Over 3000 present as McCarthy accepts award

by Bob Schwartz

Last night, United States Senator Eugene J. McCarthy was presented the first annual Notre Dame Senior Class Fellowship Award. McCarthy addressed before three thousand people in Stepan Center as part of the 12th Annual Washington Day Exercises.

McCarthy's speech was entertaining and was met with many humorous comments. The Senator commented on the general mood of America today and touched on some of his experiences that reflect this mood.

Over 3000

Sen. Eugene McCarthy

"I have not been accepting many invitations lately, but I did not receive any invitations to the Republican welcoming parties in Washington," explained the Minnesota senator. "And as for the Democratic parties, well, I didn't get any of those either."

"The invitation from Notre Dame caught just the right moment," said Senator McCarthy, "and I was eager to come back to Notre Dame," (alluding to the commencement speech he gave at Notre Dame in 1967).

"I was happy to be the first Senior Fellow instead of the President of the year. I was afraid that if some of the past winners heard of my acceptance, they would turn in their citations."

Senator McCarthy then turned to the Presidential Campaign of 1968. "I suffered some in the campaign by public analysis of my character," he said. "Politics is an avocation and a vocation. Public office carries with it certain risks and responsibilities. Just as firemen and policemen must take chances as part of their job, I decided in 1968 to take a chance in my profession," said Senator McCarthy.

"Politics is an avocation and a vocation. Public office carries with it certain risks and responsibilities. Just as firemen and policemen must take chances as part of their jobs, I decided in 1968 to take a chance in my profession," said Senator McCarthy.

On Vaccine's future

by Martin Graham

Student publishers of the magazine FaceLine stated yesterday that they intend to write a letter to the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Edmund A. Stephan, in an attempt to bring charges against University Executive Vice-President Rev. Edward J. Lillibridge S.J. for the publication of their magazine. These charges are the theft of property of a minor and the public's community and the rejection of the editorial freedom of student publications.

SMC bill calls for Services

by Glen Corno

The first campus wide straw poll, taken by the OBSERVER, shows a fairly tight race but is up by between John McKenna, and Phil McKenney, with a large block of students undecided.

The results of the poll were extrapolated so that each hall received a weighted vote, according to the percentage of total residents it holds.

Campus wide percentages were as follows:

- Mroz 32.5%
- McKenna 24.8%
- Kendall 4.2%
- Apte 1.5%
- Apte 1.5%
- Others 7.1%
- Undecided 12.7%

The poll did not include off-campus students, for fear that a distorted picture of their voting trend would come across. The poll should accurately reflect the preferences, campus wide, though there may be discrepancy within each hall. A cross check was run on the poll to determine its accuracy. The tabulated results from Dillon showed that the vote was split down the middle, six to six, with the other votes scattered. A second poll taken the next day, showed an 8 to 7 vote in favor of Mroz. There was a corresponding drop in the number of those undecided.

The poll was also broken down into classes, and some interesting results may be noted in the upper classes. McKenna takes about a third of the vote. He picks up sharply in the upper classes and runs even with him among the seniors and juniors, but falls off among the sopho-
McCarthy presented Fellow Award

(Continued from page 1)

McCarthy was then asked to comment on the recent heated exchanges between Chicago's Mayor Daley and former Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey.

"I'm not very close to the Mayor," said McCarthy. "I think the basic rift in the Democratic Party has surfaced. Hubert Humphrey repudiated, in a sense, what he tacitly supported the beating of students at the convention. Mayor Daley represents the traditional tight control of the convention rather than an open convention."

"I propose we have a national Democratic Convention in 1970," he said, "to see if the Party has changed and to heal any wounds that have arisen."

Senator McCarthy then turned to the Nixon administration. "I think they've done all right," he said. "Watergate responded to the crisis on the California oil leaks pretty well. The cabinet generally is pretty good."

The Senator said Nixon's visit to Europe was reassuring. "I don't know whether I'll run or not."

The statement was: "It killed Robert Kennedy willfully and premeditatedly and with 20 years of malice aforethought."

At this point Cooper rose to object and said, "I think that should be stricken."

Lawyers from both sides went to the bench and after a whispered conference with Judge Herbert V. Walker Cooper read into the record last Friday's incident.

