SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Pope Paul VI gave qualified endorsement yesterday to world wide young protests but warned against rejecting history's lessons.

The 73 year old pontiff looked tanned from 15 hour days in the Australian sun during appearing before the 80 degree heat and humidity, as he addressed a special youth mass at Randwick Racetrack. Earlier he toured homes for the elderly and a children's hospital.

"There will be a few days in your life a feeling of failure or disillusionment. Old age is truly a stage of life. It is the fulfillment of adult life. It is the very dissatisfaction which we are called to correct."

Pope Paul responded with smiles and blessings to a 150,000 strong youth protest, calling them his "little army of young people".

Discussion about student complaints and demands at St. Mary's College began yesterday with the first of a series of two meetings on the topic of concern at the Student Assembly meeting on Tuesday night.

Some of the demands which were voiced by the assembly included increasing student participation in the policies of the Board of Trustees. The Trustees' removal from the reality of student's concerns and lives on campus was a basic concern of the student leaders.

"We the assembly hope to bring pressure to bear on the administration concerning their recent statement," which question St. Mary's dedication to the qualities of a Christian College community, the assembly considered further measures to bring pressure to bear on the administration and Board of Trustees.

The assembly hopes to present a petition to the student body for their support, which will define what they expect the college to do for the welfare of the students.

Dr. Wyatt Tee Walker presented what he said was an "opportunity of a lifetime." He spoke to an assembly of students and faculty at St. Mary's College, which he said was a "true university of the Negro people." He said he would work to make the college a true university of the Negro people.

The assembly also discussed the recent teacher dismissals of Father Runde and Dr. Hickemeyer. There is still some confusion as to why the dismissals were made.

Another complaint concerns the Board of Trustees' agenda which always consider student policy last.

Student book co-op to operate in spring

by Charlie Myers

Director Robert Pohl announced that the Student Union would again run its student book co-op for the spring semester '70-'71.

The operation will be run basically the same as this past semester. A center will be set up in the Fiesta Lounge for students to bring their used books, with the price being set by the students themselves. Student Union will ask 10% of each book price to cover the cost of running the operation and paying its help.

The idea behind the co-op is two-fold. It creates a central location for the students to bring their books and it allows for a greater profit than the student would be able to obtain from the book store.

Mr. Pohl has hopes that the co-op program will continue to grow and expand so that all ND students will be able to have the opportunity to sell their used books.

After the sales are concluded, Student Union will hold onto unwanted books for a few days so that students will be able to reclaim them. Those books which are left unsold will be donated to the Michigan State Penitentiary.

Details of the operation will be forthcoming from Bill McCraith, who is coordinating the sales.

Neimeyer's views in publication

Assuming that Communism will eventually collapse, Dr. Gerhart Niemeyer, professor of government and international studies at the University of Notre Dame, takes a look at the post-Communist world in the January issue of Pacific Community, a Tokyo-based publication. This is the same paper he read in a lecture in the Library Auditorium last month.

"It would seem likely," Niemeyer says, "that great industrial centers of the Christian and Confucian tradition would compete with each other to achieve a qualitative order of human existence under conditions of large-scale industrial and voluminous trade." The author notes that both Christianity and Confucianism have demonstrated through many centuries the ability to erect and maintain political structures with a high degree of stability.

Niemeyer sees in the post-Communist world rulers in Moscow and Peking who would look on themselves as stewards of a country, according to the political theorist.

Niemeyer suggests that during the century following the demise of Communist power, "the main problem for the peoples of the West will be Asia, and for the peoples of Asia it will be the recovery of a genuinely made-in-Asia political order reconcilable with an import industrial system.

"For both sides," he concludes, "the re-igniting of qualitative order would largely depend on whether they find it possible, in the presence of large-scale industrial production and high-rapidity trade, to find possibilities of men being men without having to talk or do, just by being in each other's presence."

Niemeyer, a member of Notre Dame's faculty since 1935, emphasized that while he is sure that the historical phenomenon of Communism will pass, he does not mean to imply that it has already done so. His latest book, in fact, is entitled:

RARE EARTH
by Dave Bach

When the Academic Council meets a week from today, one of the items on the agenda will be a proposal from the Computing Science Department.

The proposal would disband the depart- ment shortly before the Thanksgiving break. It has left its way of thinking, and the proposal is not simple. No one in the department has been able specifically to determine whether the proposal is to be made or where it originated. And those in the administration who know won’t say. As a result the professors and students are taking the proposal as the worst despite assurances from the administration that nothing has been settled one way or the other because the Academic Council has not yet met to consider the proposal.

