Krashna appoints cabinet

by Bill Carter

In one of his first official functions as new student body president Dave Krashna an- nounced his choices for appointment to his cabinet yesterday afternoon.

Chuck Ryan has been ap-pointed Executive Coordinator, a job which Krashna called the third most important in student government. "Chuck is a very hard worker," Krashna said. "He is a little older, having been in the service, and he is a very stable individual. He will be the head of the cabinet.”

The new Treasurer will be Denis Conroy. Conroy spent this year working in the treasurer’s office and Krashna said he believed Conroy had the needed experience to handle the financial compli-cations involved in student government.

Orlando Rodriguez will re-place Krashna as Human Affairs Commissioner. Rodriguez is a sophomore from Puerto Rico and will direct a new structure in Human Affairs office, which will focus to a large ex-tent on getting the foreign stu-dents at Notre Dame into a wider role of participation in the university. Krashna feels the ex-tensive work of each individual commission is too much a load for one person to handle and so has named assistants to each commissioner. Rodriguez’s assist­ant will be Dan Moore.

Krashna has chosen two sopho-mores to head the difficult office of Academic Affairs Commission. Bill Wilks will act as commissioner and Bob Meyers as his assistant. Krashna said both have been very much involved with the work of the commission this year and are prepared to make more use of the office in the direction he talked about in his campaign.

The position of Research and Development Commissioner falls upon Jerry O’Connor. O’Connor worked on the commission this year and brings a number of new ideas for expansion of the com­mission with him into office, in addition to helping complete some of the work of his predeces-sors. Assisting Connor will be Bob Oldenmiller whose primary concern will be in the vital area of student publications.

Krashna indicated that the Hall Life Commission will be one of the most important committees in his cabinet. “We felt we needed dynamic people to work on problems of hall life and we’ve gotten dynamic people,” he said. Connor worked in Alumni Hall and his assistant Eric Andrus in the Senate toward the goal that we emphasized in the campaign: getting things back into the halls, organizing student groups or whatever just to get things moving in the right direction within the halls.”

For Public Relations Com­missioner Krashna has selected Don Mooney assisted by John Knoer. He pointed out that their affiliation with the different media on campus, Mooney with WNDV and Knoer with The Observer, would enable them to fill the important role of telling the student body what the stu-dent government is doing.

Jerry O’Connor will be the new Off-Campus Commiss-ioner, a job that Krashna said entails a lot of work and thank-less labor. O’Connor is uniquely qualified for the job according to Krashna because he realizes the problems of off-campus stu-dents and always tries to meet their special needs. His Assistant Commissioner will be Walter Siegel.

Krashna felt the role of the Community Relations Commis­sioner has become increas­ingly more important one and has picked Bob Schmidt to fill the post. Schmidt has worked on the commission for several years and is very inter­ested in developing further con­tact between Notre Dame and the South Bend community. The only freshman in the cabinet, Carl Meyers, has been chosen to assist Schmidt because Krashna feels that as a black member of the South Bend community, Allison best understands how to move towards better ties between the city’s blacks and Notre Dame.

Effects of Massachusetts laws discussed

by Mike Chapin

Professor Charles McCarthy of the Non-Violence Department and Thomas L. Shaffer, Assoc­iate Dean of the Law School, commented yesterday that the new Massachusetts laws challenging the use of U.S. armed forces in Vietnam probably will never be resolved by the Supreme Court.

The new law, passed last Thursday, allows any Massachu­setts citizen to refuse fighting in any conflict that lacks a con­gressional declaration of war. Shaffer thought that the law will have significant “symbolic value” because this was a whole state voicing their dissent. "I think we have reached the point where we are last October. There has to be another public outcry because really nothing has happened.”

Professor McCarthy felt that the Supreme Court would review the statute, “because the statute is so public.

"But I do not think that the Court will rule on the constitu-tionality of the war. They’ll just rule that the Massachusetts Law is unconstitutional. After all the Supreme Court is hardly an ob­jective judge-it’s an agent of the state. It’s made up of men who knew and know how to play their political cards,” McCarthy said.

