Pres. review tomorrow

Tomorrow the St. Mary's Presidential Search Committee will interview Rev. Bernard Marthaler, O.F.M. for the position of president. This move by the committee has surprised many of the students after weeks of rumors that the committee would disband and declare the search unsuccessful because of its rejection of two previous candidates.

In making the announcement, the Presidential Search Committee disclosed that for his two-day visit, Fr. Marthaler, head of the religious studies department at Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., would be the subject of several interviews.

When he arrives from Washington, D.C., having recently returned from the International Congress on "The Future of the Church" in Brussels, Belgium, he will be driven to campus by the Campus Safety Corps, and he will be interviewed by the committee to his first encounter, an interview with faculty members at 4:00 p.m. in Stayer Lounge (Le Mans Hall). At 7:15 p.m. Ann Marie Tracey, student body president and student representative on the search committee, will interview him.

Friday morning the Franciscan presidential candidate will meet at 11:00 a.m. with the executive committee. This committee includes Sr. Miriam Patrick (chairman), Alma, Yeela Clare (trustee); Mersa, John Best (trustee), P. Jordan Hanel (trustee); Drs. Bruno Schleifring, Dorothy Feigl; Mrs. Karen Galvin (alumna president); and Ann Marie Tracey.

Students wishing to speak with Father Marthaler while he is on campus may reach him in Room 112 (Dominican Study) Le Mans Hall.

Born in Chicago Heights, Ill., Father Marthaler, 47, a fifth-generation priest, was ordained in Rome at the Seraphicum with an S.T.D. degree. After receiving his doctorate from the University of Minnesota, he taught theology at Belmar College, Louisville, Kentucky; Ursuline College, Louisville, Kentucky; and Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C.

He is a member of the American Association of University Professors, American Historical Association, American Society of Church History, Catholic Theological Society of America, College Theology Society, and Religious Education Society.

Nationally Fr. Marthaler is currently vice-president for the College Theology Society and a member of the steering committee of the Catechetical Forum, a national society of religious educators, by invitation. The Forum has no officers other than the six-man Steering Committee which plans the annual meetings and carries on other business of the organization.

Student Billing Service makes sense! There's no reason why you shouldn't enjoy the convenience of making long distance calls from your dorm room phone and receiving a monthly bill for your calls . . . and yours only!

That service is available right here, right now. Dorm residents may pick up their Student Billing Cards at the Indiana Bell Business Office. Talk it up.

INDIANA BELL
Arab guerrillas ambushed a Jordanian army patrol north of Aman yesterday with heavy machine gun mortars and Chinese made rockets a Jordanian official spokesman said. Other guerrillas wounded seven persons in the grenade explosion in the Israeli occupied Gaza Strip.

The ambush reported over Arabic radio came less than 24 hours after the Arab truce committee talked the guerrillas and government forces into laying down their arms after five days of sporadic fighting.

The guerrillas countered with claims that Jordanian government forces opened fire on a Palestinian refugee camp on the outskirts of Aman with tear gas more than five hours Tuesday.

The government spokesman said the patrol retired into the trap near Jerash 24 miles north of Aman at a crossroads on the main highway leading from Amman to the Syrian border.

During the ensuing battle which lasted about 40 minutes

The spokesman said the guerrillas used Chinese supplied rockets in violation of the Cairo and Amman accords that ended previous outbreaks of civil conflict in Jordan.

The spokesman said one Jordanian army vehicle was destroyed in the ambush but both sides were not injured.

An Israeli military spokesman said that an Arab guerrilla grenade exploded Tuesday morning as Gaza Arabs waiting for a bus to take them to jobs in Israel wounding seven of them one critically. The grenade thrower fled into the maze of streets behind Gaza City's Mediterranean Square. But Israeli troops pursued in vain.
West charged with East conflict
by Kevin McGill

Mrs. Clare Bishop spoke last evening in the Library Auditorium about the responsibility of the Christian Church in the present Middle East situation. Known for her interfaith work among Christians and Jews, Mrs. Bishop accused both the Church and the western nations of anti-semitism, and hoped that the big powers would allow the Jews and Palestinians to solve their problems without intervening. About fifteen people attended the lecture.

Mrs. Bishop first traced the historic events which brought about the present tension on the Middle East. Although the granting of citizenship to Jews began by French Revolutionaries spread through much of Europe, Jews “lived always in a state of extreme terror” in Poland and Russia. Even in the twentieth century there are pogroms, or persecutions of Jewish people, in three countries. In 1894 the assassination of Alfred Dreyfus, a high ranking French officer who was also a Jew, of going state plans to Germany opened a great breach between the Catholic majority and the Protestants, Jews, and Atheists. “France,” Mrs. Bishop said, “heavily succumbed to the Violence of hatred because of its anti-semitism,” and the Jews then realized that they were safe nowhere in Europe. In 1897 they began the Zionist movement whose object was the resettlement of their ancient homeland.

The United States is also anti-semitic. Mrs. Bishop remembered signs in the 1930's which said “no dogs, no Jews.” She spoke of the immigrant quota laws with which the United States refused refuge to Jews of Hitler’s Germany.” She mentioned that the United States never bombed a railroad track leading to an extermination camp.

