THE WORLD TODAY

"Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh": LONDON (UPI) -- Thousands of demonstrators staged the biggest anti-American protest in British history Sunday and scuffled with police trying to keep them from storming the U.S. Embassy. A homemade bomb wrecked the John F. Kennedy memorial at Runnymede.

Several windows in the embassy building on Grosvenor Square were shattered with flying bricks as upwards of 30,000 persons marched through the chilly streets of London for hours chanting such slogans as "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh," and "Down with American Imperialism."

Several eyewitness accounts and a force of nearly 17,000 police equipped with helicopters and patrol boats prevented the demonstration from taking into a riot.

A special section for the U.S. Embassy described the bomb attack on the granite Kennedy memorial at Runnymede, where the Magna Carta is signed, as a "wanton act" which seems incredible in this day and age. The memorial to the assassinated President, set up in May 1965, may be damaged beyond repair.

"The stone is split right down the center," said William Nixon, warden for the national trust which cares for Runnymede.

"The memorial, I am sure, will be on hand for Student Affairs at Notre Dame," said Theodore M. Hesburgh, the university's President.

Czechs & Slovaks Autonomous

"The Czechs have sought to keep the shape of their own state."

PRAGUE (UPI) -- Czechoslovakia's parliamentary Sunday passed a historic law creating separate Czech and Slovak regional states united by a federal government in Prague. It gave the Slovaks an autonomous administration.

The federalization measure, one of the first reforms promised by President Alexander Dubcek when he took power last January, was approved unanimously despite strong criticism from some leaders.

Enactment of the law came on the eve of celebrations of the nation's 50th anniversary of statehood. Most Prague citizens remained indoors and quiet in response to their leaders' warnings against any demonstrations which the Soviet have said would bring the Prague invasion troop into the city.

The only public gathering was that of a crowd of several hundred persons who clustered outside Hradcany Castle to applaud Dubcek when he entered to attend the session of the National Assembly that gave the Slovaks their place in the sun.

Week no. 24: And the Talks go on

PARIS (UPI) - The Paris talks on Vietnam Sunday entered their crucial "make or break" 24th week which is expected to determine whether the United States will send its peace troops to Vietnam.

Western diplomatic observers of the deadlocked talks said that this week will be Johnson's last chance to reach an agreement with Hanoi before a new law creating separate North Vietnam sources.

Anxiety among diplomatic circles remained high amid hints that talks could lead to a peace at Vietnam might still be reached this week.

Though it has never been officially confirmed it is known here that two sides have been in contact regarding a for the past two weeks on a recent "peace package" proposed by Johnson.

Vietnamese Ask for Different Plans

SAIGON (UPI) -- A high ranking South Vietnamese official said Sunday the Saigon government wants a three way conference between South Vietnam and the United States and North Vietnam, and that the National Liberation Front (NLF) could be part of the talks.

The official, Information Minister Thon That, told UPI in an interview South Vietnam would agree to the participation of the NLF, political arm of the Vietcong, if North Vietnam sources.

North Vietnam sources.

"The President, in a speech before the All Americans Committee, predicted a repeat of the Democratic National Committee, predicted a repeat of the 1948 election. After outlining the history of the 1948 campaign, Johnson said: "The final resolution is yet to come. But it is coming, as sure as I stand here."

"Hubert Humphrey is going to wake up the morning of Nov. 6 as the presidential-elect of the United States," Johnson said. "Although Johnson concentrated his heaviest attack on Nixon, third party candidate George C. Wallace did not escape his attention.

Johnson described Wallace as "a fellow whose fame until now rested on his ability to stand in college doorways, defy the law, and on encouraging people in his state to feel that they were part of a separate nation."

If you are a George Wallace, Johnson said, "try turning the most difficult and military problems the country faces over to Gen. Curtis E. LeMay and you use the presidential limousine" to run over demonstrations.

The President's speech was the old Johnson trying to combat the new Nixon. Johnson said, "the choice you are going to have to make now is the clearest as crystal."

"On the one hand, there is a man from the past—a veteran of the "The Good War". His problems were deferred and her needs were ignored, a man who talks vaguely about ending the "wasteful" programs we have begun together in our time; a man who gives his candidates views not in the glare of public scrutiny, but in private letters to potential interest groups."

Johnson described Nixon as "a man who distorts the history of his time in office." The President said Nixon neglected to mention that Cuba was lost to communism in the Caribbean in 1962, while "Laos was disintegrating, and the situation in Vietnam was growing steadily worse."
Rossie Recall Campaign Goes On

With the first campus presidential recall election in Notre Dame history scheduled for tomorrow, the three challengers and the incumbent are facing apathy and even opposition from student body electorate.

Student Body President Richard Rossie and his campaign workers plan to continue stumpmg on the North Quad, hopeful of convincing freshmen to vote for him Tuesday. Student Body Vice President Charles Nau, also Rossie's campaign manager, said he would speak in Kresna and Stanford tonight. Rossie campaigned there last week.

Of the reception the Rossie campaign has received Nau said, "The crowds for both Rich and myself have not been large. I think the student body has been overelectoncd." Just recently there were elections for both the Student Senate and the Student Body Council.

