Subcommittee: ‘study’ for co-ed
Committee hears report

by Rick Smith

The Student Affairs Subcommittee met yesterday in closed session and discussed the much-talked about issue of Coeducation at Notre Dame. The Subcommittee concluded after its day-long meeting that since there was not enough information on the issue, a study on the implications and consequences of the expansion of the co-ex program, the introduction of Co-education, and the direction of the University in that area should be undertaken.

The meeting began with discussion about the alleged discrimination against female graduate students at Notre Dame, and the possibility of graduate students being placed on the Student Life Council. Black Studies and the teaching assistants’ problems were also topics on the morning’s agenda.

After the discussion, members of the subcommittee were brought in to the meeting to discuss at length the issue of co-e.

Father Walsh, Vice-President of Student Affairs, presented an overview of the financial implications of the co-ex program and of co-education. He concluded with a recommendation for a co-ex dorm on the campus.

Father Whelan, Director of Student Housing and Rector of Grace Towers, talked about the possibility of women living on campus and the implications of co-ed housing. He had talked to the possibility of eliminating St. Mary’s.

The first question concerned the University’s position on the possibility that St. Mary’s would be closed. Father Carney replied that he did not think that St. Mary’s had to be closed, “I don’t think it will have to have what you want.”

The next question concerned the possibility of Notre Dame’s becoming an obstacle to Notre Dame’s going co-ed and the consequent possibility that Notre Dame might have to close. Father Carney said that he did not want to make a commitment now but that he had some doubts about certain things St. Mary’s does and might consider that possibility. He said that ND would not go co-ed if SMC’s enrollment ever reached 3000 and the three to one ratio considered.

Students pueden satisface eventos
Camus conference heads list

SUAC reveals semester events

Funk, Frye, at Mardi Gras

by Glen Corso

Observer News Editor

Dewan was on the occasion of Mardi Gras, yesterday updated the current status of the event, and released the latest information on raffle collections.

Due to exams, there will be no formal raffle collection period until the evening of Friday, February 6. Dewan has received approximately $38,000, or slightly better than 10% of the designated goal.

However, he reserved the hope that many students have been unable to sell their chances due to the great amount of study time necessary for exams.

In addition, he felt that several students are presently holding out large amounts of money for their struggle for top salariesman with the trip to Bermuda riding on the outcome.

Dewan also noted that student interest in raffle collections during the carnival itself, which is scheduled to begin Thursday, February 3. In an effort to stimulate student interest, the Texas Club is running a concert on Saturday.

The effort is not limited to Texas Club members alone, for all students interested in the Mardi Gras campaign.

The normal number for the sales will be awarded to the Texas Club treasury, with a sufficient amount available to go towards a party for those who assisted in the drive.

Dewan issued a final plea to the students that they take time out during their semester break, and attempt to sell their two books.

Plans were also finalized yesterday regarding the annual Mardi Gras concert. Social Commissioner Dave Vecchi revealed that the fine hard rock group, Grand Funk, appearing with the very popular political impresario, David Frye, will be the attractions.

Vecchi related that definite plans were so immediately late in being announced due to several problems of communications with various groups, and the fact that many groups will be on tour or on vacation during early February.

Such groups as Creedence Clearwater Revival, Sly and the Family Stone, and other groups listed on a previous Social Commission survey were unavailable for a variety of reasons.

Vecchi also noted that, whereas he could offer the groups as many as five available dates for appearances during full concerts, he was limited to only one date over Mardi Gras.

Concerning Grand Funk, Vecchi remarked that the Commission had been working at hard rock for some time now, and that he is quite pleased with the selection, as well as with the selection of David Frye.

He further observed that the two acts, appearing for an hour each, would appeal to most students. He added that such a well-rounded concert, appealing to a wide group, would provide more than adequate entertainment.

The concert is scheduled for Friday, February 6, at 8:00 P.M. in the Convocation Center. Ticket prices have not been announced yet, but will be less than admission to the full concerts.

(continued on page 7)
McQueen acts as he hasn't before
Steve McQueen "The Reivers" (M) Technicolor
FRESHMEN
VOTE FOR FRESHMAN REPRESENTATIVE AT PARIELS TUES. 5 - 7 FRI.

