Nebraska to Investigate Cheating

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) -- Officials at the University of Nebraska at Omaha said yesterday an investigation has been launched into a report that approximately 90 students cheated on a psychology test.

School officials said most of those involved were freshmen. If true, it would be the largest case of cheating discovered at the Omaha school.

A. Psychology Prof. Gordon Hansen said the alleged cheating occurred last Monday and Tuesday. He said none of the students involved on land concentrated their efforts Sunday to find any signs of a Coast Guard cutter and its crew, which sank Saturday night after colliding with a 40-foot Panamanian freighter in the marky waters south of the United States.

Three of the cutter's 20 crewmen were rescued before the White Alder sank to a depth estimated at 90 feet. Spokesmen said the freighter Helena, a 7,448 ton ship owned by a Panamanian company, "cut the Coast Guard cutter right in half" but was not damaged itself.

"I would not say there is no possibility of finding anyone else alive from the cutter, but we have looked everywhere and have not found a thing," Sheriff Bob Williams said. "I expect we will find all of them down in the hull line."

Russ-Czech Talks End in Kiev

MOSCOW (UPI) -- Societ and Czechoslovak leaders ended a two-day meeting yesterday in the Ukrainian city of Kiev, the official Tass news agency reported. A communism described the talks as "cordial, cordially and friendly."

Tass said the summit dealt with the "further development of cooperation" between the two countries but gave no details.

Prague diplomats Saturday had mentioned the possibility of a summit conference at which the Czechoslovaks would protest the distribution of the pro Soviet propaganda newspaper Zpravy in Russian occupied Czechoslovakia.

Tass said the Societ delegation at the Kiev summit included party chief Josef I. Brezek, Premier Alecse N. Longin and President Nikolai Podgornyi.

The Czechoslovaks were represented by party chief Alexander Dobek, President Ludwik Odoral and Premise Ondrej Cusak.

"The talks passed in a cordial atmosphere, in a cordially and friendly spirit," Tass said.

The two sides were expected to discuss arrangements for an extensive change in the Czechoslovak government in January when the nation becomes a two state federal republic.

Outside, approximately 100, half dozen students demonstrated against what one called, "the gardening and poor taste of Performance Maxims, of which this Mass is a part."

The students arrived at Gate 10 and began to picket at about 2:45, fifteen minutes before the ceremony was scheduled to start. "We chose Gate 10 in order that as many of the South side residents as possible could see us when they arrived," explained one demonstrator.

Some of the picketers carried a sign which said, "Performance Sacriligious," and "This Mass is a Circus."

About 10 minutes after they arrived, the protestors tried to enter the building and were forcibly barred by two soldiers.

When questioned regarding the incident, one of the solders said, "Those people are Communists. They have them at Columbia, and they have them at Berkeley, and now they're starting up here."

The orders were joined several minutes later by two St. Joseph County Sheriff's deputies. The deputies said that they had been given no orders.

Inside, Center officials and Security Director Artim Pears said that they had not anticipated a demonstration, but that the solders and deputies were acting on their own.

"I didn't give any orders like that," said Pears, "but I would have kept them out myself. A Mass is no place for a demonstration."

The Senior Christmas

The other night, while studying in my room, I turned down the record player and listened for a while to sounds from the hall outside. Besides the usual shouts and claps, it seemed many people were speaking of Christmas.

Throughout the campus, it seems, the dull resignation of parts of the long fall has been replaced by an excitement of anticipation of the coming vacation. I look back to my freshman year, as every evening we would have a checkoff ceremony on the big calendar in 225 Farley. Dave White would mark a giant "X" through another day and then pronounce the number of days remaining until the hour of liberation.

There was in those days a security in the present. We all had three more years of Notre Dame ahead of us. Looking back, I remember the long hours spent arguing with Howard Dooley, hours in which I doggedly espoused the cause of Young Americans for Freedom. It was 11:15 on a half-filmed Goldwaterday. On second floor Farley people bugged Richard Rosie about why he chose to come here instead of going to Harvard. In Cubang a favorite topic of conversation was "the crazy kid from Hawaii with no hair, Charlie Nau."

