Hesburgh gives disruption penalties
SMC students hear Mr. McGrath on dismissals

University President issues statement
On protest activities and limitations

University President Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, CSC, stated yesterday that students, faculty and others who involve themselves in protest activities which infringe upon the rights of others will face immediate suspension, expulsion and action by civil authorities.

"In an eight-page letter to the University community, Hesburgh specifically explained what steps will be taken against "anyone or any group that substitutes force for rational persuasion, be it violent or nonviolent." Such a group "will be given fifteen minutes of medication to cease and depart. They will not be, by their actions, going counter to the overwhelming conviction of this community as to what is proper here. If they do not within that time period cease and desist, they will be asked for their identity cards. Those who produce these will be notified of expulsion from the University and will be charged according to lesburgh."

"The decision on whether University operations have been impeded or rights have been violated will be made by the Dean of Students." The decision is not to be members of the community and will be followed by trespassing and disturbing the peace on private property and treated accordingly by the law."

Yoor decides against indictment

St. Joe's County Prosecutor William H. Yoor, Jr. announced yesterday that there was no action against the Grand Jury meeting in regard to the recent seizure of an allegedly pornographic film.

"It is decided not to bring the case at all," said Yoor, "so there will be no indictment, at least in the near future." (continued on page 6)

"It is decided not to bring the case at all," said Yoor, "so there will be no indictment, at least in the near future."

The Student Life Council met last night in the Center for Continuing Education to discuss the Hall Life subcommittee's report.

"Before this, however, the question arose as to who had the authority to call the Student Life Council into emergency session. It was noted that a meeting could be called by either the President of the University, the chairman of the SLC, or a petition of three members of the Council. Discussion of the matter will be continued at the next meeting."

"The letter went further, Aler notification of suspension, or trespass, in the case of non-community members, if there is not within five minutes a movement to cease and desist, students will be notified of expulsion from this community and the law will deal with them as non-students."

The letter emphasized that the law enforcement is not directed against students. "Only after this clear opportunity to remain in student status, if they still insist on resisting the will of the community, are they then expelled and become non-students to be treated as other non-students, or outsiders.

"Hesburgh further stated, "We can have a thousand resolutions to do this, but it is the kind of solution that we want, but when lawlessness is, in fact, all authority is flouted, that the administration, and student, then we invoke the normal special forces of law that we allow the university to die beneath our hapless and helpless gaze. I have no intention of presiding over such a spectacle; too many people have given too much of themselves and their lives to this University to let this happen here. Without being melodramatic, if this conviction makes this my last will and testament to Notre Dame, so be it."

"There seems to be a current fact that university members are not responsible to the law, and that somehow law is the enemy, particularly those who have any cause to use up and enforce the law. I would like to insist here that all parents are responsible to the laws of the University community and to all of the laws of the land. There is no other guarantee of civilization versus the jungle or mob rule, here or elsewhere."

"Further on the letter, if someone invades your home, do you dialogue with him or call the law? Without the law, the university is a sitting duck for all those who want to do evil."

"The decision on whether University operations have been impeded or rights have been violated will be made by the Dean of Students."

Federal law ends aid

An administrative official of the U.S. Office of Education has announced that the Office of Education is now trying to determine means of enforcing a new law which requires state colleges and universities to discontinue federal aid to students involved in campus disruptions.

The law is actually a part of an education bill passed last fall, but enforcement of the law is still being considered.

Herman Allen, director of the Office for Higher Education, said that the individual colleges and universities must determine which students are in violation of the law. He does not feel the law is a "dead letter," but was unable to say exactly when enforcement of the law would begin.

Fr. James Ruthe, C.S.C., Dean of Students, said that since the law applies to state institutions which receive support from public taxation, Notre Dame, as a private institution, would not be affected by such a law. However, Fr. Ruthe said that in another Notre Dame is moving in the direction of being considered a public institution because of the number of students who have received federal aid from the government, but at present does not come under this law.

Currently the Wisconsin State Assembly is in reaction to the disruption on the Wisconsin University Campus is considering a similar bill for approval. Edward M. McManus, state executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said that a hearing be held before giving approval to such a bill. According to Mr. McManus, the Wisconsin Senate "pushed this bill through without a hearing, although one had been scheduled."

"Legislation of this magnitude should be given calm and careful consideration and not be railroaded through the legislature in the excitement of the moment," McManus said.

