Rossie Opponents Are Jubilant

The eight organizers of the "Recall Rossie" petition circulated on campus Tuesday and most of Wednesday claimed last night that they had collected 1650 signatures, more than enough to force a special recall election. According to Junior Mark Wehrman, a spokesman for the group, "We needed 1534 to force a recall and we've now got about 1650." The group stated its intentions of submitting the signatures to the Senate, but were unsure as to the exact procedures.

During the petition drive, the group refused to release names, figures, or even talk extensively of its purposes. However, its task believed to be completed, the students last night spoke openly of their effort. Junior Dave Rackiewicz defined the petition drive as "quite spontaneous," and denied that any other group or groups were involved in the collection of signatures. Rackiewicz and Wehrman confirmed that nobody in the drive had ever been involved in student or class council.

However, Rackiewicz maintained "You might put down the newspaper and science majors, not Arts & Letters jocks."

Student Body President Rossie, object of the effort, continued to maintain an outward calm and to officially ignore the petitions. Rossie last night went ahead with plans to speak in residence halls, talking to groups in Dillon, and the University. According to Dowd, the Notre Dame student body will hold its major conference against Institutional Racism at Notre Dame in November.

While Rossie remained silent, a number of prominent opponents of the Student Body President publically attacked the petition drive. Junior Mike Kelly, President of the Notre Dame Young Republicans, said at dinner last night "I have been urging people not to sign the petitions. I think this effort is a grass-roots movement of people who have never been connected with any facet of Notre Dame student government in their lives." Bob Narueki, a leader of Notre Dame's chapter of the conservative Young Americans, said, "I believe the student body has been involved in this in any way. As for me personally, I would hate to see this go through because it would hurt the student body. It would hurt all of us with the Administration."

The one voice raised favoring the petition recall was that of former Walsh Senator Pat Dowd, who polled 17.5% of the vote in February's student body elections as opposed to Rossie's 58%. Dowd, who privately questioned people last week about placing a recall ad in the Observer, said Tuesday night "Richard Rossie has betrayed the Notre Dame student body and the University." Dowd said this "betrayal" occurred through Rossie's signature on a statement about weapons.

Wehrman said the petition would now go to the Senate in its first meeting and that under the student body constitution all elections as opposed to Rossie's 58%. Dowd, who privately questioned people last week about placing a recall ad in the Observer, said Tuesday night "Richard Rossie has betrayed the Notre Dame student body and the University." Rossie, and said no thought had been given a candidate to oppose Rossie. "The point now is not the nature or degree of acceptance; of what Richard Rossie symbolizes. The Senate Elections today will determine that in significant part. The point is that the student body cannot now risk the unity it achieved last March behind Richard Rossie. We must keep the student body are willing to accept seriously the responsibility of governing their own lives."

And this is the fundamental question: whether the students of this university are willing to accept seriously the responsibility of governing their own lives. If they are, then Rossie must be supported. However, Rossie's recall signals more than that the students are not so willing, then the recall is being run more than the myopic and the uninformed. And, this would indicate that a crisis of terrifying proportions exists here at Notre Dame which questions the very validity of giving it the name of University. The point now is not the nature or degree of acceptance; of what Richard Rossie symbolizes. The Senate Elections today will determine that in significant part. We must keep the student body are willing to accept seriously the responsibility of governing their own lives."

The petitions demanding the recall of Richard Rossie have at least been signed by the required 25% of the student body. The questions as to whether the signatures are genuine are in many instances, and whether this year's freshmen are considered part of the "electorate" are certainly valid ones on a technical level. But we suspect that Mr. Rossie will not involve himself in petty issues involving technicalities. Rossie did descend from the市 level last spring when he was running for the Presidency, and perhaps that is one of the reasons he was elected by such an overwhelming landslide. The result, howl, valid. There will most certainly be another election.

Richard Rossie's rhetoric has perhaps been, in the last few weeks, careless. He has, in fact, been less of a positionless politician than is practical for one who must represent the variety of opinions current among the students he represents. It is possible that Rossie has been too confident in his election mandate of 58% of the student body. But that is certainly more desirable than having a Student Body President who held that the principle mandate for governing the lives of the student bodies here lies with the Administration of the University. It is unfortunate that Richard Rossie does not look like the clean cut three piece suit conservative one might expect to find at Student Body President here.

Above and beyond these faults, if indeed they are faults, lies the fundamental reason for the attempted recall of Rossie. The point is that he has attempted to win a place for the student in the governance of this university.

