Hesburgh explains referendum delay

by Dave McCarthy

Hesburgh explained that it was a time to test the candidates' reactions to whether or not they wanted student help. "That turns out to be pretty much of a mixed bag," Hesburgh said.

When asked whether he favored the suspension of classes, Hesburgh replied, "I'd be inclined to take a long, long look at it; and I wouldn't say I'd be personally in favor," but he added, "Being for or against the idea is not the same as being for or against political activity. I'm very much in favor of the vote to the 18 year olds and political involvement by students."

He summed his feelings when he said, "I don't know how our referendum is going to come out. All I can say is that the future is much less enthusiastic than it was."

When asked if he thought failure to suspend classes would result in campus unrest Fr. Hesburgh said, "No. This is not a crucial point."

He was asked what specificality was being done at Notre Dame to quell campus disorder, and he answered, "Here you get the preponderance of that kind of place you want... And I think you have to sort it and clear around here that people don't want violence, they don't want utter chaos. I don't want peoples' rights trod on."

Hesburgh's position regarding student unrest was sought. He said, "I think the current situation is fairly bad for Universities generally. I think the net of much that has happened is that the general public is somewhat down on Universities; at least that is the reaction I get when I try to get voice for the University."

The general feeling is that things have gone too far, quicker than we ever thought they would go."

He also remarked about the image of the student saying, "We have an image that is true and very basic... The student... the ordinary people... the whole reputation of students, faculty, and administration has been hurt..."

He denied extending security measures after terrorist threats at the University of Wisconsin.

the point where we won't hear the truth until things are quiet."

The Academic Council, meeting on its recommendation, decided to suspend classes from four days to two weeks to allow decision by Academic Affairs Commission.

The Academic Council will meet this Thursday evening to discuss the proposal which would provide for students to become members. The Co-Educational Coordinating Committee and the Curriculum Committee acted upon the recommendation.

"The Academic Council as a body should be recognized and action should be taken by Academic Affairs Committee, the Academic Council's steering committee, the Co-Educational Coordinating Committee and the Curriculum Committee."

The Academic Council will meet this Thursday evening to discuss the proposal which would provide for students to become members of that body. The action comes by Academic Affairs Commission, Bill Wilka.

Wilka commented that similar contacts have been made with each of the University's four colleges. At the present moment only the College of Arts and Letters have scheduled student representation on its agenda but the Academic Affair Commission expressed the hope that the other three would soon discuss the possibility of students on their Councils.

On the agenda for Monday night's meeting is the coming referendum which would close classes in order for students to work in the upcoming Congressional elections. The first decision to be made on the matter is whether or not the referendum supports the referendum and claimed to have crushed the Arab guerrilla movement there. The guerrilla denied the army had won and said they would "fight to the bitter end."

Fires blazed in Amman by the guerrilla radio, the Voice of Palestine, and monitored in Jerusalem.

In a later night statement issued in Amman, the guerrillas claimed they were in full control of the city, but that army troops surrounded the capital. News reporters on the scene, however, sent dispatches to the outside world through diplomatic channels saying that Jordanian troops and army guns fixed around Amman pumped after into the city.

The exact number of casualties were not known, but guerrilla officials said Christians were mowed down by the score.

Speaking to reporters during an awards ceremony at Camp Pickel, Va., Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said "The United States is prepared to evacuate Americans from Jordan if necessary."

He said if the evacuation had to be carried out, the United States could rely on the Jordanian army for protection. A Pentagon spokesman said later that Laird's remarks were in the context of previous U.S. statements and added "we have pre-positioned certain ships and transport aircraft for possible evacuation."

The military government clamped an indefinite curfew on Amman and said anyone caught on the streets would be shot. Guirlla spokesmen said the Jordanian army is expected "to attempt to surge into Amman during the night or in the morning."

They denounced Amman radio broadcasts claiming the army had crushed the guerrillas in Amman as lies.

Jordanian guerrilla leaders appealed to Iraq to intervene in the fighting. Iraq has 12,000 to 15,000 troops in Jordan and both Iraq and Syria have sided with the guerrillas in their opposition to Jordan's King Hussein and the military government installed Wednesday.

The military government clamped an indefinite curfew on Amman and said anyone caught on the streets would be shot. Guirlla spokesmen said the Jordanian army is expected "to attempt to surge into Amman during the night or in the morning."

They denounced Amman radio broadcasts claiming the army had crushed the guerrillas in Amman as lies.

Lebanese diplomatic sources in Beirut said they had received reports that the American embassy, the British embassy, and the U.S. Consulate General in Amman had been hit twice at roof top level, probably with mortars. They said, however, that there were no casualties and no assessment of damage.

Some of Thursday's toughest battles centered around the Wahdat refugee camp, Amman's biggest, which holds about 31,000 Palestinian, guerrillas sources said. It was there that some of the Western hostages from the German airliner at Jordan were believed to be held. Their fate could not be determined.

The Voice of Palestine radio, (continued on p. 2)

(continued on p. 6)
American embassy damaged

Observer Newsmeeing for all fresh interested in writing and for all returning upper classman
7:30 PM Tues. Sept. 22

Our College Insurance Plan offers more
Benefits... and service in every state after you have graduated

Military service, a career, family and possibly extensive travel await you after graduation.

You need the broad coverage offered by American General's College Insurance Plan—and you need the service to go with it. You'll find an American General office always conveniently close in each of the 50 states and in many foreign countries. Ask your campus representative today about American General's full coverage and full service.

