Meeting discusses Nov. Moratorium

by Brother Patrick Carney

Well over one hundred students gathered in the Student Union Hall last night to organize a special Notre Dame contingent to participate in the November moratorium proceedings in Washington, D.C.

Beginning on November 13, the group plans to join with similar contingents from around the country in providing support to the protesters in a March Against Dusk. Each member will carry a bag with food and equipment needed for the war dead on it. He will march with his package from the Student Union into the White House where he will place it on the steps.

From there, the marchers will continue to the capitol where the placements will be placed in a coffin. Plans are to return the filled coffin to President Nixon.

Plans for the following day originally called for a trip from the Capitol to the Ellipse behind the White House. However, this would result in almost surrounding the White House, the Secret Service required a change of plans.

Present plans for Saturday's activities were announced as beginning with a procession filtering up three separate streets to the Monument and around the reflecting pool. There fire to ten speeches will be given, a collection to support the day's endeavors will be taken up and a Jazz concert will finish off the day's activities.

When this announcement was greeted by hissing on the part of a large number of these attendees, Karen Weller briefed those who preferred to remain disenchanted. She offered a few words on the idea of legal rights and suggested activities similar to the destruction of draft cards which took place here in October.

Her other ideas included the possibility of a mass at the Pentagon and the gathering of draft records from various parts of the country to be destroyed in Washington. When this would definitely be a violation of the law, the idea of mass has been treated in recent court cases and decisions have been favorable to this idea. Potential marchers were advised of their legal rights and the act that there would be staff as well as medical aid stations scattered throughout the route.

Shelley Smith, herself a veteran of many previous marches, gave instructions regarding appropriate attire for the trip. She pointed out that accommodation (continued on page 2)

Astronaut looks to future

By Mark Walburn

NASA astronaut Dr. Robert A. Parker said last night that man's first lunar landing is history. It was old news, a large crowd at the library auditorium that future lunar landings may seem like old news to the public. He predicted that soon the news from Houston will be "Pertinent function."

"But there is still much to be done," said Parker, "both outside the space program and in space technology." Parker

Briefly tracing human progress both in and outside of technology, the 32 year old astronaut recalled the Supreme Court's desegregation ruling of 1954, Dr. Salk's polio vaccination, and jet passenger travel.

"Things have come a long way," he said. Parker turned to space technology and recalled that it was only 11 years ago when the first satellite was launched. After showing a film of the Apollo 17 landing, Parker said that to him the moon shot seemed like yesterday, having seen so many times in science fiction movies.

"The disappointing part is that in the immediate future the emphasis in the space age will be in orbital space stations. He said that first station is scheduled for 1972.

Rapid changes in space technology, said Parker, cause impatience in other fields. However he said that research from such space stations will be both relevant and useful to society. The rapid capability of surveying the earth from space, he said, both with color photography and infrared sensing, will allow scientists to pinpoint immediately areas of natural resources.

From color photographs of the earth shot by the Apollo 11 trio, Parker said potential oil fields were discovered in Australia, and new copper mines were discovered in Arizona.

Parker said that this surveying capability could also be used to increase food production for the world's increasing population. From space the wide distribution in fields of crops could be readily known, he said, as could many instances of crop infection.

The status of the space program, Parker said, stopping research now would reduce the lunar landing to a $24 billion stunt.

By advancing technology in general, and particularly in this area of earth resources, the space effort can improve all mankind.

To pull back now after we have shown how space can be useful would be analogous to stopping research on a vaccine after experiments had shown its usefulness.

Parker said that soon the era of glamour and excitement in the space program will be gone. In the coming era space will be a "useful tool" of society, he said. He added that in this coming era we shall see the justification of the space program.

DesSapio to resign

Gay DeSapio, Obiter

editor stated yesterday that he would announce his resignation at the staff meeting on Friday at 4:30 p.m. He stated that the three factors that have influenced my decision to resign are not related to the shortcomings of the staff or the community. I hope that the entire staff will be there," DeSapio said.

---

Davey, Hunter quit

by T.C. Trenor and Tom Ehrbar

Stay senators Rich Hunter, sophomore incumbent, and Ed Davey, Chairman of the Finance Subcommittee, resigned their positions in the senate within the past few days.

In his press release Mr. Hunter said in part: "Because of the recent developments in the Senate, and because of what I see as being basic and distinct differences in opinion between myself and the President, I have concluded that my continued as chairman of the Student Affairs Committee is impossible for me to do in the best interests of the Student Senate."

Hunter said that his resignation was initiated by a letter written to all students describing the activities of the Student Senate.

"I had been contacted by a group of whites attacking a Gatewood victim of campus attack."

Notre Dame starting split and Tom Gatewood was admitted to the Notre Dame infirmary last night after being physically attacked.

According to Art McElraine, a Afro-American Studies professor and President, Gatewood was attacked by a group of whites while walking across campus.

McElraine said that this would be the fourth attack on Gatewood this year. Gatewood had been shot at once on campus in an earlier attack as well as after the Tulane game.

