Tracey attacks abstention flyers

by Ann Conway

Irish News Editor

St. Mary's SBF hopeful Ann Marie Tracey last night discussed her reaction to flyers recently circulated on campus advising students to abstain in the vote for Student Body President and Vice President. "These flyers express a valid point," according to Miss Tracey. "They question the whole idea of the deadlock of the platforms of the two candidates in this election. They ask for progressiveness in the student government, but unfortunately offer no constructive suggestions.

The flyers which appeared on campus Saturday state "a careful look at the platform reveals that neither contain any concrete, viable, or necessary proposals." This Miss Tracey took issue with stating that "in our platform we spoke of the direction of the Student Government and St. Mary's as a whole. We can't promise what can't be fulfilled. We offer some general ideas but leave these areas open for further experimentation. We realize the pitfalls of the Student government as it now exists, and we do offer specific programs such as the restructuring of this government thus improving the lines of communication between the government and the individual students."

The flyers offer as an alternative to the election of the SBF that the students obtain amnesty for a "moratorium of one year on Student Government activities. During this time any important issues could be dealt with by means of 'ad hoc' committees." Miss Tracey stated that this would be a big mistake. "In November, we questioned only the Student Government and nothing more. During the time it was suspended. The consideration of the flyers that there is something wrong with Student government is valid, but suspension is not the answer."

Speaking at the open forum later that evening, Miss Tracey stated, "Structure with thought is one way of attaining community. By abolishing the structure, in this case student government, through the abstention movement, you destroy the means of attaining a community. Community is not the something wrong with Student government is valid, but surprisingly it is one way of attaining a community. Turning to her campaign, Miss Tracey stated that she was pleased with student interest, especially with that of the freshmen. "People think the freshmen are not aware of student government. I said, "People think the freshmen are not aware of student government."

Cusick talks on issues

by Mary Kay Davey

"Community government presupposes a bond among the people involved. This bond transcends set procedures or structures," commented Carol Cusick, SBF candidate in an interview yesterday afternoon.

A community is an on-going process of human relationships. The means of communication must be incorporated in any poll in it it is trying to attain."

Carol stressed the fact that the means a government chooses for operation must be consistent with and reflective of the end it is aiming towards.

Carol commented extensively on the area of academic reform. She stated that she and Susan Way, her vice-presidential running mate, would work towards open academic committees and council meetings.

"In this way the reforms would be more reflective of community desires," she stated.

Specifically, Carol stated four reform goals. She feels the pass-fail system should be extended to all non-major courses and that curriculum changes should take place in regards to courses that are geared towards objective testing.

Thirdly, Carol expressed a slogan for increased student-faculty dialogue. Formally, this may occur through the continuation of the faculty lecture series and informally, by bringing faculty into the dining halls and dorms to provide more opportunities for communication.

Finally, Carol expressed her desire to implement plans for an experimental college. The goal of such a college would be to

Abstention Movement strikes at foul play

by Trudy Wear

The SMC Student Government election has brought about rather strange developments, the most notable being the Abstention Movement.

Posters appeared late Friday night, urging students to vote and abstain in the SMC Student Body President race. According to the initiators of the Abstention Movement, "the speed and dexterity with which these posters were destroyed prevented what was the main objective of the Movement - a free and unbiased discussion of the value and means of the present governmental structure."

Judging from the comments of Carol Cusick, SBF candidate, the campaign did not go entirely unnoticed.

Cusick, who is totally independent of the Movement, stated that she felt it raised legitimate and necessary questions.

ND to be in full compliance with government dictates

by Cliff Winnodt
Observer Associate Editor

Mr. Philip Facenda, Special Assistant to the President, Saturday dismissed any statements that the University faces the immediate loss of federal funds by rumors of projected "suggestions" to Notre Dame's "full compliance." Title 6 of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which concluded with HEW offering approximately twenty "suggestions" to insure Notre Dame's "full compliance," Title 6 prohibits dispensing university facilities on the basis of race, religion, or national origin. Facenda explained that Notre Dame was considered to be in "substantive compliance" with Title 6 by HEW and "full compliance" is expected from HEW by the end of the semester or sooner.

The question that HEW addressed to us was how can we better advertise our compliance, said Facenda.

The question of the possible loss of funds has been mentioned during the current Student Body President campaign, and to stop any false statements Student Body President Phil McNamee and SMC Student Government activities were immediately disturbed about the status of teaching assistants at Notre Dame — especially in regards to contracts, stipends, and grievance structures. Furthermore the National Committee on Teaching Assistants and Junior Members of the American Association of University Professors in Washington, D.C. gave its report.