"The students have very definite misgivings about Rich and have judged him harshly. The thing I've noticed more than anything else is that a great number of students, and not only freshmen, simply aren't aware of all that Rich has done. All they've seen of him are the letters he's put out, his appearance at the Thurmond address, and his orientation speech. Evidently they gave a bad impression.

"In fact I was unaware of many of the things he's done," Nau said. He cited the SLC, the campus-wide judicial code, the due process statement, and the report on the formulation of the Student Manual.

Nau emphasized that the Rossie administration has not been one of confrontation, but rather of compromise. Sophomore Paul Dillenburger, also noted the apparent dissatisfaction of the students in the election. "I detect a note of apathy. I don't think people are aware of the upcoming election,'" Dillenburger said that from his experience thus far in the campaign, the main issue in Rossie's actions in office. He also said that many students seem to be opposed to the drastic action of a recall. "They don't think that, unless there was outright stealing, there should be a recall," Dillenburger added.

Dillenburger said his campaign is based on "a more reasonable approach to the Administration of the University. There should be appropriate and reasonable negotiation rather than name-calling. I hope this election will make Rossie understand some of his tactics," Dillenburger said.

Students for a Democratic Society candidate Ed Rossie said he and his campaigners have encountered difficulty in reaching the students. "We haven't been too pleased with the turnout, especially on the freshman quad," Rossie said. "In some halls, we've had no one at all show up to hear us," he added. He noted that some of the students have been pretty hostile. "However several people have expressed interest in our organization," Rossie said.

Afro-American candidate Don Wycliff has done little campaign up to date, but has said that he hopes his candidacy will open the eyes of the students to the needs and problems of the Notre Dame black man.

Little in the way of charges and countercharges has been heard in the four day old recall election campaign. As the student body heads towards its third campus-wide election less than a month, practically heat has been generated in what many view as an educational effort on the part of student government and certain groups attempting to make their views known. However, the election has produced one interesting paradox in the number of former opponents of Student Body President Richard Rossie who have pledged their support to him. Mike Kelly of the Young Republicans is somewhat typical. While critical of some of Rossie's basic goals and seeing an impeded progress, Kelly maintains "I don't feel Richard Rossie should have been recalled. He was eleoted to serve a full term and his actions I do not feel merited the rather harsh reactions of certain members of the student body. The recall petition was circulated before either the Student Life Council or Student Senate elections...I feel the recall was unjust and Rosie deserves to finish his program. The SLC and the Senate will certainly provide judgement to augment Mr. Rossie's." More enthusiastic support of Rossie in the context of the election was expressed by Bob Narucki of Young Americans for Freedom who said yesterday "1'm supporting Richard because none of the challengers seem to be worthy candidates. In considering the qualifications of Mr. Rossie I find that he seems more capable of being our Student Body President. As with the YR's Kelly, Narucki was critical of the whole election, saying "The recall petition might cause the student body to have their progress impeded. Richard's experience as Student Body President thus far is invaluable for such a position. It's a little late in the year to begin anew. We should work with Richard to attain our goals."

A line of argument similar to Narucki's is expounded by Richard Hunter, new President of the Notre Dame Young Democrats. Hunter, as a supporter of Vice President Nau emphasized that the recall petition might cause see no viable alternative to Richard Rossie in this election."

"I'm supporting Richard because none of the challengers seem to be worthy candidates. In considering the qualifications of Mr. Rossie I find that he seems more capable of being our Student Body President. As with the YR's Kelly, Narucki was critical of the whole election, saying "The recall petition might cause the student body to have their progress impeded. Richard's experience as Student Body President thus far is invaluable for such a position. It's a little late in the year to begin anew. We should work with Richard to attain our goals."

A line of argument similar to Narucki's is expounded by Richard Hunter, new President of the Notre Dame Young Democrats. Hunter, as a supporter of Vice President Nau emphasized that the recall petition might cause see no viable alternative to Richard Rossie in this election."

NOTRE DAME NSA COMMISSION

IN CONJUNCTION WITH STUDENT GOVERNMENT PRESENTS:

Issues Day Tuesday, October 29, 1968

"I never let my schooling interfere with my education" - Mark Twain

- Reverend Theodore M. Hesburgh
  Representative John Brademas (D-Ind.)
- Reverend Charles McCarragher (Vice President, Student Affairs)
- Reverend James Riehle (Dean of Students)
- Senator Vance Hartke (D-Ind.)
- Jesse Turner (Afro-American Leader, Northwestern University)
- James Silver (History Department of Notre Dame)
- Reverend William Dennis (New Politics Party)
- Reverend Daniel O'Neil (Admissions Dept.)
- Humphrey, Nixon, and Wallace Alies

Stepan Center 2-5 PM

Monday, October 28, 1968
THE OBSERVER

Tim O'Mellia

Olympiad

The nineteenth Olympic Games ended yesterday with an abbreviated closing ceremony in which only ten athletes from each nation were allowed to participate. The International Olympic Committee, host and protector of Olympic amateurism (which must be distinguished from true amateurism), explained that it took such action because it feared another repeat of the "incident" at Tokyo four years ago.

That incident consisted of a number of athletes breaking ranks and hoisting medal winners on their shoulders. That offended the Japanese hosts, or so the IOC said.