CALL THESE CAMPUS REPS TODAY

Tito
Ken
Gene
Bob
Provost
Bykja
Euла

815 E. LaSalle Phone 234-380

BILL RUITER GENERAL MANAGER

The Jordanian army artillery units began shelling Amman, Palestinian areas of the city and tanks and armored cars rolled into its streets. The guerrillas fired back, with machine guns and bazookas.

Heavy fighting also was re­ported in the cities of Zerqa, 13 miles northeast of Amman; in Salt, 22 miles to the northwest, and in Ramtha, 45 miles north­east of the capital, and the guer­rillas announced they had taken control of both, 45 miles north of Amman.

But there was almost a con­flict in Jordan, with one an­nouncement and orders the guerrillas on Damascus radio from Syria.

Syria is burning,"cried an announcer on Damascus radio's Voice of the Palestine Revolu­tion.

"The agents of the Jordanian army are shelling the populated areas everywhere. Liberals of the Arab world, liberals of the whole world, stop the horrible mas­sacre that your people are facing in Jordan!"

NSA meets nationally

by Hilary Rhoman

In August of this year the National Student Association (NSA) met in St. Paul, Minne­sota to discuss the various prob­lems which confront the student as an individual and as a citizen. Maryly Mohrman, a junior at St. Mary's attended the 10-day con­ference.

NSA is composed of some 400 college and university stu­dent government organizations, and serves as a coordinator of information as well as an outlet for opinions and facts. Miss Mohrman feels that although she had mixed feelings about the conference as a whole, she was very impressed by the intensity of the discussions and lectures. Some of the ideas which were discussed were the crisis in the universities, educa­tional reform and American for­eign policy. Miss Mohrman said that she believed that the stu­dents at the conference may not have accurately represented the student body but said that on the whole she didn't want to merely talk about the problems, but wanted to do something to help solve them.

Perhaps alleviate the tensions which these problems produce. Miss Mohrman explained that some individuals were frustrated by the idea that perhaps what was being done by NSA would be ignored by those in power; and that NSA in Washington would not take recommendations which who have been passed seriously enough and would tend to treat the whole matter as unimportant.

Miss Mohrman feels that the value of NSA for St. Mary's lies not in the issues which were passed but in the other services which are connected with NSA.

First meeting of combined councils

by Ann Conway

The Academic Affairs Coun­cils of St. Mary's College and Notre Dame have agreed to meet jointly September 27 at 3:00 p.m. This marks the first such meeting of the two councils to discuss issues which concern both campuses.

The initiative for this meeting came from Sr. Alma Peter, act­ing President of St. Mary's Col­lege. The reason behind such a meeting according to Sr. Alma is that "students tend to get pulled in two directions. The political picture is one good example. If one council votes to suspend classes and the other doesn't, then the one who suffers is the student." On the other hand if they had met, "I'm not in favor of it. I believe in student involvement, but it shouldn't take priority over the main purpose of college which is education.

At the possibility of a merger of the two councils, Sr. Alma stated that there were "too many things that the indi­vidual councils must act independ­ently of one another."

The Observer is published daily during the college semester except vacations by the students of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College, South Bend. Subscriptions may be purchased for $8 from The Observer, Room 11, Notre Dame (Ind. 46556). Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.
PHNOM PENH (UPI) - Military officials said today it may take a week for a Cambodian relief column to reach 4,000 government troops trapped by the Communists north of Phnom Penh who are in need of ammunition and have only enough food for five days.

Early Thursday the Communists attacked the eight battalion Cambodian task force with artillery as they huddled in their positions 49 miles north of the Cambodian capital. Five Cambodian soldiers were killed and 20 wounded, spokesmen said.

It was the first time either the Viet Cong or the North Vietnamese troops were reported to have used artillery in the Cambodian War.

In South Vietnam, the U.S. military announced that Communist gunners shot down two more American helicopters raising to at least 20 the number of choppers which have been downed in the past week. Three crewmen were injured Thursday when their light observation helicopter was shot down about 100 miles northeast of Saigon. Three more were injured when their attack helicopter was brought down about 58 miles southwest of the capital Tuesday. Spokesmen said in a delayed report.

Communist troops backed away from a U.S. aerial bombardment around artillery base O'Kean and American spokesmen said it appeared that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces were intentionally disengaging from U.S. units in other parts of the country.

U.S. authorities announced in Saigon that 54 Americans were killed and 337 wounded in Vietnam combat last week. Lowest casualties for any seven day period in 4½ years. This was attributed to a continuing fall in the level of Communist operations. Official spokesmen said attacks on U.S. bases in South Vietnam had declined from a high of 51 per cent of all such attacks in August of last year to a low of 13 per cent in August of this year.

The Communist attack in Cambodia Thursday was aimed at elements of the 4,000 man task force which was caught in a tightening vise along Highway 6, an artery cutting through the middle of the country.

The raid was regarded as significant in that, according to military spokesmen, the Communists used artillery for the first time since hostilities began last April. There was no word on the size of the weapons but Communist forces in Vietnam are known to be equipped with heavy howitzers of Soviet and Communist Chinese manufacture.

It ran into trouble Tuesday when Communist forces cut behind the column, surrounded it and blew up several bridges in a pincers maneuver that has pinned relief units from moving up.