Cooper also asked Sirhan, who is 24, how old he would have been 30 years ago.

"About 4 years old," Sirhan said. "I didn't even know what malice was."

The court was adjourned until 9:30 a.m. Friday. Earlier in the day Sirhan said, with a sheepish grin on his face and a detached air, that he had at least two gin drinks tom collinses at the Ambassador Hotel late June 4 shortly before Kennedy was mortally wounded.

Reformer tells of prison misconduct

WASHINGTON (UPI) - While big-time mobsters were given private cells furnished with refrigerators and liquor, young prisoners were beaten, homosexually raped or even murdered - Chicago's Cook County jail, a prison reformer told a Senate subcommittee yesterday.

Joseph R. Rowan, executive director of the John Howard Association of Illinois, a nonprofit organization concerned with improving prison conditions, testified before the juvenile delinquency subcommittee, which is investigating alleged mistreatment of juvenile offenders.

Rowan, who said many zoos had better standards than most correctional facilities for children, told of a study of the Cook County jail he completed more than a year ago. Since then, he said, "It's improved 100 percent but we have 100 percent to go."

His investigation disclosed that jail employees were shaving cuts, and later sexually attacked by four syndicate men. Whisky was brought in 1-pint bottles.

"I was brought in 10 pints at a time," Rowan said.

On the other hand, he testified, "one 14 year old boy was dry shaved, producing about 50 cuts, and later sexually attacked by four adult offenders. Another young boy was repeatedly attacked sexually by various inmates and went into a catatonic state. He ended up in a mental hospital."

"One 18-year-old youth was wrapped in a blanket, soaked with benzine and set afire. He died."

Hippie connected with brutal slayings

TRURO Mass. (UPI) - A hippie type amateur taxidermist was ordered held without bail on murder charges yesterday in the mutilation deaths of two of four women whose bodies were found in shallow graves in this Cape Cod community. The hearts were missing from the dismembered bodies.

Even as police searched the scrub pine studded sandy wasteland for any more bodies, Antonine Coada, 24, a currently unemployed sometimes carpenter with a literary fondness for existentialist authors, was arrested in nearby Provincetown, a summer artists' mecca and hippie hangout.

After his court appearance which attracted an overflow crowd including a number of hippies, Costa was committed to Bridgewater State Hospital for 35 days observation. A plea of innocent to two murder counts was entered on his behalf.

The sentence, arrived at in little more than an hour, included a 20 year maximum. The maximum penally a dishonorable discharge.

The sentence, arrived at in little more than an hour, included a 20 year maximum. The maximum penalty was his desertion from the military.

Deserter sentenced by military court

FT. DIX, N.J. (UPI) - A military court of officers yesterday sentenced Spec. 4 Edwin C. Arnett to four years at hard labor in the nation's first trial of a soldier deserting his Vietnam unit and seeking asylum in Sweden.

Arnett, a sable-skinned, 30 year old Army cook, paled and trembled as the sentence was pronounced. The noncommissioned officer's name was entered in a disfigured and headshrinker's court. Arnett's desertion was his first show of emotion in the nine day trial.

The sentence, arrived at in little more than an hour, included forfeiture of all pay, reduction to the lowest enlisted rank and a dishonorable discharge.

Arnett told jurors after the sentencing he had not expected such a stiff penalty but added, "You never can tell." The maximum sentence was five years.

Arnett said that because of his conviction and sentence, he doubts that other American deserters in Sweden will return to this country to face charges. "I think now that nobody will return," he said.

THE WORLD TODAY

Jury learns of Sirhan plea for death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The jury hearing the murder trial of Sirhan Sirhan, the man convicted for the first time yesterday that the defendant tried to plead guilty last Friday and asked to be executed. During the incident last Friday, the jury of eight men and four women was not in the court. However, the recorder's outside was read before the jury yesterday by chief defense counsel Grant Cooper.

Dooper was given an opportunity to get the incident into the record after deputy Dist. Atty. Lynn Compton, apparently consulting a fans pass, asked Sirhan on cross examination about a statement he made at that time. The statement was: "I killed Robert Kennedy willfully and premeditatedly and with 20 years of malice aforethought."