And this is the fundamental question: whether the students of this university are willing to accept seriously the responsibility of governing their own lives. If they are, then Rossie must be supported. However, Rossie's recall signals more than that the students are not so willing, then the recall is being run more than the myopic and the uninformed. Dr. Timothy Leary

Leary: "Drugs A Way To God"

Cohen: "Don't Kid Yourself"

Last night at Washington Hall in a fascinating and eloquent discussion of the aims, techniques and dangers of psychedelic drugs, Drs. Timothy Leary and Sidney Cohen gave opposing views of the world of drugs and its resulting consequences.

Leary, barefoot and clad in a casual blue outfit, opened his comments with a flippant, "OK, I'm turned on, are you?" But his theme switched immediately to one of religious experience. Leary said, " LSD is a way of life, a religion. I take a trip to the City of God." And according to this self-acknowledged oracle of the future "Fifty years from now, everyone will be on drugs." At this point Leary ventured into his three main statements of the evening:

1) "The only purpose of life is a religious quest for God," or Get high and stay high.

2) "Dope is the religion of the future."

3) "As preparation for a trip, 21 spiritual disciplines or yoga are essential."

Leary developed a historical approach to the drug experience by stressing the ever-present aim of human love of your mate, of your children, of your neighbor, and of God.

All religions have centered around this concept, Leary claimed, but they are now losing sight of such goals and consequently less and less relevant.

In a hippie movement, in contrast, is "an authentic religious experience," said Leary, "yet the police, the mass media, and the politicians, have misrepresented them. Leary claimed "the hippies are doing fine."

The controversial advocate of drugs then mentioned the progressing role of chemicals in leading men to a divine truth. The bio-chemical drugs can easily simulate the human nervous system, and "cause profound changes of emotional behavior," Leary said. "But the point is," he said, "you can determine your own reality, and that reality is never the same for everybody."

Leary finally listed his 21 pre-conditioners to a successful and satisfying trip. The mentioned increased discipline of the senses, an awareness of one's psychic, biological, psychological, prophecies, ritual, artistic experiences, and finally, drugs. In a more deliberate but equally convincing rebuttal, Dr. Cohen, an experienced expert on psychedelics, raised certain qualifications to all that Leary had said. "All is not sweetness," Cohen claimed, "there are many inherent dangers." Cohen mentioned that many disciples of acid use the drugs to reach a level of euphoria and pleasure. He lamented, "Why can't we be happy in this level of experience?" Many varieties of drugs and stimulants have been elevated to religious experiences throughout history, Cohen said, "LSD, and its consequent effects are not new."

He denied the thought that acid, rather than expanding ones consciousness, merely "expands and expands" life. Many people really seen the great white light of God?" he questioned. An even further consideration, according to Cohen, would concern the responsibility of tampering with one's own mind and permanent brain damage or dissatisfaction of his chromosomes. Cohen stated that there is no conclusive evidence that drugs contribute to greater understanding. He also disputed whether acid really brings a more meaningful participation in brotherly love. "We can become real human beings," Cohen concluded, "and we don't need drugs to do it."
Notes On The Constitution

By Ted Price

With the circulation of the petition to recall
Richard Rosset as Student Body President, there has developed a situation which deals with the constitutional crisis. Questions have been raised regarding procedures, the working of the constitution, and the like.

Article VII, Section 11 of the Student Government Constitution reads as follows:

The chairman of the senate, a petition from the student body for the Senate's consideration must be presented to the chairman of the Senate who is designated in Article III, Section 1 of the Constitution of the Student Body President. The chairman of the senate by Senate rules turn to all matters over to the Policy Committee of the Senate, who would place the petition on the agenda.

Rosset would therefore have to handle the petition for his own recall if it is to be presented to the senate. This way only this can be avoided is a vote for the suspension of the rules, which must carry a two-thirds majority to be successful. Any other method of bringing the matter to the Senate would be out of order.

The Senate could reject the petition on grounds of invalidity because of improper notifications or the signature of Freshman signatures. This ruling, however, could be appealed to the Constitutional Council, which in constitutionally charged with the interpretation of the Constitution, as the Supreme Court interprets the national Constitution.

The Senate Council is composed of the Student Body President, chairman who votes only to break a tie, and the SIS President, the senators of the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes, the chairman of the Hall President's Council, and two members who were elected from the ranks of last year's Senate. The rulings of this Council are final, subject only to constitutional amendment.

The Policy Committee of the Senate could kill the petition by tabling. If it was placed on the agenda and brought to the floor of the Senate, the Senate would be required to declare a recall election within two weeks of the meeting.