...for credit or pleasure
The Department of Architecture will be giving a course for credit on Greek, Roman, Early Christian, Byzantine, Roman and Gothic architecture around the shores of the Mediterranean.

Combining on-shore illustrated lectures with on-shore study of architectural monuments, the cruise course will visit the following between June 30 and August 4: Italy, Corfu, Crete, Egypt, Rhodes, Greece, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Malta, North Africa, Algeria, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, and Portugal, France and England.

The cruise course is open to all students, and is especially expected to appeal to those students who will be finishing or beginning the Department's Rome Program. The cruise course will be led by Assistant Professor J. Daniel Selig of the Department, who will instruct on art history at special museums to be visited as well as on aspects of architectural photography. Enrolled students may, in addition, audit one of the other courses being given aboard, which include Music (Indiana University), History of Ancient Civilization (Western Michigan University) and Photography (Rochester Institute of Technology).

Because the program is combined with other universities, an especially attractive all-inclusive cost is offered, $1098 (plus $29 tax) from New York. For those wishing to join the program in Europe, the all-inclusive cost is only $823 (plus $29). For further information, contact the Secretary, Department of Architecture, Ext. 6137.

PUBLIC NOTICE
THE SLC PLACEMENT BUREAU COMMITTEE WILL HOLD AN OPEN HEARING
Monday, Jan. 19 at 7:00 p.m.
in the Farley Hall Basement Lounge

to hear specific recommendations on policies and procedures of the Placement Bureau from any interested members of the Notre Dame community. In addition, the Committee is interested in documenting any accusations of unfair practices by the Placement Bureau in dealing with students and organizations utilizing its services. Written statements will be accepted and appreciated.

Class leaders join to blast SG
by Cliff Winnrode
Observer Associate Editor

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year.

The lack of finances from Student Government and the discouraging or banning of proposed class activities by Student Government and the Student Union has been a major contributing factor in the failure of the class governments this year. The class governments' success or failure have been on the basis of the manner in which the classes have been able to cooperate on a student government level.

The failure of this past year's class governments is due to the lack of cooperation between the classes, the lack of financial backing from the classes and the classes' inability to cooperate on a class level.

The four class presidents in an open letter to Student Government and the Student Union, charged that their "repressive and uncooperative" attitude towards the classes has been responsible for the failure of the class governments this year. The lack...
Referendum to be sent out

Conditions and prices in the pay cafeteria head the agenda for this afternoon's weekly meeting of the Graduate Student Union.

Since the majority of the graduate students eat at least one meal there each day, it is thought that the GSU should concern itself with the situation in the hope of improving the fare.

Glee Club sings

Last Sunday the Moreau Choral, St. Mary's Glee Club and Notre Dame's Glee Club sang the Dello Joio Mass at the newly renovated Holy Name Cathedral in Chicago. The group was invited by the cathedral to help celebrate its re-opening.

How'd they do it? With mirrors? Blackmail? How was Flanner Hall able to get $4,000 from the University to finance the construction of their coffeehouse, "America?"

Father Wilson C.S.C., Vice President for Business Affairs, offered a simple explanation to this perplexing question, economic opportunity.

"The room being used is an unfinished room which the University would have had to complete eventually," he said. "The cost could have been anything, so I felt that this would be a good inexpensive way to do it."

Coffeehouse gets 4g's

The figure $25,000 was mentioned by Father Wilson in regard to the costs of other possible methods of completing the room.

Father Wilson pointed out that the Flanner representatives had felt that the idea was one which would provide something useful for the students. He also mentioned that he felt that the students, in terms of time and effort, would probably end up investing as much as the university in the room.

The primary reason behind the move is that it gets the room finished and at a cost below what it would otherwise have been.

Questions? Call 1408

At the Notre Dame Bookstore
SMC Off-campus housing

A large number of St. Mary’s students have taken issue with the college’s forced on-campus living. A student committee was formed to research the feasibility of off-campus living for the college. Their findings, printed in an Observer series this past week, have shown that the prospect is not only possible, but virtually necessary for the future progress of the institution and its students.