The actual reason, of course, is that the IOC feared any kind of political incident whether by American black athletes or Czechs.

Whitcomb for Nixon

With all the hoopla customary in local American electoral politics, the United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew held a rally Saturday night in Stepan Center to demonstrate their support for the Republican ticket in this year's election.

Keynoted by addresses by Edgar Whitcomb, gubernatorial candidate, and State Representative Will Erwin, the rally was attended by about 475 people. James Drury, star of NBC's "The Virginian," and the Up With People Sing Out of South Bend provided entertainment.

Whitcomb said in his speech that "this area - as well as all of Indiana - has been neglected over the past 8 years." He said that this neglect was part of the neglect that has been seen all over the country as a result of Democratic ascendancy.

"If the Republican party can make its voice heard on Nov. 5, we'll see an end to this long, dark night," said Whitcomb. "If not, we can expect more of the same, and America will continue on the road of increasing crime and neglect of the common people."

Erwin called upon his opponent, John Brademas, to make his record in Congress known, saying "maybe he's too worried about keeping his job."

A taped speech by Richard Nixon was played during which Nixon said that he regretted that he could not attend the rally but said that he had other commitments.

Nixon lauded Hoosier voters saying that "if the grand spirit of Indiana Republicans is duplicated across the country on Election Day, then this country will be on its way back up."

In an interview after the rally, Whitcomb said that the greatest problem facing Indiana is crime, which he says has increased at a rate ten times as great as the population increase over the past 8 years.

Whitcomb said that in order to combat this problem, he would form a commission to study the problem and recommend changes to the state legislature. He called for better police forces and an enlightened penal system as part of his anti-crime program.

---

MOST LIKELY TO HELP YOU GO PLACES

"Tim Meskill... fellow student... your very own TWA Campus Representative... expert on great spots to water ski, snow ski, surf and sail... on places to meet new people and have fun with old friends... places to dance and groove. Keepers of TWA's 50/50 Club Cards—which take you to all those places in the US for a mere half fare. Kind of a colleague of the local travel agent. Together they'll give you all the tours, fares and schedules you can dream up. Good person to know. Call 'Tim at 284-8144.

Attention collegiate rock, folk and jazz groups! Enter the 1969 Intercollegiate Music Festival sponsored by TWA. For information write: L.M.E, 1275, Lorasburg, Florida 32748."

---

UP AND AWAY TWA

"Tim Meskill... TWA Campus Rep... "

---

THE OBSERVER

Monday, October 28, 1968

Page 3

The Mexico City Olympics received as many headlines for the political actions of its participants as it did for athletic accomplishments of those same participants.

Olympic 200-meter sprint champion Tommie Smith and bronze medalist John Carlos each raised a black-gloved fist, bowed his head and stood on the awards platform with no shoes and calf-length black stockings during the national anthem. For their action the IOC, through the US Olympic Committee under the threat of extrommunication of the entire team, took the stance of Wyatt Earp and told bad guys Smith and Carlos to get off of twon by sundown (out of the country in 24 hours.)

The Czech team, which felt a curious antagonism toward Soviet athletes refused to eat at the same table at the Olympic Village with their neighbors. Czechoslovakia's Vera Casalovik, who captured four golds and a silver in five gymnastic events, cast her eyes down and to the right when the Russian anthem was played and the Soviet flag hoisted.

The IOC has unwillingly been made the villain in this international play, and true enough, they've made hypocrites of themselves.

Apartheid South Africa, after complying with the IOC's regulation of integrated selection, travel, accommodation and participation of its team was summarily barred from Mexico by the IOC. It seems that other black African nations threatened to boycott the Olympics because of the racist policies of South Africa. In order to preserve the Games the IOC succumbed.

Then only months later send athletes home for their political actions. The logic escapes comprehension.

The ultimate blame for the trouble is of course not on the JOC but rather on the nationalistic and selfish athletes and countries who refuse to recognize the much-maligned ideals of the Olympic Games. They seem to find the Olympics to be an extremely convenient vehicle to further their causes, however just or unjust.

The Olympics were founded on the ideals of amateurism and good will among nations or whatever you want to call it. Apparently athletes and nations can't take two weeks out from their antagonisms. Political action, justified or not has not place in the Olympics.

The 1968 Games have been turned into a joke by selfish and blind athletes. Munich should be a real laughter.
We urge maximum participation of the Notre Dame student body in the NSA Issues Day programs which shall take place on this campus tomorrow. Issues Day is not entertainment for those interested in a few topics, but rather takes the form of a chance to exchange opinions with and question both the men who stimulate change in our society and men in positions of authority who are making decisions as to the directions in which this nation and this university will move.

Our feelings are that what is going to happen on this campus tomorrow is also of great relevance in the issues which will be discussed. The grievances of the Black Man will be presented and examined in depth. This examination will be stimulated by the presence of one of the outstanding Afro-American student leaders of the nation. Further, the political realm will be subject matter for intensive dialogue in not only the immediate sense of the national election, but in the long term view of where the United States of America is headed. Finally, university officials including the President of Notre Dame will be on hand to talk about education and student involvement in terms of this campus as well as the nation and world.