The university, according to its contracts must make “every effort” to find other positions for the university for the tenure faculty members, Donald Mittelman and Henry Thacher. In another way, the students are Jess protected. The proposal is being considered out of the department’s meeting, the Academic Council. The proposal is being considered out of the department, the Academic Council.

No. in the depart- ment will be disbanded, are only that many people had come the department anyhow. 1964 when the giving break.

That service is available right here, right now. Dorm residents may pick up their Student Billing Cards at the Indiana Bell Business Office. Talk it up.

The current statistics bear out the fact that more students are enrolling in the department’s program. Each class has grown slightly since there are only five seniors but about 15 juniors and 20 sophomores. But according to Dean Waldman, these numbers are nowhere near the numbers that were predicted in 1964 when the Computing Center was first organized. In fact, Waldman, said, the introductory programming course has actually shown a decline in students. The main reason for that decline is that many departments are now offering their own courses in FORTRAN IV, the language used on the Center’s Univac 1107 com- puter.

Mittelman, who until this year had been Director of the Computing Center, commented that the effect of these other courses has been predictable. “If you allowed other departments to teach basic math course and dropped the requirements, en- (Continued on page 8)
The University has dawdled the proposed abolition of the Computer Science program with considerable secrecy, an ominous note in itself to a thoroughly unsettling situation. The thirty-five juniors and sophomores who will most dearly suffer if their major is eliminated will not appreciate the Administration's quiet. Nor will the faculty members, some of whose jobs have been threatened.

Because the motive behind the move has been so secret, all sorts of cruel and hurtful speculation has developed. Is the University so in debt that it must start eliminating classes? Then the University is truly in trouble; it is regressing from the bold commitment it has to educate students in all diverse natures of knowledge. If the Computing Science department is cut next week, when may we expect a cut in the Sociology department? Or the History department? Or English?

The proposed cut, coming on the heels of the mysterious refusal to grant tenure to three professors, leaves a nagging sense of disaster swirling around the Golden Dome. Are we really in bad financial shape? If so, what is the University to do about it? And who will it hurt?

Why was Donald Mittleman - an obvious choice - passed over for the Computer Science department head? Why is there such a crisis of leadership? Why was the department with considerable secrecy. is well-known, obviously the complete truth will always be closer, faculty, and administrative force. Although the clash of personalities and opinions of those involved seems questionable. The issue is not the firing of two faculty members, is it a problem because it is indicative of the atmosphere and operations of St. Mary's College. Many difficulties are inherent within an institution; many more, however, are due to the entire Board of Trustees. The issue stems from the demands and needs of the student. Disatisfaction is rampant with no active recognition on their part. The problems seem to fall into three categories.

The first is that economic and preservational priorities far outweigh consideration of the mass. Is there a place exists for its students. The college has failed to provide updated and growing facilities corresponding to the needs of a rapidly expanding student body. Student govern students have submitted an extensive report to the Trustees in early October and the singular response so far is the donation of one parlor for a study area in one hall. Not only are study and recreational facilities inadequate, but athletic facilities are either dilapidated or deflated; a doctor is present only four hours a week on campus at an infirmary placed in the middle of an uncarpeted dormitory floor (SMC has had 45 cases of mono this year compared to ND's 12); maintenance and security have been drastically inefficient. These examples only begin to outline the problem.

Secondly, an educational institution necessarily must incorporate conflicting interests and viewpoints within itself. This includes not only diversity in the faculty, but the student body as well. Little attention has been made to either issue, or issue, so as to maintain her identity? Is it because they are in favor of a merger with Notre Dame? Or is it because they are a threat to the control of St. Mary's College by the Holy Cross Order since they are supporting so vociferously a syndromic program with Notre Dame? I suspect this is their real motive.

What I find so frustrating is that there is nothing I can do about changing the narrow-minded, conservative attitudes of certain people in the administration here at St. Mary's. The few teachers that the students can really relate to and learn from are the ones that the administration chooses to discharge because of their progressive ideas on education. St. Mary's has no chance whatsoever to better herself or even survive for that matter, if the administration continues its present course of action. Who wants to go to a finishing school?

Thanksgiving Day with the Glee Club in the old New World Hotel on Boylston Street was close to the center of one of the City's red light districts; at 8:30 a.m. the doors opened and harlots appeared, saucy in their stockings, to sex at twenty dollars an hour. Back in the hotel, and of the reasons why a man will give himself a thousand dollar Christmas, I worried about the lollipops who were trying to flirt with the second tenors of the Glee Club. From the Jordan Marsh credit department, became more fearsome to me than sirens screaming with accordant reports through the winter night.