Mrs. Bishop spoke of the non-Jewish Palestinians who have lived for centuries in Israel. She hopes that since both the Jews and the Palestinians love their land, they can, by “peoplehood,” achieve a unity through their “common past, common destiny, and through the land; and the land does not mean the state. Since Constantine we have forgotten that the state is not an idol. We have served the state and not recognized peoplehood.”

As a start at the solution of the problems of the Middle East, Mrs. Bishop advocated first of all better knowledge of the meaning of land and state for the Jews, and for the Palestinians. But she warned that Americans must always favor Israel in order to offset the unconscious pressures society has implanted.

“Just as the extermination camps were the last linkage to our parents,” she concluded, “the state of Israel will be our judge.”

New Huddle hours for exams
At last there is a place on campus to get something to eat after the Library closes. Thanks to a policy adopted just this year, the Huddle now stays open until 12:30 every night. This policy was instituted on a trial basis to determine the number of people who would use the service. So far, the extended Huddle hours have been very well patronized by the students and “as long as the trend continues in the present direction there should be no reason for decreasing the hours,” according to Notre Dame Food Services Director Edmund Price. The Administration has been pleased with the response; “we hope to provide a service and obviously we are,” added Price.

In continuing their policy of service the Huddle will stay open around the clock during exam week. From Sunday morning at seven o’clock the Huddle will be open continuously until 12:30 a.m. Friday.

Junior Year in New York
Washington Square College of Arts and Science of New York University sponsors a Junior Year in New York.

The College, located in the heart of the city, is an integral part of the exciting metropolitan community of New York City—the business, cultural, artistic, and financial center of the nation. The city’s extraordinary resources greatly enrich both the academic program and the experience of living at New York University with the most cosmopolitan student body in the world.

This program is open to students recommended by the deans of the colleges to which they will return for their degrees.

There are strong and varied offerings in many areas, such as fine arts, urban studies, languages including non-European, mathematics in the College and at the Courant Institute, psychology, and others.

A qualified student may register for courses in all other schools of the University, including internships in Commerce and Education.

The University sponsors programs in Spain and France.

Write for brochure to Director, Junior Year in New York

New York University
New York, N.Y., 10003

Student Union

Crypt

Do your Christmas Shopping Early

Now on Stuck Zeppa - Clampa’s Revenge Steve Stills

North of the Jefferson Airplane’s Greatest Hits Led Zeppelin III

Carpenters’ Close to You
Unruh stresses action

(Continued from page 3)

legislature has the duty to determine who will receive this education in an arbitrary fashion. He claimed they should also determine the end product (how many graduates, how many fields, what direction the education should be taking.) In return, he commented, the university should expect from the legislature and the executive a greater degree of consultation for the cesatures of the moment. Unruh said that when he was speaker of the House, conflicts were settled peacefully using this principle.

On the otherhand, Unruh contended, that the university must fulfill the function of the legislature. According to Unruh, the role of the university is not an obligation to effect change in the society, but to teach people how to utilize the system to effect change.

Some of the changes that he would institute to improve education today are: those corporations who benefit ought to pay a great deal towards student fees; there should be a more representative board of regents; “now it is more like a country club with 16 millionaires and 8 politicians – they may be liberals or conservatives but they are still in country clubs – neither wealth nor education makes one a better member of the board of regents!” more community support for the university and abandonment of the rigidity of the structure, “you can’t teach people how to bring about change if you can’t even do it within your own system”.

Because Unruh foresees more political intrusion as inevitable, the university must learn to function within this atmosphere.

When asked whether there was a national trend of political dismissals from university faculties, Unruh replied that at Fresno State, the head of the English department and assistant were locked out of their offices recently. It should concern the whole university community, Unruh maintained, when the administration weeds out its faculty by political attitudes.

“[T]he failure to renew a faculty member’s contract for anything short of violence is disastrous for the entire university and the country,” he stated.

Budweiser

KING OF BEERS.

ARMY ROTC TWO YEAR PROGRAM

Applications are now being accepted for the Army ROTC two year program

The Program is open to both undergraduate and graduate students who have a minimum of two years academic work remaining at the time of enrollment. Accepted applicants must successfully complete a six weeks summer camp in lieu of the Basic ROTC course normally taken as a freshman and sophomore.

Notre Dame Seniors intending to attend graduate or law school at another University may apply here for the program. The school they plan to attend must either offer Army ROTC of have a cross-enrollment agreement with another school in its locale.

Two-Year Program participants receive a tax-free subsistence allowance of $50 per month during their two years of ROTC training. They are deferred from induction under Selective Service laws.

If you are sincerely interested in serving your country and fulfilling your military obligation as a commissioned officer in the United States Army, you are invited to apply for the Army ROTC Two-Year Program.