Attempts were made to gain details so he incident were futile. Officials at the infirmary when contacted refused to contact to Gatewood's presence but would give no further details on his condition.

Senators by Student Body President Phil McKenna. In that letter, McKenna said, in part: "If I have been shot, I do not intend to be a stick advocate of parliamentary proceedings."

"There is one thing that I will not tolerate in this 1970 student's parliament, the use of parliamentary procedure and/or parliamentary bull. If you do not want to play games this year- then please resign; if not let us be about serious business."

Hunter called the letter a "direct insult to the integrity of the Senate and the personal integrity of myself." Stay senator Ed Davey likewise submitted his resignation yesterday. Said "my various obligations, cabinet member, full-time hunter, and stay of office have taken me beyond my capabilities." Davey is Public Relations Director for student government, and is also involved in Farley's half-fellow program.

Davey expressed concern for the evolving Notre Dame community and stated "I just thought the balls should fake four red corks," implying he acknowledged a certain snail pace in the senate's reaction to political progress and funds. As a member of the finance committee, Davey was quick to summarize the budget was expanded beyond its original recommendations. "We're just going to go back again to where we started this year," he said.

Davey specifically mentioned that The Observer was granted a $2000 increase, "more than he thought" was necessary.

Senators from the position last Friday.

Monnich has previously served as the Business Manager of Student Union Publications. He was appointed by Student Union Director Dennis Clark, in consultation with the Student Senate. Student Senate Union Association Director.

They both felt that Monnich was highly qualified for the position of Student Services Commissioner. They noted that he held a B.S. in Business Manager, his intimate knowledge of the student body and his working agreement with Pohl on Commission Policy, and above all, "that he is the right man for the right job." They cited the reasons for Monnich's selection.

Monnich is an off-campus senior and an Accounting Major.

John Monnich

Men in Aviation

by John Monnich

from the position last Friday.

Monnich had previously served as the Business Manager of Student Union Publications. He was appointed by Student Union Director Dennis Clark, in consultation with the Student Senate. Student Senate Union Association Director.

They both felt that Monnich was highly qualified for the position of Student Services Commissioner. They noted that he held a B.S. in Business Manager, his intimate knowledge of the student body and his working agreement with Pohl on Commission Policy, and above all, "that he is the right man for the right job." They cited the reasons for Monnich's selection.

Monnich is an off-campus senior and an Accounting Major.

With respect to his new office, he plans "continuation of the job that Robert Pohl set up." While sympathizing with Pohl's resignation and admitting the position required a great deal of time, Monnich said he did not foresee any reasonably possible circumstances for a shorter occupation.

Tito Trevino took up Pohl's job temporarily and said that the heavy pace of the work would be too much for him if he were to persistently handle it, with his role as Student Senate Union Associate Director.

He said that the job is the quite capable of carrying on the progress made under Pohl.

Monnich commented on the budget allocated to the Student Union by the Student Senate. He said that the marginal cuts made in the budget would not hampers the organization's projected program.

He specifically praised the Student Senate for viewing the Student Union's funds as a whole, instead of the previous policy of appropriating a budget for each commission of the Student Union.

He said this increased flexibility would allow the Student Senate to pool funds to activities as their needs develop and would result in significant saving of money, while improving the quality of services. He said this guided flexibility will allow the chances of certain services actually making money.
Hall Life Board issues warning; seven halls cited for violations
by Don Ruane
An investigation and interviews by the Hall Life Board along with several complaints in the last few weeks, has led to a warning for seven halls in regard to their parietal procedures.

Ron Mastriana, executive coordinator of the Hall Presidents Council, said the HLB has received complaints from several hall rectors and residents, mostly concerning the conduct of other halls. The board began an investigation of the parietal procedures of each hall on campus and found seven halls violating the sign-in and/or the twenty-four-hour visitation limit.

On Monday, the board sent a letter to each hall instructing them to correct the situation by November 10 or face a suspension of paritals. The letter also reminded each hall of the rules it set for itself in the hall constitution it submitted to the HLB last spring, according to Mastriana.

The halls cited by the HLB and in danger of having their paritals suspended are: Holy Cross, Dillon, Walsh, Ahlum, Flanner, Carroll, and Morrissy.

Meet on moratorium
(continued from page 1)
will be provided, but that these will generally tend to be on hard floors of churches and similar buildings.

After pointing out that the marchers should refrain from bringing anything that they cannot afford to lose, she suggested that participants wear sweaters and advised female participants to wear their hair in a bun and avoid earrings, watches, and pierced ears because of the danger involved when these are pulled while being arrested.

Among the other pieces of advice given to those in attendance was to carry bail money pinned to their underwear and to bring a handkerchief and small bottle of water for use in case the police resort to chemical means of riot prevention.

Students were particularly warned against using drugs or even carrying with them into the city. Jim Douglas, Chairman of the Program on Non-Violence clarified the issue of the mass at the Pentagon and invited those interested to attend a meeting of the Peace Fellowship Wednesday evening. Present plans call for two Anglican Bishops and a number of Catholic priests to participate in the inter denominational service.

