The disturbances were sparked by the dismissal of George Mason University President Robert R. Smith to reopen the campus. The demonstrators talked among themselves and sang several folk songs with guitar accompaniment. Gore also read a letter which he sent to the Dow recruiters. "All the help that France can expect from her international partners will double blindly be forthcoming," Couve said.

New Governmental Crisis In Italy

ROME (UPI) Italy headed yesterday night into a government crisis and its second big nationwide strike in five days.

By nightfall today the country may not even have a government. Premier Giovanni Leone has let it be known his five-month-old stopgap government will resign today or early Wednesday.

The latest strike, which follows a walkout last Thursday by several million industrial and farm workers, was called to push demands for pay raises the government promised and delayed, and a better health insurance system.

Couve Says Franc Needs Help Badly

PARIS (UPI).- Premier Maurice Couve de Murville said yesterday night help from France's Western partners would save the franc from devaluation.

"The crisis has been sparked by an absolutely unbridled and even unbridled speculative wave based on hopes for a readjustment of the West German Deutsch mark," Couve said in a nationwide radio and television speech which ended days of rumors that the franc would be scaled down from its current value of 5.75 francs to the dollar. The demonstrators carried an American flag in front of them on their march across campus and several of them chanted, "Dow shall not kill." They kicked the American flag to the wall on the floor as well as several other placards.

Week-long Demonstrations against the Dow Chemical Company and the CIA

Almost 50 students and several faculty members, including English Professor Peter Michelson, joined organizer Gregory Gore in the march up the front steps of the Administration Building and into the center of the second floor hall in front of the Placement Services office where the interviews are taking place. The demonstrators talked among themselves and sang several folk songs with guitar accompaniment. Gore and other protest leaders set up a table at the demonstration site and encouraged the protestors to be quiet and orderly.

There is a group of students who are being discriminated against at Notre Dame in a very definite way. This oppression is directed at a minority which was lured to the University by misleading images fostered by various groups for a variety of reasons. As a matter of fact, the images not only are inaccurate; they are in direct contrast to what part of the truth about Notre Dame really is.

The best example of the blatantly unfair and prejudicial practices of which I speak is the overmodest theology requirement for all Notre Dame undergraduate students. The requirement is odious on the grounds that it often compels students to take courses which impose upon the individual's freedom of conscience. Recognizing as it does, that students labelled as "minority" are being lured to the University by outmoded theology requirement for all Notre Dame students.

The Agency's secret air force merits further attention for its support of rightist forces in the Guatemalan civil war, in the form of Pigs invasion which four American pilots were lost. Cuban pilots flew most of the missions, however. Still, to have been trained at an isolated site in what must have been accepted as more serious by the day that the Party plans to help continue the air drops in Burma. Once upon a time a girl named Impatience attended an all girls' Catholic high school. Not a brain nor even teacher's favorite, she found herself on the Honor Roll every semester. Impatience knew that something was rotten in education. When she was accepted at SMC, Impatience was relieved - she had not applied to any other school. She kissed her hometown honey, Stability, goodbye and embarked for South Bend.

The freshman year was like one long excedrin headache. Impatience really thought she was in her own right at St. Mary's but student power was blossoming. But somehow the overall conservative viewpoint held sway. Impatience threw herself into her studies and did not make the Dean's List. She wanted desperately to quit school and join the Peace Corps. Impatience and Stability wrote on and off for two years. Eventually they broke up. He married a girl named Pacifid. Junior year, Impatience ran for Academic Commissioner - and lost. A lot of kids thought her ideas were too wild. Some faculty members feared she was a radical. Besides, academically she was just above average. She flunked. That year she dated two Notre Dame seniors, Never Satisfied and Steady Forcefulness. At first, she favored NS but she quickly tired of listening to his endless litany of complaints. SF was the most exciting person she had ever met. They were married quietly in the Log Chapel following her graduation. He completed his doctorate at ND and taught there. They went to all the football games they could. They strove in their own ways to improve the university community. Eventually she received her Master's Degree. They were popular with most people and their children respected them.

When he died at age sixty-two, Impatience set up a scholarship fund at Notre Dame in his name. She asked people to make contributions to this purpose, explaining proudly and lovingly that he had always helped active thinkers get into the university. And when she died, ten years later, her children set up a scholarship fund in her name at St. Mary's. And she was remembered for a long while.

Sincerely,

"America, America, God shed his grace on thee. And crown thy good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea." Thus sang everyone at the beginning ceremonies of the Georgia Tech game. After that they joined in the National Anthem, these citizens of "the land of the free and the home of the brave". The only thing disturbing this scene was what occurred previous to the singing. A group of black students paraded around the field bearing signs with various questions directed to the coaching staff. This angered a great many students from The Great Catholic University to the point that said students began hooting, shaking their fists, and performing assorted derogatory activities toward the black students.