According to Lorimer, the organization met for ten hours in committee and issued a statement saying "The National Office of the A.A.U.P. is extremely disturbed about the status of teaching assistants at Notre Dame — especially in regards to contracts, stipends, and grievance structures. Furthermore the National Committee on Teaching Assistants and Junior Members of the American Association of University Professors in Washington, D.C. gave its report."

Lorimer, a graduate student in the English department, stated that the final sentence could be interpreted as supporting both the G.S.U. and participation by teaching assistants in American Federation of Teachers. In fact, he urged members to join this organization and be involved in organizing the teachers in state union structure.

During the course of the meeting, members were also interested in hearing about their participation on other bodies here at the University.

On one hand, it was noted that anyone who had anything to say was invited before the members met with the University Forum at the March meeting, had until today to submit any suggestions to the forum.

Krashna challenges

by Bill Carter

Addressing himself to problems surrounding the issues of racial tension, coeducation and academic reform Student Body President candidate Dave Krashna spoke to students at an informal session in Stanford Hall last night. Krashna outlined some of his ideas for improving the racial situation on campus, which he described as "definitely hostile." Krashna stressed the necessity for fundamental changes in the attitude on campus before effective measures toward creating a complete community environment can be worked out.

Krashna answered specific objections to the so-called "black concentrations" in some of the halls. "The problem of black concentrations is not a black problem but a white problem," Krashna said. "The black student has done something about the environment he has found here, and now the white student has to do something about it too."

"We see the problem as one of exposure. People have got to quit quibbling about things they aren't sure about. We've got to go at the problem with its basic subtleties in mind. If we can detect some of the complexities the Administration puts on us we can start to make the needed changes where they have to be made, in the total atmosphere of the university and campus life."

Several specific proposals were included in Krashna's call for an easing of the hostile racial atmosphere. He pointed out that there were no real black sections in any of the halls on campus but that the present situation could be improved by fusing some black sections with white sections. He felt that the Student Government should take action in reworking the programs of the Student Government to diversify the participation of the Student Union. In addition, Krashna expressed his support for the recent recommendation of the Black Studies Program that all students on campus take at least one Black Studies course.

"Right now I do believe the black concentrations should remain, on the theory that they can provide a comfortable transition for blacks that have come from an all black environment to an all white environment. The fullest manifestation of this theory can be seen in the case of predominantly black colleges where there may be 98% black students. This 2% white students sit all together and no one questions why."

Peterson stresses individuality

by Greg Pudhorodsky

Student Body candidate Pete Peterson, working a full day that he said spans up to eighteen hours, spent the weekend distributing his views in the individual halls, continually emphasizing an "honest and individual" approach in the campaign.

"What I propose is that instead of waiting for us to be left to the pages of the Student, or The Observer, or another politicalized organizational view of presenting Notre Dame. What I propose is that instead of waiting for us to be left to the pages of the Student or the Observer, or another "politico" view of presenting Notre Dame, the student body should take a positive, constructive, and direct campaign to support the people that do not support us."

"The General Program junior, commenting on his non-political status, said that most of the presidents in the past have followed Notre Dame with law school. He said that the response to this literature, consisting of his platform's general outline, has had been favorable. Responding to criticism that though many of the ideas are good, they are also unrealistic, Peterson said that he and his running mate, Rory Barnich, make the second prom- ises: "If elected we will work for hall autonomy, and we promise a full-fledged support of coeducation in the fall of September or October."

The student assembly is designed to enable students who and his running mate, Rory Barnich, make the second promises: "If elected we will work for hall autonomy, and we promise a full-fledged support of coeducation in the fall of September or October."

Creative student government

Less than two days remain before Notre Dame elects a Student Body President. As with every spring election, race excitement is at a fever pitch in the halls and issues are being discussed and argued by almost everyone.

Most students are assessing this year's student government and its failures to bring about change, hall community, and communication and are arguing that one candidate or the other will CHANGE things next year. The change being looked for is that of a change in atmosphere, a sense of real community.

When there are two or more people running for office there is usually no doubt that one of them will be more effective than another, that one of them will work harder or communicate more. Students here usually depend on that fact and use it as a crutch -- as an excuse to sit back after the election is over, to stop talking about the issues, and to wait expecting for the new leadership to do what it promised.

