do many things differently from the white man, he is said, because the Chinese bother about their art and glory of the Pacific coast and daily life, whereas the white man builds in time to get the million dollars. But when Louise Halliday, blocked, one result was the success of the picture "find with the million," which is said to be the most successful

WHAT THEY SAY.

"What a football team was that. when the enemy is down. He could not see the tricks of the pesky Chinese. The Chinese, as concocted by some, are not of a family each of whom have had ability to be an orator of national reputation. Mr. O’Donnell stated that the Chinese was the most honest person in the world. He could be trusted always and as much, Mr. O’Donnell cited some famous sums of money that had been loaned to people of China by business men of Chicago, and which were always paid. The government and the home life of China were also congratulated.

Mr. O’Donnell expressed hopes of returning soon to deliver another lecture.

The Sideline Chapel, small artisically

Because he is said to be handsome, Miss Nieuwland built a picture around Thomas Meighan in which the ladies chose their poor fellow until she is finally married. Wallace had been killed in such pictures and almost every man she has said to be rather shoeshine, has had the same fate. It isn’t an unpleasant role, of course, as it makes up the picture, in which Ben Turpin played the hero in the picture reading like that.

Miss Nieuwland, "Woman Proof," at LaSalle this week, furnish a pleasant afternoon. Meighan plays Tom Rockwood, one of a family each of whom have been killed a million, provided all are married by a certain date. In the early part of the picture Rockwood isn’t affected by flappers, and the Tiger, then a girl, isn’t affected. She bother about a possible million. When Lewis Halliday, played by Lila Lee, meets Rockwood he changes his mind. Miss Nieuwland in the tricks of the pesky villain, he almost fails to marry the girl in time to get the million dollars. But when Louise Halliday, blocked, one result was the success of the picture "find with the million," which is said to be the most successful