Needless to say, everything is changed now, even our outlooks towards the future. The prospect of leaving Notre Dame is uppermost in the minds of many. Even the most purist are unsure of where they are going and what they are going to do. Above all looms the prospect of being called upon to serve one's country, the service being to risk one's life and quite possibly die for Thieu and Ky.

Looking ahead with its extreme uncertainties and challenges not that much fun, and a realization which comes over you makes it a rather unpleasant business. Regardless of what I may say in this column or what Richard Rosie may say to his friends, a feeling has developed for this university. This affection is best manifested in the bonds of friendship which we have developed while here. Many have built an existence on love and friendship, on close friends and perhaps an equal number of faculty. This existence is going to be shattered with the coming of June. Whereas we are now tightly knitted little groups we will soon be radically separated.

The realizations which come over one as he fills out his applications or thinks of what he will be doing a year from now lead to different reactions. One friend of mine sees himself as growing away from people. Another says he is beginning to feel his life, as 1 sec it, is a time of finding yourself. I have always thought of Christmas as both a joyous time of reflection and a realization. Every single year has provided a different outlook.

Looking back, I think of the times I have spent in class, in the dining hall, hanging around after class discussions, playing cards in a dorm room, tailgating at football games, meeting people, being involved in campus life, being close to my friends, etc. All of these experiences were completely involved with the university. This life has been characterized by its particular uniqueness and by the opportunity to relax. Our existence beyond June, in contrast, is anything but certain and in a society which is anything but self-contained.

Thus the Senior Christmas, as I see it, is a time of finding direction. We shall probably attend more parties than on any other holiday. We will smile bravely as we meet elderly relatives, and grimace as parents throw up the usual barrage of "What are you going to do with yourself?" inquiries. However, all the while we are going to be thinking of what lies ahead and in which direction we will be headed as the Golden Dome and its icon fade into the distance.

US Ships Enter Black Sea

ISTANBUL (UPI) Two U.S. destroyers passed through the Dardennels yesterday on route to the Black Sea in an apparent reply to the Soviet naval buildup in the area.

The Soviets have called the voyage of the USS Turner and Dyess a provocative move, but the U.S. 6th Fleet has maintained the vessels are on "routine operations" in the sea the Russians largely regard as their own.

The Black Sea borders the Soviet Union for about 1,000 miles. At the American vessels left the Dardennels separating Europe and Asia at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and moved into the Sea of Marmara, the Russian press once again opened up with a barrage of criticism.

The government newspaper Izvestia called the ships "unwelcome guests" which are violating the 1936 treaty covering foreign military vessels in the Black Sea.

Izvestia said that because the United States was "in a state of war" in Vietnam, it could not legally send ships into the sea.

Naval incursions in to the sea are regulated by the Montreux Convention, signed 37 years ago by several countries, but not by the United States. However, it has abided by the treaty's rules which limit total tonnage of foreign ships in the Black Sea and the size of the guns they may carry.

While 6th Fleet headquarters in Naples, Italy, declined to release details of the destroyers' mission, observers saw the voyage as a carefully calculated allied reply to the Soviet naval buildup in the Mediterranean after the Middle East was 18 month ago. Until that time the sea had been dominated by the American navy.

Izvestia's contention that warships violated the Montreux Convention because the United States was in Vietnam differed from earlier Soviet contentions advisory board which never compared the white society as a "snakes -the George Wallace and the non-poisonous snakes the Father Groppis."

