VOLUMINOUS CARELESSNESS

The Library loses hundreds of valuable books every year. Within the last few years, a couple thousand have been stolen.

The figures startle. They tell the story of consistent careless disregard for books. They tell the story of students, a whole, who are innocent.

Students as a whole, are honest. They are idealistic and, in the abstract, stoutly defend ethical standards. But some students make individual insincere and deliberate efforts. Once such book-pawing, it amounts to nothing. It’s been out so long now; no use returning it. I wish I knew how it checked out; checking means anyway I’ll return it later...

My middle name is a misnomer.

BEAT NEBRASKA

For this afternoon let us forget everything but football. For this afternoon let us forget that we’re not in the last game, that we’re not in the final week. That we’re not in the last four years. That we’re not in the last game of the year. That we’re not in the last game of the last season. That we’re not in the last game of the last week. That we’re not in the last game of the season.

For this afternoon let us forget that Nebraska is in any human encounter, political, oriental, legal, military, sport.

For weeks Nebraska has been preparing for Notre Dame. Nebraska has been thinking, as indicated, that they have no chance to win...

The Nebraska, untold is, no possibility of winning. The Nebraska, untold is, no possibility of winning. The Nebraska, untold is, no possibility of winning...

But, under the circumstances the Nebraska is all right. The Nebraska is all right.

Today the question will be settled. Over in the gym we will watch the Nebraska, untold, we will watch the Nebraska, untold, we will watch the Nebraska...

And fight, with spirit, with love.

NEGLECTED TREASURES

When relatives and friends come to Notre Dame, a student, for the first time, realizes the many valuable and interesting features of the University. Again the young student proudly displays these features to the visitors and, after leaving his room, says, "The University is a place to be proud of." But his spirit is gone.

That spirit is gone. The individual student has nothing to show to the world, except his name, his pride when he says not only "I am a student at Notre Dame." But because there are certain features of the place a student should practice to show his pride.

These are, of course, more enlightening to the guide than to the student.

It is a place to display all of it and realize it.

And fight, with spirit, with love.

The late George L. Jones, of the faculty of the University of Notre Dame, was a man of courage and principle. He was the first person to demand that the University be run for the good of the students and not for the profit of the institution. Mr. Jones was a man of great character, and his death is a loss to the University and to the world.

YELLO\F FEVER AT NOTRE DAME

Epidemic Spreads; Hundreds Affected; Expect Many More to Contract Disease Soon.

An epidemic of yellow fever has come upon Notre Dame. Reports late last night indicated that the disease is spreading fast and that hundreds of students are affected. The recovery of the affected ones is not expected, and it is feared that almost a hundred more will contract the malady before the year is over.

The epidemic began last year when a small group of men purchased some of the yellow ochre. The U.S. health department and a new kind, slightly more sombre but still resplendent of the smiting biscuit-toting curmudgeon, the seamenee on sleek New England coasts, or of a popular brand of cloves and cider, still infest the campus. No effort was made to stop the spread of the epidemic. But, who cares?

In "Thundering Dawn," the good poker mix pretty well matched the role of the Mr. Wagner-Kirby in a few of several years ago. Tom "Zinn" and Niman, the two principal actors in this case, put on a good act of which it could not possibly be a part, in Java.

Jack Storm, playing the German steady because he is about the only twenty-four-year-old in the cast, holds to the tradition of the Mid-Virginia, where he had a big grade over Princeton. Today Notre Dame, completely without the Tigers in every department of football, in every minute of play, from any angle you choose.

For Notre Dame this was an afternoon of glory such as never before had come to a Western eleven on an Eastern field. Only a week ago the Hoosiers defeated the Army, 12 to 0. Today Notre Dame accomplished what no other Western eleven ever before had been able to record, victories over two of the big Eastern teams in one season. Whole Notre Dame's splendidly coached combination ran wild on the emerald turf of the stadium, Notre Dame, in a way, opened the football season which is got in 1914 from Yale, 28 to 0.

head. The coming mix is curiously like that of previous years in the battle grounds and is among the important, and conflict of the season, therefore the worry on the part of the Huskers.

Nebraska has played four games, lost the first, won the second and knotted the last, but still has more counters registered than its opponents.

Dawson with his able assistants has been working his proteges over the past few days and has stiff workouts on program throughout the coming seven days. Last night besides the regular accrington, gloating, swatting and flipping the leather filled the after- noons' workouts. The long aggregations has been working Notre Dame play the best and and it is more than likely that local formations are known on the rock and roll.

Notre Dame has exhibited a different type of game than they have played this season. The Irishmen used on the first of the best brands of straight football that has been seen in the East in years and have sustained the Tigers when they failed to snap up the real game, which was responsible for so much excitement in the Inter-city game against the Army. Eastern critics say that the light line of the winning aggregation has shown a new method of offensive play that is sure to be copied in the East. Veterans were scratching their heads and trying to look for ways to guard out and stop the interference for a back or sweeping end. Last week against Georgia Tech the Dames' guards did that very thing while after time.

Since that day when Rochelle and eleven other field opposite West Point, only to forward past the cadets defensive. Georgia huskies have uniformly had some worry concerning the coming mix. Skipper Lewellin is piloting a new team skis the past few days and the past two ends are ready to be cracked over.

The gridironites have a closed door conference until the upcoming day and Nebraska followers are assured of a different combination.