After reading his statement for the benefit of the invited FBI agents which is reported elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Douglas announced the Notre Dame Resistance buttons will soon be available for sale at $1 each. These buttons with a gold omega and ND will be distributed next week.

At the close of the meeting arrangements were made to provide rides for those who could not afford them although those who could be encouraged to pay the $25 for the bus trip which will include special rap sessions in the area.

In addition, those interested in acting as marshals were asked to attend a training session which will be run by some experienced people from Chicago at the Resistance House at 1036 N. Niles on Sunday afternoon. The time is tentatively scheduled for about 1 p.m.

Ed Roickle
S. I. Hayakawa

This weekend one S. I. Hayakawa will lecture on semantics to Notre Dame-St. Mary's Community. For the unitivate Webster delineates semantics as "2, the scientific study of the relations between signs, or symbols, and the objects or ideas which they purport to resemble or denote in their psychological and sociological aspects as it is influenced by signs." It is interesting to note some of the more public examples of Hayakawa's behavior during the student faculty strike in San Francisco State last Spring.

"On the first day of Hayakawa's reign, he attacked the Strike Support Committee's sound truck which was parked on a street in front of the school. He climbed on top of the public address equipment, turned on the siren, and started pummeling the buttons on the speakers, pushing and shoving students who gathered to protect the equipment."

"Hayakawa tried hard to break the strike. He has banned public rallies. The TWLF (Third World Liberation Front), however, held rallies almost daily-not to defy the demands of free speech, but to keep the momentum of the strike growing. The rallies in Dec. drew thousands of people who had been trying to support the 15 demands. Further, he used a public relations man to improve his image and think up groovy gimmicks. One such gimmick was to pass out blue armbands to pass out blue armbands to students. The excuse behind this was that the "silent majority" could express sympathy with the demands but opposition to violence. Not only was this line called majority silent, but it was insensible. Only a couple of hundred hard-core reactionaries wore them. The racist reality of the armbands was that the wearers weren't sympathetic to anything but the cops. They weren't against violence either-they would point out the leaders to the cops, pack a fight with a striker and then lead him to the pigs. While the liberal armbands, and the 'Committee for Academic Environment' who pushed them, did was to bring more about 100 into a "Hayakawa Youth." This has been easily exposed and denounced by the Strike Support Comm.

Hayakawa's most effective weapon during the month of December was the use of the police. At least 50 to 60 dogs were deployed during his first day in, an unsuccessful attempt to break up a rally of 4,000. However, the police only intensified the struggle. After the first week, the dogs were used only against坐 to 600, with 1000 in ready reserve. During his entire 13 weeks of office, the cops have constantly occupied the campus to barricade, harass, threaten, cut off the students. The reason for this strategy was that a sitting attorney and even a sitting attorney and even a sitting attorney and a sitting attorney were arrested. After Tuesday Dec. 3, the bloodiest day of the strike, Hayakawa said: "This has been the most exciting time of my life. It's my birthday when I ride the roller coaster for the first time." This police terror failed to break the strike.

Besides the above incidents Hayakawa has indulged in red-baiting attempts on the students, to try to create the emotion of a threat. He has made statements that his racist paternalistic attitudes towards Third World strikers has provoked indignation on the part of Third World people and reaction in the form of a white middle class backlash. This was most apparent in the leadership committee members from the state (people?) campus in an attempt to stifle the people's participation in supporting the 15 demands. In short Hayakawa has been a perfect puppet for the 200 Sacred Scrolls lobbies whose ignorant and oppressive attitudes towards education, the Third World, and the poor is not helped by his racist behavior. The poor is not helped by his racist behavior.

When Hayakawa speaks here this weekend, it will be interesting to note what his signs and symbols are which he relates to one another. Judging from the psychological and sociological aspects of his past behavior, these signs and symbols may be seen as communions among human beings.

SMC curfew changes possible

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Student Senate Assembly, a proposal for a curfew policy for second semester freshmen was unanimously passed. The proposed change would mean no hours for second semester freshmen with parental approval.

A motion to raise the salaries of the maids by directing the profits made from the guest fees was also discussed and passed. The proposal will go to the Student Affairs Committee for further action.

The group also passed a motion to drop the requirement that the office of vice-president of the Student Assembly be held by a senior. This involves a change in the current procedural manual.

This requirement for the office of president was not changed.

A motion to change the curfew policy for second semester freshmen and no hours for upperclassmen with parental approval was also discussed and passed. The motion will go to the Student Affairs Committee for further action.

This weekend one S. I. Hayakawa will lecture on semantics to Notre Dame-St. Mary's Community. For the unitivate Webster delineates semantics as "2, the scientific study of the relations between signs, or symbols, and the objects or ideas which they purport to resemble or denote in their psychological and sociological aspects as it is influenced by signs." It is interesting to note some of the more public examples of Hayakawa's behavior during the student faculty strike in San Francisco State last Spring.

"On the first day of Hayakawa's reign, he attacked the Strike Support Committee's sound truck which was parked on a street in front of the school. He climbed on top of the public address equipment, turned on the siren, and started pummeling the buttons on the speakers, pushing and shoving students who gathered to protect the equipment."

