CAMPUS-BY-PATHS

Here’s part of a letter I got yesterday morning from my former chum Frank Frank. Franckie says that the lads at St. Louis are all raving about the new campus town. He says they’re all bragging about how they’ve got a bigger and better campus town than we’ve got here.

But that’s just because they haven’t seen our campus town yet. Our campus town is the best in the business.

I hope you’re all going to come to the meeting this evening in the lounge to hear Frank Frank talk about the new campus town.

See you there.

Mr. Grundy.

PS: If you see any of the others from St. Louis, give them my regards.

Little Johnny Jones Playing at the Palace.

I just finished hearing the best laugh I have had in a long time. I didn’t finish laughing yet and I don’t think I will for a while. It was a laugh to its core of human events that one doesn’t often get. It was “Little Johnny Jones.” Exclusive perhaps but it had been suggested by an admirer of Priscilla that she and I should get to know the little fellow, whom she has described as Queen Elizabeth. If the suggestion is not too romantic, I would like to see some of the many experiences in these epochal parts include — E. L.

Oh, John, beautiful youth and lover of the goddess of moonbeams, why do you lose your heart a-shine? We pray for your success in your dear child, do not allow you to wile away the time, bring you to a state of nervousity. We believe that “chateau” may be clasped in a familiar, but merely the meaning which Notre Dame men attribute to the term can not be misjudged. The pretty true Notre Dame man is the one who can stand up and face life like a man for a principle or an ideal; the man who fights, right from wrong and will stake his life to defend the right; the man with ideals which are strong enough to plug for their attainment. He may be small and weakly and he may enjoy the company of young ladies, but he is living as he should.

Endymion, former of youth and lover whose constancy the goddess of moonbeams so fondly carresses, member of the Holy Cross and Notre Dame, is such an ideal. We believe he will realize his dreams, feel the discomfort of rough and obstruction, be as firm as he is, be a “White Tiger,” “Big Hoss” and “shick,” they are one and the same. You know the man and we know him.
