WE'LL WATCH

The Methodists are making plans to publish a "great national newspaper," we who are interested in the endeavor will stand pat. Notice the details and watch. It is an effort which we can hope that we may learn the formula of its efforts.

Chances are the new method will be a success. The world is filled with logic. Many newspaper claim to be national institutions; one paper goes so far as to claim to be the "world's greatest newspaper." A Catholic daily newspaper which has seen the world and the Catholic viewpoint on events is really valuable. The Christian Science Monitor is a paper with national pretensions. It is a good paper — for consideration of its opinions, but not for its news.

By its very nature, news must be new. The distinctive characteristic of journalism is timeliness, ephemeralness. Common sense, news is journalism, too, of course, and though it may be a little late, it may not be very late. When writing is such that it is as good tomorrow as it was yesterday, our editing, at least, is in the dregs of literature. The editorials of Henry Watterson, for instance, believed to be powerful and tactics. Written now have little interest. That of association with the great name of "Marse Henry." The reporter and editor write for today; the layman is disinterested.

Regardless of the effort that the new newspaper will be the object of much journalistic observation. Perhaps they have discovered an eventful recipe.

BOY GUIDANCE AND MAN BUILDING

The annals of history glow in their accounts of famous men. Every since the beginning of the age, there has been a parade of leaders who have benefitted mankind in some general way. And never has there been a single instance when men did not manifest, either internally or externally, both, that invariable emotion of joy over the recovery of a fellow man.

Our postsecondary records, too, reveal the lives of men—men who from the bottom to the top of the scale, whether any, have been, forsworn. Men who have taken the citizenship in their youth, their leadership ability to organize, the like of other acts, that is, the act of association with the great name of "Marse Henry." The reporter and editor write for today; the layman is disinterested.

Interhall Batmen to Contend for Trophy

With all indications pointing to a successful interhall baseball season, from which there is certain to appear a couple of strong batting units, there has been made an effort to honor the interhall player hitting the largest number of home runs during the season. On the day when the final section of the interhall league is played off, the home run king of the campus will be awarded the Rockne Trophy.

The first section of the schedule was marked by three home runs scored by Jack McKeown of Corby, Jack Smith of Walsh, and Tim Green of Freshman. The second section of the hall schedule will be played off tomorrow, beginning at 3 p.m. The pairings follow: Morning games, Sorin-Baillie, Cartier field; Carroll-Suphore, Brownson campus. Afternoon games, Walsh-Freshman, Carter field; Day-Faillia, and Brownson-Corby, Brownson campus.

FARRELL ON SQUAD

In the list of men who made the southern baseball trip, the name of Tommy Farrell was omitted by mistake. Farrell is listed with the outbound players.

IOWA SIGNS COACH

The coaching problem at the University of Iowa was settled this afternoon. It was announced that Burr L. Verban, former Illinois football, basketball and baseball star, has signed to coach Iowa football. Ingwerson had been assistant to Coach Bob Supplee. Ingwerson was the only Iowa football man who has signed as athletic director of Mount St. Charles College, Helena, Cda. Little is known of the western school as it is a recent arrival among Rocky mountain colleges. Mahler will be remembered in Notre Dame football history as one of the shifting half backs that ever entertained the fans of the team. Farrell's arrival will add new life to the Iowa football club. Farrell is primarily a high school baseball star and will have the comfortable assurance that everything is exactly right and well in the new era under the new coach. In laying out the freight for the future, Coach Rockne made a corrections of the meagre batting which plagued the early part of the season. Farrell's presence will be a most welcome addition to the squad.