Conference On racism

The Committee on White Racism will present a week-long conference, February 23-27, on White Racism. The conference, entitled "WAR: War Against Racism," will consist of lectures, movies, and small group discussions.

The Committee is made up of the twelve Notre Dame delegates to the National Student Association's White Racism Conference held at Notre Dame during the Thanksgiving holidays, and is chaired by Phil McKenna.

McKenna said last night of the conference's purpose: "We want to make the students aware of White Racism on both the Campus and in the Society."

The tentative speakers for the Conference include Rev. Jesse Jackson, the head of Operation Bread Basket, Father Groppi, from Milwaukee, and Mrs. Alice Nixon, an expert on Negro Folklore. Four workers from the Chicago ghetto will also speak.

The last day of the conference will be devoted especially to Racism at Notre Dame.

McKenna also said, "We would like to see that the students take what they have learned at the conference and put it into action."

Pope warns of 'very grave error'

VAUGHAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI warned yesterday that priests who want to marry or enter into other aspects of ordinary human life have fallen into a "very grave error" that can paralyze the Church's mission.

The Pope delivered his warning in a speech to the Italian Federal Assembly. It came as pressures for ending priestly celibacy are mounting in various parts of the world, especially Holland, and have even been raised in Italy in recent weeks.

The Pope made clear he was not concerned only with the celibacy question but with the broader problem of priests seeking to take up a life like their own as a means of making contact with modern society.

Witnesses tell how they fought mob

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two witnesses told yesterday how they fought off a frenzied crowd crazed and screaming to get at Sirhan B. Sirhan and take vengeance for the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Gigantic former football player Roosevelt Grier and Jess M. Unruh said they did not want to see the end of an allied lunar new year ceasefire. Shock waves from the blasts rolled across the capital.

The U.S. commander said eight Americans were killed and 71 wounded in 12 Communist violations of the truce that included a large-scale Communist mine outbreak in South Vietnam's northern reaches. Overall, spokesmen said allied forces killed 96 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Communists.

The 852 squadrons ranged over thick jungles 31 miles northeast of Saigon at 6:20 p.m. Monday and unloaded their canoes of 500 pound and 750 pound bombs on targets pinpointed by American artillery units trying to present a Communist Tet offensive.

B-52 bombers raid Cong strongholds

SARGON (UPI) — U.S. Air Force B-52 jets bombed Viet Cong strongholds in jungles near Saigon yesterday night 20 minutes after the end of an allied lunar new year cease fire. Shock waves from the blasts rolled across the capital.

Nixon and Dobrynin confer in capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Soviet Ambassador Anatoli Dobrynin conferred for the first time yesterday at the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

The meeting lasted an hour and a half. It was held in the Oval Office.

"All I can say is that the meeting lasted one hour and it was a very constructive meeting," reported White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler.

He declined to say if it was more than courteous, traditionally made between new Presidents and foreign ambassadors.

In the course of the session in the President's oval office president promised speculation that the two probably discussed such major problems as the Middle East crisis, U.S. Russian disarmament talks and possibilities of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Israelis raid Jordanian emplacements

MIDEAST (UPI) — Israeli jet fighters swept into Jordan yesterday and attacked Arab garrison positions on the east bank of the Jordan River cease fire line. New Arab violence erupted in occupied Gaza, and Cairo reports told of mounting fears of Israeli reprisal raids across the Suez Canal truce line with Egypt.

Official Israeli spokesmen said jet fighters went into action against Arab snipers concealing in vegetation along the east bank of the Jordan River after guerrillas attacked an Israeli patrol on the west bank with hunloka rockets. The Israelis suffered no casualties, they said.

The Letter

Yesterday University President Father Hesburgh attempted to lay down specific guidelines by which to control right-infringing protests. We were dismayed that the statement was not made in concurrence with the Student Life Council. We were under the impression, evidently mistaken, that the SLC was created just for such purposes. Two months ago the SLC passed a resolution supporting the general policy of the Student Manual and went so far as to form a subcommittee to consider the possibility of a statement similar to Hesburgh's. Nothing has come of it. We submit that the SLC is ignoring its responsibilities and defeating the purpose of its existence. And Father Hesburgh is ignoring the SLC by merely reading the "core" of it to the SLC without asking for their formulation.