Santa Fe offers career opportunities in:

Accounting, Sales, Engineering (Mechanical, Electrical, Civil, Metallurgical, Industrial), Transportation Management, Information Systems and Electronic Data-Processing, Market Research, Purchasing and Inventory Control, Cost Analysis, Personnel and Labor Relations, Public Relations, Advertising and Real Estate Management.

We are looking for individuals with Bachelor's and Master's degrees in: Accounting, Business Administration, Transportation, Engineering, Mathematics, Statistics, Economics and Liberal Arts.

Schedule your interview with the University Placement Office and ask for "You and Santa Fe," a brochure featuring Santa Fe career opportunities.

SANTA FE RAILWAY

will interview students at the

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

Thursday, March 13, 1969 to review CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Santa Fe is a transportation company serving the southwest by rail, truck and pipeline. We have substantial interests in oil, lumber, uranium, coal, real estate and other enterprises, too.

If you would like more information about a career with Santa Fe where the only limit to your future is your desire, ability and effort, arrange for an on-campus interview. We want to talk with you.

Santa Fe is the mecca and hippie hangout.

Santa Fe is a transportation company serving the southwest by rail, truck and pipeline. We have substantial interests in oil, lumber, uranium, coal, real estate and other enterprises, too.

If you would like more information about a career with Santa Fe where the only limit to your future is your desire, ability and effort, arrange for an on-campus interview. We want to talk with you.

Santa Fe is a transportation company serving the southwest by rail, truck and pipeline. We have substantial interests in oil, lumber, uranium, coal, real estate and other enterprises, too.

If you would like more information about a career with Santa Fe where the only limit to your future is your desire, ability and effort, arrange for an on-campus interview. We want to talk with you.
IBM invites you to join an infant industry.

Big as it is, the information processing industry is just beginning to grow.

Recently, Fortune estimated that the value of general purpose computers installed in this country will more than double by 1972. Other publications have other predictions, and probably no source is totally precise. But most agree that information processing is one of America's fastest growing major industries.

Every day, it seems, computers go to work in a new field or new application. IBM computers are working in such diverse fields as business, law, medicine, oceanography, traffic control, air pollution. Just about any area you can name.

To somebody just starting out, this growth means exceptionally good chances for advancement. Last year, for example, we appointed over 4,000 managers—on performance, not seniority. Here are four ways you could grow with IBM:

Engineering and Science

"The interdisciplinary environment keeps you technologically hot."

"Working in data processing today pretty much means you work in a broad spectrum of technologies," says Nick Donofrio.

An Associate Engineer at IBM, Nick is a 1967 graduate in Electrical Engineering. He's using his technical background to design circuits for computer memory systems.

Nick says, "Your specialty at IBM can take you into the front yard of half a dozen different fields. In my job, for example, I work with systems design engineers, chemists, physicists, metallurgists, and programmers. The diversity helps me keep up to date on the latest technologies."

Career areas in engineering and science at IBM include: Research, Design & Development, Manufacturing, Product Test, Space and Defense Projects, and Field Engineering. You'll need at least a B.S. in any technical field.

Marketing

"Working with company presidents is part of the job."

"I'm pretty much the IBM Corporation in the eyes of my customers," says Andy Moran. "I consider that fairly good for an engineer who graduated only two years ago."

Andy earned his B.S.E.E. in 1966. Today he's a Marketing Representative with IBM, involved in the planning, selling and installation of data processing systems.

Andy's customers include companies with annual sales ranging from $20 million to $120 million dollars. He often works with executive vice-presidents and presidents. Andy says, "At first I was a little nervous about the idea of advising executives at that level. But by the time I finished training, I knew I was equipped to do the job."

Career areas in marketing at IBM include: Data Processing Marketing and Systems Engineering, Office Products Sales, and Information Records Sites. Degree requirement: B.S. or B.A. in any field.

Finance

"You're in an ideal spot to move ahead fast."

"I've always figured my chances for advancement would be better in a growth industry. That's why I picked IBM," says Joe Takacs. Joe's been working in general accounting since he got his B.B.A. in June, 1968. Growth wasn't the only reason he chose IBM. He says, "I learned that it's a general practice at IBM to promote from within and to promote on merit alone. I like that."