Colonel John J. Lavine of the Army R.O.T.C. said, off the record, that Congress shall declare war, then it would have to find that for the past eight years some very prestigious people (e.g. Johnson, Nixon, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff to mention a few) would not have been ‘upholding the Constitu­tion of the United States’ as they took an oath to do.’

In the recent case of a Con­stitution of the United States by prosecutorial an unconstitutional war, the r tional constitutionally collect taxes such as the surtax and the telephone tax to support an unconstitutional war. You can’t kill 300,000 Vietnamese
Contemporary poets are invited to Festival

This year the Sophomore Library Festival, being held from April 13-18, will introduce the student body to contemporary poetry. Included among the guests attending are British poets Stuart Montgomery and Lee Harwood, and American poets Allen Plante and Michael Anania.

Stuart Montgomery is a twenty-nine year old Rodesian who qualified as a doctor before becoming a full-time poet. He has just completed a four years work which produces the most significant international poetry list in England or America. Prior to this he spent some time in Greece, working with the Greek poet Odysseus Elytis in translation of his work.

Montgomery believes that every poet at some time has to be his own publisher, and arrange his own readings and be involved in his own production. In latest work, Circ, was published in 1969. Gary Snyder has aid of it\', and it's one of the most exciting things I've ever seen: it is a natural and perfect celebration of the earth. And it is a successful Splendid Job!

A native of England, Lee Harwood has edited various magazines dedicated to experimental poetry. He was awarded the Poetry Foundation (New York) annual award in 1966. He has traveled extensively in the U.S. and has given readings and readings from his work in England, Denmark and the U.S. The latest of his four volumes of poetry, The White Room (1969) is widely acclaimed. Of it, noted poet John Ashbery has said, "it is wisely without knowing or caring what wisdom is."

Lee Harwood is a writer who believe that industrialism has nearly destroyed the culture of the English countryside. In an effort to reaffirm the balance between man and nature, Harwood dedicates himself, as a man and poet, to the transcendental element of humanity.

Montgomery and Harwood will be reading Monday, April 13 at 3 p.m., sponsored by the English Department.

Allen Plante is a thirty-three year old native of New York who attended Hofstra and New York Universities. He has been active for several years in poetry programs in New York as one of the leaders of the St. Mark's Poetry Readings, and in readings sponsored by the Academy of American poets.

Plante, who is representative of today's angry young writers, finds his poetry in the decay he sees characterizing America. He is also a political activist and as such his writing reflects the chaos and violence surrounding him and our apathy concerning it. Mr. Plante's poetry has appeared in many magazines and anthologies including Chelsea, Chicago Review, Massachusetts Review, Poets of Today and Where is Harvard? A selection of his poetry won the 1969 New-York YM-YMA Poetry Award and the first volume of poetry, A Night for R nesting, was recently published by Swallow Press. Mr. Plante lives in New York.

Pollution conference is planned

by Steve Hoffman

In the hope that residents of the South Bend Area will realize and work to counteract the dangers of environmental pollution, the Michiana Committee for Clean Environment will sponsor a Conference on Enviromental Concern on Saturday, April 11 at the South Bend Public Library.

The Conference, to be held from 9:30 A.M. until 5:00 P.M., will be free of charge, with free lunches provided, and the public is invited to attend all or part of the program.

The schedule of events for the Earth Day Program includes a general panel discussion on pollution in the environment and what can be done to correct it, to be chaired by Dr. Larry Davis of the Notre Dame Biologcal Department. Panelists will be Notre Dame Biology Professor, Dr. Thomas Griffin, Dr. Julian Plante, Assistant Professor of Microbiology at Notre Dame, and Dr. Wayne Echelberger, an authority of air pollution, and people to fight pollution and poisioning the environment.

Dr. Echelberger and Dr. Singer, both of the Civil Engineering Department of Notre Dame, teach the course Man and His Environment offered on campus.

In addition, Notre Dame Senior John Crump, a General Program major, will speak on household ecology, explaining in each case how a person can live without polluting and pollucing the environment.

Later in the afternoon, Dr. Donald Levy, a chemist from the University of Chicago who has spent much time organizing the fight against pollution, and people to fight pollution and poisoning the environment.

The Conference will conclude with three lectures to educate the public on specific methods of coping with air pollution, water pollution, and ecology.