While we realize the need for a definitive set of guidelines to govern such situations as the Dow-CIA demonstration and the recent pornography conference incidents, we further submit that Father Hesburgh's formulations are not feasible. Demonstrators and the circumstances surrounding them are loosely structured and it is rarely possible to apply a set of time limits such as 15 and 20 minutes for suspension and expulsion. The uproar of a demonstration simply makes it impossible.

We further question the relationship of the Campus Judicial Board with the Dean of Students in the context of such a situation as the Dow-CIA demonstration and the recent pornography conference incidents. We further submit that Father Hesburgh's formulations are not feasible. Demonstrators and the circumstances surrounding them are loosely structured and it is rarely possible to apply a set of time limits such as 15 and 20 minutes for suspension and expulsion. The uproar of a demonstration simply makes it impossible.

The most central question here is not that a set of guidelines need be made but by whom should they be made. We urge Father Hesburgh to include the Student Life Council on decisions of which it is rightly entitled to make and we demand, again, that the SLC begin making the decisions expected of it and not dismiss its responsibility to Father Hesburgh. Its indecision has succeeded in bringing about the unilateralism its creation was supposed to eliminate.

The week in the news

Aside from the amusement provided by two girls from St. Mary's who wrote a letter to the OBSERVER describing Notre Dame as terrors almost as childish as those used by an OBSERVER columnist in describing St. Mary's ("Notre Dame jocks say 'duh.'" "St. Mary's girls say 'duh.'" "Naah, naah, naah.") and the further amusement provided by the OBSERVER editor's assumption that if he rescued someone from the final deluge that person would in effect be granted salvation, this has been a quiet week.

The teacher-dismissal crisis at St. Mary's was substantially aided by girls wearing red construction paper hearts on Valentine's Day. Without being melodramatic, if this conviction makes this possible to apply it to the SLC without asking for their formulation.

As a point of curiosity it is interesting to read the sentence of the statement, "Without being melodramatic, if this conviction makes this impossible."

ND Sports: Who sits on the fifty, and why

by Tim O'Malia

Second in a five-part series

There has been much discussion among the freshmen and sophomores since basketball season began, or more appropriately, complaining, about the seating arrangements at the Athletic and Convocation centers.

The underclassmen are seated in the bleachers beyond the regular seats while the juniors, seniors, and seniors located in the plush, individual seating of the lower arena.

But what has been a great source of consternation to the whole of the student body is that the great majority of it has been seated behind the basket, which according to some, is more euphemistic than transparent.

The man most directly responsible for determining the seating priorities at football, basketball and all events at the Convocation Center is Ticket Manager Robert M. Cahill, now in his 24th year in that position. Inevitably Cahill receives complaints from the student body at least once a year which require a conference with the Student Body President to resolve. Truly, if any policies changes made a result of these consultations.

Cahill recommends distribution policy to University President Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, CSC, who makes the final decisions. Everybody parents, alumni, students, and visiting teams complain about the dearth of seats and their location. Determining seating priority is a thankless job at best.

The question is: if the University doesn't want on its students, why do they not sit at mid-court and on the 50 yard line? "We feel our first obligation is to the students, but you have to take other factors into account. The situation changes, they change," said Joyce.

If the student wanted to sit somewhere else, he could purchase a season ticket like most of the people.

The seating was discussed at an ad hoc committee meeting in February of last year and Cahill later met with the Student Body President Richard Rossie and Student Union President Richard Rembech to determine seating priorities within the prescribed area designated for students.

Cahill also explained the reason why students were required to pay $12 for their season basketball ticket while they pay nothing for football. "Rather than have the basketball ticket price in the student's tuition we did it wouldn't be fair to make kids who didn't want to see the games pay for them. So we made it optional. We gave the student body the information that we would hold 3,500 seats for them. We actually held about a thousand more than that."

Further Cahill said that the ushers are not particular about requiring ID cards, and that no care if you give your ticket to your roommate, but we don't want non-students sitting in those seats."

Joyce explained the monetary implications of suggesting the students. "The reason for that was problems with the new building. We want to make the building self-supporting, like we hope to do with the ice rink. It's only proper that those who use the rink pay a modest sum."

"The small income we receive from the students for basketball tickets helps. And as many tickets as we can allocate and in both directions for free then scarcely one-half of the crowd would be paying any substantial sum for the games. The building wouldn't have a chance to support itself. And the students occupied the most desirable seats season ticket sales for the least advantageous vantage points would, probably fall considerably."