Applications will be accepted through February 15, 1971

Further information may be obtained by visiting the Army ROTC office or by calling Sergeant Major Ring at 283-6264.
Dismissal statement issued by Hinkemeyer

"We now know who was involved in the decision to terminate Father Runde and me, and we are attempting to nail down the contradictory, baseless reasons, privately circulating for that action." So stated Professor Michael T. Hinkemeyer yesterday. He was referring to the contract termination of November 25. The only reason that he has been given as to date is that he was "too closely identified with Father Raymond Runde," who is also a professor of education. "Obviously, this whole thing is just beginning," Professor Hin- kemeyer said. "I do expect to initiate several courses of action after the holidays."

The contract terminations, which remain shrouded in contradiction, must necessarily have had to be initiated "due to the unfortunate action taken against me," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College.

Hinkemeyer believes that one of the basic problems at St. Mary's College is an "unfortunate lack of openness" which has led to a great deal of fear, particularly among the faculty. "Why, you can walk across campus and see one of the things behind the bushes," he said. "It would be a mark of trust if it did not have such serious implications for the welfare of the college."

A sign of "lack of openness," Hinkemeyer feels, was the manner in which the terminations were handled. "It happened suddenly, as though the result of a malevolent, capricious whim. There is no indication that any criteria were used to make the judgment, which appears to show an utter disregard for the community. And no explanation or voice of reason has been forthcoming from any administrator. That sort of thing must be challenged."

Among other actions, Professor Hinkemeyer expects to invoke the faculty grievance procedure outlined in the Governance of the College manual. "I always wondered if it would work," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College.

Hinkemeyer believes that one of the basic problems at St. Mary's College is an "unfortunate lack of openness" which has led to a great deal of fear, particularly among the faculty. "Why, you can walk across campus and see one of the things behind the bushes," he said. "It would be a mark of trust if it did not have such serious implications for the welfare of the college."

A sign of "lack of openness," Hinkemeyer feels, was the manner in which the terminations were handled. "It happened suddenly, as though the result of a malevolent, capricious whim. There is no indication that any criteria were used to make the judgment, which appears to show an utter disregard for the community. And no explanation or voice of reason has been forthcoming from any administrator. That sort of thing must be challenged."

Among other actions, Professor Hinkemeyer expects to invoke the faculty grievance procedure outlined in the Governance of the College manual. "I always wondered if it would work," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College. Hinkemeyer believes, must necessarily have had to be initiated "due to the unfortunate action taken against me," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College.

Hinkemeyer believes that one of the basic problems at St. Mary's College is an "unfortunate lack of openness" which has led to a great deal of fear, particularly among the faculty. "Why, you can walk across campus and see one of the things behind the bushes," he said. "It would be a mark of trust if it did not have such serious implications for the welfare of the college."

A sign of "lack of openness," Hinkemeyer feels, was the manner in which the terminations were handled. "It happened suddenly, as though the result of a malevolent, capricious whim. There is no indication that any criteria were used to make the judgment, which appears to show an utter disregard for the community. And no explanation or voice of reason has been forthcoming from any administrator. That sort of thing must be challenged."

Among other actions, Professor Hinkemeyer expects to invoke the faculty grievance procedure outlined in the Governance of the College manual. "I always wondered if it would work," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College.

Hinkemeyer believes that one of the basic problems at St. Mary's College is an "unfortunate lack of openness" which has led to a great deal of fear, particularly among the faculty. "Why, you can walk across campus and see one of the things behind the bushes," he said. "It would be a mark of trust if it did not have such serious implications for the welfare of the college."

A sign of "lack of openness," Hinkemeyer feels, was the manner in which the terminations were handled. "It happened suddenly, as though the result of a malevolent, capricious whim. There is no indication that any criteria were used to make the judgment, which appears to show an utter disregard for the community. And no explanation or voice of reason has been forthcoming from any administrator. That sort of thing must be challenged."

Among other actions, Professor Hinkemeyer expects to invoke the faculty grievance procedure outlined in the Governance of the College manual. "I always wondered if it would work," he said. "Now I'm in a position to provide the community with an object lesson. It's going to be very interesting." Last week Professor Hinkemeyer was notified that his latest article "The Diffusion of Innovations in American Education" had been accepted by The Clearing House, an education journal of Dickinson University. He has authored or co-authored over a half-dozen works since joining the St. Mary's faculty in September, 1969. "It's ironic that the article would be accepted right at this time," he said. "My article is the exact antithesis of what those whose cynicism and fear render them delusional would say." Professor Hinkemeyer has also been cited as a consultant to a Christian College.
Tenure system defined

By Greg Rowinski

Tenure, according to Randon House Dictionary, is "the status assuring an employee of permanence in his position of employment." The professors here at Notre Dame and other universities around the country, the issue of tenure is vital.

The purpose of tenure is to protect professors from dismissal for other than "scandalous activities." This provision, according to Professor George Brinkley, Chairman of the Department of Government and International Studies, provides protection of the "academic freedom" of the faculty: the professors are free from removal for "extraneous reason."

Observer Insight

The tenure procedure was developed by the American Association of University Professors, of which most professors are members. According to the AAUP, a full-time, regular faculty professor with Ph.D. receives tenure if his contract is renewed after six consecutive years of service at one school.