Washington (UPI) -- Today's showdown vote on a tire-busting bill is likely to be the closest on a Supreme Court nominee in almost a century, with a real shot of a tie vote.

You can be No. 1 on your block when you come home with a living replica of the Notre Dame mascot. The male in my life was a champion and I expect to be absent for Wednesday's vote.

Carwell's Senate opponents claimed yesterday they had the votes to deny him confirmation if they could pick up the vote of only one more unconscionable Republican. But Carwell's supporters disputed their head count.

The possibility still existed that Agnew could cast the vote for Carwell that would break a 48-48 tie when balloting begins at 10 A.M. today.

A UPI poll showed 48 senators publicly or privately committed to vote against confirmation, or leaning that way, and 46 committed or leaning toward supporting his promotion.

In the intense noise counting by both sides in the long debate, the votes of freshman Republican Senator Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky and of Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, are listed as the chief question marks. Carwell's opponents said if they won either vote the nomination would be rejected.

The Senate debated other issues in the after the 53-44 vote against nominating the Senate to the Senate Judiciary Committee. But through- out the Capitol, Carwell was a chief topic of conversation. The atmosphere was that of the eye of the storm.

With four senators expected to be absent for Wednesday's vote, two on business and two in the hospital, the anti-Carwell forces required 49 votes to defeat elevation of the 50 year old appeals court judge to the lifetime term on the Supreme Court.

Don't things get 'kopegre enough the Court will tell the world that this straw is a sturdy one. And at least the citizen of the United States will say 'The Court must know what's constitutional?' There is an interesting thing to be said on this score. I wonder what the court will do with all of Senator Felt's statements since December 1969 where he has point blankly said in the room and on T.V. that he was tied to by the executive about the Gulf of Tonkin incident and all other evidence that now has been accumulated about the 'incident.' I wonder what the constitutional- ity of a crime of war which was procured by lying, I mean, I wonder the further implications of this law.

"Who knows maybe the Breinius and the resistors are not the real enemies of the state (crimi- nals). After all, if the war is unconstitutional, then the pre- sent heroes are the criminal and the present criminals are the Heroes!"

"I suppose it won't be long before we are bumper sticker reading 'My country, constitutional or unconstitutional'."

Reds attacked by MiGs

PLOM PESNI, Cambodia (UPI) — Russian-made MiG's of the Cambodian air force joined a battle yesterday against Viet Cong guerrillas in jungles 12 miles from the South Viet- nese border. Cambodian troops reported killing 40 Viet Cong in fighting that started Monday night.

Cambodian losses were placed at two killed and 18 wounded.

The combat was near the town of Chipou in Suyy Bong province, the same general area where five Americans, two Viet Cong, and two Americans, were reported missing and possibly captured by the Viet Cong.

One of the American news- men was identified as Stan Flynn, a freelance photographer on assignment for Time Maga- zine. He is the son of the last movie actor Errol Flynn. The other was Dana Stone of North Pomfret, Vt., a cameraman for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Military officials in Phnom Pehn said an undetermined number of Communist troops started the fight by attacking Cambodian forces near Chipou in the so-called "parrot's beak" region which juts into South Vietnam to a point only 35 miles from Saigon.

Field reports said Cambodian troops, many of whom moved into the area as reinforcements during the past week, hurled machine gun fire and smoke of battle cleared. According to newsmen at the scene, butt several miles to the south of Chipou a Viet Cong MIG jet fighter bombers flown by Cambodian pilots streaked over jungles at treemop level to rake Communist posi- tions with machine gun fire and bombs.

Is there a Paulist in the crowd?

Believe it or not, a campus pro- test group is not an unlikely place to find a Paulist. Why? Because Paulists are the mediators of our time — stand- ing between God and man... understanding... helping... loving... trying to bring together the extremes of the world we live in and the Church.

Wherever he is... as a college chaplain, working in a ghetto or helping in a parish... the Paulist is serving.

Editorial

On April 2, the Massachusetts state legislature declared that Vietnam fighting which is "not an emergency" and which is "not otherwise authorized in the public interest" makes the President as Commander-in-Chief. At the heart of this bill is the fact that the war in Vietnam has not been formally declared a war by the Congress of the United States. As Gov. Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts said, "The issue is whether and when, under our Constitution, a citizen can be conscripted to a conflict that lacks a congressional declaration of war."