In the event of tabling by the Policy Committee, it would be necessary to re-present the Senate, under Article VII, Section 1, to act on the matter. Such a petition would be automatically brought on the Policy Committee to bring the recall petition to the floor. The second petition requires the valid signatures of 750 members of the Undergraduate Student Senate.

If there is a recall election, and the incumbent is opposed, the election reboots to a vote-of-confidence type of affair, in which the incumbent must receive more than 50% of the votes cast. In the even the does not, the Student Body Vice President is declared President and the affair is closed.

Olympic Games Endangered by Mexican Student Riots

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - Mexican army troops Wednesday surrounded about 10,000 marching students in a housing development square Wednesday and opened fire with machine guns. Snipers shot at addresses from nearby rooftops in a three-hour bloody battle that covered 20 city blocks and endangered the 1968 Olympic Games.

At least nine persons were killed, Mexican army officials said, fighting that climaxcd months of street warfare between government and militant students demanding the freeing of imprisoned comrades.

UPI correspondents counted the bodies of eight civilians including two women killed in the fighting as the troops closed in on the demonstrators, firing as they advanced. The government said one soldier and a corporal was killed in the fighting as troops fought their way into apartment houses.

Editor

In your story on Senator Thurmond I was a bit surprised to read your one side of the story. You describe at the length the demonstration by the Afro-American Society and the criticism of Senator at the same meeting. I would like to know why nothing was said regarding students who were present. I strongly believe rough half of the audience stood and applauded after his speech, and also why nothing was said of how Senator Thurmond made some of his so-called critical questions sound pretty amusing by his sharp rebuttals.

I always thought that news stories were supposed to present news and not opinions. Can't you keep the news separate from your points of view? Why doesn't the staff keep its radical opinions in the editorials where they belong? As I have seen opinions out of the news and report both sides of the story then this paper might amount to something more than a gossip sheet.

Dr. Watson Tells Of RNA

Last night Dr. James D. Watson, Nobel prize winner, biochemist, and author of the book, The Double Helix spoke to a gathering of approximately 150 students and faculty members in the Memorial Library Auditorium. Dr. Watson's lecture on "Replication of the RNA Virus" was the first in a series of lectures in the Arthur J. Schmitt Chair in Science Lecture Series.

Dr. Watson began the talk by discussing his book along with his general views toward science. He said that his book was written primarily for students and was intended to place two paragraphs of science in consecutive order. It was with the general manner in which Dr. Watson structured his talk.

Dr. Watson mentioned that he took great pleasure in his work with DNA and for this reason took great interest in it. He advised those present in the audience with some flair for biochemical research and specifically the field of genetics.

Dr. Watson mentioned that not only had he and his associate Dr. Crick completely solved the problem of DNA and RNA replication, he predicted that the next decade will be more productive or possibly even more productive in solving the mysteries of genetics. "At present" he said, "we know that many cancer viruses such as leukemia are RNA viruses. What needs to be done is to identify and understand the malignancy and then to eliminate it." Dr. Watson deeply disappointed the hopes of those in the audience who visualized the test tube man. He referred to his project as the dream of a few imaginative scientists.

THE WORLD TODAY

Wallace And Lemay?

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) - George C. Wallace said yesterday that he would announce his vice presidential candidate in Pittsburgh today amid reports retired Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis Lemay would be the choice.

Columbia Broadcasting System news correspondent Nelson Benton reported yesterday that Wallace would name Lemay, a native of Columbus, Ohio, as his vice presidential candidate.

Wallace refused to comment on the report and would give no indication as to who he was running inside the race.

A hand made "Lemay for vice president" sign was raised at a rally at the Canton Memorial Auditorium.

Wallace encountered noisy heckling at the Canton rally from a predominantly Negro group of about 200 demonstrators. At one point, he stopped his address because of the noise. The demonstrators were escorted from the building by police when they attempted to march from the balcony to the floor.

Despite the heckling, the crowd of about 3,500 was in Wallace's corner and joned the hecklers.

"There are two kinds of people in this country who are sick and tired .... " Wallace said as the demonstrators chanted "Sing Hell" and "Wallace is a pig."

Six Planes Lost

SAIGON (UPI) - U.S. military spokesman said yesterday that communist gunners shot down three U.S. mercy helicopters, marked with the Red Cross, as they flew wounded GIs from battlefields to hospitals.

A U.S. command spokesman also reported the loss of three other helicopters, one of them a jet fighter spotting targets inside North Vietnam for the battleship New Jersey.