We must come to realize that such complacency after the candidate is elected is antithetical to all arguments that are being made for community government. What all candidates are arguing for is a continuation of student interest in student government and community development after the election is over.

Spirit and atmosphere are two things that can not be legislated nor created by any amount of student government effort. They are two things that each individual student must be willing to commit himself to and work for. Like education itself, community can not be created by any one institution but rather is acquired only to the degree that each man is willing to work for it on his own.

Problems on campus concerning relations between white and white, and white and black, and black and black, and any two groups that have disagreement are solved to the degree that each participant is willing to remain open minded, is willing to learn, and to respect the other's point of view. New ideas and changes will be accepted and instituted only to the degree that each person is willing to be involved, and of a desire to work together but on a common objective of doing what will eventually prove to be best for the Notre Dame community -- for the students, faculty, and administrators and all others that are a part of it.

There has been too much arrogance at Notre Dame in the past. Too many students have been willing to write off the administration as a group of old men dedicated to backwardness, too many administrators have been willing to characterize all students as being irresponsible and incapable of playing a role in providing direction. Too many faculty members have been willing to sit back content that what they offered in class is enough to insure educational development and so have not worked to make sure that an educational environment exists outside of the classroom. Too many student leaders have been willing to argue that they have all the answers before examining all the implications of their call for change.

We hope that the student body will continue to maintain the interest in student issues after the campaign is over. To expect that any one candidate can bring about the changes that we need without students working along with him is to delude ourselves to the point of naivete.

On Female Liberation

This piece is not intended to speak to women about their oppression, but to detail the origin, reality, and implications of male supremacy as understood in anthropology, history and political economy.

Rather, it is to commemorate Sunday, March 8-International Women's Day-a good time to recall the long history of women's struggle against inferior status, and to begin to reverse the failure of "redicals" at Notre Dame to consistently fight against male supremacy. Nor should it make the men to whom it is addressed think that what the women's movement itself says shouldn't be printed in the Observer.

Briefly, the problem stems from an economic division dating from the origins of primitive property and class distinctions. Women--particularly blacks--are underpaid: in 1965 white and black men averaged $6,375 and $4,980 in earnings, while white and black women averaged $3,744 and $2,642 respectively. Women form a fluid, relatively unskilled surplus labor pool which is used in competition with unionized workers; these patterns have intensified in postwar years, with substantial drops in relative income for women.

Finally, they provide unpaid domestic labor and child-rearing services at a cost far less than that of equivalent hired labor.

New techniques of consumer exploitation have hit women in particular: a leading advertising "motivator" has written, "Properly manipulated...American housewives can be given the sense of identity, purpose, creativity, the self-realization, even the sexual joy they lack--by the buying of things...In a free enterprise economy we have to develop the need for new products...The manufacturer wants her back into the kitchen--and we show him how to do it..."

American women are told that their fulfillment through housework, children, and sexual-emotional gratification of their husbands is sufficient; they should vicariously identify with his career, since he is organically suited for "worldly affairs" as she is not. This ideology of male supremacy was developed in the 1930's campaign for "Kinder, Kuche, Kirche" (children, kitchen, church) for women, along with racism, fascism, and national chauvinism.

Notre Dame "men" exemplify this. An hour in a dormitory will show how women are seen as objects, as "chicks", or broads, of... (removed by the editor). A glance at the paper or bulletin boards shows the same in movie advertising. A trip to the library, a mixer, or even a "freak" party reveals the dehumanizing games being played in the eternal competition for sex on one side, and marriage on the other. Finally, a sensitive look at sports, religious life, and campus politics (including the liberals) will discern elements of the machismo or being called a "fag" as and the popular jokes and stories about homosexuality, as if one's "manhood" had to be continually justified against one's sexual insecurity.

Notre Dame, Inc., exhibits the usual pattern in its higher-level employment: female clerical workers serve male managers and faculty. The education it sells is geared to success in a clan which is overwhelmingly white and male dominated and male chauvinism in its admissions patterns. The problem is complicated by the fact that it is in the short-run advantage of the men who come to St. Mary's for an N.D. husband to oppose a change in the ratio.

But all this leaves out the most important consideration: the seeds and implications of the working population of America, including the need to end the divisions of race and sex which weaken them, and particularly of the average young woman faced with a choice of second-rate employment or household subservience, including her need for higher education. Any Notre Dame man who thinks of himself as on the side of social progress, or as considering himself about the honesty of his personal relationships had better start relating to this, and support the demands made upon their university by the women's movement.

