BOSTON (UPI) - Cardinal Richard Cushing, 75, the "com­mon man" chosen as archbishop of Boston, lived his life as a Catholic Church who also was a Kennedy family, died yesterday of a kidney ailment.

Death came shortly before 2:30 p.m. (EST) at the cardinal's res­idence. Archbishop Humberto Cardinal Moreira, who also was a Kennedy family, died yesterday of a kidney ailment.

Death came shortly before 2:30 p.m. (EST) at the cardinal's res­idence. Archbishop Humberto Cardinal Moreira, who also was a Kennedy family, died yesterday of a kidney ailment.

The cardinal, who stepped down last month after 26 years as archbishop of Boston, was stricken by cancer 14 years ago and was given eight months to live in 1964 when a malignant kidney was removed.

"We are looking for sound thinking students with a good temperament who are not easily polarized or known as extremely thinking," he said. "We will be informed prior to the meeting of the committee's de­cision. Those who wish to do so will be allowed to argue either in favor of or in opposition to the suggestions of the committee. The senate, which has the final judgement in the matter, will be free to decide on the budget allotments.

Andrus also said that there are a few major problems in formulating a budget in this manner. He cited a lack of knowledge concerning budgeting procedure, an inability to read financial statements, and a lack of other similar financial know­ledge as some of the difficulties. In an attempt to solve the dilemma, Conroy has prepared a paper giving the above and similar information. Each senator is to receive a copy before the meeting.

Two of the requests which may cause some controversy are the appeals for money by Stan­ford and S. Edward's Halls, according to Conroy. He said that some of the problems in giving these and other individual halls money "boils down to how to appropriate money effectively and fairly, and how to establish genuine need."

The second oldest of five chil­dren of an Irish immigrant black­smith, the cardinal was born Aug. 24, 1895. He dropped out of high school to work on the Boston docks but later returned to college and entered the seminary after graduating from Boston College High School.

He was named archbishop of Boston, the nation's second larg­est archdiocese, in 1944, and was elevated to cardinal in 1958. In 1963, he married then Sen. John F. Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier. He also presided at the burial in 1963 of President Ken­nedy and Sen. Robert F. Ken­nedy two years ago after they were assassinated.

When the President's widow wanted to marry Greek financier Aristotle Onassis in 1968, he defended her right to do so, cautioning that she could not marry Onassis and remain a Catholic in good standing. When critics responded with "gutter" mail, he offered to resign, com­menting, "If they [his critics] don't understand me after 47 years, then I'll be sorry if they ever understand me."

George Tech ticket charity drive is closing a meeting at 8:30 Wednesday night in the LaForn­tau amphitheater for those interested in assisting the drive by becoming monitors and trans­porting children who are unable to find a ride to Notre Dame.

The committee headed by Student Government Hall Life Commissioner Eric Andrus needs between fifty and seventy volun­teers to monitor the children at the game. These volunteers would keep the tickets and attend the game, but would sit with a group of about ten chil­dren. The committee feels that many of the volunteers will come from the Neighborhood Study Help program and they feel that no one who is domineering that enough stu­dents will offer their services to make up the difference.

Andrus estimates that 200 and possible as many as 400 chil­dren will be unable to find a ride to the stadium. They are appealing to the stu­dent body to use their own cars in transporting the children. Anyone able to assist as a mon­itor or a driver is urged to attend the meeting.

The Georgia Tech game will be televised on local channels so the organizers expect a greater number of students to give up their tickets than might other­wise be expected.

The financial committee will present its final budget allot­ments for each organization to the Student Senate on Wednesday night. Organization heads are informed prior to the meeting of the committee's de­cision. Those who wish to do so will be allowed to argue either in favor of or in opposition to the suggestions of the committee. The senate, which has the final judgement in the matter, will be free to decide on the budget allotments.

Conroy said, "They are as of yet unconfirmed. They have pending Father Burtchleil's decision con­cerning the finances of the Mi­nority Recruitment and Black Orientation Programs. If But­chchtel's office will finance these organizations, then more money will be at the committees dis­posal to allot to other organiza­tions. The committee will meet Tuesday, Nov. 3, to discuss Father Burtchtleil's decision and finalize budget plans.