"Another growth factor is the job itself," Joe says. "During my first few years, I'll get experience in nearly every area of general accounting—Income & Expense, Balance Sheet, and so on. I'll be learning how the company is structured and how it operates on a broad scale. That's exactly the kind of knowledge I'll need to help me qualify for a manager's job."

Career areas in finance at IBM include: Financial Planning and Control, Financial Analysis, Accounting, Information Systems, and Internal Auditing. You'll need at least a Bachelor's degree.

Programming

"It's a mixture of science and art."

"A computer is practically useless until somebody writes a program for it," says Earl Wilson.

Earl got a B.A. in Modern Languages in June, 1967. He's now an IBM programmer working on a teleprocessing system that will link the computerized management information systems of several IBM divisions.

Earl defines a "program" as a set of instructions that enables a computer to do a specific job. "Programming involves science," says Earl, "because you have to analyze problems logically and objectively. But once you've made your analysis, you have an infinite variety of ways to use a computer's basic abilities. There's all the room in the world for individual expression."

Career areas in programming at IBM include: Systems Programming, Application Programming, Program Planning, and Internal Programming for IBM's own use. You'll need at least a B.S. or B.A.

Other reasons to consider IBM

1. Small Team Concept. No matter how large a project may be, we break it down into units small enough to be handled by one person or a few people. Result: quick recognition for achievement.

2. Educational Support. IBM employees spend over thirteen million hours a year in company-sponsored educational and training programs. And plans like our Tuition Refund Program could help you get your Master's or Ph.D.

3. 300 Locations. We have almost 50 plant, laboratory, or headquarters locations and over 250 branch offices in key cities throughout the United States.

4. Openings at All Degree Levels. We have many appropriate starting jobs for people at any degree level: Bachelor's, Master's or Ph.D.

Visit your placement office

Sign up at your placement office for an interview with IBM

ON CAMPUS MAR. 12, 13

An Equal Opportunity Employer
Next up: Vaciline

Monday afternoon the Student Life Council overwhelmingly approved the final two of three hall life bills in its first significant action it has taken since its inception last fall. Unfortunately since the bills will be delayed. Depending upon the action or refusal to move on the resolutions from the endless constant contact with Hesburgh no matter how far out of town he is, will swiftly approve of resolutions from the endless number of legislative bodies on campus so long as they remain as inane and innocuous as they have in the past. The University Administration will move unilaterally, outside the structures it has created of its own hand, whatever it feels the issue warrants its attention.

Next year's law or interpretation is used, Joyce has absolutely no right to halt the binding of Vaciline. It had been dutifully approved by the Student Union Directors, and submitted to the request of an SLC subcommittee. Acting on his own feelings, regardless of the correct procedures already enacted, Joyce stopped the booklet.

It is our opinion that Joyce's action is a perfect example of the "totalitarian tactics" Hesburgh referred to in describing the CIA's actions. Ironically it was Hesburgh's number two man who performed so dictatorially. Hesburgh should take a clue from his own latest letter and reprimand Joyce "as not understanding what a community is." The Notre Dame "community" as we have been taught for so these many years includes: faculty, student AND administrators.

The Student Life Council must order the return to its editors of the magazine, and if it does not, then students, and faculty as well, have as much to say about this University as they did ten years ago— which is to say, nothing.

Condemnation

For the past two days Minnesota Senator Eugene McCarthy, a great favorite among college students since and during his campaign for the 1968 Democratic Presidential nomination, has been on campus participating in classes, meeting informally with students outside of classes and during meals as the first Senior Fellow.

We highly commend Senior Fellow Chuck Sheedy and his Senior Fellow Committee, not only for their selection of McCarthy, but, more than that, for the entire concept they have created. The organization and concept of the Senior Fellow far surpasses that of the fortuitously defunct anarchistic Patriot of the Year Award.

In past years senators voted from among several nominees for their choice, although their first choice was often not the eventual award winner. Whoever would come here on Washington's Birthday to receive it was invited to be the Patriot. And the ceremony was little more than a brief speech to rarely more than a few hundred students.

The Senior Fellow Committee, on the other hand, began work last spring, reviewing recommendations from students. Their selection was made far enough in advance so the person eventually selected as the Fellow would have ample time to make plans. This year the Senior Fellow is just what the name implies a Fellow. He spends two days on campus chatting and meeting with students. Students have an opportunity to learn from and about one of the nation's finest men firsthand. And no doubt the Fellow learns as much from students.