Finally, the last bill of the Thousand Dollar Christmas was paid. But the embarrassment at my indebtedness has lasted to this very hour, for the first time, I mention my wild spree so publicly that my prodigality will be both myself and as their chaplain, I was registered as a family of the Thousand Dollar Christmas.

The Family of the Thousand Dollar Christmas: the phrase sums up that Yuletide just a very few years ago when I was teaching at a small college near Boston, and as a lonely, somewhat desperate man, I had discovered a little family--two girls and a boy--with whom I decided to adopt as my own for the Holiday Season.

The moppets of the family were Loren, aged twelve, and Chris, aged seven. The family's reputation as a belligerent was unmatched by the kids in any other neighborhood on Mount Auburn Street, Cambridge, where I lived as a street Arab (during the hours his mother worked) in flight from him. But he was more than that, and he seemed not to care whether his children had food, clothing, shelter, love, or life.

"(Incidentally, I have published stories, and homilized the adventures of the younger rogatuniflflur, Frank and Chris, the prototypes of two little girls named Mousey and Cupcakes Croon, composite fictional creations drawn from a number of children in the parish where Frank and Chris lived, and who would appear to add up in innumerable ways: Cupcakes and Mousey, I believe, are not especially true. But it was the vague pretext I offered for the sake of the Thousand Dollar Christmas. Actually, by December 25th, I had committed more than a thousand dollars on just my own list of gifts to the family, none of them gifts with money, all of them a tribute to the fantastic uses one can make of a credit card in a department store like Jordan Marsh.

But, oh! the tree on that Christmas morning: there were dolls, trains, radios, skates, toys and games, clothes, furniture, of the Little Theatre, beneath the Miller Arcade.

A St. Nicholas Day Arts Fair, featuring an art and antique sale, mock-claunical singing by the Melting Pot, will be held Sunday afternoon, December 6, at St. Mary's College. The ticket price of $1.50 covers all events and proceeds will benefit the Moreau Art Gallery.

Highlighting the Arts Fair will be an art sale, "Moreau Gallery," from 3 until 9 p.m. where drawings, paintings, prints, pottery, weaving and assorted artifacts will be available for the discriminating Christmas shopper. Represented at the sale will be the works of Saint Mary's students and faculty and a number of professional artists from the South Bend area. A selection of antiques ranging from old prints to jewelry and a variety of Christmas cards will also be included in the sale.

The St. Nicholas Day Arts Fair will begin at 4 p.m. with a pops concert in the Little Theatre, "A Student's Guide to the Art of the Concert Voice," in the same trio of Maestro Poco Pinu.

Masao Poco Pin and Madama Soto Voce, captured during their most notorious duet, will be astonishing audiences during the St. Nicholas Day Arts Fair at Saint Mary's on December 6.

Rare Earth and Bloodrock

"Rare Earth" and "Bloodrock", two rock music groups, will appear Friday, December 4 at the University of Notre Dame. The two groups will be sponsored by the University's Student Union Social Concerns Commission. Both groups will be held at 8:30 in Stephenson Center. Tickets for the concert are $3.00, and will be available at the gate.

"Rare Earth" is noted for their recent single, "Get Ready", which reached Number 2 on the nation's charts. They are six-man group characterized by their exceptional musical skills and unique empathy with the audience. The group consists of Pete Rivera on drums, John Persh on bass or trombone, Kenny James on piano or organ, Ed Guzman adding extra percussion, Bud Richards on guitar, and Gil Bridge on saxophone or flute. Rare Earth's style stresses communication, and; they believe, this is both the key to their success and, ultimately, their reason for performing. Pete Rivera summed this up when he said that "communication is the motive, and you try to get across the enjoyment you feel playing to the people listening. That's what makes it fun."

"Bloodrock" is a fast-rising group who recently appeared at the famous Fillmore East in New York. Bloodrock brought the fans in Fillmore East to their feet, in each of their four shows they were "unheard of for opening acts" according to Fillmore East manager Kirk Cohen. "Bloodrock" is a six-member group out of Texas whose performers are Rick Cobb on drums, John Nizirger at lead guitar, Rick Taylor at bass, Mike Moore at keyboards, Steve Hill at the keyboard, Ed Grundy at lead vocals and lead singer Jim Rutledge is a six-member group whose songs project a depth of feeling throughout them, a mood effected by the excellent ability of the instrumentalists and the frantic style of their lead singer.

