Hayden: Vietnam Not Accidental

by DAVE STAUFFER

Tom Hayden, prime mover in the drive of Students for a Democratic Society, spoke yesterday before an overflow crowd in the Library Auditorium.

Confusing his prepared lecture to twenty minutes, Hayden devoted the bulk of his time to answering questions of the audience. Overall, Hayden generally tried to project his views in relation to the views and ideas of the typical middle-class college student.

Hayden began his address by remarking that the main reason he came to Notre Dame was that he had had a repressed adolescent desire to be here. He explained that he had been reared in a "Catholic football family" and as a child believed that "there was the center of America." "My visit," he said, "might help me explain to myself why I'm not so interested in football anymore, or in the Catholic Church of Notre Dame."

The body of Hayden's remarks dealt with American involvement in Vietnam, including the loss of reality in the typical American's ideas about the history of the struggle in Asia. Hayden's belief is that there would be no anti-war sentiment in the U.S., if the war had been ended quickly, and that today's judgement on the war is therefore not a moral judgement. Referring to the ideas of Notre Dame graduate Tom Dooley, Hayden said that "he created a popular feeling which made it possible for people who were about to be overcome."

Hayden noted that "our tragic policy in Vietnam was not accidental but systematic and planned. It is defended on the basis of working for charity for people who were about to be overthrown." He went on to say that "the people of this country are the most consistent aggressors ever,"

Hayden continued. "The violence that this country does is a violence which does not leave too much blood on our hands. Today's philosophy about us to kill with a stick and tie on, by pushing a button or signing an order. This makes death more possible because of the abstraction of the people who allow them in their names."

When asked if the SDS is influenced or supported by communists or communists, Hayden replied that the SDS does and always has had members who are also members of the Communist Party, U.S.A. He adds that the SDS thus is "some kind of open politics which allows discussion." Hayden added that most SDS members do consider themselves part of the Left and therefore, not wish to cut themselves off from communist ideas.

A demonstration by about 15 students was staged at the auditorium entrance before Hayden appeared. Made up mostly of members of the ND Young Americans for Freedom, the group carried signs reading such things as "Would you want your sister to marry Tom Hayden?" If we can be subverted by the SDS we can be interviewed by the CIA." And various reconstructions using the initials SDS. Several signs asked "Is he worth $1500?" However, SU/AC Chairman John Mroz pointed out that Hayden was only receiving $1000. YAF Chairman Bob Naruki said that he doesn't believe Hayden is worth $1000 either. Naruki said that the purpose of the demonstration was to let Hayden know that 100% of the student body does not agree with him and that "this revolution stuff is for the birds."

Hayden held that violence with the justification of social work and use of weapons to defend ourselves is contradictory because we would be fighting white settlers in South Africa and fascists in Latin America under those same justifications. "The people of this country are the most consistent aggressors ever,"

Hayden continued. "The violence that this country does is a violence which does not leave too much blood on our hands. Today's philosophy about us to kill with a stick and tie on, by pushing a button or signing an order. This makes death more possible because of the abstraction of the people who allow them in their names."

Concerning the allowing of the CIA the right to recruit on this campus. The Senators demonstrated their unwillingness to openly discuss a problem which holds a deep moral issue of our time. As President of the Senate I am both appalled and dismayed that the Senate has done this. I cannot in conscience accept this act. The Senate has the potential to be a viable and relevant force for progressive change; I sincerely believe this. I believe in the necessity of a representative legislative body, but that body must be at least willing to discuss the issues that confront us as students and citizens. The Senate in refusing to discuss the issue of recruitment by the CIA has violated, not the letter of the Constitution, but certainly the spirit of the democratic process. I walked out of the meeting in protest.