It is, in short, a bill that touches the very foundations of our federal system. It seeks to determine to what lengths the individual states, and, through the states, the people, can exercise their rights in the absence of a congressional declaration of war.

It is strange, then, that there should be speculation that the Supreme Court might refuse to hear this case. It is an issue that calls for a loud and clear "No," that will be as authoritative as the Supreme Court's rulings on school desegregation and integration. The bill can be construed as being anti-Vietnam War. But if the Court decides that the President has wide discretionary powers in waging wars, it may once and for all answer the question as to whether the war is legal. The decision will influence further involvement by America in similar wars. The question is not the bill itself. The Court must hear the case and establish guidelines.

Dave Krashna on Hall Elections

(1) To the editor

The appearance on the campus of William M. Kunstler was a fitting climax to a year in which the campuses invited to Notre Dame to engage in a year-long conversation with the students in an effort to foster the growth of Notre Dame as a community in the forthcoming year. This issue concerns the upcoming hall president elections. The SBC election is over. However, I hope that in light of Justice Thomas Foran's Chicago Conspiracy case, we will still have an opportunity to speak at Notre Dame. This is particularly so in view of the extravagant fee paid to Mr. Kunstler to come here and preach revolution. Failing a sustained effort to balance their programs, let these organizations frankly acknowledge that what they are about is propaganda. Is it the students care to accept it, is that their choice. But we ought not to pretend that it is education instead of brainwashing.

Sincerely,
Charles E. Rice
Professor of Law

Editor's note: The Academic Commission has contacted Mr. Foran and the initial response has been negative. But Foran went on vacation after the first contacts were made and his appearance is still indefinite. Mr. Kunstler's honorarium was $1,000 and his appearance was not listed in the original SUAC budgets. But by charging an admission fee, SUAC was able to break even and meet the fee without affecting its budget. Two years ago William Buckley was paid $3000 but the gate receipts did not cover his fee.

Moose Krause past foe of Globetrotters

The Harlem Globetrotters presented their annual basketball show at the Convocation Center on the University of Notre Dame campus last season and among the turnaround crowd of some 12,000 was the school's athletic director, Ed (Moose) Krause.

The presence of Krause, one-time football and basketball All-American with the Fighting Irish, stirred a lot of memories of the past — back to the days when he had a professional team known as the Minnesota All-Stars, opponents of the Trotters more than three decades ago in many cities of the Gopher State.

"I was coaching at St. Mary's College of Winona, Minnesota, at the time and organized a team of college and high school coaches to play a game against the Trotters," he recalled.

"We had a good ball club and the Trotters really had to hustle to beat us. After that game we got together and decided to play each other as often as possible. From 1934 until I went into the Navy in 1942, we played something like sixty games. It was a great experience.

"The Globetrotters were a great ball club then, as they are now. I enjoyed watching them in action again after so many years and hope they'll make a stop on Notre Dame a regular part of their annual schedule.

"We beat them a few times but not very often. The Trotters would do very little of their clowning unless they were born with a basketball in their hands."

In all the games he played against the Globetrotters, Krause always had James "Big Jack" Jackson, the team's original clown, as his opponent. Both played center and both were about 6-3, though the 230 pound Krause had about 35 pounds on "Big Jack", whom he claims was one of the greatest players the game ever produced. They became good friends, and still are today, but it wasn't always that way in their battles against each other. One night Krause really got heated up, he recalls.

"The game was close and we were giving it everything we had," remembered Krause. "The Trotters had possession of the ball and all of a sudden, everybody in the stands started to laugh. I looked around to see what was going on and I couldn't see the ball.

"I finally looked down on the floor and there was the ball, lying there between my feet. Well, I chased Jackson all over the gym and he was having a tough time keeping ahead of me because he was laughing so hard. My teammates finally calmed me and I had a good laugh about it afterwards."

Occasionally, Krause and Jackson have the opportunity to reminisce about "the good old days." They've remained close and valued friends.

Jackson is still associated with the Trotters, serving as consulting coach and coordinating the development of raw talent into polished Globetrotters.

