Problems in coeducation discussed at St. Mary's

By Ann Conway

Speaking to an SRO crowd in Chemical Fraternity Hall Friday afternoon, Student Body President Ann Mary's Donohue said that the publication of the Catholic Monthly's practice of coeducation at St. Mary's, the college for which she is named, would not be a new story. Donohue's paper, published weekly, said that the practice of coeducation at St. Mary's, which has been discussed in recent months, would not be a new story.

After spending the past two weeks meeting with the students, faculty, and administrators of both colleges, the researchers found "profoundly ironic," Dr. Park stated. "There are many problems here although many on a small scale. A lot has been accomplished, but a plateau has been reached and a new vision is needed."

She also stated that "there are three ways to view the present situation. First, there is a movement toward cooperation and a growing mixture of the sexes on the two campuses. Second, boys and girls are more involved in social crises, and thirdly the young people want variety in their educational opportunities."

According to the researchers, the two campuses are "independent of St. Mary’s, within three years SAT points at St. Mary’s would drop and there would be an eventual drop in people."

DETROIT (UPI) Fifteen persons who barricated themselves in a house, described as a Black Panther headquarters, for eight hours following the fatal shooting of a 12-year-old man were charged yesterday with first degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

At the same time, the great restraint used to handle a situation that could have been a "wacky" one was commended by city leaders.

One of the 15 persons then barricaded in the house was shot and killed. Detroit police said a gun blast from the house struck Patrolman Glenn Smith in the head. He was dead on arrival at Detroit General Hospital.

Several persons who barricaded themselves in a house were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered.

Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.

A scuffle followed and the officers called for help. The first 12 persons then surrendered. Of eight others arrested near the scene, one was charged with assault and battery, one with destruction of property, five were released and another faces possible arson charges in the burning of a police car. The trouble began Saturday evening when two policemen, who burst into the home, were met by a group of Black Panther leader. Police said the car was burning and police were refused passage unless they took the two persons in custody.
The overall opinion expressed by those associated with the Sophomore Year Abroad Program is one of continual praise. The director, various deans, and the participating students agree that foreign study has proved beneficial for all.

The program began in 1964 in Innsbruck, Austria, spread to Angers, France in 1966 and has since expanded to Tokyo, Rome, and most recently, Mexico City. The Innsbruck program is conducted at the University of Innsbruck (Leopold-Franz Universitat), Angers' at Universite Catholique de 'Ouest, and Tokyo's in the city itself at the Jesus Sophia University. Rome is connected with no university as such, but is the extension of the St. Mary's campus in Italy, and Mexico City has the Universitad Anahuac.

It should be noted that the participating students are still officially enrolled as members of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College; and that they receive no extra credit for going abroad, but are taught the required courses in order to achieve their necessary credit-hours.

The progrالم was created for the benefit of all students as a resident and as a person. Being educated abroad, it is felt, does not take anything away from a Notre Dame education, but rather widens perspectives, allowing students to see their own culture from the inside.

There are many advantages to be accrued in foreign study. Since the academic and social programs abroad are less structured, the student tends to have more time for reflection and independent exploration. He also learns to understand and appreciate his own country and culture.

Robert J. Waddick, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Letters, praised the program. He said that the courses plus the experience of being abroad are extremely important to the student. He believes that the F.S.P. provides a new outlook for the individual and gives him a firm grasp of a foreign country's language and customs. The only drawback, according to Waddick, has been the inadequate counseling the student receives abroad. But this is being remedied this year, he pointed out.

Another plus is the program's placement in the sophomore year -- thereby letting the student get his required courses in order and having to devote a great deal of time to his major.

Dean Thomas Murphy of the College of Business explained that foreign study can also be very helpful to the business major. Students have a chance to observe comparative economic systems, different equity financing, stock exchanges, and monetary systems, he said. Students can also see how American banks and insurance companies operate abroad.

Dean Murphy considers the program "highly successful" and encourages greater student interest and participation.