If a professor who has taught elsewhere is hired, he will be placed on a 1-year probation, to determine if the university will give him tenure. According to Professor William D'Antonio, President of the local chapter of the AAUP, the professor agrees to a year's employment, knowing that the decision will be made at the end of the year. If the university approves tenure is then given. If the university refuses, the professor will continue one year's employment. Notre Dame has, in the past, recognized the tenure of some transferring professors, although this is not common practice.

Notre Dame generally gives three-year contracts to new faculty members, though each university has its own conditions. One-year contracts can be given, with mutual, written agreement. At the end of the three-year period, Notre Dame will either continue employment or tenure notice is given. This is an AAUP rule, related D'Antonio, though most universities give notice after 5½ years.

The AAUP cannot make binding contracts to force universities to adhere to tenure announcement and recognition, according to its local chapter's president. Though some chapters have obtained bargaining power, the AAUP as a whole is not a bargain.

The group is not entirely powerless, in the professor's mind. It can recommend censure, "a moral force," even at non-chapter universities. Complaints can be made at the National Office. Representatives are sent to the offender to check the facts. If this committee recommends action, notice of censure will be published in the Bulletin of the AAUP.

The hearty debate at the heart of which is tenure, has prompted D'Antonio to call it "a tricky business." D'Antonio, after some soul searching, has lost some of his former certainty in the sanctity of the tenure system. Even as it protects young teachers, it also protects "some tired old men," he contended. Still, he felt a need in "semi-expensive period" to prevent some of the younger educators from being "wiped out."

His final point was that tenure should not be misconstrued to be a type of reward. He felt that tenure is not due a professor just because he is a "good teacher." The faculty, he suggests, should look at each applicant as a prospective permanent member of its academic community. The university could "lock itself into" with the addition of "good teachers" by filling all positions, possibly for 10-20 years. In no way should one consider that the non-renewal of "good young teachers" is a sign that a university is going "downhill."

Student Union Book Exchange

Book Turn-in: From Thursday, Dec. 10 - Fri., Dec. 18 - 7-10 PM

Fiesta Lounge, LeFortune Center (3rd Floor)

1. Student Sets Sale Price
2. Student Union gets 10% of price
3. Books will be sold at beginning of 2nd Semester

STUDENT UNION Presents

FREEmPORT, BAHAMAS $194

DEPARTS: March 15, 1971

RTUNRS: March 21, 1971

Round Trip: Detroit to Freeport

7 nights accommodations at the Freeport Inn - ground transfers between hotel and airport - happy hour every night 5-7 PM - unlimited free drinks, live music.

During this vacation period your hotel will be completely occupied by students. Dancing and drinks are provided every evening with live music during the two hour long Happy Hour. Relax and enjoy yourself among people of your own age group.

Open only to ND-SMC students, faculty, staff, alumni and their immediate families.

Arrangements by:

Students International
Ann Arbor, Michigan

Contact:
First Bank Campus
Travel Bureau
282-7080

The Cultural Arts Commission

Cinema '71

"Duet for Cannibals"

December 12 and 13

2:00 and 8:00

Engineering Auditorium

Admission $1.00, Cinema '71 Patrons Free

Pizza Hut Pete Presents

ND & SMC

"Holiday Special"

½ price on any pizza or soft drink

With School I.D.

Monday thru Thursday

Good only at the Edison Rd. \HUT-2

EAT IN OR CARRY OUT

TRY OUR NEW SUBMARINE SANDWICH

2 LOCATIONS - CALL AHEAD

288-6060 SO. BEND #1 ACROSS FROM LULU

233-3827 SO. BEND #2 MILE EAST OF N.D.

We Are the Nations Largest!
Letters

Editor:

My colleague, Professor Norling, says that he is “puzzled” by a review of mine which you reprinted some weeks ago (The L.,ater-Day Levithian, Observer, Friday, 13 November, 1970). Norling’s reply Observer Friday, 20 November, 1970). May I say that I am finding how many historians now agree that we incorporated Japanese at Hiroshima and Nagasaki only in order to demonstrate our technical and military muscle to the Ri­ussians? Indeed it is true that the contract of Assistant Professor Carl Elston was terminated by the Department of History. Then I think that the members of this university community must ask themselves some important questions. Does the university have the right to a faculty member because it disagrees with his political views? It would seem that if in reality the university is a place where any idea and theories may be discussed in a rational and intelligent manner, then the removal of one of its members out of mere disagreement with his ideas becomes a betrayal of what we claim the university should be. Last year during the student strike I found myself compelled to continue attending my classes. My reason was that by shutting down the university we were closing the one place in our society where any and all ideas can be explored in a reasonable manner. It is out of this sentiment that I decry the firing of a member of the faculty because he held such and such political ideas. If we take such an action then let us freely admit that we are not open to all ideas and that only certain things can be discussed openly. Is there not even a more immediate. At least we will then be honest. I am certainly not challenging the right of the university to dismiss any member of this community on the grounds of academic incompetence. However, I feel that the dismissal of Dr. Estabrook was not based on his competence to teach History here at Notre Dame. Anyone who has taken one of his courses will certainly attest to his ability to teach, and to his thorough knowledge of his subject. I also am certain that his students would support me in saying that while in class he concentrates on the subject matter of his course and not on modern politics.