Again we commend Chuck Sheedy and hope that next year's committee will work as smoothly, competently and with much taste and foresight this spring in making their selection as did Sheedy's committee last year.

The Knight

Eugene McCarthy's approach to politics has often reminded me of a Sutton Place mumtaz attempting to unstop her toilet. She will only touch the plunger, distastefully, as a necessary evil for correcting the problem, and never associate the source of the clog the waste, as part of her own self. The plunging must be done, though, and McCarthy has held his nose, entered the fray, and done his best to correct the problem of political manners in America.

During his press conference and at the beginning of his acceptance speech, the senator's humour was soft, and cutting in the academic style of allusory unoffensiveness. He fit the manner well, and seemed at ease when he was able to joke about the Mayor Daleys and the party in-fights. Questions that demanded straight and serious answers seemed painful to McCarthy, and a pain which he would apparently rather avoid.

The McCarthy humour went over well at the award presentation. His rapport with the people was easy and comfortable. The country and its politics have been too confusing, too overwhelming for the "ordinary citizen," and here was a man who seemed to have an overview of the chaos. A man who was still able to laugh at the pitfalls of man in society, and not so much laugh, as laugh with a real enjoyment that the senator was willing to share. And the people were eager to share his enjoyment. They had heard too many diatribes, too many fateful and doom ridden tales about twentieth century man. They were laughing with the smile on McCarthy's face before he even delivered the punch line. A public laugh had been heard amongst them.

Politics in the twenty-first century was the topic, and then suddenly the senator was back in the fifteenth. He talked about the mid-evil approach to society, and a faith in institutions as man's only viable tool and defense. The mid-evil allusions continued though. McCarthy began talking about vocations, a calling to the individual from above to which it was his duty to respond. The vocations gave way to suggestions of "ones which passed judgments on the institutions of society from an independent position."

The mid-evil allusions continued though. McCarthy began talking about vocation, a calling to the individual from above to which it was his duty to respond. The vocations gave way to suggestions of "ones which passed judgments on the institutions of society from an independent position."

The senator's humour was soft, and cutting in the academic style of allusory unoffensiveness. He fit the manner well, and seemed at ease when he was able to joke about the Mayor Daleys and the party in-fights. Questions that demanded straight and serious answers seemed painful to McCarthy, and a pain which he would apparently rather avoid.

The McCarthy humour went over well at the award presentation. His rapport with the people was easy and comfortable. The country and its politics have been too confusing, too overwhelming for the "ordinary citizen," and here was a man who seemed to have an overview of the chaos. A man who was still able to laugh at the pitfalls of man in society, and not so much laugh, as laugh with a real enjoyment that the senator was willing to share. And the people were eager to share his enjoyment. They had heard too many diatribes, too many fateful and doom ridden tales about twentieth century man. They were laughing with the smile on McCarthy's face before he even delivered the punch line. A public laugh had been heard amongst them.
Grape '69 and Wonderwall: Dual Review

by Bill Thurman

Ever since I first noticed music (and bought my first records) it has struck me that good records seem to come in batches; it was singles when I was in high school, although I was not then that good at buying them. Now, seven years of fame before another batch of sounds is released and once again I'm forced to stretch my meager economy to buy as many as I possibly can. There have been two of those major breaks, and the beginning of the third, the first came around Thanksgiving (and the Beatles' Help!); the second (Moby Grape's Banquet) more recently, since semester break has been happening again when I thought it was over. One of the albums I could have bought with the money I accumulated on charity food, clothing, and shelter. This whole problem also makes it difficult for me to write record reviews, i.e. at this moment there are about six records vying for my dubious valued critical eye. At the same time, I must cope with the fact that I like all of them. I have liked all the records I have reviewed this year. That is not to say that I like them all (there are lots), but whenever I think of putting down a record I can always think of something that I like. If I have to stretch my meager economy to buy this year's batch, I'm going to write about two of them. The first album I notice is the second of Moby Grape before I saw them with the Mammas and Papas in June, 1967, as far as I was concerned, there were only ten or so. We were four of five then and they all sang well. Bob Mosley and Peter Lewis sang beautifully and their harmonies were incredibly good, the first fresh vocals since the Beatles. I had been since the Beatles. I bought their first album, Moby Grape, the next day and it has been in my top three albums in the last year.