Freshmen become interested in the program for various reasons. Some find foreign study useful in the fields, such as diplomatic relations, sociology, or language, which they intend to pursue in college.

Students who wish to go next year and those who have returned this year said that they wanted to get similar things out of the program. If the foreign groups want to receive a grasp of a foreign language superior to that which they will find in an American classroom, and both groups wanted an opportunity to travel to other countries.

Dan Duffy, a freshman hoping to go to Innsbruck next year, wishes to meet new people, and is curious as to the reactions he will receive from foreign and as a member of the minority that the Americans will be in Innsbruck.

Kelly Cushing, who returned from Innsbruck this year, enjoyed the F.S.P. and its freely structured program, which allowed her to travel from Spain to Greece through Yugoslavia and as far north as Belgium. She agreed with Dean Waddick that foreign study is service abroad, but said again, that it is being remedied.

Professor's Insight

The director of the Foreign Studies Program (F.S.P.), Rev. Lawrence Foulois, attributes various factors to the programs' apparent success. First, the immediate purpose of foreign study has been accomplished. Students return, having a more defined concept of their own community and the larger community about them. Secondly, they have mastered another language, and thereby learned another means of communication. Third, they are, probably the most satisfying to Fr. Brecelona and the faculty members involved, is that the students have been pleased, and regard their foreign activities as quite enjoyable and rewarding.

The program was created for the benefit of all students as a resident and as a person. Being educated abroad, it is felt, does not take anything away from a Notre Dame education, but rather widens perspectives, allowing students to see their own culture from the inside.

There are many advantages to be accrued in foreign study. Since the academic and social programs abroad are less structured, the student tends to have more time for reflection and independent exploration. He also learns to understand and appreciate his own country and culture.

Robert J. Waddick, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Letters, praised the program. He said that the courses plus the experience of being abroad are extremely important to the student. He believes that the F.S.P. provides a new outlook for the individual and gives him a firm grasp of a foreign country's language and customs. The only drawback, according to Waddick, has been the inadequate counseling the student receives abroad. But this is being remedied this year, he pointed out.

Another plus is the program's placement in the sophomore year -- thereby letting the student get his required courses in order and having to devote a great deal of time to his major.

Dean Thomas Murphy of the College of Business explained that foreign study can also be very helpful to the business major. Students have a chance to observe comparative economic systems, different equity financing, stock exchanges, and monetary systems, he said. Students can also see how American banks and insurance companies operate abroad.

Dean Murphy considers the program "highly successful" and encourages greater student interest and participation.

Freshmen become interested in the program for various reasons. Some find foreign study useful in the fields, such as diplomatic relations, sociology, or language, which they intend to pursue in college.

Students who wish to go next year and those who have returned this year said that they wanted to get similar things out of the program. If the foreign groups want to receive a grasp of a foreign language superior to that which they will find in an American classroom, and both groups wanted an opportunity to travel to other countries.

Dan Duffy, a freshman hoping to go to Innsbruck next year, wishes to meet new people, and is curious as to the reactions he will receive from foreign and as a member of the minority that the Americans will be in Innsbruck.

Kelly Cushing, who returned from Innsbruck this year, enjoyed the F.S.P. and its freely structured program, which allowed her to travel from Spain to Greece through Yugoslavia and as far north as Belgium. She agreed with Dean Waddick that foreign study is service abroad, but said again, that it is being remedied.

Professor's Insight

The director of the Foreign Studies Program (F.S.P.), Rev. Lawrence Foulois, attributes various factors to the programs' apparent success. First, the immediate purpose of foreign study has been accomplished. Students return, having a more defined concept of their own community and the larger community about them. Secondly, they have mastered another language, and thereby learned another means of communication. Third, they are, probably the most satisfying to Fr. Brecelona and the faculty members involved, is that the students have been pleased, and regard their foreign activities as quite enjoyable and rewarding.