Changes in the Notre Dame security force, including the addition of student patrols and the hiring of an investigator and other professionals, were discussed last week by Reverend James L. Riehle C.S.C., Dean of Students.

According to Father Riehle, students were first hired as patrolmen last Spring on an experimental basis. Riehle said that it believes that an increase in student patrols will help the public relations of the security system also be a source of manpower.

Other changes in the Security force involve hiring an investigator and qualified professionals. The new investigator will work closely with Mr. Arthur Pears, Director of Security, Riehle stated. Riehle said that he is seeking other better qualified personnel, but added that hiring qualified professionals has not been successful because police departments throughout the country are hunting the young professionals with increased salaries, with which Notre Dame cannot compete.

"A rookie in the South Bend Police Department can start out making $1000 more a year than we can pay them," said Riehle. He also said that attempts have been made to add younger hall monitors to the residence halls. "Older hall monitors have been the victims of undue criticism, because they have often been accused of being inefficient, when actually, the only function they serve is that of fire watchmen," Riehle said.

Cultural Arts Commission Presents
The President's Analyst
Fri. Sept. 18 Sat. Sept. 19 Sun. Sept. 20
7:30 and 10:30 Engineering Aud. Adm. $1.00

NOTICE
ALL OFF-CAMPUS STUDENTS who are interested in interhall football should put their name on the list in the OFF CAMPUS OFFICE As Soon As Possible.

THE BULL FIGHTS COME TO NOTRE DAME

CHICAGO BULLS VS Seattle Supersonics

Jerry Sloan • Chet Walker • Lenny Wilkens • Bob Rule

SENIOR BAR
Open Fri. and Sat. 4 PM - 2 AM
FRI. NITE special 5-7 PM 12 oz. Schlitz 10¢
SAT. NITE first one free to stag girls

SENIOR BAR CARD FOR GUYS GIRLS FREE + ALWAYS WELCOME
The Soft Parade

The Basic Difference

Glen Corso

Business Manager: Bruce Black
Advertising Manager: Jack Gard
Campus Editor: Glen Corso
News Editor: Jim Holsager
Asst. News Editor: Ben Rich
SAC News Editor: Jeanne Swarrow
Features Editor: T.C. Treanor

Sports Editor: Terry Snedigar
Associate Editors: Sue Burry, Ann Conway, Steve Hoffman, Dave Lartigue, Cliff Misralda
Night Editor: John Abowd
Layout Editor: John Abowd
Layout: Rich Magg
Headlines Rich Magg, Jim Graf

The Observer is published during the college semester except vacations by the students of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $8 from The Observer, Box 11, Notre Dame, Ind., 46556. Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind., 46556.

The Observer: An Independent Student Newspaper
DAVID C. BACH, Editor
GASTON M. DE SAPIO, Publisher

FOUNDED NOVEMBER 3, 1956
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

The racial question surfaced on Long Island this summer, through the guise of low cost housing for welfare recipients. It seems that the low cost housing shortage in Nassau county was so critical that county social service agency. He offered to house people in motel rooms.

A sub-crisis situation was reached however when the agency reported that by December there would be no motel rooms available. A proposal was put forth to renovate several buildings at Mitchell Field, an abandoned Army Air Base, and house the welfare recipients there.

Residents from the adjoining communities of University Heights and the County Board meeting, where the matter was to be no money, and promised the plan most vehemently. The arguments ranged from beliefs that the school system would be overloaded with the children of the welfare recipients, to fears that the housing complex would become ghetto.

Glib spokesmen presented the arguments, but one could hear comments from the rest of the people saying the recipients were "stupid and lazy" or "how they refused to get off their asses and get a job" or that they were "lazy, incompetent workers."

Listening to these people, who obviously believed the rightness of their comments, brought to mind a story told me by a black with whom I worked. At the time he was explaining to me why he felt there was such a gap between the white laborers and the blue collar. He couldn't pretend to talk for anyone but himself, but he had found that whites never bothered to think about why blacks are so poor.

"The best way to show something like that is to use a graphic illustration, something that white middle-class people can relate to," he said. The story he used sometimes has two characters in it, Joe White and Joe Black. It's kind of simple, maybe a little bit childish, but it gets the point across."

"Let's take a look at Joe Black, one of the guys who works in the electronics company. His background is similar to Joe White's. His folks came to the northern city from the old country, only in their case the 'old country' was Alabama. This Joe's father also had a tough time finding a job. He always told the teachers that he wasn't allowed to hire Negroes. Joe sold newspapers, he should look for a porter's job, cause that's all he would ever get.

A few weeks later Joe's father started drifting. The schools Joe went to weren't so good. The teachers didn't know much more than the pupil. Joe got bored and quit. His father had disappeared by then and his mother was busy caring for newer kids, so nobody was around to talk to Joe. The was Joe and Joe was drafted. He was put in a labor battalion for the duration. After the war Joe finished high school. He went into a trade school and learned the electronics trade. When he got out he tried to join the electricians union, but he couldn't get a job unless he was a member. The man at the union kept putting Joe off and finally Joe came in to see him. He would lose his job if he let him in. Joe got a job as a porter. A few weeks later he got a job in the electronics plant. By that time Joe had started drifting. When he got into the union again he was turned down with some vague excuse and told his schooling was useless."

President Nixon received a warm reception at Kansas State University when he delivered the Annual Landon Lecture on Wednesday. Not very interesting material for a column unless you consider the fact that today the President of the United States cannot be assured of being accorded at least a courteous reception everywhere he goes.

