The OBSERVER endorses the following candidates for student representatives on the Student Life Council: from the South quad, Rich Meckel, Ron Mastriana; from the North quad, Guy DeSapio and Ted Jones; from off campus, Ed Roickle.

The Student Life Council entering its second year, having presumably solved the administrative and procedural problems which plagued all new organizations, it is imperative that the student body elect representatives who realize the capabilities and limitations of the council. They must be able to understand the thinking of the faculty and administrative members. They must be able not only to research the issues but also to present them in a effective way to the body.

These six men have the right attitudes, and concrete proof of their interest is the greatest issue which the council must face next year. More important than that, they have the initiative and capability to carry out their ideas.

DeSapio, Jones, Landry, Mastriana, Meckel, and Roickle.

During the past few months, we have been impressed by his knowledge of the workings of the council and his understanding of the complexities of dealing with administrative and faculty representatives.

Our earliest choice was DeSapio. As news editor, he clearly understands the intricacies of the SLC, and has shown his superior ability to organize and communicate. Jones demonstrated, during his campaign for student body vice president, that he is knowledgeable of student problems and can initiate reforms.

We welcome the innovation of an off campus representative, and believe Roickle will be a positive force in presenting needed bills.

For these reasons we strongly endorse the election of DeSapio, Jones, Landry, Mastriana, Meckel, and Roickle.

The controversy between the concurrent screenings of the films sponsored by the Student Faculty Film Committee, and the Communications Arts Instructor Sam McClelland has been resolved by a compromise. The compromise contains parts of decisions by both Father John Walsh, and Father Charles McCarragh.

The Student Government has accepted the compromise and will be at the times and dates announced. The difference is that admission will be limited to students in my class, those majoring in Communication Arts as well as those that have already purchased cards.

He went on to say, "I feel Mr. McCarragh's challenge to debate by saying, "As to the question of debate, I feel the issues are so clearly pretty and burreaucric that they would not be of interest to the public."

McCarragh also commented that he "was dis­appointed that the administration has not approved the compromise."
Arrest 229 at Purdue

Huge bust triggers Admin occupation

THE OBSERVER

LAFAVYETTE, Ind. (UPI) - Several hundred Purdue University students held a huge demonstration in front of the administration building yesterday afternoon and demanded amnesty for 229 persons arrested earlier in the day on charges of trespassing when they refused to leave and found a "lounge in" at the Memorial Union.

The building at West Lafayette, Ind., was cleared for about 15 minutes while Purdue President Frederick L. Hovde met with four student leaders who told him they wanted a 1969-70 tuition increase reconsidered and the charges dropped against those arrested.

Hovde replied that the administration could do nothing about the tuition hike and told SMC story goofed

In an article which appeared in the OBSERVER on May 4, entitled "Student Services Organization formed at SMC to aid activities and programs," the appointment of Student Development Commissioner Pat Corn was omitted. In the same article it was reported that the SSO will appoint the SMC Co-ordination Committee. Actually the position will be filled by the Student Assembly. Elections results run on the same day were also in error. Regina Hall had 10, not 8, abstentions. Anne Steineman from LeMans was elected a representative to the Student Assembly although not listed as one.

Alumni Board meets for weekend starting Friday

More than 100 alumni representatives from across the nation will gather May 8-10 at Notre Dame for the annual joint session of the Notre Dame Alumni Association Board of Governors and the University's alumni associations.

A seminar on "Catholic EducationThe End of a New Age," featuring the Rev. J. McCluskey, S.J., dean-director of the Institute for Studies in Education, and Ernest J. Bartell, C.S.C., chairman of the department of economics, will be presented to the group at 11:30 a.m., May 8 in the Center for Continuing Education.

On May 9, the board members and supervisors will run on reports dealing with admissions, student affairs and religion on campus, and continuing education. Members of the Student Life Council and the Student Government Faculty Senate will also be meeting with the alumni representatives.

A discussion of Alumni Club programming is scheduled for the morning of May 10. This will be followed by a noon luncheon with the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., Notre Dame president, and the Blue-Gold game at 1:30 p.m.

Huge Bust Triggers Admin Occupation

President Frederick L. Hovde, rector of the Notre Dame student community, said the continued occupation of the building "provoked threats of force and violence" and that "in view of these serious and dangerous developments no further group occupancy or use of union facilities would be allowed without the express consent of the director."
Orientation on both campuses to be expanded

Both Notre Dame and St. Mary's will be changing and expanding their respective freshman orientation programs this coming September.

The Notre Dame program will span nine days beginning Wednesday, September 10 and will involve a new approach:

Rather than the traditional "do's and don'ts," the "why's and how's" of "ball life" will be stressed to the new freshmen.

"A humanistic approach to group living on the hall and section levels will replace the repressive approach used in the past," said Larry Landry, Executive Coordinator of Student Government.