At least 10 Americans were reported wounded in the course of the downed helicopters, but the number of killed or missing was not immediately disclosed. Two U.S. Marine medical evacuation aircraft shot down Tuesday while trying to reach the site of the downed helicopters lost were Army medical evacuation aircrafts shot down Tuesday while trying to remove 28 American infantry men wounded in a Communist ambush.

Rusk Critical of Soviets At U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) - U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday called on the Soviet Union to remove its occupying forces from Cambodia and Laos.

Rusk, making his first and probably last policy speech to most delegates, went on with his speech.

"These are the kind of folks that people in this country are sick and tired of.... " Wallace said as the demonstrators chanted "Sing Hell" and "Wallace is a pig."

Fifteen Cents

Somewhere in the great State of Indiana there exists the world's last Debtors' Prison. Hidden deep in a cornfield just east of Goshen, I'll bet, can be found hundreds, maybe thousands of poor ragged souls who couldn't quite come up with that last dime or nickle to pay the highway toll.

Early yesterday morning I was unfortunate enough to be returning to South Bend via the Toll Road when, upon approaching the gate at the head of a long line of vehicles I discovered that I was fifteen cents short of the prescribed toll.

Confidently I assumed that a word of explanation to the kind gentleman in the booth would enable me to pass. At worst I supposed he would require a bit of identification in the event that I should neglect to return to settle the account. With a smile on my lips I stopped at the gate, warmed by the knowledge that cold, cruel automation had not yet crept into the state highway system. Thus I would be given the opportunity of dealing with a fellow human being capable of appreciating the occasional vestigalities of our existential human relations.

- Excuse me, I'm fifteen cents short on my toll. I added a sincere, clean cut, sheepish grin.

- Could I leave my student I.D. with you and then just run back to campus and get the money? I added a sincere, clean cut, sheepish grin.

- Nope. In the rear a couple of impatient horns begin to blat.

- I see. Well, look. How about my drivers license? I added a sincere, clean cut, sheepish grin.

- Pull your car over and don't try nothin' funny. I added a sincere, clean cut, sheepish grin.

- Wait a second, I don't think you understand. I'm only a crummy fifteen cents short. Horns to Gost, I'm good for fifteen cents. Listen, I'll be back in ten minutes - here take my whole wallet and the spare tire and I'll throw in the cigarette lighter for collateral. (Noise becoming unbearable)

- Harry, call the troopers, get a suspicious character here. Look mister, I don't know what you done but the troopers'll be here in a minute so I reckon if you know what's good for ya, you'll just keep quite and cooperate.

Dunly I perceived that this poor excuse for a simulator driving lesson was rapidly turning into a very sympathetic humour. Twenty-five minutes later one but three police cars came screaming up to me with the account in my wallet.

- Hi, officers. (add another grin) Say, could one of you guys lend me fifteen cents so I can get out of here. Ha ha.... ha.

- Your operators license please. (lengthy scrutiny of the requested document) That your signature there?

- Last time I looked it was. Ha ha .... ha.

- Get out of the car and put your hands on the roof.

- Yes, sir.

- Look, boy, you know you can go to jail for that?

- An hour ago I wouldn't have believed it but I do now. (Another brief consultation during which I caught bits and scratches of the words station, bail, and fingerprints)

At last an official looking form was shoved under my nose and a pen thrust between my fingers with the words with the sign to the x. Sign I did. And pronto the valiant custodians of law and order had dragged me down the ramp leaving me to stare at the words "punishable by a fine not exceeding 500 and a prison term not to exceed 2 years for the first offense..."

Finally an official looking form was shoved under my nose and a pen thrust between my fingers with the order to sign the thing in triplicate. Sign I did. Almost immediately the valiant custodians of law and order left the scene of my crime muttering something about "those damn vagrants," while I gazed down at my copy of the official looking form which said: "punishable by a fine not exceeding 500 and a prison term not to exceed 2 years for the first offense..." And if I didn't have that blue slip of paper in my wallet, I wouldn't believe this story either.

Student Senate Elections

TODAY

Elections will be held in the hall from 11:30 am to 1:00 pm and 5:30 pm to 7:30 pm.

Off-campus students vote in the off-campus office, basement of Edmond Student Center, from 9:00 am to 7:00 pm.
Gibson, Gibson, Gibson, Gibson, Gib

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Overpowering Bob Gibson tantalized the free swinging and jittery Detroit Tigers with a record breaking 17 strikeout performance Wednesday as he easily "outdoubled" Denny McLain. The St. Louis Cardinals a 4-0 victory in the opening game of the World Series.