There are a lot of people who hate President Nixon. The President has traditionally been exposed to threats of physical violence and the insane actions of maladjusted individuals who vented their frustrations on the Office of the President. It didn't make any difference who the President was, it just mattered that there was a President. Periodically large numbers of those maladjusted individuals would go out with the intention of killing the man.

It is different today. There are a lot of people who just hate President Nixon. Of course, there are always people who disliked individual Presidents. But there has never been a time in American society when so many people, especially young people, have been so violent toward the person of the man. Many young people have no respect for the man himself and there is open and wide-spread depictions of the President in posters with obscene and derogatory captions in college dormitories. It wouldn't be very hard to find a person who would talk trenchantly of the need for the President's death.

The state of affairs is sad. The President can not speak at any American College or University unless it is "conservative" or "quaint."

Four weeks after the Landon Lecture Nixon received a warm reception at Kansas State. They made delivering his address less than comfortable, but with the majority of the IV-00000 always willing to back him up as a common courtesy, he delivered his address.

Frankly, I was not surprised. I had been told that the area was well known to be a fairly conservative school. At least, that's what most journalists assume from the mere fact that it is situated in the Midwest. Let the President try to speak at any of the more liberal schools, the Eastern colleges "academic" reputations and the heckling would no doubt increase. Probably to the President it wouldn't be able to continue to speak.

The situation does not say much for the average American scholar. A true scholar would treasure freedom of speech, defending it against threats from outside the community as well as from within. He would understand that the only hope for 20th century civilizations torn by war and the ravages of their own waste lies in the firm adherence to some basic set of human values--a set of values which elevates man above all his shortcomings. Not the least of these values is common courtesy. Another is respect for every man's right to hold an opinion differing from others. But do most college students feel outraged at the fact that the men who lead this country can not come to universities to speak about and to be questioned about their actions? It seems nuts.

Amazingly there are none on this campus who will say that the heckling of the President was justified. The President's rhetoric is inflammatory or his polls are ridiculous they say. But since when has it been accepted practice in a truly academic community to refuse a speaker common courtesy for lack of agreement with what he has to say?

The institutions of higher learning are gradually losing their most coveted possession, an atmosphere where free inquiry can take place. In the name of academic freedom, they have tolerated actions by members of the community which have made them more closed, then open institutions. In a time when student power is the demand it must be that power which is used to assure that the principles we express to hold really meant anything to us.
First Communion

by Fr. Robert Griffin

One Sunday this summer, because as priest I felt lonely and isolated while offering a Sunday Mass in the vast, empty sanctuary of Sacred Heart Church, I invited the moppets and urchins of the congregation to join me at the altar for the Canon.

Among the children who trooped up to the altar that morning was a dear, young thing named Eileen. She was an fair child as her lyrically Irish name suggests she should be. She was so pretty, in fact, that a first-grade boy nearly busted a second-grade boy in the nose over who should stand next to the seven-year-old beauty to give her the sign of peace.

At communion time, as I had said I would, I gave hosts to all the young Christians, and the fair Eileen twinkle-toed her way back to the pew to kneel down beside her mother, who was by now a distraught woman. There had been a mixup, you see: Eileen shouldn't have been given the host; she had never made her First Communion; in fact she didn't have any clear idea what Communion was all about except that it was "a gift from God."

Sad to relate, the host did not behave at all well for a gift from God; it got stuck in her throat, somewhere between the tonsil and the windpipe. One might have hoped that the living presence of Christ would be experienced as something more comfortable than as a damp, sticky paste for a little child to choke upon.

Afterwards, speaking to her mother, Eileen announced her rejection of the entire Sacrament called Blessed: "It was awful, and I don't ever want to do it again."

The priest was horrified to learn the news of the instant apostasy of the moppet-child whom he had nourished on the Saviour's glory. Within a few hours, he had half the nuns in Summer School praying that the fair Eileen would give the sacramental system another chance.

The next day, he sat down with the child to talk of the mystery of love and redemption and God-with-us, and of the immensity of the Trinity tucked into a snowflake of wheat, and afterwards the child said she understood. Seemingly, for the child, there was no mystery left.

Then they visited the Keenan-Stanford chapel, where they played a note or two on the organ, identified the Man on the Cross, and peeked into the tabernacle to wonder at the pallor and fragility of the Real Presence of the Lord.

Once again, I offered a fragment of wafer (unconsecrated) to the child, and once again — oh, grief! despair! — the morsel, infamous in its accidents, refused to behave; and the child, despairing of bread so resistant to swallowing, broke into tears.

She was comforted only by the news that for her next Communion — for her first big Communion that would be marked down by the Church in a great book where people could read about it forever — we would send out to a baker for bread whose only ambition in life was to be allowed to be swallowed as God's gift by little girls like Eileen. And if bread refused to do the trick, I declared, we would turn to wine, and immediately poured muscatel into a cup where the light danced joyously upon it. Eileen tasted the wine, and she nearly danced too, because she now knew that Jesus could come in Communion, tasting like grapes that have lain in warm fields for long afternoons, ripening in the sun.

I thought of Eileen today, because on Sunday morning she is coming to Mass in the Keenan-Stanford chapel at eleven o'clock as we resume the Family Mass begun in July for the children of the Notre Dame. Hopefully, other children will be there, too — the moppets and urchins of students, faculty and staff. I am anxious that they should be there, for with children standing about the altar, I as priest can never feel isolated and lonely while offering a Sunday Mass.