Lyons Senator Rank explained his tabling motion as a device "to give the Student Senators an opportunity to discuss it properly with their constituents." In a statement of his own, Rank contended "The gift was not even made available until late Saturday afternoon. Even tonight there were changes in the CIA bill showing it was not a pressing motion." Stanford

Students Tom Thrasher and Pat Faintek took a turn in stating their reasons for supporting the tabling, saying "Racism business appeared on the CIA issue, we think that the Senate took a very definite stand tonight. Senators voted to table the bill because they were opposed to pass it."

After the final breakup of the meeting, four Senators drafted a resolution condemning the tabling. In the words of Kendall, Riney, Steve Ahren, and John Koch, "The tabling tonight is the worst blow the Senate's prestige has suffered since we have been in the Senate. The move to table a motion which has direct relevance and effect on the student body without debate is an affront to the students that senators represent." Ahren also criticized some of Rank's contentions maintaining "A meeting was called expressly for this CIA bill. They knew it was coming so they had a responsibility to be prepared for it."

Aided from easily debating the tabling, Rank and ten other Senators took time to blast Rosie's walkout. In a statement prepared by Rank, Joe Brehler, and Jim Boland, they maintained that several Senators were prepared to withdraw the tabling in order to vote on and defeat the bill. They contended that Richard Rosie walked out of the meeting refusing to recognize the proposal to withdraw the tabling motion. He then refused to return after a constitutional petition from the Wahie, Steel, and Jim Boland, according to the resumption of debate. Thus, his actions stymied the conduct of Senate business. On hearing of the allegation late last night, Rosie simply stated "That isn't true."
Alumni President Made Trustee

University President Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., announced Saturday that the president of the Notre Dame Alumni Association has been made ex-officio member of the University's Board of Trustees.

The Alumni Association met prior to the meeting of the Trustees, approved the change, and made it effective immediately. President of the Alumni Association, Richard A. Rostovith, also president of the St. Joseph Bank and Trust Company in South Bend, acted in the board decision. Thirty laymen and seven priests now comprise the members of the Trustee Board.

On other topics, the board accepted a "planned program budgeting system" report from Dr. Thomas E. Stewart, who is concerned with analysis of long range expenditures at this University.

On the $52 million SUMMA program, they were informed that after just a little over a year, $38 million has been collected or 74 percent of its goal.

Preliminary sketches for the complex buildings involved in the University's forthcoming Institute for Advanced Religious Studies were looked at. The drawings were submitted from The Boston, Mass., architecture firm of Saaski Dawson DeMay Associates.

The Board of Trustees also accepted gratefully the resignation of their investment committee head, Bernard J. Voll, who is the chairman of the board at Sibley Machine and Foundry Corporation.

$500,000 Donated

Thanks to a gift of $500,000, there will be a new professorship in the Notre Dame School of Law, the president of the University announced Sunday. The large sum is a donation of Mr. And Mrs. Thomas J. White, of St. Louis, Missouri.

Father Hesburgh referred to the White's gift as "magnificent" and expressed pleasure at the prospect of strengthening "an already outstanding faculty at the nation's oldest Catholic School of law." Mr. White is a 1937 Notre Dame graduate who is well-known for developing many shopping centers, industrial parks and office buildings in and around St. Louis. He graduated from the St. Louis University Law School in 1940 and immediately practiced law while heading a plastics manufacturing Company, six years later forming his own development company. Presently, he is serving on the President's Council of St. Louis University and is chairman of the Lay Advisory Board of the Christian Brothers College. In addition, he has received the Papal honor of Knight of the Holy Sepulchre. Because of his experience in heading several fund raising programs, White is currently St. Louis chairman for the Summa Program.

Note: Dollar figures are in 1968 dollars.

HPC Investigates Hall Life in Interviews

Hall presidents signed up for half-hour appointments with Mr. John Coffee from Ellerbe and Ellerbe Architects at a Hall Presidents Council (HPC) meeting last night in the student center. During the interviews, Mr. Coffee will discuss improvements in the individual halls with their respective presidents; coffee will then conduct a general session on Wednesday at 4:00 p.m. in the student center amphitheater with the presidents and members of the Student Life Council (SLC).