With Issues Day relevant and providing the opportunity for exchange, we could not only urge participation but go overboard on praise of what is truly an excellent idea and, at Notre Dame, a well thought out program. Instead, we would take a more critical line as to this project. We would point out that intentions and plans, no matter how praiseworthy, do not suffice in themselves. With an event such as Issues Day, for instance, you can have a valuable nationwide forum of discussion and debate or you can have a rather spotty effort lacking in fullness of formulation.

Now the National Student Association conceived of Issues Day only about three weeks ago. Nobody can doubt that this is a good idea. However, NSA has hurried to the point where a full program of the type at Notre Dame is only being offered on a relatively few "target" campuses. Thus while we get to question Vance Hartke, John Brademas, and Theodore M. Hesburgh, most of the campuses in the country will have people going to class just like any other day. I'm going to be great here, but what about all the other colleges which don't have names like Harvard, Chicago, Stanford, or Notre Dame?

At Notre Dame, in spite of the extent of tomorrow's activities, we have seen a demonstration of haste and sometimes of spotlessness. Mike Kendall and Chuck Nau deserve to be commended on the program here, but we must point to the lack in planning and execution in preparation for Issues Day at Notre Dame. The appeal to the faculty for use of classes was handled with dispatch as opposed to tact and a spirit of cooperation. Publicity on Issues Day has been sorely inadequate so far, and the purposes of the project have not received adequate explanation. As a result of these errors the classroom part of Issues Day has been cut severely and most of the campus has up until today been totally in the dark as to what is going to take place here tomorrow.

We look forward to Issues Day as a nearly unparalleled opportunity for confrontation of relevant questions as well as dialogue with those who make and execute policy. However, even as we urge full student participation we must criticize the National Student Association for its haste and lack of comprehensiveness with Issues Day as well as those at Notre Dame who have done an inadequate job in obtaining faculty cooperation and explaining the project to the student body. It's a great idea and a valuable program, but the significance of Issues Day is hampered by lack of planning and inadequacy of explanation.

We feel that this project has been marred by decisions made without adequate explanation to the student body and without properly organizing the project to the student body. It's a great idea and a valuable program, but the significance of Issues Day is hampered by lack of planning and inadequacy of explanation.

Speak Out!

We urge maximum participation of the Notre Dame student body in the NSA Issues Day programs which shall take place on this campus tomorrow. Issues Day is not entertainment for those interested in a few topics, but rather takes the form of a chance to exchange opinions with and question both the men who stimulate change in our society and men in positions of authority who are making decisions as to the directions in which this nation and this university will move.

Our feelings are that what is going to happen on this campus tomorrow is also of great relevance in the issues which will be discussed. The grievances of the Black Man will be presented and examined in depth. This examination will be stimulated by the presence of one of the outstanding Afro-American student leaders of the nation. Further, the political realm will be subject matter for intensive dialogue in not only the immediate sense of the national election, but in the long term view of where the United States of America is headed. Finally, university officials including the President of Notre Dame will be on hand to talk about education and student involvement in terms of this campus as well as the nation and world.

With Issues Day relevant and providing the opportunity for exchange, we could not only urge participation but go overboard on praise of what is truly an excellent idea and, at Notre Dame, a well thought out program. Instead, we would take a more critical line as to this project. We would point out that intentions and plans, no matter how praiseworthy, do not suffice in themselves. With an event such as Issues Day, for instance, you can have a valuable nationwide forum of discussion and debate or you can have a rather spotty effort lacking in fullness of formulation.

Now the National Student Association conceived of Issues Day only about three weeks ago. Nobody can doubt that this is a good idea. However, NSA has hurried to the point where a full program of the type at Notre Dame is only being offered on a relatively few "target" campuses. Thus while we get to question Vance Hartke, John Brademas, and Theodore M. Hesburgh, most of the campuses in the country will have people going to class just like any other day. It's going to be great here, but what about all the other colleges which don't have names like Harvard, Chicago, Stanford, or Notre Dame?

At Notre Dame, in spite of the extent of tomorrow's activities, we have seen a demonstration of haste and sometimes of spotlessness. Mike Kendall and Chuck Nau deserve to be commended on the program here, but we must point to the lack in planning and execution in preparation for Issues Day at Notre Dame. The appeal to the faculty for use of classes was handled with dispatch as opposed to tact and a spirit of cooperation. Publicity on Issues Day has been sorely inadequate so far, and the purposes of the project have not received adequate explanation. As a result of these errors the classroom part of Issues Day has been cut severely and most of the campus has up until today been totally in the dark as to what is going to take place here tomorrow.

We look forward to Issues Day as a nearly unparalleled opportunity for confrontation of relevant questions as well as dialogue with those who make and execute policy. However, even as we urge full student participation we must criticize the National Student Association for its haste and lack of comprehensiveness with Issues Day as well as those at Notre Dame who have done an inadequate job in obtaining faculty cooperation and explaining the project to the student body. It's a great idea and a valuable program, but the significance of Issues Day is hampered by lack of planning and inadequacy of explanation.
THE OBSERVER

By David Stauffer

On Monday, October 26, I spent three hours at the South Bend headquarters of the Wallace campaign. The following is a self-interview (An idea copied from Bill Buckley.)