As of August 31, 1969, Saint Mary’s was operating on a deficit of $469,015, a sum which is nearly half of that of Notre Dame. In an attempt to augment its income, the college will be admitting more students than can be comfortably housed. If its ultimate goal is to admit enough students to stay off the possibility of Notre Dame opening its doors to women, then Saint Mary’s must either build new dorms, discover other facilities, or lose its autonomy when Notre Dame houses SMC students. The college cannot afford to do the first, and the second would occur only with total merger. Off-campus housing would allow for an increase in the number of tuition-paying students, and therefore a decrease in the deficit. Financially, it seems that Saint Mary’s has no other option.

Saint Mary’s has been striving for diversity among its student body, bringing in students from other cultures, exposing its students to new types of curricula, and, for the most part, encouraging the individual to foster personal responsibilities. It should not, now, back away from permitting its students to undertake the most enriching experience it could offer—having them learn to live independently in the world that they must ultimately deal with. The positive returns to the college atmosphere and community in terms of opinion and perspective are unlimited, and far outweigh any argument against the issue.

Any argument concerning the potential immorality precipitated by the measure invalidates itself, not because there are not greater opportunities, but because the college institution does not now, have and never should have had, the right to legislate morality for the individual. Freedom of conscience, the basis of Catholic morality, means freedom of each individual to do what he believes is best for him, not what someone else believes is best for him.

The argument that off-campus living is unsafe for the St. Mary’s student is thoroughly without basis in fact. The majority of the South-Bend-Niles residential areas should be much less suspect than St. Mary’s where just this past Christmas Campus Security was unable to halt the nightly theft of 30-foot trees, and where numerous assaults, attempted and completed, have occurred each year. The Saint Mary’s campus is frighteningly accessible to anyone even slightly desirous of entry, and, as the home of 1300 women, an obvious attraction for a sick mind. None of the arguments against off-campus living for 21-year-olds holds any importance in reality. To progress at all in a world where experience is becoming the mark of the truly knowledgeable person, Saint Mary’s must begin to anticipate all the trends of the future and make the benefits of those trends accessible to those students who desire to be exposed to them. We urge all those involved in deciding this issue to open to the students their rightful opportunities to grow and mature in the atmosphere they see most fit.

SMC and coeducation

An open letter to the Saint Mary’s Community:

The question of coeducation and the possible merger with Notre Dame has been the $64,000 question for the four years that I’ve attended SMC. My personal experience with this problem began freshman year when I was chosen by the “Cross” editor to coax a statement from Sister Mary Grace on the ultimate goals of the coeducation program. That interview seems to have set the pattern for all succeeding attempts to define the direction of the co-exchange program. I was informed that we were “cooperating” and that was all. In the 1969-70 school year we have witnessed the “coeducation” of our freshman classes. When I probe for greater detail on what plans for the future exist, I am told that there are no long term plans and that we shouldn’t be concerned with them for they may scare someone, namely the SMC faculty; and this by the Chairman of the ND-SMC Coordinating Committee, Father Sheedy. In his own words, “We’ll cross each bridge as we come to it.”

SMC is becoming a victim of the unwillfulness of its administration to formulate a strong policy and stick by it. The SMC administration is trying to please ND in order to keep our brother school from co-ed on its own because of the detrimental results to SMC. Appeasement is the name of the game we’re playing and no one is admitting how it may end.

I favor coeducation and its implications. I want to see the 3-1 ratio achieved as soon as possible. What I object to is the lack of honesty and logic in the handling of these issues. SMC is a very different place now than it was four years ago and no one then seemed to know that we would be where we are now. This year’s freshman class has no idea and certainly no guarantee of what kind of an institution they will be graduating from and they have a right to know.

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s Plan as articulated by Father Hesburgh and Father McGrath last summer is “The Christian education of youth.” They suggest that we not follow anyone’s lead but (and I quote), “We are doing our own thing.” BUT WHAT IS OUR OWN THING? That is the question the Saint Mary’s College Community demands to be answered.

Sincerely,
Susan Turnbull
Student Body President

Letters

SMC and coeducation

An open letter to the Saint Mary’s Community:

The question of coeducation and the possible merger with Notre Dame has been the $64,000 question for the four years that I’ve attended SMC. My personal experience with this problem began freshman year when I was chosen by the “Cross” editor to coax a statement from Sister Mary Grace on the ultimate goals of the coeducation program. That interview seems to have set the pattern for all succeeding attempts to define the direction of the co-exchange program. I was informed that we were “cooperating” and that was all. In the 1969-70 school year we have witnessed the “coeducation” of our freshman classes. When I probe for greater detail on what plans for the future exist, I am told that there are no long term plans and that we shouldn’t be concerned with them for they may scare someone, namely the SMC faculty; and this by the Chairman of the ND-SMC Coordinating Committee, Father Sheedy. In his own words, “We’ll cross each bridge as we come to it.”