During this season presidents will have the chance to inform the faculty and administration SLC members of the actual condition of the halls. Mike McCauley, president of Farley Hall, urged the presidents to take advantage of this opportunity. He said, "The SLC has had no idea of the overcrowded conditions of some of the halls like Dillon or Badin." Ron Mastrum, HPC co-chairman, said to the presidents, "It's very important that you fully cooperate with Ellerbe because the firm is interested in how the students feel about hall improvements."

Earlier in the week, the hall presidents were given forms to be completed describing the improvements needed in their halls. Larry Landry, Student Life Commissioner in Rossie's cabinet, submitted to the presidents a list of suggested improvements. This list included improved lighting in the rooms and in the hallways, carpeted hallways, acoustical tiling on the ceilings, replacement of metal lockers, more and better furniture for rooms, and the building and utilizing of hall basements. Another Landry suggestion was the replacement of all chapels for reading rooms with pait of the chapel remaining behind a collapsible partition.

Also during the HPC meeting the presidents expressed concern over the undefined powers of the rectors, prefects, and night watchmen. Dave Ryan, president of Badin, said, "Nowhere does it specifically state the function or duties of these officials."

SLC...

Congratulations

We are both impressed and encouraged by the initial actions of the Student Life Council. Its first three sessions the SLC has avoided the traps of procedural rhetoric and of infinite multiplication of study committees that have ensured such efforts as last spring's tripartite board, and thereby prevented change at Notre Dame.

In approving senior cars last Wednesday evening, the SLC demonstrated its potential as a practical legislative body. It recognized, without recourse to further study and survey, that cars are a fact of life — even at Notre Dame. The SLC also showed itself to be a decisive body, willing to accept the responsibility for change, in that it met the problem and readily enacted a solution.

The SLC must now be regarded and respected as a potent force. The decisiveness demonstrated Wednesday, as well as the results of the Council's decision, make the Student Life Council at least potentially relevant to student lives.

There are those who would interpret the Student Life Council's first decision as a token gesture of progress needed for the body to establish rapport with a distrustful and disenchanted student body, but not something likely to be repeated. Only the future activities of the council can disprove this allegation.

It is our opinion, however, that the SLC's decision is more than the result of any initial desire of the body to advertise its self-effectiveness. We trust that the decision [on senior cars] is only the first result of an attitude of pragmatism, realism, and responsiveness to the problems of student life that has thus far characterized the deliberations of the Student Life Council.

What remains is for the Council to approach other aspects of student life: drinking, off campus living, dining facilities, recreational and living conditions, and the place of women in this University. These are issues which demand these qualities of mind even more urgently than the problem of cars.

And Now

If the Student Life Council is going to continue to recognize the facts of student life with the sense of reality displayed in dealing with the question of senior cars, it must act immediately on the question of parietal hours.

Whence the clergy or the alumni approve, girls also constitute a fact of life and in the very recent past, the Administration of this University has been both unwilling to admit to this reality and incapable of dealing with it.

Administration absolutism on the question of parietal hours has been accompanied by an unwillingness or inability to provide immediately the physical facilities for privacy always promised but never produced.

We are encouraged by the possibility that the parietals question can be discussed under the aegis of the SLC in an atmosphere of open mindedness and responsibility. Closed minds have doomed any semblance of an atmosphere such as that of off-campus living, and it must frankly be admitted that only a realistic social climate. Each individual hall community must have the power to produce.

The hipocrisy of parietal hours only on six home football Saturdays a year, and the realities of hall individuality and hall autonomy will be encountered in any study of the issue. It must also be recognized that the issue of parietals more than any other concerns the student judiciary to its traditional ineffectiveness. Students can only be expected to enforce rules they have had a say in creating. A judicial system based on imposed prohibitions will, indeed should, fail.