Q. Has there been any violence in connection with the local Wallace campaign?

A. Griggs said that if Wallace polled enough votes there would be sufficient base for developing a full-fledged party, if the national parties didn't incorporate Wallace views. However, no mention was made of a Wallace vote in 1972. Workers in the Wallace campaign seem to be making a one-shot effort, and don't appear too concerned about the future of Wallace's American Independent Party.

Q. Describe the Wallace Headquarters.

A. The building itself is a small one, several blocks from the main shopping section of South Bend (at 428 St. Joseph Street). A large window which was trimmed in red, white, and blue crepe paper, and contained a large picture of Wallace which said, "Wallace has the courage, do you?" Inside, there were two or three large posters on each wall, a couple like the one in the window, most of them bearing the campaign slogan "Stand up for America!" A row of wooden chairs lined each side wall, each chair bearing a "Wallace" sticker. Two tables-trimmed in red, white, and blue-were placed near the back for the partitioned (with sheets) room. A host of campaign literature, buttons, stickers, and hats were neatly arranged on the tables.

Q. Who was at the headquarters?

A. I was greeted by Mr. Bill Griggs, a middle-aged man who is a UAW union official. Also working the afternoon was a young girl, who is a 16 year old high school student.

Q. What happened while you were there?

A. Not much. Mr. Griggs explained that activity was at a peak when the headquarters opened four weeks ago. However, there was a steady flow of workers bringing stickers and buttons, as well as area high school students requesting newspaper and debate materials. Another worker came in to see what was happening, and a Wallace campaign worker from Michigan also made a short visit. Most of the time I asked Griggs questions about Wallace and his campaign. When the conversation slowed, Griggs decided a little noise was needed and proceeded to book up a phonograph playing the song "Stand Up for America!" and selections from the speeches of Wallace.

Q. How was the local organization established?

A. Griggs said, with an understandable measure of pride, that local Wallace campaigns are "completely the work of little people." A local South Bend businessman donated the building for headquarters, and all workers are volunteers.

Q. Do these workers do more than operate the headquarters?

A. Yes. Each Wednesday evening a meeting is held to discuss the Wallace campaign-locally for support for Wallace, ways to reach the voter, etc. The volunteer put up signs and stickers around the area. A Wallace rally and party was scheduled for this Sunday, with the Negro chairman of "Blacks for Wallace" as the featured speaker.

Campaign Goes On

The start of Hubert Humphrey's campaign was disastrous...

The crowds were small and bored, top Democrats ignored his visits to their states, and the return of some troops from Vietnam which turned out to be a simple rotation, he declared American soldiers would start coming home late this year and was heard... One reason these people are so devoted to Wallace is that he is presently in a position where all of their fears are expressed and heard.

...Mitterand's most active role has been in full force after the workers walked out the factory that Mitterand saw his chance in... He returned to considerable prominence this year in the recent elections. Early June was the general strike after the Days of May go first through a tent and...
Education Conference

Education in Transition- Bundy Cites Need for Federal Aid

Seven national authorities in education addressed a conference on American educational policy last Friday and Saturday at the Center for Continuing Education.

The conference, called "Major Tensions in American Education: Shaping Policies for the '70's," had as principal speakers Paul W. Briggs, superintendent of Cleveland schools; McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation; Cleveland L. Dennard, president, Washington (D.C.) Technical Institute; Richard A. Graham, director of the Teachers Corps; Harold Howe II, U.S. Commissioner of Education; Francis Keppl, chairman of the board and president of General Learning Corporation; and Harris L. Wolford, Jr., president, College at Old Westbury, State University of New York.

The conference was sponsored by the University's department of education, headed by Dr. James M. Lee, and by Congressman John Brademas of Indiana's Third District, a veteran member of the House Education and Labor Committee.

"The purpose of the conference is to analyze pressing conflict situations in American education and to suggest various strategies for dealing with them," Lee said. Educators on every level of schooling as well as other persons interested in American education attended the meeting.

Bundy spoke on the efforts of big-city school systems to respond to the needs of minority groups. "The crisis of the big city school," he said, "is a crisis of hope and fear in which all parties are torn between their determination to protect and advance their own immediate interests and the inescapable necessity that they give reasonable respect to the interests of others."

Noting that "the schools which most need a new level of excellence are the schools which are the most badly starved for funds," Bundy underscored the need for federal support.

Bundy continued, "On the way to that great decision for national action, nothing will be more important than the active and sustained attention of the American people toward the leadership of men in Washington. That is why I am so proud to be here today under the sponsorship of the University of Notre Dame and in the company of men like Congressman John Brademas - because Notre Dame is such an institution and John Brademas is such a man."

Howe, in a strongly optimistic speech, spoke on the need for implementing current educational legislation. Specifically he mentioned three priorities: adequate financing of laws; better use of school programs; and greater participation on all levels of operation. "American education is in transition, undergoing a trying and yet exhilarating and necessary departure from the comfortable patterns and practices of earlier years," he said.

Howe referred to federal control as "a popular spoof" saying that the federal government "has so many problems already trying to run the country without trying to run a couple of million classrooms as well."

Wofford, moving off on another tangent, mentioned the outbursts at Berkely and Columbia while recommending alternative methods of protest. He said "Student dissent has been so strong and society's response so weak and negative that the ability of students to act positively is weakening."