SMC is becoming a victim of the unwillfulness of its administration to formulate a strong policy and stick by it. The SMC administration is trying to please ND in order to keep our brother school from co-ed on its own because of the detrimental results to SMC. Appeasement is the name of the game we’re playing and no one is admitting how it may end.

I favor coeducation and its implications. I want to see the 3-1 ratio achieved as soon as possible. What I object to is the lack of honesty and logic in the handling of these issues. SMC is a very different place now than it was four years ago and no one then seemed to know that we would be where we are now. This year’s freshman class has no idea and certainly no guarantee of what kind of an institution they will be graduating from and they have a right to know.

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s Plan as articulated by Father Hesburgh and Father McGrath last summer is “The Christian education of youth.” They suggest that we not follow anyone’s lead but (and I quote), “We are doing our own thing.” BUT WHAT IS OUR OWN THING? That is the question the Saint Mary’s College Community demands to be answered.

Sincerely,
Susan Turnbull
Student Body President

Letters

SMC and coeducation

An open letter to the Saint Mary’s Community:

The question of coeducation and the possible merger with Notre Dame has been the $64,000 question for the four years that I’ve attended SMC. My personal experience with this problem began freshman year when I was chosen by the “Cross” editor to coax a statement from Sister Mary Grace on the ultimate goals of the coeducation program. That interview seems to have set the pattern for all succeeding attempts to define the direction of the co-exchange program. I was informed that we were “cooperating” and that was all. In the 1969-70 school year we have witnessed the “coeducation” of our freshman classes. When I probe for greater detail on what plans for the future exist, I am told that there are no long term plans and that we shouldn’t be concerned with them for they may scare someone, namely the SMC faculty; and this by the Chairman of the ND-SMC Coordinating Committee, Father Sheedy. In his own words, “We’ll cross each bridge as we come to it.”

SMC is becoming a victim of the unwillfulness of its administration to formulate a strong policy and stick by it. The SMC administration is trying to please ND in order to keep our brother school from co-ed on its own because of the detrimental results to SMC. Appeasement is the name of the game we’re playing and no one is admitting how it may end.

I favor coeducation and its implications. I want to see the 3-1 ratio achieved as soon as possible. What I object to is the lack of honesty and logic in the handling of these issues. SMC is a very different place now than it was four years ago and no one then seemed to know that we would be where we are now. This year’s freshman class has no idea and certainly no guarantee of what kind of an institution they will be graduating from and they have a right to know.

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s Plan as articulated by Father Hesburgh and Father McGrath last summer is “The Christian education of youth.” They suggest that we not follow anyone’s lead but (and I quote), “We are doing our own thing.” BUT WHAT IS OUR OWN THING? That is the question the Saint Mary’s College Community demands to be answered.

Sincerely,
Susan Turnbull
Student Body President

Letters

SMC and coeducation

An open letter to the Saint Mary’s Community:

The question of coeducation and the possible merger with Notre Dame has been the $64,000 question for the four years that I’ve attended SMC. My personal experience with this problem began freshman year when I was chosen by the “Cross” editor to coax a statement from Sister Mary Grace on the ultimate goals of the coeducation program. That interview seems to have set the pattern for all succeeding attempts to define the direction of the co-exchange program. I was informed that we were “cooperating” and that was all. In the 1969-70 school year we have witnessed the “coeducation” of our freshman classes. When I probe for greater detail on what plans for the future exist, I am told that there are no long term plans and that we shouldn’t be concerned with them for they may scare someone, namely the SMC faculty; and this by the Chairman of the ND-SMC Coordinating Committee, Father Sheedy. In his own words, “We’ll cross each bridge as we come to it.”

SMC is becoming a victim of the unwillfulness of its administration to formulate a strong policy and stick by it. The SMC administration is trying to please ND in order to keep our brother school from co-ed on its own because of the detrimental results to SMC. Appeasement is the name of the game we’re playing and no one is admitting how it may end.