The realizations which come over one as he fills out his applications or thinks of what he will be doing a year from now lead to different reactions. One friend of mine sees himself as growing away from people. Another says he is beginning to feel his life, as 1 sec it, is a time of finding yourself. Preminger on Preminger...and Films

It was a very funny film and a half Sunday evening when the famous film producer and director Otto Preminger spoke in the library auditorium. Appearing in turtle-neck and sports jacket, he told a lively crowd, "If it's true giving lectures, but it's not that I'm afraid of getting bored, but for fear of boring you." The initial remark opened the way for a question period which proved his strategy highly successful.

He was asked what he thought of his own movies, to which he replied, "Any movie I've ever made, when it was finished, I always thought I could do it better. But I never did make a movie because it has some of my personality in it." Someone asked him about his experiences taking mind-expanding drugs and he quickly responded, "I wouldn't do it again. I don't think I should try it again." He explained how he took the drugs because there was little danger in that kind of experience for him, as he did not plan to have many more children and also because of his age.

Of the drugs' effects, he said, "You really stand next to yourself...although I have never had the feeling of being different or it then again." On the subject of underground movies, he stated, "I think everything done in experimentation is helpful for the whole situation...the fact that there is something new or unconventional has helped me on my own work." When asked if he thought a film should be faithful to the book, he replied, "I am only against censorship from the outside. I think that freedom of expression is one of the precious rights we have, and it is our duty to fight censorship." Not that some films couldn't use some cutting, he explained, but the right infringed upon is the issue.

Someone asked him what he thought of the increased frequency of nudity in films. "It is a free country with a free capitalist competitive system. It is not to help to complain about it. If people don't buy it, people won't make it...I am very much for nudity if it is meaningful. But for doing it just for the sake of nudity and shock effect it won't." Preminger couldn't predict whether the public would become saturated with nudity and sex on the screen, saying that some people enjoy it repeatedly and others grow tired of it quickly.

He was asked "What is your definition of a star?" He replied "A star is not necessarily a great actor or actress. For instance, Marilyn Monroe was not a star, but she had something that aroused a motherly feeling in you." He also said that Clark Gable as someone who didn't give a good performance, but was someone to see because of his matinee idolism.

He spoke about the Academy Awards as good things, but stated that the financial need was not any indication of the excellence of the actors or actresses.

Help Asked for Chicago Project

A Chicago Christmas program is currently being put together, and is being organized by many student and teacher participants. Executive Secretary of the Chicago Teachers Federation Bob Keeley is throwing a Christmas Party mainly for poor and sixth grade students of the city's Parochial Schools. He has made an appeal in a letter to all Notre Dame and St. Mary's students to give a small gift.

The primary idea of the program is not the Christmas party itself, but rather an attempt to bring divided black and white teachers in the parochial schools together to effect a working understanding. Part of the reason this inner-city project has sprung up is a result of the threatened closing of all Chicago Catholic grade schools by the Bishop. The schools have been steadily losing large amounts of money, and the racial rift between the city teachers has not helped the matter.

Presidents Ready Report for SLC

Members of the Hall Presidents' Council met last night in the student center amphitheater to discuss a report to be presented before the Student Life Council Sunday, January 5. The report, a joint effort of the HPC and SLC, includes the present status of hall life and gives recommendations for an ideal hall community.

The report states that Notre Dame is becoming more of an institution than a community because it has failed to realize the need for small communities within the university structure and therefore the need for hall autonomy.

The report requests that each hall be permitted to formulate its own rules which must, however, be reviewed by a board composed of three students, one faculty member, and one administration official.

Also stressed in the report is the need for the roles of the resident prefects, and hallwatchmen to be defined. Phil McKenna, chairman of the HPC said that he and Jim Smith of St. Ed's, Barney King of Lyons, Dave Ryan of Badin, Tim Mahoney of Keenan, and Larry Looby, Student Life Commissioner, would present the report to the SLC.

Prior to the discussion of the report, Dick Ott of The Blue Circle solicited the presidents' help in collecting money to buy Christmas presents for South Bend's underprivileged children. Ott said, "The Observer and WSND have been pushing this project and we are asking for your support also."