"Hayakawa tried hard to break the strike. He has banned public rallies. The TWLF (Third World Liberation Front), however, held rallies almost daily-not to defy the demands of free speech, but to keep the momentum of the strike growing. The rallies in Dec. drew thousands of people who had been trying to support the 15 demands. Further, he used a public relations man to improve his image and think up groovy gimmicks. One such gimmick was to pass out blue armbands to students. The excuse behind this was that the "silent majority" could express sympathy with the demands but opposition to violence. Not only was this line called majority silent, but it was insensible. Only a couple of hundred hard-core reactionaries wore them. The racist reality of the armbands was that the wearers weren't sympathetic to anything but the cops. They weren't against violence either-they would point out the leaders to the cops, pack a fight with a striker and then lead him to the pigs. While the liberal armbands, and the 'Committee for Academic Environment' who pushed them, did was to bring more about 100 into a "Hayakawa Youth." This has been easily exposed and denounced by the Strike Support Comm.

Hayakawa's most effective weapon during the month of December was the use of the police. At least 50 to 60 dogs were deployed during his first day in, an unsuccessful attempt to break up a rally of 4,000. However, the police only intensified the struggle. After Tuesday Dec. 3, the bloodiest day of the strike, Hayakawa said: "This has been the most exciting time of my life. It's my birthday when I ride the roller coaster for the first time." This police terror failed to break the strike.

Besides the above incidents Hayakawa has indulged in red-baiting attempts on the students, to try to create the emotion of a threat. He has made statements that his racist paternalistic attitudes towards Third World strikers has provoked indignation on the part of Third World people and reaction in the form of a white middle class backlash. This was most apparent in the leadership committee members from the state (people?) campus in an attempt to stifle the people's participation in supporting the 15 demands. In short Hayakawa has been a perfect puppet for the 200 Sacred Scrolls lobbies whose ignorant and oppressive attitudes towards education, the Third World, and the poor is not helped by his racist behavior. The poor is not helped by his racist behavior.

When Hayakawa speaks here this weekend, it will be interesting to note what his signs and symbols are which he relates to one another. Judging from the psychological and sociological aspects of his past behavior, these signs and symbols may be seen as communions among human beings.
Father Sheedy moved by Goerner’s criticisms

by Paul Gallagher

Father Charles Sheedy, Chairman of the Experimental College Subcouncil of the Curriculum Revision Committee (CRC) was contacted by The Observer yesterday in reaction to a seven page letter sent to him by Professor Edward Goerner. In the letter sent to Sheedy on October 22, but made public only recently, the popular political theorist indicated that he had given up hopes for his St. Thomas Moore proposal outlined last spring and levelled such widespread criticism concerning the development in which he felt that the university as a whole was heading, that people wondered if he had not given up on Notre Dame in general.

Except for updating some information on the state of the experimental program proposals, Fr. Sheedy declined to take issue with Goerner’s letter. “There is nobody around here that I reverse and lose more than Edward Goerner. Above all, I don’t want this thing to put any wedges between Mr. Goerner and me,” said Sheedy.

Goerner went on to point out that the sketchy recommendations of his subcommittee had not been approved by the CRC and that therefore the sophomore year program outlined in The Observer had not been approved.

Instead, he said, the CRC agreed to make a much less specific recommendation to the Academic Council -- one which in effect would merely recommend that an experimental education program should be developed and implemented for the 1970-71 school year if possible.

This would mean, at least structurally, that radical proposals such as Mr. Goerner could still be discussed and approved. However, Sheedy did not suggest that the CAP director had misunderstood the chances that his proposal would be accepted. Neither did he attempt to lessen the thrust of Goerner’s broader criticisms.

Instead, Sheedy gave the impression that words from a person of the calibre of Professor Goerner should not be argued against, but reflected on and taken to heart.

If the Academic Council accepts the CRC recommendation, the development of an experimental college program will be moved out of the hands of the subcommittee of which he is chairman, said Fr. Sheedy.

Such duties would go to one of the university’s vice-presidents, and, most likely, the vice-president would develop his own committee to work the program out.
Voting age

The rejection of voters of New Jersey and Ohio of referendums to lower the voting age to 18 and 19 respectively is regrettable to say the least. In New Jersey, figures show the proposal was losing by over 300,000 votes with 1,500,000 votes counted. The Ohio proposal was fairing a little better vote wise.

The New Jersey referendum was supported enthusiastically by both candidates for governor. Most local and state officials had fostered their support. Prominent educational and civic groups also supported the proposal. Student groups throughout the state were out in full force campaigning for the proposal.

No doubt a large part of the overt support for the referendum by politicians was due to their respect for the student movement and their fear of the future political repercussions of not supporting today what someday be a viable voting segment of society.

The fear of students, however, was mirrored in the vote against the proposal but in a different way. The results of the referendum in both states showed the tragic impact of the publicity that has surrounded the student movement in America.

One impression that sticks in the minds of the segment of the population which now has franchise is the violence which has surrounded so many student protests. Many adults look upon it as irresponsibility – and irresponsibility that they fear may be mirrored at the polls should students be allowed to vote.