The tragedy of this whole matter is that other members of the faculty, who are in the position of having their contracts reviewed in the next few years may now feel constrained to just keep quiet for fear of losing their jobs.

In his letter to Bishop Purlesy Father Hesburgh defended the open-shop policy which we have here at Notre Dame, and rightly so. Now, I think it is time to worry about the freedom that our own faculty members have to express their ideas.

Ed Beck
364 Dillon
The Inside Straight

Woes of an Expansion Publication

John Knorr and Bill Carter

A new dawn on the horizon of campus journalism is seemingly just around the corner. This is the impression, at least, that one gets when reading the Scholastic interviews. The 20, 202-page student newspaper held its own with those denizens of the journalistic field, Dana Perino and Jim Holinger.

This column is not written in the spirit of adversity towards the New Voice. We welcome competition, although we do not feel that this is really competition. If it is to be competitive with anything, it will be with itself. However, we would like to do is to clear up what we feel is a misunderstanding made in that interview.

First, Mr. Holinger said that the Observer has impure objectives; that it is a dead end. He further attacks the paper as being uncritical, with little or nothing to say. We would like to debate this point with Mr. Holinger face to face, and not in print, as we feel that this is a case of sour grapes on his part.

New publications founding stem from faulty reporting of the budget requirement asked for by Jim Graif, Don Ruane, Jim Flynn.

The financial aspect they talked about evidently overlooks the fact that we are providing what we feel to be a worthwhile coverage other publications lack.

Here we would especially like to take up the point that if Mr. Holinger is to get in the depth coverage they desire, what happens to the time element of the news? It would be a fine thing to dig as deep into an issue on campus as can be done and express the real inside of a situation, if it could be done in a reasonable rate of time. This we feel, is impracticable, and representative of the knowledge of these journalists as to the environment of the campus and what these group reception reporters often get so fast at NW when attempting to uncover what is really going on, an issue, such as the one with contract terminations. By the time any real events etc. are uncovered, it is probably only to find the issue and report the news would there be now if the Observer printed with documentation that outside sources besides the newswires would bring forth?

We publish every day of the school year, and as such, we feel our obligation to cover the student, such as, for example, the picture looks dark, and well it should.

We publish every day of the school year, and try to cover the student, such as, the election coverage ranging from 4 to 16 pages. We publish every day, and yet we have money to spare in the side of the unborn, now who can list Mr. Estabrook as a -the ex-publisher and Mr. Holsinger) are back. One of the writers of this column served a brief period as an assistant commissioner in Mr. Krushna's cabinet, leaving because of lack of time to do justice to both the cabinet and the Observer. If anything, the Observer is very objective towards Mr. Krushna.

There are other points we would like to make the point that the reasons and facts cited in the interview are not were not responsible for the Dow-CIA demonstrations in 196768.

The financial aspect they talked about is an unpleasant topic - but a wretched political collection of stinking, vesting vested interests. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

But then, perhaps the topic "abortion" is a bit too heavy for our ND-SMC community to digest. Maybe the Observer should limit itself to pressing problems which are more within the realm of the student, such as, "Will we have a football game?" or "What is happening in Student Senate?"

But then, perhaps the topic "abortion" is a bit too heavy for our ND-SMC community to digest. Maybe the Observer should limit itself to pressing problems which are more within the realm of the student, such as, "Will we have a football game?" or "What is happening in Student Senate?"

Ed Ellis

The Observer

"Here the sleighs with the bells / Silver bells / What a world of merriment their melody foretells."

"Hark the Herald angels sing, / Glory to the new born King."

"Joy to the world, the Lord is come, / Let earth receive her king."

"O come all ye faithful, joyful and triumphant!"

"Silent Night, Holy Night, All is calm, all is bright."

These are the sounds, the songs, the joy the hope of the Christmas season. The sounds are heard by happy men. The songs are sung by happy people. The joys, the hopes, and the happiness that result from the joy and hope are felt by men who are enjoying a brief respite from the lot of humanity; and who perhaps fancy a more prosperous New Year. They are comfortable - at least for a while. They inne old hatreds and love with gusto - at least for a while.

But while everyone is temporarily happy, or maybe just plain drunk, mankind's grim and hopeless footrace toward the photo finish but close, closer and closer to the finish line. It is happen, it is happen, it is happen, it is happen. As mankind's grim and hopeless footrace toward the photo finish but close, closer and closer to the finish line. It is happen, it is happen, it is happen, it is happen.

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations - man's fight with himself on the Philippines Eagles to win the Super Bowl. But then, perhaps the topic "abortion" is a bit too heavy for our ND-SMC community to digest. Maybe the Observer should limit itself to pressing problems which are more within the realm of the student, such as, "Will we have a football game?" or "What is happening in Student Senate?"

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations on Christmas Day. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

And Holy Night.

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations on Christmas Day. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

Ed Ellis

A Christmas Carol

"The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does."

"A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens is set in the 19th century. It tells the story of Ebenezer Scrooge, a miserly businessman who is visited by three ghosts on Christmas Eve. The first ghost shows Ebenezer his past, the second his present, and the third his future. Scrooge is changed by his experience and becomes a kinder, more generous person.

