The Student Life Council voted down a proposed Amendment to the current New Code which would have forced them to write an alternative policy to Father Hesburgh's letter on disruptive demonstrations.

The amendment presented by Student Body Vice-President Fred Dedrick suggested that the proposed Code be revised so that no penalty or sanction could be imposed upon a university student without a hearing. Father Hesburgh's letter stated that the university could suspend and expel disruptive demonstrators. The proposed Code merely provided for a student, who is suspended or expelled in such a manner, to write a letter to the SLC and the President of the Council.

In an effort to “find out our mandate on campus, to find out what we are doing wrong”, Student Body President Phil McKenna and Student Body President for Academic Affairs Bill Locke, Academic Affairs Commission, explained that the main purpose for the change, proposed by the University-Wide Curriculum Revision Committee, is to eliminate the “lame duck” session between the end of the spring semester and the beginning of semester exams. He also pointed out that a 4-1-4 system had been proposed. This system would call for the first amendment to be done by July 15. This would be followed by a one month period of independent study and then a third amendment which would run from February through May. The current system was voted down because the administration felt that it would give the students a good excuse to miss-use time.

Locke answered a question concerning 75 minute classes by explaining that the purpose of the lengthened classes would be to eliminate Saturday classes. However, many teachers on the Revision Committee felt that 75 minutes is too long a time for students to maintain proper attention.

The group also discussed the one year case experimental college in Holy Cross. Locke said that students would be allowed to decide what they want to learn. When asked why the college student was not mentioned, Locke said that it didn’t have to be there, but that the location and structure of the hall made it an obvious choice. The group also raised questions about the plans being made concerning coeducation. John Zimmerman, a member of the Coordinating Committee for the Future, said that things were moving slowly, as had been expected. However, a common room could be available next year. He said the administrators are hesitant to make a firm commitment this time. The fact that St. Mary’s does not now have a chairman of its Sociology Department may provide a test case. It is hoped that the departments of the two schools would collaborate to see if coeducation can work.

Bernie Ryan, Off-Campus Commissioner said that those who want to move off campus should send a letter to the commission after Thanksgiving containing parental permission. He explained that the reason some students had not been approved to move off campus was that too many empty rooms would be left on campus. He hoped that the university would start a contingency fund of about $10,000 so that students could decide during the summer to move off campus if the fund would be allowed to do so.

The Cinema 70 Film Festival was held in the Library. The festival, which consisted of the screening of 36 films, was attended by over 1,000 people. The festival was sponsored by the Communication Arts Department and the Student Union.

The cinema committee members, who were responsible for the planning and execution of the festival, said that they were able to attract a large audience because of the wide variety of films that were shown. They also said that the films were chosen to appeal to a wide range of interests.

According to the committee members, the festival was a success. They said that they were pleased with the turnout and that they were looking forward to holding a similar festival in the future.

The committee is planning to hold another festival in the fall, and they are already in the process of selecting films for that event. They are also hoping to expand the festival to include more screenings and additional events.

The committee is also considering ways to improve the festival, such as increasing the number of films shown and improving the sound and lighting equipment.

The committee is looking forward to the fall festival, and they are confident that it will be even more successful than the spring festival.
Listen to a conservative view

Dr. Russell Kirk, the author of The Conservative Mind, the most widely read and received work of political theory in this century, will speak at the University of Notre Dame in the Memorial Library Auditorium tonight at 8:00 P.M.

The topic of Dr. Kirk's lecture will be "The American University: A Conservative View."

Dr. Kirk is considered to be one of the most influential conservative thinkers. His daily syndicated column "To the Post" appears in newspapers in every state of the Union. His page on education "from the Academy" appears fortnightly in the National Review. Dr. Kirk is now editor of the University Bookman.

Dr. Kirk received his B.A. from Michigan State University, his Masters from Duke University and his Doctorate of Letters degree from St. Andrews University in Scotland. His many books include: The Political Principles of Robert A. Taft, the American Cause, Academic Freedom: An Essay in Definition, Confessions of a Bohemian Tory, and A Creature of the Twilight. In addition his articles have appeared in such diverse publications as "The New York Times", "Fortune", "Kenyon Review", "The London Mystery Magazine", and "Yale Review."

Many films fill roster

Fran Mairer, director of the Black Maria Cinema Group, is director of Cinema '70. He said that this would continue to be the administrative procedure in the future.

Dowdall said that the profits from the film series would be split equally between the Student Union and the Black Maria Cinema Group. He added that the Black Maria Cinema Group will determine the film series of Cinema 70.

Highlighting this year's series are The Battle of Angiers, November 8, Haskell Westley's Midian Coss, November 15, Robert Polansky's Cail de Sac, Gordon's Weekend, Kurosawa's Red Beard, and Richard Lester's How Far the War. Dowdall said a complete list of all films and dates will be posted within the week.

Cinema 70 has scheduled three film festivals this year. In November there will be a showing of Czech films including Close Watched Trains, A Report on the Party and the Guest, and Lemonade-Jail.

The second film festival will feature a week of American films. The final festival will present a week of films by specific directors.

Tickets for the Cinema 70 film series will go on sale this week.

Revision of Black Studies

The hiring of Mr. Seabrooks, a black counsellor in the Freshman Year office was an outgrowth of the work of the Committee for Black Students.

Work began on a Black Studies program last fall with the appointment by Father Hosborough of the Committee for Afro-American Students. The group held weekly meetings last year, but was unable to finalize any plans in time for the meeting of the College Council last spring.

Other delays in the formation of the Black Studies Program
were encountered last spring when some members of the committee wanted to incorporate the program into a proposal for a more broadly based Ethnic Studies Program.

A committee was formed to study this possibility, but the attempt was abortive.

The Committee for Afro-American Students became the Committee for Black Students
this year. Mr. Matal and Father Fenton Bartell are the only members of the old committee who are to continue this year.

The group plans at least a weekly meeting throughout the year, and must work on the
proposals for the new Black Studies Department.

The committee submits its re-
vailed plans to Dean Crosson,
who must in turn present them
to the College Council and lastly
the Board of Trustees before it can go into effect.

The next scheduled meeting of the College Council is October 30.
Two raise records to 2-0 in Interhall Football