The opening was scheduled for 9:00 p.m. By 7:30 p.m., people had lined up outside the building. By 9:30 p.m., the crowd had grown to nearly 500 and was still listing in line. The line stretched the length of a city block. By 9:00 p.m., when the doors opened, there were over 500 people inside. The showing was over 9:15 p.m.: space for eleven. 9:15 p.m.: space for six cases of liquor. 9:15 p.m. Mar. 11:00 p.m.: galleries completely taken up.

The Treasury.—A crowd had grown to nearly 500 people on the street. The show itself concerns a Himalayan bear. Many of the animals in his act and denied treating them cruelly. He said they were fed twice daily and exercised but otherwise kept indoors.

Critics have said that the animals created an uproar which could be heard outside the trailer. Inside, they said, cages were crammed with three goats, two opossums, a monkey, three peacocks and his wife. Six trackmen were required to transport the animals to the Orange County Animal Shelter. Also inside the trailer were 13 dogs, four cats, six pigeons, five doves, three rabbits, five guinea pigs, one duck, nine chickens, three guinea pigs, one guinea pig, and two turtles.

Charges were filed against the owner for animal cruelty, possession of wild animals within the city limits and operating an unlicensed dog kennel. He was arrested against Whiteriver, 37, and his wife, Detha, police said Sunday. He was held on warrants for traffic violations.

Peter Peterson, the investigating officer, said the couple was living in the trailers, which also contained a bed and a toilet.

Whiteriver told police he used the animals in his act and denied treating them cruelly. He said they were fed twice daily and exercised but otherwise kept indoors.

Police had to use tranquilizer guns to remove some of the animals, including a 200-pound Himalayan bear. Many of the cages were about the same size as the animals they contained, they said.

Identity purposes, each hammock was named with a wood taken from Yoko Ono’s book, Grapefruit, published by the Lee Nordness Galleries on February 6, 1970. The exhibition is the fourth in a series of special Lenten programs sponsored by the United Methodist Church of LaFayette at 3 p.m. (CST) on Wednesday, March 11.

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s National Traveling Players in its second season of touring the nation has been designed to travel in a single trailer. The show itself concerns a Himalayan bear. Many of the animals in his act and denied treating them cruelly. He said they were fed twice daily and exercised but otherwise kept indoors. The series is entitled "One Lord, Many Witnesses" and is designed to show the many ways in which God is present in our lives as well as the variety of means through which we recognize Him. Others feature "The Gospel According to Peanuts" and "Peanuts," a gospel choir, a contemporary dance group; and a special liturgical celebration designed to complement the annual Church-wide Celebration. Each of the churches in this series hosts one of these events, and members of all the conferences are urged to attend. The Company of Wayward Saints was invited to participate because the theme of the series is working with other men—thus related to the main thrust of the series. The play will be presented in the First United Methodist Church of LaFayette at 3 p.m. (CST) on Wednesday, March 11.

The Martin Club will conduct a fund drive this Thursday and Friday to give a minority group student a complete tuition grant for a black student, Marie Henley, acting president of the group, is planning to make contributions all day today in the foyer of Carroll Leuare Hall, Martin Memorial. An SMC student, Mary Mackey, originated the Martin de Porres scholarship in 1949. It started out as a one-year scholarship at SMC and has since grown to include several other religious minority groups that are not represented at St. Mary’s.

For the last three years, the club has collected money at class meetings and at other events. The club is still trying to diversify the student body but they have extended their efforts to include Mexicans and Americans of other, non-Catholic religious minority groups that are not represented at St. Mary’s.

The club will accept cash, checks, and pledges as well as contributions to the club. The only condition for a minority group student is preferred by the Martin Club. Those interested may be given the name of a representative at St. Mary’s who will collect the money. Arrangements will be made for Notre Dame students who want to make their donations this way.

Miss Henley urges all that members of the SMC student government continue to contribute as much as they can. If you wish further information, call her at 462, 498-4410.

PCP & persley - New York (UPI) - Five persons were arrested in the San Francisco suburb of Redwood City on March 17 for possession of a hallucinogenic drug called PCP, which is mixed with persley and smoked.