Kay Markle

By way of the courtroom

Dan Berrigan is the kind of person who says things like, "If the issue is the right one, then a man can lead a man to all the others." Without sounding like a pseudo-radical who is over thirty but is still a political prisoner, let us say that he is a Jesuit priest and he is the third of his family to enter the first Catholic priest jailed in the United States on a political conviction. In October of 1967 Phil Berrigan protested the draft in his own inimitable way by pouring blood over a filing cabinet full of Selective Service records.

The following May he and Dan and a few others, about nine of them, assembled (they are not the kind of people who have a lot of friends) and led a march to be 21. He is a Jesuit priest and he is the third of his family to enter the first Catholic priest jailed in the United States on a political conviction.

I like every song on that first album ("Oomsha", their first and last single, is in fact one of the lesser ones). For the better part of a year I waited impatiently for more Grape. Around last Easter, the word filtered down that a new Grape album was on the market: two records, Wow and Grape Jam (with Mike Bloomfield and Al Kooper). Wow was a major disappointment, Grape Jam is a good jam, but it's not the tight sound that is Grape. That was the last heard of the Moby Grape till they appeared on Jerry Lewis in the fall. There were only four. Skip Spence, who sang and basically drummed on the Jefferson Airplane Takes Off! was no longer with the group. When I saw them, Spence seemed completely superfluous; he jumped around a lot, sang very little, and took one of the keyboards to play the guitar that usually hung lifelessly on his gobby buckskin. Spence wrote the few songs that I considered "(Motorcycle Irene" et al.), I found his absence encouraging, and sure enough, the second Moby Grape '69 turned up at the bookstore.

The liner notes for the new album (by probably the best reviewer Dave Rubenstein) reneunce the commercialism that characterized their first two albums (Wow was one of the first albums I remember to include a poster) and promise "no more gimmicks, no more hyps... everything again but the music..." Rubenstein's notes seem sincere. Whether or not it is so, the album is a return to, perhaps an enhancement of the Moby Grape of Moby Grape.

The Grape sound is a peculiar phenomenon. Their instruments are good; their voices blend lyrically interesting but no less. Their harmonies are deftly analyzed as instruments. Lyricism are almost incidental to their songs, because their voices blend so incredibly and intricately well that I'm hard pressed to say anything at all. My fingers do the work of my brain and I'm going to write them in a reverie of some sort and rubbish it. That was the last heard of the Moby Grape till they appeared on Jerry Lewis in the fall. There were only four. Skip Spence, who sang and basically drummed on the Jefferson Airplane Takes Off! was no longer with the group. When I saw them, Spence seemed completely superfluous; he jumped around a lot, sang very little, and took one of the keyboards to play the guitar that usually hung lifelessly on his gobby buckskin. Spence wrote the few songs that I considered "(Motorcycle Irene" et al.), I found his absence encouraging, and sure enough, the second Moby Grape '69 turned up at the bookstore.

The liner notes for the new album (by probably the best reviewer Dave Rubenstein) renounce the commercialism that characterized their first two albums (Wow was one of the first albums I remember to include a poster) and promise "no more gimmicks, no more hyps... everything again but the music..." Rubenstein's notes seem sincere. Whether or not it is so, the album is a return to, perhaps an enhancement of the Moby Grape of Moby Grape.

The Grape sound is a peculiar phenomenon. Their instruments are good; their voices blend lyrically interesting but no less. Their harmonies are deftly analyzed as instruments. Lyricism are almost incidental to their songs, because their voices blend so incredibly and intricately well that I'm hard pressed to say anything at all. My fingers do the work of my brain and I'm going to write them in a reverie of some sort and rubbish it.
Fr. Hanley speaks on objectors

by Ann Conney

The Humancist Studies Department of St. Mary's last night presented Father Dexter Hanley, S.J. of Georgetown University Law Centre speaking on "The Conscientious Objector: Evolution or Revolution?" as the third in its Anniversary series of lectures.

Hanley spoke on the morality of war and the nature of government as seen from an individual viewpoint. He stated that the government cannot be supreme to the individual and that the morality of the state does not necessarily conform to the morality of individuals in the state.