He also said discouragingly "teachers and deans are still pretending to have powers parents have long since given up. Massive police action should be the last resort in quelling unrest on campuses." Wofford concluded by remarking that a basic switch from violence would be "the lively, responsive law of politics."
Off Campus Gridders Stay Unbeaten

By GREG WINGENFELD

Off Campus remained unbeaten, 8-0, and untyed, 2-0, while Keenan battled a surprising Zahm team to a scoreless tie in the 83rd edition of Inter-Collegiate FootBall. Dan Valentino sparked the OC win, while Mitch Stewart scored two touchdowns and made two key interceptions for the Zombies.

In other games, Alumni and St. Ed's fought to a 22-0 tie. Farley lobbed a 68-yard pass to Hal Crook, who capped it with a 6-yard TD to beat Bobby O'Malley and the Fighting Irish. Cavanaugh struggled to a 3-3 tie with Breeze and Peckham, but the Irish opened the game with a successful "sleeper" play as Rich Luke hit John Maturi with a 40-yard pass, but OC, and particularly Valentino, may not awake the rest of the game. The speedy halfback carried four times and caught a pass in the only scoring drive of the game he capped with a fumble recovery. Valentino also hurt Morrissey defensively, picking off a pass in the final seconds.

Stankiewicz, playing split end, and safety, caught two passes, one a spectacular tumbling grab, and stopped two Keenan drives with interceptions as Zahm lookked Keenan with the scoreless tie. Keenan was expecting an easy game after beating Cavanaugh handily last week. (Cavanaugh had beaten Keenan earlier in the season.) But Zahm kept the boy Mike Whitecase-Joe Simpson coming constantly to the end-zone and scored the tie.

Fullback Chris O'Leary rumbled 68 yards up the middle. Valentino also hurt Morrissey defensively, picking off a pass in the final seconds.

"Biggest disappointment for the Irish," said Andy McHugh. "Our inability to score in the red zone." Farley poured in 25 and 34 yards over the middle, and his hook tied it with 4 seconds left in the first half, and his hook tied it with 11 seconds left in the game. Rob Trost, team captain, said, "I put it. I was glad to see him do it."

"I put it. I was glad to see him do it."

The game was a dejected affair after the game. A dejected Bob Nee, team captain, said, "We just have to improve on our stick work" (i.e. moving the ball from defense to offense).\n
This was just an exhibition game. The in-season game will be on Saturday.\n
\n
Games Finish

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - The 1968 Olympic Games of Mexico, plagued by troubles before and during competition but turning at the end into a brilliant sports show topped by American victories, closed Sunday with formal ceremonies presided over by Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

To the strains of "Las Golondrinas," a traditional Mexican song of farewell, the Olympic Flame atop the Olympic Stadium was extinguished and the giant scoreboard flashed "Mexico 1972" in tribute to the next Olympics.

Hannratty Assualts The Record Book

TOTAL OFFENSE* Terry Harratty vs. MSU 355 yards Total 4,353 yards PASSES ATTEMPTED* Terry Harratty vs. MSU 43 Total 529 PASSES COMPLETED* Terry Harratty vs. MSU 27 Total 290 PASSING YARDAGE* Terry Harratty vs. MSU 312 yards Total 1,880 yards PASSES HAD INTERCEPTED* Terry Harratty vs. MSU 1 Total 34 COMPLETION PCT. Frank Tripucka .567 Total .567 vs. MSU .628 Total .548 TOUCHDOWN PASSES Angelo Halliwell 9 Bob Williams 26 Terry Harratty 13 Total 26

Hannratty had passed his team deep into B.P. territory before the theft.\n
The Walsh team closed "B.P." territory before scoring a point as they bowed to Sorin. Sorin's initial season senior on the board was "Mad Dog" Breemann pounced on an unreturned football in the Walsh end zone. A bad fade from center sailed over puntner Denny Niger's head and before he could gather it in Sorin had its margin of victory.

Next week marks the end of the regular season. Significant battles include the OC vs. Punghorne for the League II title. St. Ed's meets Dillon and Farley takes on Alumni in the League I race. Keenan has only to tie Breen-Phillips to clinch League III laurels. Zahm vs Stanford, Sorin vs Murrayne, and Cavanaugh vs Holy Cross round out the schedule.

League I: 1) Dillon 1-0-2; 2)Farley 1-0-2; 3)St. Ed's 1-0-2; 4) Alumni 1-1-1; 5) Lyon 0-3-1; League II; 1) Off Campus 3-0-0; Punghorne 1-0-2; 3) Sorin 1-2-0; 4) Morrissey 0-1-2; 5) Wawasee 0-2-2. League III: 1) Keenan 3-0-1; 2) Zahm 2-1-1; 3)(Cavanaugh 2-1-1; 4) B.P 1-1-2; 5) Holy Cross 1-2-1; 6) Stanford 0-4-0.

\n
Sports Roundup

BASKETBALL

A turnd-awourd crowd of 7,511 poured into the Convocation Center yesterday to watch Johnny Dee's super-soph edge last year's N.I.T. varsity 88-83 in overtime. It marked the first competition to be held in the 86,600 new center, and the crowd showed off to match Notre Dame home basketball game, but for Coach Dee it had a special meaning.