Ice Capades to hold auditions

Ice Capades' scouts and coaches are constantly searching for new skating talent. Local and area skaters are invited to audition this year at Notre Dame at 4:00 PM, Friday, April 17 and at another session immediately following that evening's performance at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

In addition to good pay, performing with Ice Capades offers the opportunity to tour the United States, Canada and summer tours overseas.

Though amateur skaters need not be champions, they must be skaters of superior merit. Ice Capades' professional coaching staff will train acceptable applicants before they are assigned specific spots in the show. Those who do not pass the initial audition may try again after following prescribed skating recommendations.

Prospective male skaters must be 17 to 25 years of age and measure between five feet eight inches and six feet two inches in height. Girls must be between the ages of 17 and 23 years and between five feet two inches and five feet nine inches in height.

Applicants are requested to bring their own skates and costumes. Judging will be done by the Ice Capades coaching staff.

No indictment in Kopechne case

EDGARTOWN, Mass. - A whirlwind grand jury, which heard just four witnesses, ended its investigation without indicting anyone in the case of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's cousin, Mary Jo Kopechne in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car in Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., district attorney announced the case closed. The 19 men and 10 women of the Dukes County grand jury, after deliberating three hours and 15 minutes, apparently found no evidence to indict Kennedy on or any other connection with the 28-year-old secretary's death last July.

Conclusion of the grand jury, one of four in the Kopechne case, seemed to preclude any further possibility the sole surviving member of the Kennedy family son would face additional criminal charges stemming from the fatal car accident last July.

District Attorney Edmund S. Dintsi said at much when he announced from the old court house here: "This is the end of the investigation into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne. The case is closed."

The jurors apparently were denied access to the impounded 764-page transcript of testimony and the judge's report of a four day secret inquest three months ago during which 27 witnesses were heard.

The documents presumably now can be made public under ground rules laid down by the Massachusetts Supreme Court. The high court said the documents couldn't be released when no further criminal action appeared forthcoming.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) - Doctors examined blood from the three Apollo 13 astronauts yesterday for clues to whether or not they will break out with the measles while in space next week. The fate of Saturday's launch date hangs on the prognosis.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the moon pilots' chief physician, said the laboratory testing should be completed by today. Then he will make the "agonizing" decision whether to recommend Apollo 13 blast off as planned Saturday or wait for the next opportunity, May 9.

If the tests indicate that any one of the three pilots would be sick, a spokesman said the shot would probably be delayed. Berry said measles could disable a crewman in flight.

Despite the unprecedented medical questions, astronauts James A. Lovell, Thomas K. Mattingly and Fred W. Haise went about the business of getting ready for the toughest moon expedition yet attempted.

The three astronauts worked out in spacecraft trainers much of the day, rehearsing moon orbit and landing operations for the last time. The pilots were working on the weightlessness training that will be needed for the prime crewmen seven days earlier.

The laboratory tests on the astronauts' blood were being conducted at the receiving Laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston by a team of specialists.

Dr. Chalmers, the director of the laboratory, said tests done on monkeys and humans had established that measles are not a problem in space. But he didn't think the monkey experiments would be proof enough to convince the astronauts.

Meanwhile, the three astronauts worked up a sweat in the glare of cameras and TV lights. The tired Apollo 13 crew got fresh outfits and their faces were washed with water that had been used for the pre-launch shower.

The astronauts' wives were in the control center watching the pilots and cheering for their husbands. The pilots, after three hours of pre-launch work, went to the American Legion post for a late lunch and naps.

Is there a better way to govern Notre Dame?

This is the first part in a five-part series written by the Noting for President Head-Quarters, and personally instated, who will discuss the managerial problems involved in running any large organization. - Vel.

In an attempt to discuss the issues - involving Notre University and revision at Notre Dame (since those people involved in the structure) we intend to consider the questions we have about Notre Dame and to answer the question "How would (or should) Notre Dame be governed?" We will then ask if there is a better way to govern this university.

In attempting to answer this question we will propose, in opposition to the administrative status quo, an alternative plan for the governance of Notre Dame. In the development of the Chancellor-President structure we will focus upon "How would (or should) Notre Dame be governed?" Our last question, quite separate from those above, yet at the same time essential to any innovation, is the question: will it work? A consideration of comparative advantages and disadvantages.