The residents of each hall have the right to a legitimate social atmosphere. Each individual hall community must have the power to determine its own parietal hours.

In granting or denying the halls the right to legislate parietals, the SLC will demonstrate the extent of its concern with providing the student body of this University with a realistic social climate.

A Question of Fate

During Issues Day two weeks ago Fr. McCarragher, Vice President for Student Affairs, was called upon by a student to comment on the condition of the Notre Dame dining halls. The questioner seemed concerned as well about the condition of some unfortunate enough to have eaten at those dining halls the night before. McCarragher, whose style is perceptive, did not fail to note the substance issues, came across this time as Spero T. Agnew, maintaining "Fate has to be associated with this."

I suppose, if we choose to accept McCarragher's reflection, it was fate that sent a hundred students to the Infirmary three years ago after a memorable helping of comedy beef. Pure chance was responsible for the great North Quad "sickness" of semester exam period last year. A totally unpredictable event caused 106 students to report to the Infirmary after eating day-old corn two weeks ago.

Now I hate to seem like a skeptic at what is, after all, a great Christian university. However, I simply don't dig what McCarragher had to say. I feel that the Vice President for Student Affairs was in fact covering up for something which has gotten completely out of bounds, the condition of ND's eating facilities.

It is quite well known around here that there are certain "services" which the university crams on to make ends meet. Just look at the equipment our interhall squads are playing football in behind the gleaming new Jock Palace every Sunday afternoon. Try to get an ambulance to get from the Infirmary to the hospital when you have, say, a separated shoulder. The Notre Dame dining halls fall right into place as an area where money is saved, even if students are poisoned.

I need not, for the sake of the stomachs of my audience, go very deeply into the quality of food served here. A Senate committee didn't have to go far into the Notre Dining Hall last year to find the stacked crates of inexpensive Nicaraguan beef. I think it will suffice to say that what we eat is of the lowest quality and the most extremely poor preparation. The salads are wilted, the cooked conditions in the dining halls themselves.

It would seem to me that if the Administration stoops to the "open pit" hamburger as he makes his way in shaken state...
24 Students And One Great, Great Jew

by MARY MICHAEL FARNUM and BETTY DOERR

Instead of showers they got sinks, and twenty minutes later emerged from the back room of headquarters wearing suits. Lugging shopping bags filled with Lowenstein and O'Dwyer literature, the students were shipped off to canvas Long Island's West End. They stood on street corners feeling like Fuller Brush salesmen on their first day of work.

The people at headquarters had warned the canvassers to treat in pairs for protection. The West End was solid Hampton territory, and as a rule the Negroes did not vote for Lowenstein. Conservative. He hated open housing, and hoped to win the war militarily. He spread the word that Lowenstein, the only Negro candidate, was in favor of legalization of Marijuana. Hampton called for the death penalty for marijuana pushers. Unlike the presidential candidates, Lowenstein and Hampton made it clear where they stood. For the canvassers it was a fight between good and awful. And the West End was awful.

Friday, and again on Saturday and Sunday, four students canvassed. The fifth did paper work at headquarters. The West End was Gatsby's West Egg. But no one found the place. It was as if whether in just ten minutes before asking "Is this the Blue Club's Club to New York?")" knew about Allard Lowenstein. They boarded the bus the student trailed into the Pittsburgh bus terminal. They relaxed their joints by wandering aimlessly around the station. Others sat in a lounge and watched Debby Reynolds in the blue chiffon song "If I Had a Hammer." Over the bar a radio announced the bombing halt. For five minutes it seemed like V-V day. The students tossed the end of the war, and then got back on the bus and wondered if the war were really over.