Sure, not the case in football however, where every home game is a sellout. Cahill, however, believes that revenue would still be lost if the students were seated on the 50-yard line and extended in both directions. "For some games we would still allocate tickets, but not for all games. Besides you couldn't do it. It wouldn't be fair. How would you like it if you had been buying a season ticket for 30 years and then found out you were going to have to move to a worse seat. We are trying to take care of the Notre Dame family with as many tickets as we can allocate and in the best vantage points for each group."

Joyce voiced his concern about displacing loyal season ticket holders. "Besides the way the student body has been acting at the games the past few years, I'd be ashamed to have them sit on the 50."

The trouble with The Subject Was Roses

by Tom Embarr

It reminds one of Long Day's Journey Into Night, e.g., explosive, possessive, programmatic love that can only be ended in the intimacy of day-to-day marital life. While Patricia Neal and Jack Albertson are at Taylor and Burton, and while the script is weaker, The Subject Was Roses is unmistakably the same line all over again.

The story line hangs together and snap: one incident carefully juxtaposed after another, a heightening of intensity, a blood groping for some resolution that never really comes. It opens with a "Home" party for a 21 year old son returning from a war that has changed half the world, but hasn't touched the old tensions and inadequacies of his parents. And then the three of them husband, wife, and son move out. However, all are trapped within their own narrowness and selfishness, yet all try to piece together some form of harmony and peace.

The trouble is tinted by his impoverished childhood, I.S. severe singing career, his later days of dazzling success. The wife has been hung up on an unnatural love that has decayed into despite and narrowness and selfishness, yet all try to piece together some form of harmony and peace.

Hesburgh allows fifteen minutes of meditation

Also in the letter the University president stated, "I believe that I now have a clear mandate from this University community (to see that 1) our lines of communication between all segments of the community are kept as open as possible, with all legitimate means of communicating dissent assured, expanded, and protected; 2) civility and rationality are maintained as the most legitimate means of dissent within the academic community, and 3) violation of other rights or obstruction of the life of the University are outlawed as illegitimate means of dissent in this kind of open society. Violence was especially deplored as a violation of everything that the University community stands for."

He concluded with, "I truly believe that we are about to witness a revolution on the part of legislatures, state and national, benefactors, parents, alumni, and the general public for much that is happening in higher education today. If I read the signs of the times correctly, this may well lead to a suppression of the liberty and autonomy that are the lifeblood of a university community. It may well lead to a rebirth of fascism, unless we ourselves are ready to take a stand for what is right for us."

Kelly to head South Bend Pres. comm.

The formation of a Special Presidential Committee to bring South Bend area university students into contact with the total South Bend community was announced by Richard Rossie today.

Headed by Pat Kelly, the Committee's Notre Dame members include Mike Shaughnessy, Thomas Booker, Stephen Gable, John Wilson, Rich Moran, Dan Wegrooki, Thomas Novek, and Bill Richardson. Contact will be made with the other south Bend universities within 3 weeks to set up "an inter-college board for community relations."

Rossie said that the Committee is intended to "end the attitude of student apathy to what goes on around us in the community as a whole" and the "traditional animosity" of South Bend residents to Notre Dame students.

Rossie mentioned the United Health Fund, The Neighborhood Study Help Program, and labor relations as particular service projects that the committee would deal with.

Petition

The petition signed by over six hundred students in the wake of the conference on Pornography and Censorship will be used by the students' bargaining committee in their dealings with the Student Life Council, said committee member David Kahn yesterday. The petition, was drawn up by a group of "concerned students" and circulated to the dining halls to protest the actions of the Administration and the Student Government in withdrawing their support of the Conference. It is now in the hands of the negotiating committee formed at the LaFortune Student Center protest meeting two weeks ago.

Professor John Houck, in getting back to the issue at hand, pleaded with the Council not to "perpetuate outdated symbols" in reference to student-coed relations. He stated that we "have to find new symbols" in dealing with parietal hours. Professor Edward Murphy felt the real issue at hand was the allowing of "fornication and adultery" on University grounds.

Gregory Scott took issue with this saying the question of parietal hours was not one of moral standards but of whether the University was giving its students as broad an education as possible, especially concerning productive and responsible relations with the opposite sex.

The discussion continued in this vein until 6:00, at which time the Council adjourned until next Monday at 4:00, at which time they will either accept or reject the report.