No institution, particularly a university, can function without change...One of the major challenges of change for the university today is its governance: how it has been entrenched in the past and how its governance is likely to evolve in the future.

"Theodore Hesburgh. The Nature of the Challenge"

Perhaps the only way to really appreciate how Notre Dame is governed is to be Notre Dame's students in residence on the Board for a day. Since this option is clearly not open to us, we are forced to draw on the written description of Notre Dame's structure. Keeping in mind that how a structure appears on paper, and how it actually operates may be quite different things, we intend to explore the questions: How are decisions made at Notre Dame? What types of decisions are made by the high-level administrators? And on what basis are administrative problems relegated to the various decision-making levels.

The document which governs the University of Notre Dame is a 17-page statement called the "Statutes of the University and the By-laws of the Board of Trustees." It begins:

On April 8, 1967, at a meeting of the members of the Board, new By-laws were ratified and new By-laws were approved which delegate the ordinary power of governance of the University to a Board of Trustees.

"Fellows of the University," referred to in this passage, are six C.S.C. priests and six lay fellows, all 12 from the Board of Trustees. They have all power and authority granted by the state of Indiana [i.e., the Charter Act...] on January 15, 1914. Six of the Fellows are ex officio (by virtue of their office) members: The Provincial of the Congregation of Holy Cross, the President of the University, the Executive Vice-President for Academic Affairs, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Secretary of the Board of Trustees. Vacancies are filled by a majority vote of the Fellows. The President of the University is the Chairman of the Board.

The Fellows are responsible for: (1) electing and removing Trustees, (2) adopting and amending the By-laws of the University (by 2/3 vote), (3) approving the selling of a "substantial part of the physical properties," (4) making sure... "the essential nature of the University, as a Catholic institution [is] maintained," and (5) that the C.S.C. priests are a vital component of the "University's operations."

Except for these "powers," all powers for the governance of the University shall be vested in a Board of Trustees which shall consist of such number of Trustees not less than thirty (30) nor more than forty (40). The six ex officio members of the Fellows, including the President for Business Affairs, are ex officio members of the in-and-out composition of the membership of the Board may be altered by removal (requiring the recommendation of the Board and approval of the Fellows) or retirement to the status of Honorary Trustee (mandatory at age 70).

The Board is presided over by a chairman, who is elected by the Board every two years. Records and proceedings are the responsibility of the Secretary. The activities of the Board, which require a quorum of "five members," are: (1) Election of "all officers of the University," (2) serving on the Board's standing committees: Executive Committee, Investment Committee, Development Committee, the Committee on Educational Matters, the Nominating Committee, the Liaison Committee for the Advisory Councils; each committee has less than seven (7), nor more than thirteen (13) members. The Executive Committee, by far the most powerful, has for its "all of the powers and functions of the Board...between meetings of the Board." During its required meetings per year, it is chaired by the President, and its ex officio members are the Chairmen of the Board of Directors, and the Executive Vice-President.

(3) Sec. IV) "if a matter of serious importance" concerning university policy which in the usual course would be resolved by decision of the President, [it] may... be referred to the discretion of the President to the Board of Trustees for final determination... If it is impractical or essentially to refer...to the full Board of Trustees for appropriate action, the matter may, in the discretion of the President, be referred to the Executive Committee... (4) providing for the safe-keeping and the handling of the University's properties and funds.

(5) Alteration of these "by-Tab" requires "at least two-thirds of the Fellows" concurrence.

SMC program Urban Studies

A unique interdisciplinary program combining the forces of the humanities and the social sciences for the study of urban problems has been initiated by the University of Notre Dame in cooperation with the University of Notre Dame in cooperation with the city of South Bend. The challenge facing the country is to implement a truly human environment in the urban setting. The Saint Mary's Program for Urban Studies will apply the resources of the liberal arts college to the problems of cities and their communities.