Federal narcotics agents arrested three of the suspects in a raid on an electronics firm in the Forest Hills section of Queens on March 9. Though the Lennons were unable to attend the affair due to the sudden hospitalization of Yoko Ono in London, their personal representative, Sue Fawcett, flew in from London to film the entire evening for world-wide distribution under the Apple Label. Celebrities in attendance at the opening included Jon Baldesky Kirkland, Tony Bennett, Carl Reiner, John Ireland, George Plemion, Vlad Samson, Salvador Dali, and Rock Hudson. Each set was covered with plastic ‘air-cap’ bubbles and enclosed in tautly-sealed plastic frames.

The exhibition will continue through the 20th of February with a possibility of extending it to accommodate the increas­ing number of visitors. Members of the press are always welcome and photographs or graphs may be taken of the exhibition areas. Further documentation is available and interested parties may be scheduled by appointment only. ND by end of semester will be in compliance

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's enforcement procedure of Title 6 consists of several levels of warnings, than a citation of non-compliance, and finally the threat of a cutoff of funds. Facenda said no school has been cited for non-compliance, and only one school, Antioch, has had its idea even been audited. No school has reached a stage of non-compliance to warrant the threat of a cutoff of funds.

The amount of federal money involved by Title 6 was unknown to Facenda, but he felt that even if a school was non-complying with HEW to such an extent that financial penalties were threatened, cutoff of all funds was not possible.

He pointed to the fact that the constitutionality of Title 6 as it has ever been tested as a partial basis for his belief.

Speaking to questions on his view on conduction, Krashna said the pure was among the highest on his list of priorities. He indicated that there were many factors to the question that warranted the study that is to be conducted by a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees. But he saw the Student Government's role as a "watchdog" to insure that the study group finished their work and set the program into action.

"We have to be sure the studying doesn't last until 1981. Co-education really is vital to the atmosphere of this university from two points of view. The fact is woman has a basic right to the education and the social benefits for the male students from the presence of women on campus are unmeasurable."

When asked about the progress of his campaign so far, Krashna commented with the recent endorsements that the NND and NND said they would help his effort. He regarded the seven who joined the NND board as a special expression of support for the ideas he and his running-mate Mark Williams are trying to voice in the campaign.

 ND  icers sweep Air Force for 20-win season

by Don Kennedy
Observer Sports Writer

The Iceng Bouts aren't slated to start for another week, but those who attended this week's hockey series with the Air Force Academy were treated to a sneak preview of next week's events.

The Irish closed out their '69-'70 season by notchting their 20th and 21st victories against the Falcons by scores of 4-3 and 6-3 in a pair of slugfests at the Comiskey ice rink that featured preliminary bouts of all big class. Paul Regan and Mark Longrow threw their weight on around more than several occasions. A two-goal lead by Saturday event had successfully grounded the Falcon squadron, but it took an extra one-sided than the slim 4-3 margin which the Irish forwards pummelled Air Force goalie Kim Newman with 56 shots, almost all of which came as Notre Dame's Dick Tomasoni dealt with. Newman's spectacular play kept the Air Force close, however, and a pair of fluke goals gave the Falcons a 3-2 edge in the waning moments of the third stanza.

But with the Irish skating under a delayed penalty call against the Falcons—thus enabling ND to pull its way to an extra an extra forward advantage—freshman winger Paul Regan netted his second tally of the night to even the count at 3-3. Mark Stebnow, whose number of play has steadily improved over the course of last nine contests, gave the Irish the lead with 7:06 of the final frame.

On a sixth and final penalty call against the Falcons, Notre Dame forward John Peterson also scored for diamonds a 5-3 victory over the Falcons.

Dame for a week at the partial expense of student government. They'll be here to see the school's latest and greatest dining hall food, live at a Notre Dame dorm. They'll get a lot more complete view this way.

Thrasher described his proposal for a "Junior Year at Home" program which would allow juniors to attend other schools in the United States for a year. He visited some other schools singly have stronger departments than Notre Dame. The program would allow Notre Dame students to take advantage of these.

Thrasher, bouyed by polls that have him leading all candidates by four per cent, will appear with running-mate Greg Murray on WSN-A-M tonight at 10:00, as part of the second night of the candidate's campaign in all halls and class levels. The candidates at all class levels. The four will be backed by the student body and not just a platform. A goal tournament is also slated and names are now being taken.

The final matter of business, delegates were given a list of members of their departments who were not contacted to pay dues at registration. It is hoped that they will be able to check out the accuracy of the membership lists while collecting the remaining dues.