I favor coeducation and its implications. I want to see the 3-1 ratio achieved as soon as possible. What I object to is the lack of honesty and logic in the handling of these issues. SMC is a very different place now than it was four years ago and no one then seemed to know that we would be where we are now. This year’s freshman class has no idea and certainly no guarantee of what kind of an institution they will be graduating from and they have a right to know.

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s Plan as articulated by Father Hesburgh and Father McGrath last summer is “The Christian education of youth.” They suggest that we not follow anyone’s lead but (and I quote), “We are doing our own thing.” BUT WHAT IS OUR OWN THING? That is the question the Saint Mary’s College Community demands to be answered.

Sincerely,
Susan Turnbull
Student Body President
In search of a (truly) meaningful dialogue

by Dave Stauffer

While conscientiously going about the work of putting together a feature page last night, I realized that no meaningful dialogue had been written for the past several years, and one-half years of college, I had yet to engage in a "meaningful dialogue." Worse yet, I didn't even know what a meaningful dialogue was. Determined to correct this tragic emptiness in my young life, I immediately set out not only to discover the meaning of "meaningful dialogue," but also to successfully engage in whatever it happened to be.

The toilet was flushed, the ----, went down

by Tom Ehrbar

Friday, I had a date. Because Tuesday I was going to an important baseball game, a march of the stars and a chance to see the league's best. The toilet was flushed, the ----, went down.

Step onto the icy sidewalk at the south side of the Student Center, I was forced to make a frantic dive into the snow to avoid a distressing collision with the super-charged engine of my own car. Before I could say "Talk don't mean a thing," and concluded that this would not be the source of an acceptable answer.

"Your roommates," I said. "Otherwise, I want to see something devastating, something overwhelming. I said "What the hell are you doing in there -- writing a novel on the inside walls."

"Talk don't mean a thing, and concluded that this would not be the source of an acceptable answer."

"The toilet was flushed, the ----, went down."
Carney: no possibility excluded

In reply to the next question, Dr. Carney said that the subcommittee was committed to having girls on campus. "No possibility will be excluded in trying to find the most readily adaptable situation," Carney said.

A suggestion that the male enrollment be decreased to accommodate the female students won loud applause from the audience.

The subcommittee was asked if it had any more immediate plans. Dr. Carney replied that the Princeton study had taken one year. "We have complete confidence that we will be co-ed. We're committed to the thing right now."

Next, a female graduate who had spoken to the meeting earlier in the morning, asked about the alleged discrimination against her. Dr. Carney agreed there was discrimination. The meeting then livened up further as the next questioner attacked the school for discriminating against 51% of the population of the country.

"We should consider the fact that they're human, too. We have no right to exclude them," the speaker contended.

When asked why the University doesn't reduce its male enrollment as the most feasible method of going co-ed, one of the trustees said, "you don't just do it overnight. You'll never see the day when there are swarms of women here. It'll take five to seven years to reach the standard ratio."

In conclusion, Mr. Zimmerman said, "After getting everything I asked for and being told how urgent the problem is, I was disappointed that the students couldn't have been at the whole meeting. If we can clarify the deceptions, we can develop much more meaningfully and quickly a basis for accomplishing that which we have asked for today."

1st Anniversary Appreciation Special

Enjoy fine steak dinners broiled to your order. Dine in comfortable and attractive surroundings. Our thank you for a wonderful first year is the second steak dinner at half-price. Regular prices just $1.09 to $1.89 for steak dinners.

BLACK ANGUS

STEAK HOUSE
1520 N. Ironwood Dr
South of Campus between South Bend Ave. & Edison Rd.
Coupon for Second Dinner of Same Value at Half Price
Good Thursday, Jan. 15
Valid: Sunday, Jan. 17
Mardi Gras Ball cancelled

Jim Brogan, Chairman of Mardi Gras Ball, announced yesterday that the ball was cancelled this year, due to problems in scheduling that were unavoidable.

"After much thought and deliberation, I regret to announce the cancellation of the Mardi Gras Ball for this year. This has nothing to do with Mardi Gras's present financial plight, but was made in the interest of the entire student body and the weekend. An effort has been made to streamline the weekend and tailor it to the desire of the greatest number of students.