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations on Christmas Day. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

"A Christmas Carol" is a timeless classic that reminds us of the true meaning of Christmas. It teaches us the importance of compassion, forgiveness, and charity.

The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations on Christmas Day. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

"A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens is set in the 19th century. It tells the story of Ebenezer Scrooge, a miserly businessman who is visited by three ghosts on Christmas Eve. The first ghost shows Ebenezer his past, the second his present, and the third his future. Scrooge is changed by his experience and becomes a kinder, more generous person.

In the Far East, one of the most prosperous nations on Christmas Day. The picture looks dark, and well it should. This is no argumentation, no plea for peace and love and existential truth. For lamentation is futile, peace and love the foolish dream of foolish men, and if there exists any truth of any kind it is doubtful whether humanity would recognize it if its life depended on it. Sadly, it does.

"A Christmas Carol" is a timeless classic that reminds us of the true meaning of Christmas. It teaches us the importance of compassion, forgiveness, and charity.
South Bend Project battles unemployment

Last Thursday night, Dorothy Day was here. She is one of the founders of the Catholic Worker movement and she spoke of the need to do something about the hard lives of the unemployed in America. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans. After her speech, Chuck Juggler, one of the organizers of the South Bend Project, gave a short description of Americans.

In the recent past, unemployment has had its place in the for the white collar and professional man. College graduates were in demand, salaries were high, times were good. There was a healthy empathy with the blue collar worker. The man in the plant had to grapple with the problem by being close to the availability of government contracts. The supply and demand of the labor market has skidded to another commodity in the hands of the politicians and businessmen.

In South Bend claim that the situation is different now. With Boeing half closed down, those out of work not only are blue collar workers and management, but engineers and technicians, foremen and managers. Those for whom it has always been a demand, found that the laws of capitalism as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker.

The workers in South Bend feel the squeeze, especially, as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker. The workers in South Bend feel the squeeze, especially, as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker. The workers in South Bend feel the squeeze, especially, as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker. The workers in South Bend feel the squeeze, especially, as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker. The workers in South Bend feel the squeeze, especially, as they were supposed to; they are experiencing the way capitalism has always affected the production worker.

Jim Leary

Time to lose

Brothers and Sisters, the unemployment in South Bend is now more than 6%. Nationally it is a bit less, but rising. The unemployment problem nationally and its concomitant implications are practically incalculable. On December 12th and 13th, the South Bend Project will sponsor a demonstration and conference. I don't want to consider the economic situation by saying it surrenders your support. But I must, it deserves your support. The campaign that you don't have to do it by the yard. By the inch it's a cinch. Any money can't buy every­thing. For example; Poverty.

Nelson Algren speaks from the Wild Side:

"In the mixed-up April of '32 the numbers of jobless rose to eight million, two hundred thousand steelworkers took a 70% pay cut and it took a Cardinal to perceive that the country's economic collapse was a national emergency. It was different, it was a wonderful piece of luck, for every day it brought thousands closer to the poverty of the 1930's who had been nowhere near before. For thousands it was the chance of a lifetime to bring Jesus' simplicity, the Cardinal said, to the sinners into the house. All over the country men and women and every kind of a person that wants to take ad­vantage of this spiritual opportunity. All manner of little good lives that were lying about in the mixed-up April of '32."

UP - A financial slump tied in with the general economic recession has superceded students unrest as one of the major problems facing the universities. And colleges and universities.

The affected institutions are resorting to stopgo measures such as faculty salary freezes, reduction of courses offered, and reductions in the number of financial aid. The universities are being affected by a financial crisis on the campuses that has made deficit budgeting a common occurrence.

"We literally don't have the cash to sustain what we're funding," said Ralp Halford, vice president for special projects at Columbia University where a $15 million deficit is expected to accumulate by January. Columbia is paring its faculty at the graduate and advanced undergraduate level, leaving staff vacancies unfilled and eliminating courses with small registrations.

Some colleges report a dwindling student body but Columbia's enrollment is up slightly to 24,000. Like most other universities in this country churchyard.

Rory Holsen reviews Juggler

Vacation removes circular bloused black girl dancing in the fenced backyard wall of the black wig pool grass clogging the surface dead can floating slightly beneath the grass like a silent worm beneath the strewn yard.

fumbling slightly from fear in the pool the girl comes hair first hidden the private dark lap the earth bound depths the sun carved ceiling the crypt the mind the useless free thoughts.

While the black girl swam in the anonymous yard. The pool the three timid dreams hams ransacked her room stamped her death to stoke the wrinkled travel pictures

So I h ad bad h ands with hard work to do. All I found was troubles 'n depression. All I found was that those with the hardest ways to go were going to work with the easiest ways. All I found was two kinds of people. Them that would rather live on the lose side of the street with other losers than to win by ther­self, and there were only one of the winners even though the only way left for them to win was over them who had already been whipped.