While it is senseless to justify the violence that has taken place at many times during protest it is a shame that voters were not able to look past it to the deeper reasons for demonstrations in the first place.

There are many things wrong with American society – evils not only acknowledged by students, but by many adults as well. Students are concerned about changing those things. They are prohibited from participating in the national channels of government and so in many instances have had to take to the streets to manifest not only their concern for change, but their alienation from the structure itself.

It would have been wise to begin now to break down the barriers to student participation in the American system. Students have a legitimate right to franchise. Perhaps if the violent confrontations that have characterized student manifestations of concern did not occur students could get closer to the goal that they sought. We regret that the older generation has failed to look deep enough into the whole problem – but the whole situation is a two-way street.

Comment on yesterday

The Senate move last night increasing the appropriations of a number of campus organizations is a wise one. We realize that a large number of students deplored the fiscal policies of past Senates and had hoped that the current Senate would be paid off this year.

The effects of such a move though, as we pointed out Tuesday, would have been disastrous. Several organizations would have been severely crippled, perhaps beyond repair.

The current deficit can be paid off in full next year. What is needed though is sound fiscal management by Student Government, and a careful watchdog policy on the part of the Senate. Student Union, and Student Government must impose upon themselves a strict self-discipline, so as to avoid the disasters of the two previous years. We have little doubt that this will be done. We need only repeat Senator Ed Davey’s words to express how we feel about the spirit of fiscal responsibility that is prevailing the Union: "I’ve looked over the Union’s controls, and I can honestly say that they’re the best I’ve ever seen."

The Senate though, must not allow itself to slip into a quagmire of complacency. It must demand from the Student Government Treasurer a monthly report on the financial status of Student Government, with a detailed breakdown of expenditures during the period. The Senate must not hesitate to suspend the funds of any branch of the government, if it feels that those funds are being wasted, or misused, and immediately conduct a full investigation into the situation.

---

The Observer

An Independent Student Newspaper

Donald C. Holiday, Publisher

Gaetano De Sario, Editor

Founded November 3, 1966

Notre Dame, Indiana

---

Paul Gallagher

Integrity phases out

Tim MacCorry’s column two weeks ago about saints and saint days was a great door-opener for my talking of another church issue, one concerning the patronage of the university.

In reading through the play A Man for All Seasons this week with October 15’s Moratorium Mass experience still in mind, it occurred to me that the Margaret Milligan story is not only relevant to American students but also to the question of patronage of the university in place of Notre Dame du Lac these days. And this on the grounds that she would be better suited philosophically to be a protector and haven of refuge for degree seekers today than the traditional virgin.

She is, remember, the Moore who suggested that her father forget his moral scruple and take the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England with his fingers crossed.

“God more regards the thoughts of men than the works of his mouth,” she prompted. “Then say the words of the oath and in your heart think otherwise.”

She would be a special patroness and protector of the pragmatist way of life – a way of life in which the results of a man’s actions, e.g. getting wars stopped, ensuring that the poor are fed, that the oppressed are freed, etc., are respected more than the personal integrity a man maintains in acting.

She would be a patroness to those who say, “I know I’m striving for a position in, and paying lip service to, a thoroughly corrupted system, but wait until I am established, then I will change it.” Likewise she would protect those who say, “What a waste of time for a mind like Sir Thomas Moore to rot in prison. Think of all that he could have done for the church if he had just taken the oath and forgotten about it.”

Thomas Moore was strong with his daughter. He said, “When a man takes an oath, he’s holding his own self in his hands like water and if he opens his fingers then – he needn’t hope to find himself again.” But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.

Likewise, it is the Oath of Allegiance to the Church of England that Margaret Milligan suggests. But we at the university seem in large part to be much more sympathetic with Margaret.

The more a man reflects on his life in American society, the more he is aware of the meaning of a true original sin, that is, the more he realizes that try as he may, he cannot be involved in committing evil in the world. To be alive is to be implicated. The State can no longer offer man the alternative of taking his position otherwise.
This is the SMC campus, Rome, which will house 70 girls next year. The students will receive a full year of academic study and credit in the field of humanities. Party raids should take on an exotic lure.

Alarms and diversions

Hoonsier hysteria

PENDLETON, Ind. (UPI)—At least 24 inmates at the Indiana Reformatory went on a rampage Wednesday afternoon, tearing up bedding, toilets and plumbing. There was no report of any injuries.

Rags to Richmond

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Department of Housing and Urban Development Wednesday approved recertification for a workable program for Richmond, Ind.

Cash and carry

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—A lone bandit escaped Wednesday with $2,812 from a southside branch of the Union Federal Savings and Loan Association. Police said the bandit approached the teller and told her he wanted to transfer some funds. As she turned to give the funds, he pulled a gun, police said.

"Do not move for twelve minutes or I will shoot you," the women noted the gunman as telling them. He then fled, apparently on foot.

The holdup occurred shortly after noon at the branch office, 2554 South Madison Ave.

17-15-20!