Stars and Stripes !!!!!

"legendary" Lillian Leitzel

"GYPSY GALA — A lavish and lovely production featuring educated elephants and pretty girls ..." There will be an Observer Features Staff meeting at 4:30 today.

Next week, the Three Dog Night

The Three Dog Night, if you hadn't guessed Vigil Sjoman’s complex and unique Am Curious (1970) is a "remarkable" film (which has been playing for a long time to droves of Swedes, and to several million people almost everywhere. It is the story of a young girl who is, or was, curious about politics, nonviolence, Zen, commitment, socialism, other Swedes and to be sure, sex. It is a sensitive film with a noble theme, and, in dramatic terms, it is original," says Look magazine. The Evergreen Film (presented by Olive Press) stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.

Hesburgh discusses his roles lightened his work load and responsibilities saying, "I’d say they have been. Because there are a lot of things that used to jump from individual vice presidents or even desks, bang up to my office. Now they normally go thru the Provost’s office.

"To a question directed at him as head of the Civil Rights Commission which asked whether he thought the country was going more or less divided regarding priorities, Fr. Hesburgh said, "There are some areas where we’re making progress, other areas where we’re going backwards." He said that with progress comes polarization, which he remarked, "is as bad as I’ve seen in the past ten or fifteen years."

"A lot of people are very liberal until their kids have to go to school with other kids of another social class or race, and suddenly they become liberal because they take a bad game but they don’t live a good one.

"When asked to comment about change in the country he said, "I don’t think it’s a change. I think it’s a wanting change."

He termed it a creative crisis. He described the present that only a minority wanted to break away from the gothic revolution to a liberal revolution.

An attempt to get leadership from the majority, but you sure have to have some "followership" from the minority.

Regarding the leadership of the majority by the minority he said, "Part of the challenge in our day is to find out what change makes sense."

Most opponents of the amendment say it would give excessive electoral power to a few of the most populous states and negate the influence of the small states.

Sens. Birch Bayh, D Ind., and Howard H. Baker, R Tenn., chief sponsors of the amendment, immediately vowed to carry on the fight.

His hope lay in one of two courses: persuading the Southern bloc, aided by some small state Republicans, to let the issue come to a vote on its merits after further debate; or to switch some of the senators who refused to force a halt in the debate through closure.

The 38 senators voting against cloture included 18 Republicans and 18 Democrats.

Appointments

They are: Rev. Maurice A. men, C.S.C., director of the summer session; Dr. Willis Bartlett, acting chairman of the department of education; Rev. Bernard Clark, C.S.C., professor of the department of the Medieval Institute and Provost; Dr. Leo M. Corbaci, assistant provost and registrar.

They are: Rev. Maurice A. men, C.S.C., director of the non-violence program; Rev. Austgen, C.S.C., director of the summer session; Dr. Willard Bartlett, acting chairman of the department of education; Rev. Michael J. Murphy, C.S.C., assistant to the director of the Medieval Institute and Provost, Leo M. Corbaci, assistant provost and registrar.

Also, Dr. Frank J. Fabry, director of the office for educational research; Dr. Jeremiah P. Freeman, chairman of the department of chemistry; Dr. Stuart T. McComas, assistant dean for research and special projects of the College of Engineering; Rev. Michael J. Murphy, C.S.C., chairman of the department of engineering; Prof. Charles E. Peretti, C.S.C., acting chairman of the department of theology; Dean Bernard Waldman, acting chairman of the department of computing science; and Dr. Ronald Weber, chairman of the department of communication arts and director of the American studies program.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate struck a hard and maybe fatal blow Thursday to a constitutional amendment to make everybody’s vote for president count the same.

Although the action came on procedural question—to kill a filibuster—it definitely weakened if it did not altogether work changes for electoral reform in time for the 1972 elections.

With a two-thirds majority required to stop a Southern-led filibuster against the amendment, proponents of reform could muster only 54 votes to cut off debate against 36 votes to continue it—six votes short.

It is the story of a young girl who is, or was, curious about politics, nonviolence, Zen, commitment, socialism, other Swedes and to be sure, sex. It is a sensitive film with a noble theme, and, in dramatic terms, it is original." says Look magazine. The Evergreen Film (presented by Olive Press) stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.

Filibuster allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate struck a hard and maybe fatal blow Thursday to a constitutional amendment to make everybody’s vote for president count the same.

Although the action came on procedural question—to kill a filibuster—it definitely weakened if it did not altogether work changes for electoral reform in time for the 1972 elections.

With a two-thirds majority required to stop a Southern-led filibuster against the amendment, proponents of reform could muster only 54 votes to cut off debate against 36 votes to continue it—six votes short.

It is the story of a young girl who is, or was, curious about politics, nonviolence, Zen, commitment, socialism, other Swedes and to be sure, sex. It is a sensitive film with a noble theme, and, in dramatic terms, it is original." says Look magazine. The Evergreen Film (presented by Olive Press) stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.

Filibuster allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate struck a hard and maybe fatal blow Thursday to a constitutional amendment to make everybody’s vote for president count the same.

Although the action came on procedural question—to kill a filibuster—it definitely weakened if it did not altogether work changes for electoral reform in time for the 1972 elections.

With a two-thirds majority required to stop a Southern-led filibuster against the amendment, proponents of reform could muster only 54 votes to cut off debate against 36 votes to continue it—six votes short.

