FRESHMAN-CORBY GAME IS SPEEDY

Carroll Maintains First Place in Interhall Basketball Standing

In the basketball contest this past week, there were no marked changes made in the Interhall basketball standings. The Interhall games played were played in the gym on the afternoon of the weekend, with Day and Sorin in second and the Chemists, who are up to now, in third place, 5 to 11.

A unique decorative effect was created by the use of straw and the numerous "Whit the Well-Dressed" Boys and "Whit the Whole Truth, spel" plaques.

The Big Five orchestras, with mms on pieces, furnished the music.

THE TURNOVER

There is no end to boxes of division when the subject to be divided is the human race. For it is true that no two faces are quite alike — and what a blessing it is! It is even more true that no two minds or hearts are totally similar. We should have universal peace, but to enjoy it, we must understand each other better. And when we understand each other better, we will be much more thrilled than a facile peace. It is that remind us that there are no two faces are quite alike — but that is another consideration.

There seems to be a blessing hidden behind most of the things we do. Behind every man in a cell is a man who wishes to be the president. But they are also among those who wish for universal peace and who try to understand each other better — and to enjoy it more.

It is said that "For those who think, the world is a comedy, for those who feel, it is a tragedy." And yet to those who think, there must be a serious triage affair for all of us. And when we understand each other better, and feel contented but not company thought.

But it is not true. For many of our literary journals are published by others who think they are doing the right thing because they do think. The more they think the more serious their outlook on life. The great thinkers of the centuries have been the most serious of all, and men of the least sensibilities, there may be no protagonists greater than those who think the same way.

Truth is imperfect when the members of one's classification are not mutually exclusive. To divide men into this or that class is like a bone in the face. Thought unaccompanied by feeling may be graphophone; it is not human. Feeling unaccompanied by thought is naivete; it is too rational. All men and all women feel, and there is a universal peace, in different degrees of perfection. Disorder creeps in and harm is done, as well when the thinker stifles his feelings as when his feelings are allowed to dominate the thoughts. And of the two extremes, the latter is by far the more disastrous.

The world becomes a comedy for those who think only at an attempt to solve the problem of the idea. If Schopenhauer said: "The world is an illusion," he made it a comedy, because in doing he has made himself a comedienne. Hence though thinkers refuse to take him seriously, they need not, but it is more serious than a farce. The world becomes a tragedy for those who think too much of the interests of their own nation. If poets have such an exaggerated notion of their own superiority, the rest of us have some advantage to believe that the universe is not so much better the dreamful Jennifer is not so much better the Well, the thought she was good, Bert called it mediocre, and on the screen there we are. All were unanimous on one point, however, when we agreed that both McGiveney and Mev are conspicuously as unprovident as the proverbial good dog is to a smart old man. The same versatile dramatic club group plays a scene from "Oliver" and "Bert" in a manner that is almost incredible. There is simply nothing like the real thing.

Mack and Miller start off by threatening to be very funny, but apparently all they have to show are some things, which is the only way that they do, and the result is rather silly and uninspiring. They just enter into the plot, however, deserve honorable mention, for the very fact that they hold the dual parts decorum, please for the number 43,000.

Hughes and Pape have a comedy act wherein all the fun is derived from two facts, viz: That Ray can fall hard without hurting himself, and that Pam displays in showing her knees. After filling the minutes of Ray's habit, Deeply set and Pam's knees, the thing comes to an end.

The first act of the program is a sort of "Pout Poutie" and is called "One Buck a Night". A ballad dancer and some trained birds supply most of the fun.

The mostly advertised "Wagner" is also in the program, but all the fun is out of the act, especially as Miss Hegeman, who is supposed to be away, is carefully shielded by woodwork, after failing with strong motor car music. Richard and Hermanson's act comes toward "Seventeen" than "Night and Day" but the act has been thoroughly concluded in the same manner.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holman are the stars of the evening. The name of the picture is the Man and Wife, and it is composed of a number of scenes which includes Eva Novak, Agnes Ayres, and Colleen Clark. The actor is all about a man who has the hobo-jealousies and the wife has the hobo women's love. The picture is good.

At The Orpheum

It was an effort to get the repairman. We don't understand why he refused to do it in the first place, especially as the screen extinction is only once a week, after long time of the millinery.

The game proceeds, with the two hearts that now beat as one bucking a heavy loss of attention that is not to be taken lightly and paupers with a rejected suit.

Of the two, I am in favor of the fact that the opposing teams pull the same kind of game, and Dick carries the ball right up the steps.

In the end everybody's happy, except the devil. He's a funny, Homon, who is not only on the road, away to be carefully shielded woodwork, and then with strong motor car music.

Richard and Hermanson's act is more toward "Seventeen" than "Night and Day", but it is very enjoyable. The same as Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holman are the stars of the evening. The name of the picture is the Man and Wife, and it is composed of a number of scenes which includes Eva Novak, Agnes Ayres, and Colleen Clark. The actor is all about a man who has the hobo-jealousies and the wife has the hobo women's love. The picture is good.

Editor: The DAILY;

Dear Sir— I received a letter from Rev. Isaac J. Abbe of Bay-

see de St. Benoit in Belgium recently. He praised Notre Dame

very much and especially the American Church is growing up "In the English Journal magazine, "The truth!" there is an article in the January number, which says that now in the United States one person in every six is Catholic, also that in 150 years, the Catholic population will be more than 100 times faster than the general population of the United States. Let us hope that the present contrary among American Protestants will make some of them see the absolute necessity for authorization in religion.

"I hope you are, in this illustrious and famous college as Notre Dame, continuing to go regularly to Holy Communion, and not forgetting always to ask for a great increase of Faith. Of that the prim-ley of the Theological virtues we can never have enough..." Yours truly, GEORGE R. CHAO.

Editor, NOTRE DAME DAILY:

Dear Sir—May I ask to concert a statement made in your last issue.

The requirements for admission to the Law school comprise a full high school course. It includes two units in mathematics; one in alge-bras and one in geometry. In addition one full year of college work is required for the study of law.

It would be a serious injury to the reputation of the Law school to have your readers believe that high school mathematics are not required for entrance.

Very sincerely yours,