The Indiana Motor Trailways pulled in front of the Wickville Center headquarters 18 hours after it had embarked. The students just sat, some peering through the lipstick painted peace symbols on the window. Long Island looked like South Bend. As they were digesting that fact a huge red, white, and blue blaring Sousa marched through its loudspeaker: "Nixon-Agnew, Vote Republican." It was overwhelming. The students were losing the West End five to one. They passed the Notre Dame bus with its solitary orange banner, and explained why he had finally endorsed Hubert Humphrey. Max said that they couldn't be true because politics was changing. Max only shook his head and said "Not all Long Beach." Saturday night the students decided to stay on past Sunday to work for Lowenstein. They were weary from the day's work, and what a day it had been. One of the girls wondered how she would tell her parents, who were convinced she was a Communist anyway. "But no one found the greylight, and nobody knew. Goodwin, a microphone, said first and the magic was not there. He sounded like McCarthy as Walinski had sounded like Kennedy, but in hearing him the students realized that McCarthy was dead - as dead as if he had been shot be an assassin. Again they wondered if the long trip had been for nothing. Lowenstein had won the Long Beach. Mike Shapiro talked about Humphrey and the students were silent. He told them that he was very grateful that the students had come out to elect Lowenstein and how a New Politician won the people's confidence (shaking hands at a shopping center). He told the students that they had come home. They had come to New York not to work for him as a man but for something much greater than one man. He talked about Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy. Mike Shapiro was seen again later that day, looking well, long hair, and wonderd aloud "How will we put it back together again?" He told the students that the longer they lived the more they were realizing all their hopes on just one man, that one man alone was incapable of fulfilling all the dreams, of changing the world. No one believed him.

The students foot canvassed on Sunday, phone canvassed on Monday, and Tuesday night were held for election day. They made a determined effort to turn out drop sample ballots on every doorstep in Long Beach. It made a worker feel like an absurd Santa Clause, delivering a pamphlet to a 1918. No one believed him.

The students foot canvassed on Sunday, phone canvassed on Monday, and Tuesday night were held for election day. They made a determined effort to turn out drop sample ballots on every doorstep in Long Beach. It made a worker feel like an absurd Santa Clause, delivering a pamphlet to a 1918. Mike Shapiro was seen again later that day, looking well, long hair, and wonderd aloud "How will we put it back together again?" He told the students that the longer they lived the more they were realizing all their hopes on just one man, that one man alone was incapable of fulfilling all the dreams, of changing the world. No one believed him.
Professionality at Grumman

Tuition Reimbursement Program

Dramatically applicable to their work, these programs offer engineers and scientists financial assistance for graduate studies at the many institutions in the Long Island-New York areas.

In-Plant Courses

College-Industry Courses

Engineering Masters Fellowship Program

To enhance creative design capability, one-year fellowships, renewable for a second year, are awarded to new engineers of Science graduates and engineers with a year or more company service. The program provides two levels of fellowships, leading to degrees in Statics, Structural Analysis and Dynamics in fixed or rotating assignments and covers payment of full tuition, books, fees, a stipend, and a salary as engineering hourly rates for the hours worked.

Professional Development Programs

Selected individuals within Grumman junior and middle management groups are nominated to attend management development programs such as the MIT Executive Development Program, the Program for Management Development at Harvard University, the Basic Principles of Supervisory Management, and the Senior Trip to Acapulco.

Let's look at these personal development programs.

Senior Trip to Acapulco

Acapulco holds many advantages over other vacation spots aside from low prices (e.g. beer is about $2.20; a plate of 12 shrimp, $1). The water is always around 70 degrees. Opportunities are open for various sports - golf, tennis, water skiing, deep-sea fishing, and of course there is an abundance of girls. There are also bull fights on Sunday afternoons.

Dr. George N. Shuster

Shuster Cited

Dr. George N. Shuster, assistant to the president of the University of Notre Dame, was cited in Rev. Theodore Hesburgh CSC, ND University President, had a varied career, holding a number of positions over the world.

In 1922 he headed Notre Dame's English dept. while serving as associate editor of Ave Maria. He also was an early contributor to The Commonweal and was named managing editor in 1929. He received his doctorate from Columbia University in 1936 and became dean and acting president of Hunter College the same year.