It is the story of a young girl who is, or was, curious about politics, nonviolence, Zen, commitment, socialism, other Swedes and to be sure, sex. It is a sensitive film with a noble theme, and, in dramatic terms, it is original." says Look magazine. The Evergreen Film (presented by Olive Press) stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.

Filibuster allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate struck a hard and maybe fatal blow Thursday to a constitutional amendment to make everybody’s vote for president count the same.

Although the action came on procedural question—to kill a filibuster—it definitely weakened if it did not altogether work changes for electoral reform in time for the 1972 elections.

With a two-thirds majority required to stop a Southern-led filibuster against the amendment, proponents of reform could muster only 54 votes to cut off debate against 36 votes to continue it—six votes short.

It is the story of a young girl who is, or was, curious about politics, nonviolence, Zen, commitment, socialism, other Swedes and to be sure, sex. It is a sensitive film with a noble theme, and, in dramatic terms, it is original." says Look magazine. The Evergreen Film (presented by Olive Press) stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.
Communists make truce offer

PARIS (UPI) - The Vietnam- ese Communists Thursday offered the United States a limited cease fire and prompt talks on the exchange of U.S. and Communist prisoners of war if President Nixon agrees to remove all Americans and other allied troops from Vietnam by June 30, 1971.

Chief U.S. negotiator David K.F. Bruce and South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam, while promising to study the package offer, said it contained nothing essentially new. Bruce said the offer looked to him like "new wine in old bottles."

Turning the offer a major peace initiative and a clarification of the past negotiating offer, Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh said acceptance of the scheme would help break the 19 month old deadlock in the Paris talks.

Her plan, while offering a limited and vague cease fire to the Americans in return for a withdrawal pledge, also called for formation of a new provisional coalition cabinet in Sai gon.

Mrs. Binh said members of the present Saigon government who renounced the idea of a defense alliance with the United States and espoused the Viet Cong's"neutralist"policy could be members of the coalition government.

But she specifically ruled out inclusion of Pham Van Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Van Cu Ky and the Premier Tran Thien Khiem in the provisional government.

South Vietnamese Ambas- sador Pham Dang Lam told the Viet Cong leader the Communists still kept asking for two preconditions - the unilateral withdrawal of all U.S. and other allied troops without committing themselves to a North Vietnamese withdrawal, and the overthrow of the elected Saigon government.

STANFORD LAW SCHOOL

Mr. Keogh, Dean of Admissions for the Stanford Law School is scheduling interviews for prospective students on Thursday, September 24 in the Business Building Room 205.

Sign up for appointments at suite room 341 O'Shaughnessy

THE OBSERVER • Page 7

Edmund Price

Baking facility discussed; New hamburger policy

(continued from p. 1)

caused problems, since it entailed transport of the foodstuffs from the central commissary to facili- ties all over campus. "I feel that part of our problem lies in the shortage of proper transportation and personnel to drive it," Majocchi commented.

"Eventually there will be a central facility," he said, "that will handle baking, meat cutting and the commissary store," adding that it was in the planning stage.

At present practice of clamping off "F" line in order to feed the football team causes some delay as students on line are forced to shift over to "E" line in order to eat.

When asked if he felt that the present system for feeding ath- letes is adequate, Majocchi replied "No, I do not feel the present system for feeding ath- letes is adequate. I believe that they as well as the students are being deprived of the meals to which they would normally be entitled to."

"I further believe that athletes such as our football players should be given a diet different than that appearing on our regu- lar menus. I further believe that a dining hall feeding just athletes throughout the year can be de- veloped in the Athletic and Con- vocation Center, providing a menu that will be conducive to their necessities." Majocchi announced a change in the traditional Notre Dame hamburger. From now on inste d of getting one hamburger, each student will be served two the first time through the lines. The size of the burgers had also been cut down. For seconds however each student will be given one additional hamburger.

"We used to get four hamburger to the pound," he said, "but now we'll be getting six. The student will be getting more overall though since he will be getting two hamburgers." Majocchi added that since the rolls will be smaller "the meat will stick out around the edges," rather than be covered by bread as before.

"I think the seconds will taper off. This is something new, and in the future students will take a melting pot互补 friday, sept. 18 8:30 - 11:30 $1.00

remnants of first friday

magnificet 7

larry beecher sextet

s m c coffeehouse

Edmund Price

Majocchi resigns

by Mark Graham

Edmund Price, Director of the Notre Dame Food Service, stated yesterday that the manager of the North Dining Hall, Richard Majocchi, is resigning as of Sept. 30.

When asked for the purpose of his resignation, Majocchi stated, "Personal reasons. Too many irons in the fire and none of it maturing."

Edward Price, Dining Hall Manager, added, "I do not feel the present system for feeding athletes is adequate. I believe that they as well as the students are being deprived of the meals to which they would normally be entitled to.

"I further believe that athletes such as our football players should be given a diet different than that appearing on our regular menus. I further believe that a dining hall feeding just athletes throughout the year can be developed in the Athletic and Convocation Center, providing a menu that will be conducive to their necessities."

Majocchi announced a change in the traditional Notre Dame hamburger. From now on instead of getting one hamburger, each student will be served two the first time through the lines. The size of the burgers had also been cut down. For seconds however each student will be given one additional hamburger.

"We used to get four hamburgers to the pound," he said, "but now we'll be getting six. The student will be getting more overall though since he will be getting two hamburgers." Majocchi added that since the rolls will be smaller "the meat will stick out around the edges," rather than be covered by bread as before.