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Phil Miller, 16, Galveston, won the 1969 411 Tomato Club contest. The youth, a sophomore at Lewis Cass High School, produced a prize-winning crop of 33.45 tons per acre on 5.66 acres of cropland. The crop scored 93.99 for usable tomatoes and 69.93 color index.

Miller planted variety 1409 last May 23, using 7,140 plants per acre in 40 inch rows. He plowed down 316 pounds of 13-15-20 fertilizer plus 25 pounds per acre of starter solution. The field was sprayed 11 times.

Four sectional winners also were announced—Steve Plank, Galveston; Doug LeMarter, Bunker Hill; Steve Van Zandt, Plymouth, and Yvonne Moyer, Plymouth.

Hoo's here working?

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Unemployment claims in Indiana last week were up slightly from the preceding week, director John F. Coppes of the Indiana Employment Security Division said Wednesday. Although about 200 fewer persons filed initial claims, the total increased from 13,525 to 13,705 because of a 3 per cent increase in claims from people out of work a week or longer, Coppes said.

Coppes said reasons for the small increase included seasonal slowdowns, reductions of force, and lack of orders. He also said there were several construction projects completed and weather has caused a slowdown in quarries. About 80 workers were without jobs because the plywood plant in Southern Indiana closed. The claims were still about 11 per cent under the 13,417 filed for the corresponding week of 1968, Coppes said.

Cycle mates

Dear Lynn:

I was excited about Homecoming all this week. I called you up tonight when you were already in bed. You said you had some tents tomorrow so you better not talk long. If you ever called me, I'd talk to you all night long if you wanted to. You really have messed my mind. I'm going to get on my cycle tonight and do some riding. I won't be around for the dance this weekend. If I come back, it will be because of you, so don't be mad at me for what I've done.

Jyosami

The Notre Dame & l.U. psychology clubs are co-sponsoring an art sale at the Northern Indiana Children's Hospital (Notre Dame Ave.) on Nov. 9 between 1 and 4 p.m. The proceeds will be divided between the children and the proceeds will go toward their recreation fund. There will be an open house and a tour of the hospital.

Blodwyn Pig is quite mad

A & M Records' new British recording group Blodwyn Pig, who will soon be making their first U.S. tours, only made their English debut as a unit in February this year - but immediately made a massive impact as an original outfit of superb musicians who definitely had something to offer to the British music scene.

Of course, the four members were no newcomers to music, all had a firm grounding and had achieved acclaim in their own right with various groups. Leader Mick Abrahams, formerly guitarist with Jethro Tull, decided to form the group because he wanted to work in a particular direction with musicians who had the same musical ideas as himself. Mick had, in the past, played in groups with Andy Pyle and Jack Lancaster and during that time the three of them realized they were kindred spirits as far as music was concerned. They vowed they would eventually get together to form a group - and did, with the addition of Rom Berg on drums.

Jack Lancaster is a multi-instrumentalist - he plays tenor sax, soprano sax, flute, electric violin and sometimes bass clarinet. Andy Pyle plays six-string bass and cello. The group's versatility and scope renders them 'unclassifiable.' Mick comments: "People may say we are Blues based or have a heavy Modern Jazz influence - but you can't really categorize our music. We write most of our own material and have the essence of all sorts of music. We only needed to spend a full week rehearsing before we made our debut at Cooks Ferry Inn because we all knew in what direction we were heading."

Blodwyn Pig as a unit is not only unique - it is quite mad, and admits it. Its ad-lib announcements, its pure delight in performing, its unpredictability which also ensures a different and refreshing act at every appearance, puts them in a class of their own.

All numbers on their first A & M album were written by members of the group. Six of them being the compositions of Mick and Jack. Their album cover sports a gorgeous photo of a psychedelic pig - and one can perhaps sense the humor of the group from this. Although they take their music seriously, they also inject a lightness and gaiety into it. When you hear them, you will probably enjoy some of the jokes Mick comes out with in between numbers.

Blodwyn Pig is part of the new breed of British musicians who set trends which are felt in the international music world. They will be copied because they are original, but they will always remain leaders, developing as they do continually.

The Observer | Washington, D.C. | November 6, 1969 | Page 5
Letters to the Editor

A few days ago we were provided with a copy of your October 16th issue. We were sad and pleased with your tribute to our beloved son Lawrence A., Dirnberger. We want to express our appreciation to everyone concerned that took part in effecting this tribute in memory of Larry. The Moratorium as conducted at Notre Dame met with our approval and praise.

We were with Larry during his last few terribly painful days at the Clark Air Force Base Hospital in the Philippines. The wonderful “spirit of Notre Dame” was ever evident in Larry to his very end. His call for help cloud of dust and a cry of the Blessed Virgin Mary ations is in order, to wit:

The following is a letter from Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Dirnberger

Form resignation

Dear John:

We now possess the Home-coming Queen for the Navy game weekend. We actually have no use for her—not because she’s too bulky (she’d make a lovely paperweight), but because Pears doesn’t daintie, and Jim Kieble and Fr. Mac wouldn’t miss see- ing Smokey-Robinson together for anything...