Gibson, possibly on his way to becoming the op World Series strikeout artist of all time, got a dazzling, stunning ovation from the crowd of 34,692, largest ever in Busch Memorial Stadium when he struck out the side with ease. That snapped the record of 15 set by Sandy Koufax in the opening game of the 1963 World Series against the Yankees.

Gibson, who posted a 22-9 record during the season with a 1.12 ERA that was the best in the National League history, finished with a five-inning shutout when many of the current three bases in four attempts... Podolak, Sullivan Ruled Out

Iowa football coach Ray NageI yesterday ruled in two top offensive stars out of Saturday's game with the Irish.

Quarterback Ed Podolak remains in University Hospital at Iowa City today undergoing tests for head injury suffered in the Hawkeyes' first two games.

Fullback Tim Sullivan has missed contact work all this week with a hip pointer and a severe shoulder bruise. His replacement is another sophomore, 6-0, 205-pound Tom Wallace.

NageI said that 14 of his 22 starters were injured in one way or another against Texas Christian Saturday. However, only Podolak and Sullivan are hurt seriously enough to miss this weekend's scrip.

T: loss of that pair leaves vocalist Dennis Green with a big offensive load to carry. Green, a 5-11, 185-pound sophomore against the Cardinal's rushers with 218 yards gained in 28 attempts, a 7.8 average per carry.

"There's not much I can say about Notre Dame," NageI said yesterday. "Everyone knows they have another great team. Our scouting report says they are better than they are a year ago." NageI's chief bird-dog on the Irish has been assistant Ted Lawrence. He remarks, "This is a great Notre Dame team. They probably have the finest passing attack in college football. Terry Hanratty and Jim Seymour are as good as we'll see. Oklahoma and Purdue two of the very best teams in the country - were not able to slow them down much. I'd say our defense is in for a real test."

Meanwhile, the Irish were seeking ways to improve their own defense which has permitted 58 points in the first two weeks of the season.

The defensive secondary has undergone changes this week. Doe Reid now is listed as the starting safety, replacing Tom Quinn. John Gainer and Bernie Jackson remain the halfbacks.

Harrickers Open At Iowa

Coach Alex Wilson and his Notre Dame cross-country squad faced a uncertain year when they open the 1968 season this Saturday. With only one senior on the starting team, the runners journey to Iowa City for a five-mile meet with the Hawkeyes.

Senior Kevin O'Brien carries the Irish, backed up by juniors Bob Watson and Mike Collins. Rounding out the starting seven are sophomores Rick Wolhlyer and Mike Connolly plus freshmen Jim Byrnya and Pat Sullivan.

Gibson, a 6 foot 2, 200-pounder who once played b a kid on the Harlem Globetrotters, proved who was going to run this game at the start of the third inning. He faced. He had five in a row at one point. Denny McLain singled with one out in the third. A sixth straight strikeout would have tied the record set by Fred Eller in 1919 and tied by Joe DiMambro in 1966.

McLain, who escaped trouble when the Cards got runners to third base in the second and third innings, started his own downfall in the fourth when after getting Orlando Cepeda who went 0 for 4 to foul to first baseman Cash on a 3-2 pitch, he walked Tom McCaver on four pitches.

Shannon then stepped up and had to hit the dirt when McLain's second pitch sailed high. McLain's high pitch was high and outside and Shannon started to swing at it but held up for the second ball. On a 2-1, 2-2 Shannon then lined the next pitch to left for a simple that scored the tying run.

When Horton overran the ball in left for an error, McCaver took third and Shannon moved to second.

The Tigers moved the infield in for a kick and McCaver hit the first pitch to the "opposite" side low liner to right for a two run single. McCaver then settled down and retired Dal Maxvill and Gibson to retire the side but for practical purposes the game was over.

Harriers Open At Iowa

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Right fielder Nelson Briles was named to pitch for the Detroit Tigers here Wednesday as he easily "outdoubled" Denny McLain. The St. Louis Cardinals a 4-0 victory over the Tigers.

In the second game Thursday in St. Louis, the Redbirds' Nelson Briles was favored to improve their own defense which has permitted 58 points in the first two weeks of the season. The defensive secondary has undergone changes this week. Doe Reid now is listed as the starting safety, replacing Tom Quinn. John Gainer and Bernie Jackson remain the halfbacks.

Located at Las Vegas, Nev. the Notre Dame sailing team has undergone changes this year.

This weekend Notre Dame hosts the chief competition.

Two of the main obstacles to an Irish victory Saturday are Iowa wingback Barry Cress (left) and split end Al Bream.