"Had the Ball been held as originally scheduled on Friday evening this would have forced the concert to be held on Sunday afternoon, due to the basketball game Saturday afternoon and the carnival activities Saturday night. Needless to say, a Sunday afternoon concert would be less successful. The Mardi Gras Committee in conjunction with Student Union officials decided that a concert held on Friday night serving as many as 11,000 people, would be a greater service than a dance which could only accommodate 700 couples.

Comm. hears reports

(continued from page 1)

The sixth speaker was Father Charles Sheedy, Dean of Theological Studies and chairman of the co-education coordinating committee. The subject of Father Sheedy's talk was the difficulties in trying to define what the school wants to do in the field of co-education. He said that Notre Dame and St. Mary's have agreed to have a "substantial" number of courses in common. The combined Notre Dame-St. Mary's diploma for any St. Mary's student who has taken a number of courses in her major at Notre Dame.

Zimmerman in association with Sheedy's talk of business at the executive meeting of the board of trustees was the difficulties in trying to define what the school wants to do in the field of co-education. The co-education program was fine as a starting point, but that it should definitely be expanded.

Subcommittee head Dr. Thomas Carney promised that the issue would be the first order of business at the executive meeting of the board of trustees in Florida next March.

"It is my recommendation that both a Ball and concert be held in future years as has been traditional for this weekend. Hopefully, the same timing and circumstances that made this year will not be present in the future and a more complete weekend will be possible.

"I would like to thank all those who have so diligently worked on the ball, even though their effort has apparently gone for naught.

"I must apologize to all those who have already made plans for the Ball assuming that it would be part of this weekend, I can only stress that the Dance was cancelled before Christmas, and that no publicity to date has mentioned the dance itself, in any specific terms, as being part of the weekend," he said.

---

GRAND FUNK RAILROAD

"Hard Rock at its Best" J.B.
"They Exude Magic, Sex, Ferre
Tempo and Excitement" Observer Nov. 21 '69

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1970 ACC

CONCERT IN MARDI GRAS HISTORY

TICKETS ON SALE AFTER SEMESTER BREAK

PRESENTED BY STUDENT UNION SOCIAL COMMISSION AND ATHLETIC & CONVOCATION CENTER

---

David Frye

"I Love Him; He's Good" R.M.N.
See: Richard Nixon Henry Fonda
Lyndon Johnson Nelson Rockefeller
William Buckley Huntley & Brinkley
At Their Best
Spock, Fortas, possibilities

(continued from page 1)

Paul Goodman, author of Growing Up Absurd, will speak on February 15th, followed by Stanley Marcus, an urban affairs advisor to President Nixon, on the 17th.

Due to the poor response to the recent poll held by SUAC, they have decided to ask Dr. Benjamin Spock to appear on Feb. 19th. As yet his appearance is still unconfirmed. On Feb. 22nd Dr. Han Morgenthau, renowned International Relations expert, will lecture. His speech topic is as yet undetermined.

On Feb. 25th Dave Steinberg, head of the National Council for Responsible Firearms, will speak on gun control. His lecture will be the opening event in SUAC's Law and Order conference.

Between March 1st and 6th, a representative of the Justice Department will give a talk on recent Justice Department crackdowns on the Mafia in New Jersey. Also scheduled during this period are talks by members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Also tentatively scheduled is a visit by the Director of the Indiana Prison system.

As well as the lecturers, a number of symposiums where students and faculty can state their views are scheduled. SUAC has contacted ex-Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to appear for this conference. As of yet they have received no definite word on his appearance.

When asked if the rumor that Chicago District Attorney Edward Hanenhan might appear for the Law and Order Conference, McDonough replied, "My feeling is that he will be reluctant to come, because of the remarks made by Ronnie Davis and because he might not receive a very good welcome. Of course if Mr. Henenhan wants to come, we'll be very glad to have him."

Rifle clinic

The 5th Army Rifle Team has announced a Marksmen's Clinic to be held today and tomorrow at the ND Army Rifle Range. Today, expert instruction will be given from 1-4:30 PM. For information, call 283-6264.

The sale is on

Choose university-style SUITS, SPORTCOATS AND TOPCOATS

Savings of

1/3 1/2 1/4

Stop in and stock up; the selection is great, the savings are greater! This is THE sale of the year.

YOUR STORE IN PRICE...