"It's got to be the biggest thrill of my life. When I think of all the relieve trips and visits I made recruiting players and my own coaches, it's a big thrill to see them..."\n
It wasn't all that disappointing for the capacity crowd either.

The Irish put on an awesome display of scoring potential as a total of eight players hit for doubles figures. Arzen and Whitemore led the vets with 22 and 20 respectively while "Augie" Carr poured in 25 and Sid Calletti 18 for the sophs.

The game's exaggeration was in 11 rebounds, and Dee was rightly pleased. "After a year's layoff, I was glad to see him do well."

The sophs never trailed in the game, leading by as much as 12 in the first half. But Whitemore came back with 18 in the second half, and his hook tied it with 10 seconds left. Carr sealed it for the sophs with three late jumpers in the overtime period.

It was realistic after the game. "I was satisfied considering we haven't had much unit work, but we have an awful lot of work to do." True enough, but affable Johnny Dee has an awful lot to work with, and it could be that his "biggest thrills" are still in the future starting around December 7.

LACROSSE

The state of Michigan proved to be Notre Dame's non-hostile place for Irishmen last weekend. The Notre Dame Lacrosse Club received much the same treatment from its Midwestern football counterparts as it lost to the University of Michigan 8-5 at Ann Arbor.

The game was a disappointment for the Irish, especially the way in which they lost. The offense, which was supposed to be the team's strong point, just couldn't control the ball for the Irish. This resulted in too much pressure for the defense, particularly go. This resulted in too much pressure for the defense, particularly go. This resulted in too much pressure for the defense, particularly go. This resulted in too much pressure for the defense, particularly go.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Irish harriers dropped their first dual meet of the season, an 18-40 walloping by the University of Indiana at Bloomington. Hoosier Mark Gibbens took the individual title in Friday's competition with a record 22.29-22.9 over the nine-mile course. Notre Dame stands 2-1 for the year.

SAILING

The sailing team placed seventh this weekend in the Ohio State Fall Regatta at Columbus. Mike Morrissey placed second in two races while John Hildebrand took a second and a third. Ohio State was tops overall with Indiana second.

Football

Here's how future ND opponents faced Saturday.

Goodyear 23 vs. Tulane 19
Virginia 24 vs. Navy 0
Air Force 27 vs. Pitt 14
Southern Cal - idle

RUGBY

Notre Dame's rugby squad each capped their records with victories at the University of Michigan Saturday. The "A" side matched a 10-6 triumph while the Bees, paced by Bill Barry and Tom Hurlbey, rolled up a 27-3 count. The top ND squad is 3-2. The Bees are 3-1.

1. Pipe broken.
2. That's where you keep your money.
3. What's wrong with the bank?
4. But that's what you're doing now.
5. I think you'd be a lot better off putting some of your dough into Living Insurance from Equitable. It not only gives you and the family you're going to have a lifetime of protection, it also builds cash values available for emergencies, opportunities, or even retirement.

I see no way it could be with the furch frinv.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Lionel M. Stewart, Manager, College Employment.
The Irish Eye

By Terry O'Neil, sports editor

Some days you hate your job. Gotta have story for Monday. But what do you write about this game? Oh, Grantland, please inspire me.

You wonder if collegiate football hasn't become an uncontrollable monster. Really, any simple game worth so much that the sports editor of the Michigan State News would write (and mean this sincerely):

"Note: The Dame may be the darlings of the subway set, but Spartan fans would take the Soviet Union over the Irish if they ever met in football. Against the Irish, the Viet Cong would be an off the board pick in East Lansing. Anti-American you say? Maybe so, but because of your allegiance to the opponent.

You wonder what an obsession the sport has become when adult, professional journalists, who cover Michigan State for a living, taunt and mock you because of your allegiance to the opponent.

So loud and loaded are their comments in the fourth quarter that the MSU sports publicist has to deliver this rejoinder to a biased and boisterous press:

"Remember, gentlemen, we're working up here.

Presently, you'd like to change that chant to "Hate State, With Great Intensity." And yet that doesn't make any sense. You have been beaten and desiring revenge. You are embittered and striking back wildly. Your frustration is only slightly less overwhelming than your need to give vent to it.

You can almost justify self-pity at this point...until you experience that losers' locker room and you find out what it's like to have your guts ripped out. You see what they mean by a really bad scene. Across the tunnel, amidst great jubilation, Duffy tells reporters "what an emotional game football is." That, he explains, is how State won. They were "up" for this one.

Fifty feet away, you understand that emotionalism is a two-way drag strip. You see a bunch of guys driven into that mile-deep mine shaft of despair. It's 20 minutes since the game ended and Ara still has the press locked out. The managers are loading equipment onto a truck and you recognize one of them. He was in your logic class last year.

His eyes are red; he's blinking a lot. You know it's not because he's 'tippin' on the Student Union train.

Then you spot Nick Eddy a couple feet away. Like those managers, he's wearing that same expression, etched into his features like a wood-cut. And therein lies his class—four years worth of it, in fact. He hasn't said a word in 10 minutes, hasn't moved facially, looking straight ahead. Just standing there dying as he did in '66.

And how these hack writers start clamoring to get inside. "C'mon Ara, we gotta work too, ya know. Hey fellas, who's gonna ask him what the final stats were? Wait, I know. The first kickoff!!"