The program was created for the benefit of all students as a resident and as a person. Being educated abroad, it is felt, does not take anything away from a Notre Dame education, but rather widens perspectives, allowing students to see their own culture from the inside.

There are many advantages to be accrued in foreign study. Since the academic and social programs abroad are less structured, the student tends to have more time for reflection and independent exploration. He also learns to understand and appreciate his own country and culture.

Robert J. Waddick, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Letters, praised the program. He said that the courses plus the experience of being abroad are extremely important to the student. He believes that the F.S.P. provides a new outlook for the individual and gives him a firm grasp of a foreign country's language and customs. The only drawback, according to Waddick, has been the inadequate counseling the student receives abroad. But this is being remedied this year, he pointed out.

Another plus is the program's placement in the sophomore year -- thereby letting the student get his required courses in order and having to devote a great deal of time to his major.

Dean Thomas Murphy of the College of Business explained that foreign study can also be very helpful to the business major. Students have a chance to observe comparative economic systems, different equity financing, stock exchanges, and monetary systems, he said. Students can also see how American banks and insurance companies operate abroad.

Dean Murphy considers the program "highly successful" and encourages greater student interest and participation.

Freshmen become interested in the program for various reasons. Some find foreign study useful in the fields, such as diplomatic relations, sociology, or language, which they intend to pursue in college.

Students who wish to go next year and those who have returned this year said that they wanted to get similar things out of the program. If the foreign groups want to receive a grasp of a foreign language superior to that which they will find in an American classroom, and both groups wanted an opportunity to travel to other countries.

Dan Duffy, a freshman hoping to go to Innsbruck next year, wishes to meet new people, and is curious as to the reactions he will receive from foreign and as a member of the minority that the Americans will be in Innsbruck.

Kelly Cushing, who returned from Innsbruck this year, enjoyed the F.S.P. and its freely structured program, which allowed her to travel from Spain to Greece through Yugoslavia and as far north as Belgium. She agreed with Dean Waddick that foreign study is service abroad, but said again, that it is being remedied.
Frosch & Joshe, Irish rally falls short

by Vic Dorf
Observer Sportswriter

Michigan State quarterback Mark Dunn and the band of Spartan teammates wasted very little time in pitting their superiority over the Notre Dame Freshman Team. The Spartans proved their worth in the first half, lead, and then survived a battle that turned out to be a 24-14 victory in the season opener for both teams.

Brown tried in vain to get the Irish offense untracked during the final quarter, and a Green Bay Hills, who carried the ball ten times against the Notre Dame workhorse. The rugged Spartan defense allowed him very little room to move, and after Hill's ten carries netted him mere 2.9 yards. The other Irish backs found room to run, however, and were comfortable. But while ND was struggling to get its attack off the ground, the charged-up Spartans rolled to another first down on the Irish 25. This drive was another bit of Michigan State deceptions. Partly because of his running back, Walter Simpson. Simpson-stan- doned a yard gain, but pulled up short and fired a pass to Ramin, who made a diving reception at the Notre Dame ten. Following a quarterback sneak, halfback Bruce Anderson swept left end for State's final touchdown.

The Irish ball club seemed to come alive in the second half. The defense stiffened visibly, and allowed the Spartans only one score - a 24-yard field goal - during the first 30 minutes of the game.

But the biggest change was apparent in the Notre Dame offense. Brown put together their first sustained drive of the afternoon, and got the Spartans following immediately, following the MSU field goal. Gary Dininnick, who caught a pass that seemed to be a first down, was tackled for a ten-yard loss and then tackled again. Again, the Spartans fumbled. Neither offense was able to get any kind of drive started, and punt after punt went on the scoreboard.

Michigan State replaced Neisen with Mike Holt, and the Notre Dame greeted the new doorman.

Brown got the Irish back into the game with a 37-yard field goal.

Rookie-Of-The-Year and they offered me $1 000,000 to quit the game. I'm that good there's no way I'm quitting. That contract was 100 times better than they could give me. If I stay at Notre Dame, I'm gonna make them offer me $100,000,000. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

We're thinking about making a $500,000 bet on that. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

Oh, I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

I'm the one who owns the thing. I'm the one who owns the thing. I'm the one who owns the thing.