Shuster served as state commissioner for Bavaria in the US Zone of Germany in 1950-51, and since has held posts as an American representative of international cultural conferences.

Acapulco

Senior Trip II to Acapulco

The trip offers eight days in South Bend, a gala arrival party, services of a tour guide and information service for Acapulco and Mexico, and grand accommodations on the beach. A letter was sent out the summer to the Notre Dame Senior Class and Saint Mary's and response was very favorable with more girls than guys sending in deposits.

Campus sign-ups will be shortly after Thanksgiving but, because only 53 seats are now available, students are urged to reserve a space ahead of time by mailing a deposit of $25 payable to "1968 Student Trip" to Scott Reneau, Box 477, Notre Dame, Ind. Information is available by calling Reneau at 384-6914.

Senior Trip II to Acapulco

The trip offers eight days in Acapulco, Mexico over the Easter holidays. The trip offers eight days in Acapulco with accomodations at the brand new De Gante Hotel on La Condesa Beach. Acapulco was decided on for the trip because of its standing as a favorite vacation spot for West Coast, Southwest, and Midwest college students and because of the low prices which predominate in Mexico.

In charge of the trip are Scott Reneau and Mike Phillips. The price for the trip is $325 which includes round trip air fare from South Bend, a gala arrival party, services of a tour guide and information service for Acapulco and Mexico, and grand accommodations on the beach.

Decision Day for T.H.H.

The entire story of Terry Hanratty's injury is now available for publication. Apologies to all those who phoned this department last week and received evasive replies about Hanratty's status. Unfortunately, we could neither write nor tell what we knew. Here's the precise chronology:

Wednesday morning: In a five-minute goal line scrimmage, Hanratty injured his left knee. The coaching staff orders players and managers to keep quiet about the situation.

Wednesday evening: More than half the student body knows Terry Hanratty is injured.

Thursday morning: Ara Parseghian says he expects surgery Sunday morning: Hanratty says he can walk almost normally. The entire story of Terry Hanratty's injury is now available for publication.

Your story about our Fun Shirt of Creslan® may win it.

Based on a letter from a sweater shirt enthusiast who claimed that the Fun Shirt of Creslan® fiber has changed his life, we decided to hold a contest.

Don't tell us how sophisticated or color-specific our theory is, just tell us your story about our Fun Shirt of Creslan®. Oh, and they'll be pleased to send the winners their next two Fun Shirts for the price of one, now.

More info about the contest will be advertised on page 5. Give us your story of how much you like your Fun Shirt, and you may have a chance to win the first two shirts.

Winner of Academy Award for Best Actor and Best Director.

Competition without the services of injured star Bob Watson, the Notre Dame cross-country squad dropped its second dual meet of the season, 17-41, to Michigan State last Friday.

The Spartans garnered the first four places in the contest, held at East Lansing, before Irish captain Kevin O'Brien crossed the line in the cold and sleet. He followed teammate Dick Wohlhuter, but MSU clinched the victory by taking seventh and eighth. Mike Collins (9), Mike Donnelly (10), and Jim Lehman (11) bunched in a few spots too late.

Unbeaten Keenan Waxes OC

by GREG WINGENFIELD

The Interball Football League's playoff schedule got underway Sunday at the Interball football field (4-0-1) and Off Campus (3-0-1), with the best regular season records, played for next week's bye. St. Ed's and Farley played for the League title and the right to meet the loser.

Keenan drubbed Mike Murphy to fullback John Redding, but the play was called back on a n illegal procedure penalty. Regulation time expired with the game scoreless tie.

According to IFL playoff standings, the Farley is the team with the most first downs in the season, and the team with the most first down at the two as halfback Chris Mysliwiec skirted end for a 19-yard, and a first down at the 13. After two running plays netted two yards, the Jim Smith took a pitch from Gary Dougherty for 27-yards, and Gino Agnon skirted end for 40th Street, $1.80.