The players begin trinking out, swallowing hard and often. Fr. Riche appears in the doorway with a long cigar and a forced smile. The managers continue working silently. Then Ara says open the floodgates and the writers play their role beautifully, crashing in like it's the Boston Tea Party.

You cross the doorway and you're wading knee-deep in gloom. You notice a friend tugging on your sleeve. What do you say?

"I still don't believe it," he mumbles. Your heart just wants to burst out of your rib cage for him.

Globs of tape and dirty towels are strewn about the floor. Some guys are still sitting in front of their lockers, haven't recovered enough yet to take a shower. Ara, stripped to the waist, answers all the questions. You've seen his manner after other defeats.

Today, it's the same—tere, but polite.

One player says to another, "Don't worry. We'll come back." And his buddy replies, "I know we will.

You just have to wonder if they really believe it.

Can it be that a team without the incentive of a National Championship or a bowl invitation truly gives a damn about coming back.

But, of course, isn't that what they did last year after a pair of early-season losses. And isn't that the way you do everything around here? With a little Nick Eddy class and a little Johnny Ray pride. And isn't the maintenance of those qualities more important than No. 1, anyway?

You'd be glad you came to this school. You slung the raincoat over your right shoulder because you don't want to hide the Notre Dame emblem on your left blazer pocket. You walk back up to the press box to pick up the final stats.

The soft drink cups and popcorn boxes all bear "Michigan State" in green and white. You kick at them, but not with malice or vengeance. Perhaps you're a rah-rah, you suppose. But maybe that isn't so bad.

The thoughts ramble on. You sigh massively. Still nothing solid enough for Monday's story.

Duffy: "An emotional game."

Statistics

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>PASSING (Number Attempted)</th>
<th>ATT.</th>
<th>COM</th>
<th>IN</th>
<th>YDS</th>
<th>AVG</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MSU</td>
<td>27</td>
<td>52</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>247</td>
<td>1968</td>
<td>312</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notre Dame</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>71</td>
<td>26</td>
<td>272</td>
<td>177</td>
<td>247</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Spartans

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>PASSING (Number Attempted)</th>
<th>ATT.</th>
<th>COM</th>
<th>IN</th>
<th>YDS</th>
<th>AVG</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MSU</td>
<td>27</td>
<td>52</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>247</td>
<td>1968</td>
<td>312</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notre Dame</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>71</td>
<td>26</td>
<td>272</td>
<td>177</td>
<td>247</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Fifty feet away, you understand that emotionalism is a two-way drag strip. You see a bunch of guys driven into that mile-deep mine shaft of despair. It's 20 minutes since the game ended and Ara still has the press locked out. The managers are loading equipment onto a truck and you recognize one of them. He was in your logic class last year.

His eyes are red; he's blinking a lot. You know it's not because he's 'tippin' on the Student Union train.

Then you spot Nick Eddy a couple feet away. Like those managers, he's wearing that same expression, etched into his features like a wood-cut. And therein lies his class—four years worth of it, in fact. He hasn't said a word in 10 minutes, hasn't moved facially, looking straight ahead. Just standing there dying as he did in '66.

And how these hack writers start clamoring to get inside. "C'mon Ara, we gotta work too, ya know. Hey fellas, who's gonna ask him what the final stats were? Wait, I know. The first kickoff!!"

The players begin trinking out, swallowing hard and often. Fr. Riche appears in the doorway with a long cigar and a forced smile. The managers continue working silently. Then Ara says open the floodgates and the writers play their role beautifully, crashing in like it's the Boston Tea Party.

You cross the doorway and you're wading knee-deep in gloom. You notice a friend tugging on your sleeve. What do you say?

"I still don't believe it," he mumbles. Your heart just wants to burst out of your rib cage for him.

Globs of tape and dirty towels are strewn about the floor. Some guys are still sitting in front of their lockers, haven't recovered enough yet to take a shower. Ara, stripped to the waist, answers all the questions. You've seen his manner after other defeats.

Today, it's the same—tere, but polite.

One player says to another, "Don't worry. We'll come back." And his buddy replies, "I know we will.

You just have to wonder if they really believe it.

Can it be that a team without the incentive of a National Championship or a bowl invitation truly gives a damn about coming back.

But, of course, isn't that what they did last year after a pair of early-season losses. And isn't that the way you do everything around here? With a little Nick Eddy class and a little Johnny Ray pride. And isn't the maintenance of those qualities more important than No. 1, anyway?

You'd be glad you came to this school. You slung the raincoat over your right shoulder because you don't want to hide the Notre Dame emblem on your left blazer pocket. You walk back up to the press box to pick up the final stats.

The soft drink cups and popcorn boxes all bear "Michigan State" in green and white. You kick at them, but not with malice or vengeance. Perhaps you're a rah-rah, you suppose. But maybe that isn't so bad.

The thoughts ramble on. You sigh massively. Still nothing solid enough for Monday's story.

Duffy: "An emotional game."

Bobo Olson throws a shoulder into flying Spartan Tommy Love. Meanwhile, at left, Jia: 'Vight (40) does something to State's Ron Saul (70) that, well, you just aren't supposed to do.

PHOTOS BY BERT FELISS