They said I'd never been hurt or hopeless.

Choly had a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Clay a 5-2 favorite to beat NATO.

The winner of the Quincy - Clay bout is certain to be Frazier's next opponent.

I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

Somebody asked me what's the matter with me. They said I'd never been hit or hopeless.

Choly had a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Clay a 5-2 favorite to beat NATO.

The winner of the Quincy - Clay bout is certain to be Frazier's next opponent.

I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

Somebody asked me what's the matter with me. They said I'd never been hit or hopeless.

Choly had a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Clay a 5-2 favorite to beat NATO.

The winner of the Quincy - Clay bout is certain to be Frazier's next opponent.

I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.

Somebody asked me what's the matter with me. They said I'd never been hit or hopeless.

Choly had a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Clay a 5-2 favorite to beat NATO.

The winner of the Quincy - Clay bout is certain to be Frazier's next opponent.

I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good. I'm that good.
S M C coed plans studied

(Continued from page 1) program and therefore no-t each-
ing anxiety. Consequently we are buyer taught by professors for all courses." Approximately 10% of all classes at Notre Dame are presently taught by teaching assistants.

Actual problem of going co-educational is the effect of the move on the Holy Cross Order which maintains its mother house and owns the grounds.

by John Powers

Arrangements for the speaking engagement of Jane Fonda on November 8, at Stora Center are now under discussion according to SUAC Co-chairman James Metzger. Metzger said that he was discussing the speaking engagement of Fonda with SUAC Co-chairman Mary Underman as well as Student Union Director Bob Pohl, whom Metzger said is not in favor of Miss Fonda's appearance on campus.

A contract with Jane Fonda's agent has already been signed by SUAC, and whether or not Miss Fonda appears at Notre Dame, she will be paid. A final decision on the matter is expected tonight.

Opinion has varied on Miss Fonda's scheduled speech. Student Body Vice President Mark Winings thought that "she might have something interesting to say," and that he would "let the people be the judge.

Professor Norling of the History Department remarked that she "was not a very promising selection. (She was) picked not because she knew very much, but because there is a lot of publicity about her. People like this don't add anything to the intellectual atmosphere of the place, nor do they have anything that's worth listening to." Chris Wolfe thought that Miss Fonda was asked to speak because "she typifies what a woman should be and do today." He added that "she is awfully sincere, she's just ignorant. She's the latest in a long line of people who are totally dissatisfied with society.

Wolfe is confident that Miss Fonda will draw a "huge crowd." "Everyone knows what she looks like," he said. Miss Fonda has starred in recent award winning films such as CAT BALLOU, HURBY SUNDOWN, THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY, and BARBARELLA. At the same time, she has actively involved herself with minority groups such as the Black Panthers and the American Indians. She has also set up a Washington, D.C. office with lawyer Mark Lane to handle complaints from G.I.'s who have been disciplined for expressing rights guaranteed under the First Amendment.

of the coeducation committee was that whoever we got as president the order should be willing to work closely with Notre Dame." One problem brought up was how the lack of stability of St. Mary's present situation would affect a candidate's willingness to accept a position which could be dissolved by coeducation or merger with the University.

On the question of the reaction of the Board of Trustees toward coeducation, Miss Tracey said, "We can realize that if there is unity behind the proposal which we finally present to them, they'll have to recognize the problem and act on it." Finally, Miss Henninger stated, "The talks are proceeding very quickly and I think that Notre Dame and St. Mary's together will have a definite proposal soon for Drs. Park and Mayhew for future structure of a St. Mary's - Notre Dame collabora-

"Goodell"

(Continued from page 1) statewide sampling of 4,870 voters.

Earlier polls had given October the lead but the standings were clouded by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's intervention in the campaign.