Dushney Gets
The Tough Yards

Twice in Saturday's first period, Irish fullback Ron Dushney sustained Notre Dame drives by diving for first downs on short yardage situations. At right, he gains two yards on fourth-and-one at the Pitt 2 with 6:21 to play in the period. Jim Winegardner (96) and George Kunz (78) supply the blocking. Hole 3 looks on.

Below, Dushney follows Winegardner to a four-yard gain on third-and-one at the Pitt 14 with 2:12 remaining.

If It Were a Fight...

By TERRY O'NEIL

If it were a fight, they would have stopped it in the middle of the second period and awarded the Irish a TKO.

The visiting Pittsburgh Panthers, college football's longest continuous doormat, absorbed a 56-7 drubbing from Notre Dame Saturday. Only the humanitarian decisions of Ara Parseghian averted sheer humiliation for the Panthers.

In the first half, ND scored every time it had the ball and one time when it didn't (on Eric Norm's safety). The intermission count was 49-0.

But at halftime, Parseghian made a pair of charitable moves. He told quarterback Bob "Brick" Belden not to pass again and agreed with referee Howard Wirtz and Pitt coach Dave Hart to play the second half according to "running time." Neither an out-of-bounds run nor an incomplete pass stopped the clock. The umpire started it ticking as soon as the ball was marked ready for play.

For that reason, the game actually wasn't as close as 56-7, if, indeed, that tally indicates any type of proximity. Halftime statistics are a better gauge of the teams' relative strengths:

First Downs
ND Pitt
Rushing attempts 23 22
Rushing attempts on first downs 13 12
Net yards rushing 227 8
Pass attempts 11 9
Passes completed 8 4
Net yards passing 172 24
Touchdowns 5 4
Safety 0 0
Score 49 0

More amazing were first quarter stats. Pitt ran 13 offensive plays for one first down, minus three yards net and no points. The Irish, meanwhile, ripped off 26 plays for 10 first downs, 215 yards net and 23 points.

Prime mover in the Irish first-half attack was quarterback Joe Theismann, substituting for the injured Terry Hanratty (see Irish Eye). Theismann completed seven of 10 passes for 153 yards and two touchdowns, besides running six times for 38 yards and two more TDs.

"He's a sharp guppy, gambling kid," Parseghian said of the sophomore signal-caller. I only wish he'd pick up some weight. He's 160 pounds, but real durable. We've had him on punt returns all year and he's taken some good shots. But he's not afraid to go get the ball. Joe's got a real positiveness.

TD T108175---Only Irish injuries of the day were suffered by Scott Hempel and Steve Lamberti. They have severe cases of leg-weaness. It was a big game for those reserves who hope to log enough time to earn a monogram this season. The starting offense departed at 3:12 of the second period, starting defense at 12:19 of the fourth period. With the "fast clock" employed, the second half consumed only 52 minutes of actual time.

Including defensive tackle Bruce Harkiewicz, who broke an ankle in the first period, Pitt has had 14 of its 22 starters injured some time or another this season....

Pitt publicist Dean Billick says Dave Hart will get the axe at the end of this season. "He's got one year to go on a four-year contract, but I don't think he'll survive it," says Billick. "We can't go on with this stuff. Sure we have some kids hurt, but the ones out there aren't delivering any blows. They're not blocking or tackling." At least one Panther says Hart will be back next year, but he'll have a new staff of assistants.

Irish and Panther players alike suspect a pre-game conference between Hart and Parseghian. To fix the score? No. To promote the barbering trade. Last week, Ara insisted that his boys shorten the scissors and cut the hair to a moderate length. Friday night in the Elkhart Hotel, Hart issued that identical directive.

Ripley's-Believe-It-Or-Not Department: Combined score of the last four Notre Dame-Pittsburgh football games (65-68) stands ND 203, Pitt 20.