"I think the seconds will taper off. This is something new, and in the future students will take a

Thursday, September 18, 1970

Edmund Price

Majocchi resigns

by Mark Graham

Edmund Price, Director of the Notre Dame Food Service, stated yesterday that the manager of the North Dining Hall, Richard Majocchi, is resigning as of Sept. 30. When asked for the purpose of his resignation, Majocchi stated, "Personal reasons. Too many irons in the fire and none of it maturing."

Edward Price, Dining Hall Manager, added, "I do not feel the present system for feeding athletes is adequate. I believe that they as well as the students are being deprived of the meals to which they would normally be entitled to.

"I further believe that athletes such as our football players should be given a diet different than that appearing on our regular menus. I further believe that a dining hall feeding just athletes throughout the year can be developed in the Athletic and Convocation Center, providing a menu that will be conducive to their necessities."

Majocchi announced a change in the traditional Notre Dame hamburger. From now on instead of getting one hamburger, each student will be served two the first time through the lines. The size of the burgers had also been cut down. For seconds however each student will be given one additional hamburger.

"We used to get four hamburgers to the pound," he said, "but now we'll be getting six. The student will be getting more overall though since he will be getting two hamburgers." Majocchi added that since the rolls will be smaller "the meat will stick out around the edges," rather than be covered by bread as before.

"I think the seconds will taper off. This is something new, and in the future students will take a
Irish must stop Daigeneu, Pearson

by Terry Shields

Sports Observer Editor

It's the Wildcats and the Irish tomorrow afternoon and that says quite a lot. Notre Dame holds a commanding 27-7-2 record in this ancient series that dates as far back as 1889. Don't let that record make you think that there hasn't been some real ding-dong battles between the two Midwestern schools, however.

There is no reason to believe that this season's product should be any different in results. The Wildcats have some explosive credentials to put points on the board and since this is the first game of the season, ND won't have that tremendous press build up to frighten the opposition.

The game appears to boil down to a matter of whose defense is the stronger. Northwestern's offense is potent. They rely a great deal on the running of Mike Adamile and Al Robin-son. Both have good speed but there size is questionable. Both weigh in at about 190 lbs. They have a veteran offensive line that make holes for them but they will be going against a defense famed for its stinginess on the ground.

It may be a blessing in dis- guise if the Wildcats are forced to pass. Quarterback Maurice Daigeneu (DANE-you) has a sure throwing arm and his receivers are potential standouts. Jeff Brown is a split end with great speed and fine moves who has been showing brilliantly in the fall scrimmages.

The real standout on the team may be a junior flankerback named Barry Pearson. Pearson is fast and he is also lightning quick. Besides receiving passes he doubles as a punt return man. Clarence Ellis will line up on which ever side of the field that Pearson splits. This should tell the tale of what kind of ballplayer Pearson really is.

The Notre Dame defense must shut down Daigeneu and Northwestern's newly installed option offense if the Irish want to avoid an early home loss. The men that will probably take this responsibility are Patulski and Bob Neiderer at the ends (possibly the best tandem in the country) and tackles Greg Marx and Mike Zikan. Marx is a sopho-more who bawms dressing.

The linebackers have been impressive. There are five who will see plenty of action. Tom Kelly (captain of the defense), Jim Wright, Eric Patton, John Rat-telman and Art Thomann. All of these men have experience and even more important they are MEAN.

The secondary is headed by All-America candidate Ellis and Ralph Stepanian, a steady starter from last season. Mike Crotty will probably get the nod to start at safety. Crotty is only 5'7" but he is quick and a hard hitter.

Northwestern's secondary is experienced and, with what they must face, they'll need all of the savvy they can muster. Eric Hultgren and Rick Tinsauer were two of the Big Ten's better defensive backs last season and they will try to stop the passing of Heisman Trophy Candidate Joe Theismann. Jack Dutil and Mike Coughlin will also be deep.

The Wildcats defensive line boasts two proven terminals but little else. Wil Hemby and Mike Morland will try to cover for mistakes made by the new interior linemen.

The Irish offense is a potential powder keg. A Theismann to Tom Gatewood completion was no uncommon sight throughout the spring and fall scrimmages and its a difficult thing to stop. Last year in the regular season this combo clicked 47 times. ND fans should be forewarned of the same this time around.

The offensive backs are neither overwhelmingly fast nor big but they do get the job done. Senior Denny Allan was a dependable four yard per carry man last year and he may well improve. Orange Bowl MVP Mike Barz is a great man to have for short yardage situations. He rarely falls for the easy secondary yardage. The other halfback will be Ed Gulyas. Gulyas saw a little playing time last year as a defensive back and return specialist. In the spring he impressed enough to be given a shot at the starting offensive position.

Besides Gatewood, the line will feature Mike Creamery, a sophomore tight end who has fought hard to gain the position and there is little evidence that he will give it up. The Notre Dame offensive line has been a worry for head coach Ara Parseghian. Larry Dinardo (possibly the best tandem in the country) and Mike Zikas. Marx is a sopho-more who bawms dressing.

The Interhall Office has announced that they will sponsor a tennis tourney this fall. There will be two divisions: novice and open. Novice is limited to those with no competitive experience.