Five get Wilson Fellowships

It was announced yesterday that five Notre Dame seniors have been named as recipients of coveted Woodrow Wilson Fellowships granted annually by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

The five seniors are: Michael P. Anderson, majoring in Electrical Engineering; Leif, Colorado; Barry E. Breen, of Fort Lee, New Jersey; in English literature; William L. Cullen of North Plainfield, New Jersey, in comparative literature; David F. Kamer, of Cincinnati, Ohio, in Biochemistry; and Nour M. W. Y. Of Tel Aviv, Israel, in Political Science.

The Woodrow Wilson Fellowship provides full fellowship awards to the 1,106 finalists in the national competition. Prior to 1968, the foundation made all the fellowship awards itself, with the help of funds from the Ford Foundation.

Smc President

Msgr. McGrath canvassed his faculty members about the acceptance of his nomination for the position of President of the University. This involvement of the faculty is a first in the history of the University. Msgr. McGrath expressed his willingness to listen to the suggestions of interested students at any time.

The Student Body has submitted a petition to the University of Notre Dame, College of Business Administration. The petition states that the draft is to be put as soon as possible. The Chairman of the committee is Mike Kelly, Chairman of the Notre Dame Young Republicans, Co-chairman of the committee is Armand Gelinas, Chairman of the Student Action Party, Richard J. Hunter, Chairman of the Notre Dame Young Democrats, Robert J. Narutis, Chairman of the Notre Dame Young Americans for Freedom. The petition will be circulated in the Notre Dame and St. Mary's dining hall Thursday and Friday nights and will be circulated in the halls and off-campus office for a week thereafter.

Irish don't take any bull - dog at Butler

S o m e w h e r e a r o u n d

Indianaapolis, Indiana, hidden under a cloud, a somber field, Tony Hinkle has a secret laboratory. He built it 40 years ago, or more to the same time he began coaching the Butler Bulldogs.

Every fall, Hinkle takes fifteen or so Hoosiers who have been punched by the classical colleges and feeds them into his lab machinery. What comes out is a buffalo. (With the accent on the PLAYERS) capable of beating anyone, like New Mexico and Duke this year.

Last night, Hinkle was at it again down in Indianapolis in the fieldhouse named after him. His band of nobodies huddled, Notre Dame up and down the court until Bob Whitmore and Austin Carr stepped them away for a 94-90 Irish victory.

Butler entered the game with a 101-7 to 10-3 ratio of those losses coming to ND 76-73 on Jan. 9. The Bulldogs also played without regular center Clarence Harper, scholastically ineligible. Harper is the by-word around ND after two years of near-homestand at home. But during the January game, he scored 19 points, and his absence hurt Butler on the boards.

Balancing the ledger, note that Austin Carr did not play for the Red Sox in the first game. Austin's 28 points tied for him fame with Howard Whitmore. Hinkle had to play his best guard, Steve Norris (16.3 average) against Austin Norris in only 5.8.

At first half of last night's contest may act as a standard for "racehorse" basketball. Notre Dame led 21-33-49-64 from the field, while the Bulldogs weren't far behind at 53%. Butler got more than the hoop than the Irish due largely to the shocking total of 15 ND turnovers.

The Bulldogs couldn't find the slow play, but Irish annuls kept the game close at 18-18. The Irish then went on a drive which culminated in a 32-22 lead at 7:45. Tony's boys refused to leave the fieldhouse, however, and cut the deficit to 7:45.

At 2:15, Irish captain Bob Aranza was fouled. He missed the second attempt (ND missed only two the entire night), but was given a reprieve when Bulldog Scott Neat stepped in the lane too soon. When Neat dropped the call, he was slapped with a technical. Arnia converted the free throws, but Butler came back again to make it 46-45 with 0.45 on the clock.

Whitmore then took control to the end of the half. He hit for two, blinked a lay-up attempt and scored another bucket. The Irish left the floor leading 50-46, and that's 30 points and 15 minutes to go.

Whitmore had 15 points in the first twenty minutes and Carr added 13.

At the outset of the second half, Butler brought their brand of defense to protect the leads. Butler plays a control-type defense. It's all mental, sliding and picking all over the place until someone breaks free for a 15-foot jump shot. But give them an opening and they will come back. But they only had 3-0-2 and 2-0-1 breaks to take the lead 59-57 on Norris' three.

The Irish, especially Whitmore and Dwight Murphy cooled off, but managed to hold on the lead. Norris completed a 3-point play at 6:50 to give the Bulldogs their last advantage, 74-73. At this, Whitmore bestowed himself again and started wrecking havoc on defense and burned two five times on as many trips to ND pull away to a 90-84 advantage.