A typical N.D. student preparing for finals.
1. What's the oldest brewery in Milwaukee?
   A. Last year Pabst Brewing Company, the oldest in Milwaukee, celebrated 126 years of brewing great beer. And that's older than your father's, father's, father's, father's moustache. Which brings us to our point: if you believe that practice makes perfect, then you can't find a more perfect beer than a Pabst.

2. What should I serve when the boys drop over?
   A. The perfect beverage for moments of celebration and good fellowship like this is Pabst Blue Ribbon beer. Its good-old-time flavor helps break the ice and get the party rolling.

3. Who are these guys?
   A. This is a group photo of our bowling team. It was taken in 1893, the year Pabst won the Blue Ribbon as America's best beer. We still brew our beer the old-time premium way. Our bowling team hasn't changed much either.

4. What are these horses trying to pull?
   A. They're pulling one day's production of Pabst beer. This often caused traffic jams outside the brewery. These tieups were the results of efforts to supply the increasing demand for Pabst. A demand that has remained unquenched to the present day.

5. How is Pabst brewed?
   A. 1. Choice hops are gathered and placed here. 86. Then we mix in only the best grains. 22. Then the beer is allowed to brew slowly and naturally. 64. Look closely. This is a secret process that gives Pabst its good old-time flavor.

6. What'll you have?
   A. Pabst Blue Ribbon, because it has something no other beer has... good old-time flavor. And if perchance we have not covered everything you've always wanted to know about beer but were afraid to ask... quell those fears. You'll find the answers to all your questions inside an ice-cold bottle or can of Pabst. On second thought, why not buy a 6-pack? It's our "refresher" course.
Irish grapplers pin down early

Lack of chairman real problem

rollment in Math 11-12 would drop drastically. The same would be true if each department had their own German course," Mittelman said.

Another problem with the department is that it lacks a chairman. Last spring an ad hoc committee of the college drew up a plan and recommended that the Center and the Department be separated and that the university secure another computer. An IBM 360/50 system on campus has since been purchased to supplement the 1107. But a chairman for the department has not been named. Dean Waldman said that one of the considerations that has been holding up the appointment is that few men have expressed interest in serving as chairman of a department that will not have a graduate program in the foreseeable future (and now, perhaps, ever). In the interim Waldman has been Acting Chairman and the department has been placed under his college.

Two logical choices for Department Chairman would then seem to be the two tenured faculty members. Thacher said that he has no interest in the job because he is a poor administrator.

Launch blanket drive

by Charlie Myers

A blanket drive for Mexican migrant families in South Bend is now being carried on by several Notre Dame students on campus.

The students are working voluntarily for an organization called El Centro, Inc. which is distributing the blankets among the families.

The majority of students involved have spent time working in Columbia which enables them to communicate with the families involved. The drive will continue for the remainder of this semester. Drop off points for blankets are:

- 1000 Monroe
- 115 Sork
- 905 Planner
- 333 Alumni
- 430 McCandless
- 418 Lefton
- 835 Notre Dame Ave. Apt. 1B

Help wanted

Barbara Cowley, general chairman of the course evaluation committee of the SMC Academic Council, has been asked to pass out course evaluation sheets in all St. Mary's classes.

Miss Cowley explained that due to various difficulties the commission had been delayed in getting out a course evaluation booklet, but that the committee plans to have evaluations for next semester.

All candidates will be posted in the SMC cafeteria listing all St. Mary's classes. Girls are asked to sign for any class at which they would be able to distribute the sheets. Volunteers are asked to pick up the sheets at August Hall and to distribute them to the respective classes. The completed sheets should be returned to August Hall.

Tenure system

A student petition of the Notre Dame and St. Mary's Administration concerning the non-renewal of faculty members from both campuses will conclude its canvassing tonight in the student dining halls.

Concerned students expressed the hope that all the students interested will attempt to sign the petition by this evening. The text is as follows:

To Father Heasburgh and Sister Alina:

We, the undersigned, demand an intensive reevaluation of the present tenure and term of contract for the service of the termination of the contracts of several Notre Dame and SMC faculty members. We feel that the student body should have control proportionate to their contributions to the university concerning the decision making processes of hiring, firing, and granting tenure. In order that this proportionate control have force in the current crisis, evidenced by the coming to light of various refusals to renew contracts, it is imperative that the students' voices be immediately included to the academic year 1970-71. These conditions are to be met by February 1, 1971.