All I found was men and women, and all the wrongs of the world, poor dummers, poor tarts, all they were good for was to draw files I was to take coldly, treat one too good, it was said, but you could never tell what they would do if they were left with the worst of the lot for the best of the other kind. I think they were the real salt of the earth.

Brothers and Sisters, it is no good to win anymore. It is no good to rise anymore, 'cause that can only be done by stepping on the necks of others. Finally, it is time to lose.

Rory Holsen.

In a call sent out in the Midwest, the Project stated "South Bend, because it is an advanced example of the policies of the Nixon administration and the corporate owners, has been selected as the target city for a mass demonstration to dramatize the government's responsibility for high unemployment. There will be a two day action in South Bend on December 12 and 13 to emphasize the plight of unemployment to pass solutions. The sign-up on to date "There will be a march and rally in South Bend on Saturday, December 12, 1970, emphasizing the plight of unemployment and its relation to the war, racism and poverty. On Sunday, December 13, a conference will be held to discuss unemployment and what can be done about it. The problems of the war, poverty, race, and unemployment exist now and will continue to exist until action is taken. March on South Bend on December 12 (2:00 p.m. at Howard Park) and share your ideas on Sunday, December 13 at the conference South Bend Project Office is at 526 N. Hill St. 323-3275.

The University of Pennsylvania Assembly approved only stopgap appropriations for the University of Pennsylvania next February instead of giving outright approval to a requested $15 million.

Michigan lawmakers have ordered a one per cent across the board cut totaling $2.6 million in operating funds allotted four year colleges and universities forcing freeze on faculty hiring and travel and they will continue to exist unless the action is taken. March on South Bend on December 12 (2:00 p.m. at Howard Park) and share your ideas on Sunday, December 13 at the conference South Bend Project Office is at 526 N. Hill St. 323-3275.

The afflicted institutions are resorting to stopgo measures such as faculty salary freezes, reduction of courses offered, and reductions in the number of financial aid. The universities are being affected by a financial crisis on the campuses that has made deficit budgeting a common occurrence.

"We literally don't have the cash to sustain what we're funding," said Ralp Halford, vice president for special projects at Columbia University where a $15 million deficit is expected to accumulate by January. Columbia is paring its faculty at the graduate and advanced undergraduate level, leaving staff vacancies unfilled and eliminating courses with small registrations.

Some colleges report a dwindling student body but Columbia's enrollment is up slightly to 24,000. Like most other universities in this country churchyard.

The Observer

Wednesday, December 9, 1970
Rev. Robert Griffin

For me, the most unforgettable forty-five minutes I have ever spent was that morning, as the sun rose, with the eleven o'clock hour on Sunday mornings, when I offered the Urchins’ Mass in the Keenan-Stanford Chapel. I was immediately aware of the tension of the weekend, and of the inner self, drop away; and I can feel the wrinkles of age Chapel. During the tensions of the weekend, and of the inner self, minutes of the week, this semester, has been the 35
Then it was suggested that we pray for the world, followed by two prayer requests on behalf of Someone definitely in need of our help. I hadn't realized that the Trinity was in need of outside assistance; but remembering the insight from the Canon, and I suppose the little tyke got nervous among us sentimentalists, Golding's novel, of kid, which goes to show I think that even story is called again by the decent little chap, when all of a rug. But that happened at Sacred Heart Church, Sunday, a child even tossed up his 36
There are always surprises at the romper room version of the Eucharistic celebration. Last Sunday, for example, I was very much surprised to find myself praying for the good health of the Holy Spirit. It happened at that time of the Mass which the Urchins Mass: they may dote on through the hymns, at his guitar strings, 37
On Sunday, December 3, Don Pasquale, by Menotti, will be presented at a 2:00. The opera, which is set in a romantic setting, will be broadcasted the following Saturday at the same time. Succesive Saturday nights will continue Negro Aida de Besa, Fidelio by Beethoven, Ofre 11 Ed Eduribe by Menotti and the world premiere of Robert Griffin's opera, The Christmas tree will also put in an appearance.)(

For the people that will be in South Bend for the next month or so (our symphonies) WNDU-FM (88.9 on your dial) will present the following Saturday at the same time. Succesive Saturday nights will feature Negro Aida de Besa, Fidelio by Beethoven, Ofre 11 Ed Eduribe by Menotti and the world premiere of Robert Griffin's opera, The Christmas tree will also put in an appearance.)(

I'd cards will not be checked for age; and if you are a young person wishing a ticket now just for the Christmas season, slip on your mittens, bundle up tight and tedly beat to this Sunday's Liturgy, when the Principal Gunner will be honored as the Lord of all children, who shared his infancy with shepherds and with kings. A final word: Master Darby O'Gill, the Keenan cocker spaniel, rushed over and asked me to hint that he is expecting bones in his Christmas stocking, and said, "God bless you, every one!" to which I add, "And a very merry Christmas!"

First Circle

By Dave Lammers

Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's The First Circle, his last novel about prison life in Stalinist Russia, was published over two years ago, and so this can hardly be called a review. Since this is the last Observer before the four week Christmas vacation, this is more of a suggested reading plug than anything.