Under the co-direction of Dr. Charles Poznack, chairman of the history department, and Professor Louise Tordreau, chairman of the department of political science, the Program for Urban Studies intends to bring in-serv

Overrules Kirk

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) A federal district judge overruled Gov. Claude Kirk's intention to introduce a school desegregation case yesterday and stayed the govern- or to "bring the case" up for a day to avert civil court action.

Judge Ben Kreitzman reinstated the Manatee County school board—which Kirk suspended Sunday night in a move to file the court ordered desegregation plan and old the board wanted the court ordered plan carried out by Thursday.

Kirk was to have appeared at yesterday's hearings, but sent word he was too busy because the opening session of the legis-

The governor did not appear concerned over the possibility of the court's overturning a decision "I don't think they'll do anything to a sick, old expectant family," he said. Kirk ordered a recent kidney operation and the fact his wife is expecting the baby makes him very nervous. He later told the legislature he intended to fight the issue to the Supreme Court.

Irish netmen beat Boilermakers

by Jack Schuefer

Off and away, generator
The Notre Dame varsity tennis team opened its home season with a solid 6 to 3 victory over the Boilermakers of Purdue. The Irish won five of the six singles played. Purdue captured two of the three doubles matches.

Sophomore Buster Brown won the number one singles match defeating Nick Giordano 6-0, 6-2, 6-0. Buster at this score indicated he was not to start before he started to play in his accustomed manner.

In the number two singles Bernie Le Sage of N.D. dropped an extremely close match to Jim Mansfield 6-1, 6-4. After Mansfield had taken the first set Le Sage rose back as he completely dominated the second set. However, Mansfield regained control in the third set for the hard fought victory.

Notre Dame's Mike Reilly defeated Purdue's Dick Cochrane in the number three singles match. Reilly won 7-5, 1-6, 6-2. Gil Theissen, one of the freshmen to crack the Irish-Off- set, beat Dick Anderson in the number four singles match. Theissens match was won 6-4, 8-6.

Meanwhile, the other freshmen starter, Bob Scheffer won the number five singles match with a straight set victory over the Boilermaker's Chuck Callison. Notre Dame co-captain Bob 'Bounces' O'Malley announced Purdue's Phil Hammond, 6-1, 6-0 to win the number six singles match.

In the number one doubles match Giordano and Mansfield of Purdue defeated Le Sage and Reilly 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. The match was a grueling affair lasting over two and one half hours. It was made more bitter for the out that all four players had participated in three set matches.

In the second doubles match N.D.'s Brown and Theissen aloft dispersed of Anderson and Hammond 6-3, 6-1. However, the third doubles match was won by Purdue's Callison and Dick Cochrane 6-4, 8-6 over Greg Murray and Scheffer.

With yesterday's victory the Irish upped their season record to three wins and two defeats. The next match is Friday at Northwestern. The next home match will be April 18 against the University of Cincinnati.

As previously noted, sending Lew Alcindor to UCLA was a monumental redundancy on the order of sending a parade to Germany, a singer to Italy or a hot watch to a hock shop.

John Robert Wooden must have made Lew think he was putting him on.

Who suddenly wins an elephant.

Wooden was something that escaped from that painting of American Indians on the walls of the White House.

It's like something that nested in the Andes. His legs were longer than wooden was something that escaped from that painting of American Indians on the walls of the White House.

John had to get an early start because he would be busy in church with a solid six to three victory over the University of Oregon.

'They're dead'

Augusta, Ga. (UPI) -- Gary Player says that although his victory at Greensboro indicates he's playing well enough to win here, "It's a brand new ball game when you get to the Masters." The muscular South African, only foreign ever to win the Masters (in 1961) which is being played for the 34th time starting Thursday, says, "This is the only course I know where you start and finish when you drive through the front gate." The layout at the 6,980 yard Augusta National favors the power hitters-men like three-time champion Jack Nicklaus.

N.Y.

Stokes turned down an offer by the Harlem Globetrotters. He was named "rookie of the year" in 1956 when he set a league record with 1,256 rebounds. In his three year career, Stokes scored 3,315 points, an average of 164.6 per game.

Four-time champion Arnold Palmer and Tom Weiskopf, only man to be under par in each of his last seven rounds here.

Greensboro or to get in three practice rounds here last weekend, left Sunday night to spend a couple of nights with his family in Florida but was expected back today.