Deadline for entries is Sept. 22. To enter sign up at the Interhall Office (C4) or Interhall Room at the ACC. and Gary Koo give the Irish two of the finest guards in the country buy every where else is a question mark. Dan Nowak started at tackle in the Cotton Bowl and he played well in the game. Mike Marin has been plagued by injuries since he came to ND but the big man from Oregon has rebounded well enough to get in the starting backfield lineup. The other tackle is John Dampere, a soph from Kermirt, Texas. He won the Heiring award for the most improved offensive player in the spring so he should be an asset to ND in the opener.

The key to the game should be Daigeneu and company. ND has the boys to put points on the board and for the defense to come through. NU may stay Southern California for a half but the Irish results will be similar to last year. Ara will give his old pal Alex Ague another lesson.

Northwestern must stop Joe Theismann (sounds like Heisman Trophy) to stop Notre Dame.

The Notre Dame Soccer Club will start their season this weekend with two home matches.

1:00 p.m. Saturday the Irish take on St. Norbert's of West De Pere, Wisconsin. Sunday finds the Booters playing U. of Wisconsin, Parkside. Game time is 2:00 p.m.

The Irish play a twelve-game schedule this fall.

Terry Shields

The Irish Eye

Booters open Season

The Weekend nearly every major college team gets into action and there appears to be a lot of interesting match-ups. The only big name missing from the state is pre-season favorite Ohio State. The Buckeyes open next weekend against the Texas A&M Aggies.

The results should look something like this:

Notre Dame over Northwestern: The Irish won't be caught looking with Purdue. They have a lot of respect for the Wildcats but they also have confidence in themselves.

Texas over California: The Longhorns first attempt at defending the nation's championship should be a successful one.

Houston over Syracuse: The Cougars make their first attempt at setting even more offensive records. They shouldn't score a hundred points but they'll probably get close.

Tennessee over Southern Methodist: This shouldn't be the Vols strongest team of late but they'll be strong enough to take care of Jackson and Coxson and Ho.

LSU over Texas A&M: The Aggies hold the unique distinction of never having lost a ball game in collegiate competition. They have been out-scored on numerous occasions, however, and this is one of those occasions.

Missouri over Minnesota: Mizzou has another fine ball club and they should have just enough to get by the improved Gophers.

Kansas State over Kentucky: Professor Dickery will hold his second lecture of the semester on the Parade. UPSET OF THE WEEK.

Pittsburgh over UCLA: Laugh, scoff, and call me names if you might, but the Panthers have an honest to goodness, real football team and they will surprise the weakened Bruins in Pitt Stadium.

In other games across the country it looks like Penn State over Navy, West Virginia over Richmond, Army over Beth, Florida over Mississippi State, Minnesota over Memphis State, Georgia over Tulane, Clemson over Virginia, South Carolina to rebound against Wake Forest, Alabama over Colorado, Texas Tech over Villanova, Purdue over TCU, Texas Tech over Kansas, Iowa over Oregon State, opener over Illinois, Indiana over Colorado, Michigan over Arizona. Michigan State over Washington, Air Force over Wyoming, and Arkansas to join Penn State over Oklahoma State.

Last week 19 of 24

Season Percentage .792

MAJOR LEAGUES

National League

East

West

St. Louis 9 Chicago 2
Philadelphia 3 Pittsburgh 2
Houston at Los Angeles, night

Seattle 6, Los Angeles night

Only games scheduled

American League

East

West

St. Louis 6, Oakland night

California at Minnesota

St. Louis 9, Cleveland night

Cleveland at Minnesota

Only games scheduled

The Irish Eye

Picks

This weekend nearly every major college team gets into action and there appears to be a lot of interesting match-ups. The only big name missing from the state is pre-season favorite Ohio State. The Buckeyes open next weekend against the Texas A&M Aggies.

The results should look something like this:

Notre Dame over Northwestern: The Irish won't be caught looking with Purdue. They have a lot of respect for the Wildcats but they also have confidence in themselves.

Texas over California: The Longhorns first attempt at defending the nation's championship should be a successful one.

Houston over Syracuse: The Cougars make their first attempt at setting even more offensive records. They shouldn't score a hundred points but they'll probably get close.

Tennessee over Southern Methodist: This shouldn't be the Vols strongest team of late but they'll be strong enough to take care of Jackson and Coxson and Ho.

LSU over Texas A&M: The Aggies hold the unique distinction of never having lost a ball game in collegiate competition. They have been out-scored on numerous occasions, however, and this is one of those occasions.

Missouri over Minnesota: Mizzou has another fine ball club and they should have just enough to get by the improved Gophers.

Kansas State over Kentucky: Professor Dickery will hold his second lecture of the semester on the Parade. UPSET OF THE WEEK.

Pittsburgh over UCLA: Laugh, scoff, and call me names if you might, but the Panthers have an honest to goodness, real football team and they will surprise the weakened Bruins in Pitt Stadium.

In other games across the country it looks like Penn State over Navy, West Virginia over Richmond, Army over Beth, Florida over Mississippi State, Minnesota over Memphis State, Georgia over Tulane, Clemson over Virginia, South Carolina to rebound against Wake Forest, Alabama over Colorado, Texas Tech over Villanova, Purdue over TCU, Texas Tech over Kansas, Iowa over Oregon State, opener over Illinois, Indiana over Colorado, Michigan over Arizona. Michigan State over Washington, Air Force over Wyoming, and Arkansas to join Penn State over Oklahoma State.

Last week 19 of 24

Season Percentage .792