In such a state, the individual should be permitted to follow his own conscience as long as it would result in no harm to the government. Once the government makes a judgment and enters a war, the individual must of necessity make his own moral judgment. "When the judgment of the government imposes upon the religious interest of an individual," Hanley stated, "then it should yield to that interest unless the government interest is grave as in the case of national security. He praised those who renounce violence provided this is done without injury to the rights of others."

Finally Hanley spoke on four problems which remain to be solved in relation to an individual's religious views conflicting with the views of his government. First, there is a need to define beliefs not directly connected with an organized religion or sect. Secondly, it is necessary that there be a place for objection to a specific war, those which are unjust. Third, people should be allowed to express dissent about the way in which a war is waged, and fourth, it is necessary to introduce the right to protest illegally fought wars, or those where all paths to peace have not yet been explored. "There isn't," according to Hanley, "a place for conscience to be recognized in the world."

Board reverses McNamara decision

The decision in Marty McNamara's so-called "C.I.A. trial," resulting in a seven-day suspension for McNamara, has been reversed by an appeals board.

The Appeals Board decided last Friday that McNamara was not guilty of the charges brought forth as a result of his alleged participation in the C.I.A. demonstration. McNamara stated that "as far as I can tell this does not establish a precedent as far as "no-in." go. It only applies to this individual case."

"C.I.A. suspension to begin February 12,usic of Students Rev. James Riehle, CSC, did not have to agree to the suspension according to the defendant McNamara. As a result, McNamara was never suspended. McNamara said that he filed for an appeal with Riehle after his trial. He was informed that one of the members of the Appeals Board, Law Professor Leo J. O'Brien, was out of town. Riehle stated that he would be notified of the time and place of his appeals hearing. Riehle told McNamara that the sentence would go into effect right after the Appeal Board hearing, assuming that the appeal would be turned down.

For Sale: Ted Kennedy bumper stickers

2 for $1.00

Mr. Quillin

511 Enderly Street

Brownsburg, Indiana

For Jim, it added up to six assignments in six years. This may be some kind of a record. But he didn't waste time. Every day of it was solid profit.

"My first assignment was installation of improved polymer transfer systems," says Jim. "Then some research. A patent was issued on my device to apply steam to a running threadline. Next I was a college recruiter. After that I worked on a five-year forecast of the company's engineering needs. Now I'm in a cost reduction group."

Time is Running Out...

Each minute you spend in indecision is a minute wasted...a minute that adds up to an hour or a day that has vanished forever.

That minute may have been spent as Paulists do, counseling a questioning youth at a secular university, working in ghettos, saving a potential "dropout" or promoting better understanding of the Church and all religions.

How do your minutes stack up?

If you have given some thought to becoming a priest, why not find out how the Paulists spend their time and send for an illustrated brochure and a summary of the Paulist effort for renewal in the Church.

Write to:

Vocation Director

Paulist Fathers

Room 212 B

415 West 59th Street

New York, N.Y. 10019

USED CARS

See-ED MORAN (N.D. '69) at John's Auto Sales

702 Mishawaka

phone 253-9342

Corner of Cedar & Mishawaka Avs.

ALSO: New Suzuki Bikes

6 jobs in 6 years is called job hopping?

Not necessarily. Not at Du Pont.

We have a practice called "planned mobility," a kind of intramural job hopping. It means you don't go into a training program. You go to work—at different growth jobs that broaden you professionally, benefit you personally, and help you find the field you want to grow in.

Here's how it worked for Jim Davis, an M.E. from the University of Pittsburgh:

For Sale: Ted Kennedy bumper stickers

2 for $1.00

Mr. Quillin

511 Enderly Street

Brownsburg, Indiana

"My first assignment was installation of improved polymer transfer systems," says Jim. "Then some research. A patent was issued on my device to apply steam to a running threadline. Next I was a college recruiter. After that I worked on a five-year forecast of the company's engineering needs. Now I'm in a cost reduction group."

Du Pont Company

Room 6889

Washington, DE 19898

I'd like your latest information on opportunities at Du Pont for graduates with degrees in

Name __________________________

University _____________________

Degree _______________________

Graduation Date ________________

Address _______________________

City ___________________ State _____

Zip ________________
Bengals set for March 17

St. Joseph's EAST REGIONAL have a new look this season. Notre Dame's Bengal Bouts will be held 'in the new Athletic and Convocation Center.