It was at this point that the contradiction between what we say (or sing) and what we do became visible. It seems at the very least ironic that we whites can in one breath boo, jeer, and hiss our black brothers and with the next breath sing about brotherhood in this country. My own reaction was to not say or yell anything during the demonstration, and to not sing America or the National Anthem. Instead I stood silently with bowed head and then proceeded to join in cheering and singing the "Victory March" at the appropriate times. I only wish I had had the courage of conviction to follow my first impulse and leave after the National Anthem was sung.

Perhaps we should amend the chorus of America to read "America, America, what has become of thee? For with each tide comes fratricide from sea to shining sea." I am beginning to feel that this (fratricide) is the ultimate end-product of our society.

Phone Calls Deluge NBC

NEW YORK (UPI) — Protesters telephone calls and telegrams poured into the National Broadcasting Co. NBC headquarters Monday because it cut off the clinching minutes of an American Football League game to telecast a dramatization of the Beatles.

A spokesman for the network said approximately 10,000 calls were received Monday night from viewers angered by the switch from the Oakland Raiders-New York Jets game in the Swiss Alps with 65 seconds of playing time yet to go. In that time Oakland scored two touchdowns to win by a score of 43-32.

Gladieux Co-leader In State

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Bob Gladieux of Notre Dame and Mike Wood of Anderson are tied for 1968 Indiana college football scoring honors because the title apparently won’t be decided until next week when the Irish invade Southern California.

Gladieux scored twice against Georgia Tech last Saturday, giving him 13 touchdowns and 78 points for the season to tie Wood (or Mike Woodard of Evansville, State or Michigan).

After a home-and-home series against Michigan State, the Notre Dame freshmen take on the Volunteers of Tennessee Saturday at 1100 PM in Notre Dame Stadium.

Coach Wally Moore's charges dominated each contest with the Spartans, but came out 1-0-1. Last Friday night, the teams battled to a 14-14 tie, following a crushing Irish victory 33-13 on Nov. 1. Coach Moore takes a career coaching record of 0-0-1 into Saturday's game.

Notre Dame's offense has been powered by a trio of hard-running backs: Bob Minnix, Andy Juff, and John Ciezskowski. Against the Spartans, Minnix picked up 74 yards and 22 points while catching an 8-yard touchdown pass. Huff ran 21-75 and Minnix, Andy Juff, and John Ciezskowski 13-42. Jim Yoder has keyed a relatively weak punt return game.

These are the characters who have caused great gobs of grief for The Observer sports staff. Martin Kuharich (left) won the Ex-Irish Pro tie-breaker contest Sunday night by identifying former ND and now Philadelphia Eagles' assistant coach Dick Stanfel. It wasn’t too tough for Martin because he’s a personal friend of Stanfel and had dinner with him just two weeks ago. Former ND and now Eagles' head mentor, is Martin’s uncle and Stanfel’s boss.

More than 90% of those who attended the tie-breaker session identified the picture of Stanfel as Joe Kuharich.

Tonight at room 18 Newland Science Hall, all those present Sunday, except Martin, can take a shot at another $25. Those whose last names begin with the letters A through L come at 9 p.m.; J through R at 9:15 p.m.; and S through Z at 9:30 p.m. Decision of the judges will be final.

Gladieux scored twice against Georgia Tech last Saturday, giving him 13 touchdowns and 78 points for the season to tie Wood (or Mike Woodard of Evansville, State or Michigan).

Keith Gerbers of Franklin held down third spot with 75 points on 10 touchdowns and 15 extra points and it’ll take quite an explosion for an defending state champ Lerry Keyes of Purdue to regain top honors. Keyes, the major college scoring champion last year with 114 points but not at full strength due to injuries the last few weeks, failed to score in the Boilermakers’ 9-0 win at Michigan State, leaving him tied for fourth place with Indiana State’s Bob Brumfield and Ron Funk of Earlham. Each has 66 points.

Of the three, only Furriss added to his total last weekend, scoring twice against Indiana Central.

Scott Hempel, Notre Dame’s stellar place kicker, was seventh with 57 points, including five field goals. Eighth was Jim Newton of Taylor with 54 points and Mike Woodard of Evansville, who did not play in his season finale against Murray State, and Steve Schmid of Indiana State were tied for ninth place with 52 points apiece.

Bowl Lineup

The lineup for the four major post-season bowl games was nearly finalized with a series of announcements yesterday. Here is how it looks:

Rose: Southern Cal vs. Ohio State or Michigan.
Sugar: Georgia vs. Arkansas or Texas.
Cotton: Tennessee vs. Arkansas or Texas.
Orange: Kansas vs. Penn State.

With the opening of Notre Dame’s initial varsity hockey season just a few days away, injuries have hit Coach Lefty Smith hard. Latest casualty is defensemen Jim Blaney (above) who dislocated his shoulder while practicing over last weekend. He is out for six weeks. Earlier this month, winger Steve Ferguson broke his collarbone and goalie Tim Berry still is sidelined with a broken leg he suffered last summer.