Ott suggested that the presidents have their section leaders meet with the residents, explain the situation to them, and then ask for donations. Ott requested that the money be turned into this project by him tonight.

McKenna and Chris Mardolf of Howard then asked for student support in holding Christmas parties for underprivileged children in Chicago on December 19 and 20. The parties are to be sponsored by the Archdiocesan Teachers Federation of Chicago. They will be held in ten inner-city elementary schools for colored, Puerto Rican, and white children.

Mardolf said, "We need money but we also need participation. We need to care, to be interested." He asked that anyone wishing to help contact him.

By TERRY O'NEIL

Before Saturday's Notre Dame-UCLA basketball game, it was obvious that the Irish game plan must necessarily include: 1) Stop effective fast break. 2) A hot shooting night. 3) Lot of prayers.

Johnny Dee had all three in mind as he prepared for the game. Dee is a fundamentalist, not just a guy who would spend endless, sleepless nights dreaming up a magical defense to stop Lew Alcindor and his No. 1 teammates.

When Dee said, "We're just going to play basketball," he meant it. His boys had run well and shot well in a series of pre-season exhibitions; he hoped they could continue.

There were some problems, though. Forward Bob Arzen was still suffering from tendonitis in his Achilles tendon. He wasn't jumping or shooting well "in practice, but Dee said, "In a game like this, you have to go with your best and Arzen's our best in that situation."

The biggest problem was Alcindor. But Dee believes firmly in the man-to-man defense so he sent out his best, Sid Carr. Alcindor blocked five shots Saturday, but not this time. Carr continued.

"That's 54%, a phenomenal average considering that most of the shots came from outside. The Irish got only four first-half hoops from close range. They had been beaten barely on the boards, 29 rebounds to 27, and still they were five points behind.

At the outset of the second half, ND made a few mistakes--nothing really that bad--but the Bruins took advantage and blew it open, outscoring the Irish 14-4 following the top.

Dee summed it up: "We just went dry a couple minutes. You expect it to happen in any game. It happens to all teams. But do it against these guys and it'll kill you."

Furthermore, the Irish running game, sporadic in the first half, stopped completely after intermission. "A fast break starts with a rebound," said Dee. "How do you run when you can't get it off the board?"

Kenny, UCLA guard, also had a comment on the game's elaborate pace. "We were ready for it," he said. "Willie Naishi (former Bruin) came into our practice the other day and told us (Austin) Carr was another Lucius Allen, except bigger and stronger. Willie saw him in Chicago last year."

"Coach told us that if Carr tried to run we, better be back there two men waiting for him. So we hustled back all the time."

"Actually, we would have liked to run more ourselves. Bill Sweek and myself tried to get Carr and (Tom) Sinnott tired in the first half. Then Terry Schofield and Don Saffer came in. They're a little quicker than Bill and myself and they got a couple breakaway baskets," Heath explained.

"We have 12 good men and we use all of them. That way everybody's fresh. Our best guard, John Vallety, is back in L.A. with the flu. But the rest of us all saw a lot of action," Kenny continued. "That's what makes us so good."

"You're right about that," Heath grinned. "Nothing human can stay with Lew Alcindor one-on-one. I don't know what the man (Dee) was thinking a bout when he assigned just one man to him."

"North Carolina tried that same thing against us last year (with strong 6-11 postman Rusty Clark) and Lew destroyed him. Since he's been in college, this is the first time he's been under 35 points against a straight man-to-man defense."

Yeah, Kenny, but what happens when you gang up on Lew? "Well, we got a lot of other shooters on this team and if you have two men on Lew, that means somebody else is open," Carr said. "Can't take him one on one 'cause he's too big... can't gang up on him cause the rest of 'em will come... can't run against 'em cause you can't get it off the board... can't shoot inside against 'em cause he'll block your shots... can't press 'em cause they'll throw him a high lob pass at about mid-court.