Agnew has repeatedly attacked Goodell as a "radical liberal" and all but endorsed Buckley, while President Nixon has withheld his endorsement for Goodell and praised Buckley for his support of administration policies. Goodell is a leading Senate critic of Nixon's Vietnam policies and has sponsored legislation calling for a unilateral withdrawal of U.S. troops.

HURRAH

Over The Hill will be held again Wednesday night - FREE

presented by Student Union Social Commission

"YOU CAN GET ANYTHING YOU WANT ..."

AT THE OMBUDSMAN OFFICE

S P R I N G  F A L L W I N T E R

SMC coed plans studied

(Continued from page 1) program and therefore no-teaching anxiety. Consequently we are buyer taught by professors for all courses." Approximately 10% of all classes at Notre Dame are presently taught by teaching assistants.

Actual problem of going co-educational is the effect of the move on the Holy Cross Order which maintains its mother house and owns the grounds.

By John Powers

Arrangements for the speaking engagement of Jane Fonda on November 8, at Stora Center are now under discussion according to SUAC Co-chairman James Metzger. Metzger said that he was discussing the speaking engagement of Fonda with SUAC Co-chairman Mary Underman as well as Student Union Director Bob Pohl, whom Metzger said is not in favor of Miss Fonda's appearance on campus.

A contract with Jane Fonda's agent has already been signed by SUAC, and whether or not Miss Fonda appears at Notre Dame, she will be paid. A final decision on the matter is expected tonight.

Opinion has varied on Miss Fonda's scheduled speech. Student Body Vice President Mark Winings thought that "she might have something interesting to say," and that he would "let the people be the judge.

Professor Norling of the History Department remarked that she "was not a very promising selection. (She was) picked not because she knew very much, but because there is a lot of publicity about her. People like this don't add anything to the intellectual atmosphere of the place, nor do they have anything that's worth listening to." Chris Wolfe thought that Miss Fonda was asked to speak because "she typifies what a woman should be and do today." He added that "she is awfully sincere, she's just ignorant. She's the latest in a long line of people who are totally dissatisfied with society.

Wolfe is confident that Miss Fonda will draw a "huge crowd." "Everyone knows what she looks like," he said. Miss Fonda has starred in recent award winning films such as CAT BALLOU, HURBY SUNDOWN, THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY, and BARBARELLA. At the same time, she has actively involved herself with minority groups such as the Black Panthers and the American Indians. She has also set up a Washington, D.C. office with lawyer Mark Lane to handle complaints from G.I.'s who have been disciplined for expressing rights guaranteed under the First Amendment.

of the coeducation committee was that whoever we got as president the order should be willing to work closely with Notre Dame." One problem brought up was how the lack of stability of St. Mary's present situation would affect a candidate's willingness to accept a position which could be dissolved by coeducation or merger with the University.

On the question of the reaction of the Board of Trustees toward coeducation, Miss Tracey said, "We can realize that if there is unity behind the proposal which we finally present to them, they'll have to recognize the problem and act on it." Finally, Miss Henninger stated, "The talks are proceeding very quickly and I think that Notre Dame and St. Mary's together will have a definite proposal soon for Drs. Park and Mayhew for future structure of a St. Mary's - Notre Dame collabora-

"Goodell"

(Continued from page 1) statewide sampling of 4,870 voters.

Earlier polls had given October the lead but the standings were clouded by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's intervention in the campaign.

Agnew has repeatedly attacked Goodell as a "radical liberal" and all but endorsed Buckley, while President Nixon has withheld his endorsement for Goodell and praised Buckley for his support of administration policies. Goodell is a leading Senate critic of Nixon's Vietnam policies and has sponsored legislation calling for a unilateral withdrawal of U.S. troops.

HURRAH

Over The Hill will be held again Wednesday night - FREE

presented by Student Union Social Commission

"YOU CAN GET ANYTHING YOU WANT ..."

AT THE OMBUDSMAN OFFICE

S P R I N G  F A L L W I N T E R