To accomplish this goal, Zimmerman needs about 500 volun­teers who are not easily polarized or known as extremely thinking," he said. Zimmerman as he described the qualities of the nominees he plans to submit to the Student Senate.

Nominations should be sub­mitted to Zimmerman before Thursday for adequate screening of qualifications. A personal interview is required and refer­ences will be checked. Zimmerman will accept nominations after 2:30 p.m. today and after 12 p.m. tomorrow. He can be contacted by phoning 1854 or 1855 or by going to room 369 Dillon Hall.

The board will meet whenever a case decided before the Univer­sity Board is appealed. The board cannot change a decision, but it can return a case to the University Board if it finds the evidence used in the original trial does not justify the sentence. The board may also uphold the original decision.

Zimmerman specified that the board would not meet very often and concluded that "time­wise it will not be demanding."

The University Board should be ready by the tail-end of next week," said Urda. "We've taken Fr. Hesburgh's approval as final and plan to get busy right away. The University trustees must still ratify the Code at an all-day meeting early in December.

Under the provisions set up by the new Judicial Code, the University or Campus Board will try both cases that involve offenses against the University regulations occurring outside the halls and offenses by students committed in residence halls in which they, themselves do not reside. The Hall Judicial Boards have jurisdiction over the residents of their own hall.

Many thefts reported

Long before the ecumenical movement began to spread in the Catholic Church, he led a sort of one man interfaith dialog with Protestant and Jewish leaders. As the church grasped the significance of ecumenism, the prelate helped reshape and modernize the church’s thoughts as a member of the Ecumenical Council. He was an enigma to other churchmen, this gaunt priest who did not understand Latin, the liturgical language of the Catholic Church. But he had a commanding grasp of the needs of the people and, in some instances, predicted the reform ideals of the Ecumenical Council.

His was the strongest American voice urging Rome to concede church services in the vernacular. It was his idea the church should forgo the agreement it extracts from non-Catholics that all children born in their mixed marriage be raised as Catholics. He was close to mixed marriage and befriended “people of all faiths and no faith.” His sister married a Jewish salesman and he once interpreted a Christmas sermon to preach against anti-Semitism. Author of 2001 to speak

Arthur C. Clarke, inventor of the communications satellite and co-author of the book and film “2001: A Space Odyssey,” will speak on “Life in the Year 2001” at 7:30 p.m. Monday (Nov. 9) in the University of Notre Dame’s Washington Hall. Clarke’s talk will be the first of the Arthur J. Schmitt “Challenges in Science” lectures for 1970-71. A top-ranking science writer and master of science fiction, Clarke is the author of 40 books. He is the winner of the Franklin Institute’s Gold Medal for originating the communications satellite in a technical paper published in 1945, has won two Aviation/Space Writers Association awards on the history and future of communications satellites, and received the UNESCO Kalinga Prize for science writing. In addition to “2001: A Space Odyssey,” which was inspired by one of his short stories “The Sentinel,” Clarke has authored such science fiction classics as “A Fall of Moon dust,” “The Sands of Mars” and “Expedition to Earth.” He has also written many non-fiction works on science for both adults and children, including “The Execution of Space,” “The Challenge of the Sea” and “Boy Beneath the Sea.”

Abortion forum set

by Dave Coleman

The Notre Dame Biology Department and Zero Population Growth will co-sponsor an abortion forum at 7:30 tonight at the Flanner Pit.

The forum has been planned for close to a month, and does not result directly from the controversy surrounding publication of The Observer’s "New York Abortion Service ad.

The forum, whose proposed purpose is to evaluate the reality of what abortion is, will have five guest speakers who will double as panelists. Dr. Tweedel, Biology head, U.N.D., will discuss the medical implications. Father Sniedry, head of the Theology Department at Notre Dame, will discuss the theological and ethical problems found in the abortion situation. Mrs. Melba Laird from the South Bend Mental Health Clinic, will discuss the psychological impact of abortion on the mass of people as well as the individual. And Dr. Parks, from Zero Population Growth will discuss abortion in relation to population control.

The moderator will be Richard Zakour, president of the Notre Dame Biology Club. Format for the forum will be five to eight minute talks by the speakers, then about 20 minutes of panel discussion, to be followed by a question and answer session.

The organizers of the program expect to promote discussion of this issue from the factual and informal point of view, something they feel has been neglected in the recent controversy over The Observer ad.