The quarterfinal fights are scheduled for March 17, with the semi-finals March 19, and the championships March 21.

Eighty boys, including eight returning champs, are vying to make March 17, quarterfinal card. Defending their crowns are: Eduardo Ferret, a 127-pound junior; Paul Paryski, a 145-pound junior; Dave Penherton, a 150-pound sophomore; Jed Erwin, a 155-pound junior; Chris Servanti, a 167-pound junior; Tom Breen, a 177-pound senior; Hank Meyer, a 185-pound sophomore; and Chuck Landoii, a heavyweight senior.

EAST REGIONAL

St. Joseph's (17-30)

Rhode Island, March 8
Duquense (20-3)

Maryland, March 13

Atlantic Coast Conference

Davidson (25-2)

North Carolina State, March 8

Villanova (21-4)

Princeton (9-6)

North Carolina State, March 8
St. John's (22-4)

MIDEAST REGIONAL

Murray State (22-5)

Southern Illinois, March 8
Marquette (22-4)

Wisconsin, March 13
Kentucky (21-4)

Miami (14-10)

Southern Illinois, March 8
Notre Dame (20-6)

Wisconsin, March 13
Purdue (19-4)

MIDWEST REGIONAL

Texas A&M (17-7)

Texas Christian, March 8
Trinity (19-4)

Kansas State, March 13
Missouri Valley Conference

Dayton (20-6)

Texas Christian, March 8
Colorado State (15-6)

Kansas State, March 13

Big Eight Conference

WEST REGIONAL

Brigham Young (16-6)

New Mexico State, March 8
New Mexico State (23-3)

UCLA, March 13
UCLA (24-0)
Santa Clara (23-1)

Weber State (23-2)

New Mexico State, March 8
Seattle (19-7)

UCLA, March 13

THE OBSERVER

In New York

ND enters IC4-A

Nine runners and high jumper Ed Brodrick will represent Notre Dame at the 62-team IC4-A track meet in Madison Square Garden Friday and Saturday.

Running the Garden's 11-lap banked track will be sprinters Bill Harp (Memphis, Tenn.), Ole Skarstein (MoRana, Norway), and Jack Samari (Gary, Ind.), and middle distance men Doug Breulkin (Fl. Wayd, Ind.), Rick Wohlhuter (St. Charles, Ill.), Mike McFane (Hamilton, Ohio.), Joe Quigley (Brooklyn, N.Y.), and Mark Walsh (Washingdon, D.C.).

Two-miler Joe Quigley (Floral Park, N.Y.) rounds out the Irish delegation.

While Notre Dame coach Alex Pemberton, a 185-pound sophomore; and Dr. E. Jones' death halts hockey, fencing

Herbert E. Jones, 66, Notre Dame's business manager of athletics, died of heart failure at 2:40 p.m. yesterday after lingering three weeks in South Bend St. Joseph Hospital.

Jones was a student secretary at Knute Rockne during the 1920's, then became assistant business manager and ticket sales manager upon his graduation in 1927. He had been associated with the athletic department 41 years and served two more years as business manager of the entire University.

Jones was named College Business Manager of the Year in 1967 and ND Monogram Club Man of the Year in 1966. He was president of the Association of Commerce and Industry and a member of the South Bend Rotary Club board of directors.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret, four children and 20 grandchildren. He was born Nov. 14, 1902, in Dixon, Ill.

Because of Jones' death, the athletic department has cancelled a pair of ND-Air Force hockey matches this weekend and the ND-Buffalo-Tennessee-Milwaukee Tech fencing match tomorrow.

With a 6.1 clocking against Maryland is expected to win its third IC4-A title in succession without earning a point in field events where Maryland is expected to be strong. The Wildcats have won the meet 12 of the last 14 times they have entered.

Hurd in the 60-yard dash and sophomore sensation Wohlhuter in the 600-yard run are Notre Dame's top seeded entries. With a 6.1 clocking against Miami last week, Hurd equated his Notre Dame record and is running well. He will be trying to score back wins in the Garden having captured the 60 title at the Knights of Columbus Relays last month.

NCAA basketball tournament pairings