Dean of Students, he found that there was nothing that could be done to prevent Carroll from turning into a graduate dwelling next year. He feels it unjust however, that the students who will be forced into new dorms next year will be at the end of hall lists for room preferences.

On the current issue of co-education Peterson said he favors an "autonomous" approach by the University but will wait for a student referendum before he will act. On action alone he said that the student government's position should be one of diplomacy and action and not making demands.

Peterson added that if the students make decisions which affect the economic situation of the University then they must be willing to also accept some of the financial responsibility, for that is a way to pay for the co-education program.

The SBFO also published a quote in Friday's Observer which had him saying that the ultimate decision on such topics as drugs, drinking and sex should be left to the students. Peterson said he meant that the decisions on these topics will be made by the individual, and not the student government.

Peterson answered the perennial question of whether he believes he can win.

"A lot of people have said that they would support me except they feel they can win; so many have said that if they did vote for us we would win," he said.

I was flashing north to the Ohio University bench on Saturday. It was an excellent place to listen in on Jim Deeds' chatty pep talk and get a better feel for the game.

Down there the tail players (especially Artis Gilmore) are very fast. And Carr's moves and turns are so fast it is unbelievable when you see the distances and directions in the correct perspective.

Austin set a total of two NCAA matches won (most points, 61; and most field goals, 25) in the same categories. He also went over the 1,000-point mark for the season and thoroughly destroyed what might have been a successful Bobcat game plan.

Johnny Dee started Jay Zin­newski and John Gallagher, as he said, "to do something off the bench (Tom Sinnott, Sid Caitlett) as sort of a tempo." Snyder went with his preferred pattern offense and Ken Lowell on Carr. Although Austin immediately began bombing the nets (despite encouraging cries of "Hail the Irish!" to Kowell from the bench), John Carr's shooting kept the Irish from the pattern offense netted six jumpers pointed out the dangerous holes in the Bobcat backcourt defense.

Not even a TV-time out could stop Canine, who blew in five field goals to give OU a 20-14 lead at 14:18. Here Gallagher and Big John threw in a few points. They put the Irish in a good frame of mind to hit the second period when John's defense was particularly devastating in the first half, getting 13 rebounds. It was his clutch work that enabled the Irish to snatch a blistering fast break late in the period, ND following two重要 roles: getting the Bobcats into foul trouble (bonus throw at 9:19) and staying close early in the game.

While Carr and Jones (24 points) were the most outstanding offensive performers, the victory belonged equally to Gallagher, Zi­newski, Gallagher, and Jackie Moehn.

Gallagher scored eight points, all early in each half when they were sorely needed. Six came in the second period when John's three jumpers pointed out the danger holes in the Bobcat backcourt defense.

Hab Bagh, Jim Hansen, and Phil Gustafson, standouts all season long for the Irish wrestling team, led the way to a 24-12 victory over Marquette this weekend in Milwaukee that enabled the Irish to clinch their 1969-70 dual season meet with a 6-6 record.

Bob Hoffman, Jim Hansen, and Phil Gustafson, standouts all season long for the Irish wrestling team, led the way to a 24-12 victory over Marquette this weekend in Milwaukee that enabled the Irish to clinch their 1969-70 dual season meet with a 6-6 record.

Habig only, a freshman, tal­lied his season's worth of the season, a new Notre Dame record, scoring at 3:52 in the 150 pound class. The previous mark in a season was set in 1963 by Dick Anes with 12-7. Habig's unbeaten streak by pinning his opponent in 1:51 in the heavyweight division. Phil is 15-0-3 on the year. Hansen notched his 17th win in 21 matches this season and was pinning his opponent to the mat in 2:39 on the 158 pivot. Also picking up victories for the Irish Saturday were Tom Caccio (118) with a 12-1 triumphant, captain Keith Girion (134), registering a 2-0 decision, and Bill Hashbrook (177), who went 6-0.

I was thrilled by Zi­newski," said Dee. The coach's feeling was based on Jay's 10 rebounds and 10 points, and especially based on the fact that the big man has been playing his first full season of practice/play. "Strong and silent" is a cliché, but it fits Caitlett's play to perfection. Sid was definitely on the OU's unwanted offensive performers, the victory belonged equally to Gallagher, Zi­newski, Gallagher, and Jackie Moehn.

Gallagher scored eight points, all early in each half when they were sorely needed. Six came in the second period when John's three jumpers pointed out the danger holes in the Bobcat backcourt defense.