I wish the above letter, or one analogous to it, could have been written by someone else but me...like a Notre Dame Vice President, or for example, the Rector of Grace. I, unfortunate- ly, am morally insensitive enough to think that the corner stone-napping was a real chuckle...and that a sense of humor at the Top could have elevated a situation described as stupid into an episode that would have sent every old Grad in the Grey (Cerulio) Havens of St. Petersburg chortling off to find his chemistry book.

But maybe to be Up Top is to be Up Tight.

Robert Griffin, C.S.C.

Pseudo-soul Brogan

Editor: I’m sorry but just can’t take it anymore. Please, for our sake, get that idiot pseudo-soul brother Jim Brogan out of here. Send him to Lincoln High School, send him back home, just set him out of here. He not only writes with a B-8-7 year old child in mind, but is also lyin’ to us.

1.) Smokey Robinson did not prove himself to be one of America’s great entertainers, but rather the distant relative of some cooing pigeon.

2.) He never, at any time, held the audience in the palm of his hand. The fact of the matter is that the vast majority of paying spectators were either asleep or getting there.

3.) The performance of the Miracles was not flawless, and furthermore did not relate to any of the audience (discounting ‘em high-schoolers).

4.) The audience was not psyched.

The concert, in fact, was ridiculous. I know of very few people who enjoyed it. Most would have been elsewhere had it not been for their dear HTFs. Every song sounded like a tambourine through her legs and sing dooobee, dooobie.

Sincerely,

Jim Brogan, get him out of here.

Bill Waipuk

222 Keanan

Dear John:

I have been with my intention to cast aspersions upon the personal honor or integrity of any individual within Student Government, nor to single out a particular person for censure.

It is my hope that our exchange of letters has served to air, for the benefit of the univer- sity community, the issues cen- tral to the problems of Student Government financing.

Sincerely,

Joe Wemhoff

---

Revolon invents the first 'Blotting Blusher'!

Blushers and oily skin don't mix, right? Wrong. Here's the first one with a special ingredient that blots up oil as it blushes on color. It's oil free! Medicated. In 5 shades oil can't spoil, 'cause no oil will break through. That's a promise. From Revlon.

Available at:

St. Mary's College Bookstore
Nothing is too ridiculous for the Ombudsman

by Jim Graif

"Nothing is too ridiculous for us to handle," goes the saying around the Ombudsman office. This sort of sums up the feeling of the office of the Student Government Cabinet. Ombudsman Commissioner Jim Smith explained that the purpose of the Ombudsman is to be the defender of the common man's rights.

"Our power lies in mediation," said Smith, while pointing out that as mediator between Student Government and the student body, the Ombudsman serves as the conscience of Student Government. The Ombudsman listens to and tries to solve specific student complaints which range from having trouble finding a day bed for a triple room to the fact that the rats around the lake are interfering with a guy's love life.

After listening to the complaint the Ombudsman office will telephone the people who most likely can rectify the situation and ask for help or at least an explanation of the reasons for the problem.

Smith pointed out that the commission has had a good relationship with maintenance and security, the two main sources of answers to student problems. In addition, the Ombudsman looks at the kind of problems being presented and tries to get to the source of the whole problem.

"As a university gets larger it becomes more depersonalized but with the Ombudsman there is at least one person the student can call to get something done," said Smith. He felt that the Ombudsman would like to see an academic grievance committee of both faculty and students which would handle problems that students are having with a particular course or teacher. It would also give faculty members a chance to express their grievances against students.

Smith felt that the Ombudsman commissioner should become an elected office since the commissioner is a student representative and an election would be a more representative way of choosing a commissioner. Both Smith and McKenna urged students to take advantage of the service.

Freshmen, Sophomores or Juniors

Interested in working to save the Contemporary Art Festival

Come to an important meeting

Thurs. 7:30 PM 123 Nieuwland

N.D. YOUNG DEMOCRATS

There will be a meeting for all old & new members at 6:30, 2nd floor LaFortune, Thursday (tonight). Purpose is to reorganize the club, and decide the role of the club on this campus.

A fresh look at

The technology of moving things

That's right! Grumman's real business is the technology of moving things ... men and machines in purposes patterns within a great diversity of origins, destinations and tactical situations. Speed is often, but not always, the answer. Performance reliability—in spite of many miracles—is the thing.

In close-in combat "dog fights"—an aircraft with speed, maneuverability and armaments ... the F-14 Air Superiority Fighter.

In lunar exploration—The Lunar Module which successfully landed the astronauts on the moon.

In areas of enemy activity—an aircraft with track and search radar that can locate, identify and lock on to the target, even in zero visibility ... the AIA Intruder, and advanced versions.

In early warning emergencies—an aircraft that can extend the eyes and ears of a Navy task force at sea through radar and computers that alert interceptor aircraft to impending enemy attacks ... the E2A Hawkeye, and advanced versions.

Far above the earth, a satellite that can discover more about the evolution of the universe ... the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory.

Add Deep Submersibles, Hydrofoil seacraft, High-speed Ground Transportation systems, Corporate aircraft and Lunar Surface vehicles, and you get some idea of how Grumman is extending the perimeters of technology.