At 3:09, Whitmore tied a dozen more. Notre Dame helped the winning cause by committing only five second-half turnovers, one less than Butler. The Bulldogs paid the price by Bennett with 22 points, and got 17 such from Norris and Neat.

Besides the 56 markers split by Carr and Whitmore, ND was supported by 17 and Murphy with 13. Jack Meehan added seven for the second-half, and so did Collins Jones replacing Whitmore in the waning seconds.

In the race for the NCAA, Notre Dame stands 17-5, the Redskins are at 13-4. On Tuesday, Notre Dame will go to Dayton, Marquette is 17-4.

Ted is so-o-o rich

NEW YORK (UPI) - Ted Williams, one of the highest paid players of all time, automatically becomes the highest-paid manager of all time as soon as he writes his name on that Washington Senators' contract.

"Hopefully it should be within the next couple of days," says Washington owner Bob Short, who the man's shelling out all the heavy cabbage.

"I don't want to pinpoint one day," he'll sign and then invite a whole lot of questions if that day passes without his signing. Nothing has changed. We're very close."

Whenever day Williams does sign his name to a long term contract in that nest, small Palmerstonian possession of his, he'll get $100,000 a year base pay. That alone would make him the highest-paid manager ever. Casey Stengel never got quite that much but Williams will have another little goodie coming in the form of an option to but 10 per cent of the Senators' stock. Get some paper and pencil and you'll find that comes to $900,000.

You'll also find no other manager ever come close to a deal of this kind and that includes the late Connie Mack, who was the last manager owner in baseball and really one of a kind.

Short refuses to spell out the terms he has agreed to with Williams although he says he certainly wishes to pay him the same way he was paid as a player with the Boston Red Sox. Nobody in the club's history ever was paid better.

The Red Sox never said whether they paid Williams $150,000 a year or $125,000 but whichever it was, the figure made him high man of his time. Only two reach to that plateau since were Sandy Koufax and Joe Namath Mayals although Frank Robinson also comes close.

But Washington's offer "overwhelmed" Williams, a guy who isn't easily overwhelmed.

The Senators' terms certainly say something for Ted's enduring appeal. Control, we're in the middle of inflation, but who ever offered such men as Babe Ruth or Jack Dempsey a million dollar deal in the same field they came from eight in the club's history ever was paid better.

Williams, a guy who isn't easily overwhelmed. He's the kind who's shelling out all the heavy cabbage. He'll get what he wants. That alone would make him the highest-paid manager ever. Casey Stengel never got quite that much but Williams will have another little goodie coming in the form of an option to but 10 per cent of the Senators' stock.

"That's right," confers Short. "If I had taken no for an answer it would have never come to this. When I first talked to Ted, he knew what he wanted and the ball club he said, 'Bob, I know you and I'd like to help you. I will help you by seeing you and speaking with you from time to time, but ultimately you don't want to get into this.'"

Short persisted. He knew money alone wouldn't swing it because Williams is making $120,000 a year now working for San Snoots.

"He put it on it all over again. He told Williams how much he could contribute to a club like Washington and more than that, how much he could contribute to the country by coming to manage in a city like Washington which doesn't have the finest image in the world right now. Short was telling the truth. Williams knew he was in and in the end that was as much as a factor as the money.

"I've seen it written that I became interested in getting Ted Williams as soon as the Washington Redskins got Vince Lombardi," says Short. "That isn't true. I thought about a managerial change when I discussed buying the club. Once I took a good hard look I came to the conclusion the club needed a whole new face. As for a new manager, no matter how many names I put into the mix the two names that always came out on top were Williams and Dimaggio. I went from there, although most everybody I talked to all said the so-called experts-assumed me I had no chance to get Ted."

"Sort, at SI, is only a year or older than Williams. He identified with him growing up and can tell you what Williams did at St. Mary's. He never saw him playing for Minneapolis 31 years ago.

"He hit a home run," says the Senators' new owner. "I followed him from that time on and naturally, the thing that impressed me so much was his great ability. Later, I was even more impressed by the sacrifice effort that went along with it."

Williams didn't make any special requests in his talks with Short. He didn't even ask for his old No. 9 uniform which he wore with the Red Sox.

"Frank Howard wears it on our club," Short smiles. "I heard that Frank said Ted could have it if he wants."