For two days prior to freshman arrivals on Friday, September 12, Rev. Daniel M. Boland, CSJ, and his staff from ND's Counseling Service will hold a workshop for the group leaders who will conduct orientation in their respective halls.

"The workshop will orientate group leaders to the dynamics of group living, giving them the opportunity to share the common problem and, by letting to know each other, form stable solutions," Landry said.

He pointed out that the hall community, within the normal section system, has the potential to perform positive, progressive attitudes toward hall life. The "ideal" section system has been talked about in the past but never has there been an attempt to implement it on a humanistic level.

Often the section system doesn't work because the people in the section don't relate to or interact with each other on any thing but a superficial level.

"Some freshmen don't get to know the people next door to him for two weeks, a month, or even a semester after they arrive," Landry said.

St. Mary's is introducing a new program Group Leaders, for their orientation.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday Fr. Boland and Dr. McCabe of the Notre Dame Guidance Center, will conduct a workshop for the group leaders and faculty advisors. In a group of 15-20 freshmen it is hoped that the leader can help the girls adjust to college life from all aspects and get a perspective on what's important in the first few weeks of school.

The session was somewhat exhausting for the people involved because of the emphasis on interaction in the group and of each girl's involvement in the group structure. Some of the results of the day's work can be questioned for several hours, one then signed a statement which they could not read. Their film was confiscated, but they were allowed to remain in the country until their cases expired.

Western culture was condemned for forcing women to feel their fulfillment lies in "catching a man and having babies." Women are pressured to present an image of themselves that women demand and assume a "sell yourself role." They are trained to be leeches. Their identity is simplified to that of their husband. Actually, therefore, women lose out in a marriage relationship.

Editor:

At its last meeting, the Student Senate voted by the overwhelming margin of 12 to 10 to restrict the selection of the Notre Dame delegates to this year's National Students' Association Convention to its own choice, rather than hold an election as dictated in the NSA rules.

For years now NSA has been the playing by Student Government and it appears that again this year the people in LaFortune want to keep it that way. For years ND has sent delegates (costs coming out of the funds from the Student Activities Fee) to NSA conventions. Each year, when some fuss is raised, we are promised that the resolutions passed by the NSA convention will be presented to the student body-they never are, of course.

I wonder whether our student government politics are afraid of holding elections, lest some non-LaFortune student be elected and refuse to go along with the dictates of the Phil & Fred Show. Oh well, one can't carry dross too far. Big Brother knows best.

Letters to the editor

Co-ed?

Editor:

My comments concern your article on Monday May 5 entitled "Co-education slated to begin in Fall." My question is who has the nerve to call this program co-education? The article leads me to believe that the Board of Trustees is responsible. If this is the case, why do they insist on calling the program co-ed when in fact it is NOT? Perhaps my association with Notre Dame has dulled my memory, but I was under the impression that co-education meant men and women enrolled and sharing experiences and education in the same institution. What the Board has proposed is a highly sophisticated co-exchange.

How can they call it co-ed when it will involve 500 freshmen from the combined classes, in 4 courses? How can they call it co-ed when, "the present CO-EXCHANGE program" will be only expanded? How can they call it co-ed by 1971. The scheduled culmination date of the program, the total enrollment of SMC (a separate institution) will exceed the freshmen class of Notre Dame (a separate institution) by only 2017! How can they call it co-ed when such highly liberal programs as co-ed dining hall privileges, mixed seating at athletic events, and expanded shuttle bus service are only being "explored"?

I must commend the Board on their willingness to take action, however when they buck their action with reasons like, "the historical connection between the two campuses," it scares me. Also they would much rather "exploit" what we have rather than move in another direction. What happens when things have been totally exploited?

In conclusion I think the proposed co-ed program would be wonderful as an initial step not the absolute end which I am afraid is the impression I am left with.

Sincerely,

Nick Testor

Nostalgia

Editor:

I just thought I would write and try to express to you and to everyone the pride I felt yesterday. Yesterday, the city bus that I was riding was temporarily halted in its journey back to the library; and all the way from the circle to the stadium I was treated to a 50-yard line close-up view of the rear of the Notre Dame band. And all the way my heart fluttered as the band marched, might, pranced to the beat of the drums and drummers.

I looked at the line of cars behind us. And I looked at the line of cars waiting to go the other way. And tears came to my eyes. I realized that these drivers were not waiting because they had to, but because they wanted to, because they were proud to.

And then I realized that these marchers weren't practicing for me, because next year when they are performing I will be graduated and gone from the University. But I loved them anyway. And because of my love I sobbed. And the bus driver sobbed. And there we were just a couple of big Notre Dame hockey in a big Notre Dame press box.

And I wanted to hop right off that press box and run up and kiss every one of those beautiful marchers. But I didn't. Because I knew they had a job to do. And a legend to prolong.