At Grumman the opportunity for moving is presented in abundance to Physics, Aero, Civil, Mechanical, Electrical/Electronic, Chemical, Industrial Engineering or Technology Majors determined to find the right vehicle for their careers.

Grumman Representatives will be on campus THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1969
by Don Kennedy

Last year Notre Dame drew the bulk of its prospective varsity players from a land of 10,000 lakes. For this season, however, Coach "Lefty" Smith is comparing his Notre Dame material to the four corners of the continental U.S. To far away places like Montana or Minnesota to states like Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan and "Trail," British Columbia. The Irish have an abundance in number and talent. Form there and other scattered pockets of hockey in the U.S. Coach Smith has assembled a group of players it is a true joy for the coaching staff to see.

Two freshman will highlight the Irish's first-line attack. Gary Little, a tough scrapping forward, has high hopes for Little, a tough scorer who will be especially effective with penalty killing.

Don McNeil said those who failed to return showed for the nine who flatly said they weren't coming back. Price.

Larry Highbaugh, Bob Pernell, Benny Norman, Clarence Womack and Kevin Hoene led the Irish's first-line attack. Gary Little, a tough scrapper who'll start at left-wing with Price.

The nine who flatly said they won't be back include three seniors: Mike DeStefano, Tommy Stelmaszynski and putting his name on the first line. Others with lines split evenly to players in four positions. UI goaltender Rory Mozden, Hoene knocked in two goals back-to-back.

Little then out-fought two UI defenders for the puck, raced down the left side, and scored his first goal. He then raced down the right side, faked an inside move, dished to his center and scored his second goal, six minutes later.

Little was the only Irishman who scored. The Irish would substitute four players on the ice. In the second period, however, McNeil put four fresh defenders in. Smith's goals came off rebounds.

However, it's a slow motion picture with a first-line attack. The Irish managed only wouldn't make one first Convo last night. The Notre Dame coaching staff will be seeking for a 20-win season and Lefty would consider this a "highly successful season." Both Smith and assistant coach Tim McNeil feel this season's team should make a player's decision until they're a few games into the season. Heart and Tomasoni against each other, the Irish's first line, with only one goal.

ND icers plaster tardy UI

The hockey team representing the University of Illinois—Chicago Circle arrived at the Chicago Stadium. The game was pitting teams that probably felt they shouldn't have come at all. The carnage to practice Wednesday and were reinstated to the team without penalty by coach John Pont.

Coach Lefty Smith's young team buried the Chicagoans 10-0 in a game that began so sluggishly until freshman Gary Little got involved as a Showman handling the faceoffs. The laces have to be up so that the laces are to the kicker or off to one side, the kick wobbles. Only the most dedicated pro football fans can name the starting center, of the league. Pont's contract is incomplete, the only thing. Both Lombardi and Manders, with lines split evenly to players in four positions. UI goaltender Rory Mozden, Hoene knocked in two goals back-to-back.

Little then out-fought two UI defenders for the puck, raced down the left side, and scored his first goal. He then raced down the right side, faked an inside move, dished to his center and scored his second goal, six minutes later.

Little was the only Irishman who scored. The Irish would substitute four players on the ice. In the second period, however, McNeil put four fresh defenders in. Smith's goals came off rebounds. With another frosh-soph combination, consisting of veteran Mark Longar and rookie Mark Steinborn handling second-line defensive duties. Although de- termined to make up for the last year's squad, these four add the plus of three other fresh- men defensemen to the team. The Irish have a better chance this sea- son and Lefty would look for 75% improvement over last year's schedule poses a definite con- test for the Irish. Smith's minutes late in the game.

Both Lombardi and Manders, with lines split evenly to players in four positions. UI goaltender Rory Mozden, Hoene knocked in two goals back-to-back.

Little then out-fought two UI defenders for the puck, raced down the left side, and scored his first goal. He then raced down the right side, faked an inside move, dished to his center and scored his second goal, six minutes later.

Little was the only Irishman who scored. The Irish would substitute four players on the ice. In the second period, however, McNeil put four fresh defenders in. Smith's goals came off rebounds. With another frosh-soph combination, consisting of veteran Mark Longar and rookie Mark Steinborn handling second-line defensive duties. Although de- termined to make up for the last year's squad, these four add the plus of three other fresh- men defensemen to the team. The Irish have a better chance this sea- son and Lefty would look for 75% improvement over last year's schedule poses a definite con- test for the Irish. Smith's minutes late in the game.

Both Lombardi and Manders, with lines split evenly to players in four positions. UI goaltender Rory Mozden, Hoene knocked in two goals back-to-back.

Little then out-fought two UI defenders for the puck, raced down the left side, and scored his first goal. He then raced down the right side, faked an inside move, dished to his center and scored his second goal, six minutes later.

Little was the only Irishman who scored. The Irish would substitute four players on the ice. In the second period, however, McNeil put four fresh defenders in. Smith's goals came off rebounds. With another frosh-soph combination, consisting of veteran Mark Longar and rookie Mark Steinborn handling second-line defensive duties. Although de-