In case exam week doesn't destroy your ability to read, The First Circle is a must for over the vacation. The plot revolves around the theme of resistance to the complicity within the prison system, as more and more problems obstruct and abort the docking project. The men in the shakarp search for a purpose to their suffering, and to advance its road to truth, and to advance its living Russian 9

In 1967 the novelist uncomplicated of the "oppression, no longer tolerable, that our literature is emerging from censorship for decades...No one can bar the road to truth, and to advance its cause I am prepared to accept every weapon.

Over Christmas, friends, brothers, sisters, leave America behind for the tragic but courageous Russia of the Stalinist prison camps.

Saint Mary's a prison?

by Karen Denyo

In an effort to bolster their occasionally shaky security system, St. Mary's Prison for Women has introduced three major innovations for this year's prison term, the head warden prepared to announce during the following weekly council is also conducting open as one as a check on its inmates. So the Head Warden said for every door except the main 10

To stymie the problem, the council is also conducting unannounced checks. "Prisoners not in their cells will be brought before the prison, but we're not going to be too hard on them," said the Director of Security. One member of the council expressed dissatisfaction with the highly effective system. She emphasized the prisoners especially during the weekend ec e 2

The LeMans blockade has also attempted to solve its security problems with the aid of co-operative inmates. At the beginning of the prison term there were some incidents where people walked upstairs into the rooms, the Recounted the Security Director, "We were forced to lock the door leading to the room. This meant that prisoners had to walk around the building which was also hazardous and one got attacked," she said.

"So the Head Warden said that we could keep the door open as long as we had a guard at the door." She reported that every inmate will have a turn at night. 11

Wiring the McCandless network, a Commie has been reported. Wires have been cut and questions have curtailed their difficulties. We have recently started "telephone service" and prisoners now use their phone in the evening. Inmates used to use them and then leave them in the corridor, but now we commented another Security Director. 12

In the Holy Cross Blockade, "security is pretty good," said its director. In September, complaints promoted the firing of one guard for sleeping and admitting inmates after closing without their identification cards.
IT WAS A GREAT START ...
... BUT WHAT A FINISH

Notre Dame 10 Georgia Tech 7

Notre Dame 46 Pitt 14

Notre Dame 3 LSU 0

Notre Dame 56 Navy 7

Southern Cal 38 Notre Dame 28
The N.J. Jocks had (W)right idea

by Terry Shields
Observer Sports Editor

I remember back to sophomore year (1968) when these new guys from Jersey moved into Zahn Hall Section 2-D.
They tried to be everybody a hard time, ever—Anna the Maid.
They called them"the New Jersey jocks" and everytime you mentioned anything about Notre Dame football, or any sport for that matter, they could rattle off a list of athletes
from the Garden State that could impress anyone. One of the guys they always mentioned
was Jim Wright.

I had been a close observer of spring football practice in 1968
and I remembered a little bit about Wright. He was 6'1" and about 220 lb. and he seemed to be where the play was going a lot of the time. I figured he just was three because linebackers were supposed to be at that spot. I wasn't overly impressed but when we returned to school in the fall of '68 I heard that Jim Wright won a starting position
for the indoor season.

"Are you kidding?" I thought,
"That first straw ballot nobody really thought much about the whole situation. Wright was there because for real, all things were taken into consideration. We took a chance and nabbed him. He was a good thing, too. Nebraska even started cali-ning him "one of the guys from the Orange Bowl. What are you going to do? Ya know?"

Finally, Jim Wright, are you satisfied with your first year at Notre Dame? He hesitated a discussion real sincere and said,"Well it's not the perfect simple place you heard about when you were a kid. You find out that some guys don't go to class every Sunday (a big game)." Yeah, it's a hard subject but I'm glad I came here.
Some of the guys on the team
were talking about this situation that we've made some good friends, and they're not all football players either. My brother came here but I didn't talk to him in coming. I'm enjoying the situation to him you know, social life and all that. He still wants to go down there. Sorry I came and I don't think he is."

Jim looked at his watch. He had to wash clothes in the downstairs for there is still one game left for him to play at ND.
Then of course, he plans a career with the pros. He's realistic about the situation. "I think I should be dynamite enough to make it. I'd like to stay in the East, but I'll go anywhere to play."

Jim got us then, asked if the defensive statistics were handy.
He looked at the player under only for one question. The first annual Media Bowl was won by the Wonderful WSNW (Wiz-nid)
over a stubborn Observer team.
The game was a bitter defensive struggle between two ancient (?) rivals.

WSNW's Mike Murphy
intercepted a pass in the early part of the fourth quarter and rumbled about sixty yards for the day's only score. Murphy played a standout game on both offense and defense.

Wright's interception kept both teams from mounting an offense. The wind blew up to 30 mph at times and neutralized any passing attack both team might produce.

The Observer squad tried to come back in the late going but didn't have it together most of the time. The closest they came was 5.

With this game goes the
coved Old Oaken Little Brown Typewriter to the winners and a bushel full of sour apples for the losers. Just wait until these Playoffs in roundball WSNW!

This of course brought up the question about the bowls. I've come on Jim, level with us, did the team want to go to the Cotton Bowl? Why the surprise. "Yeah, I think everybody was surprised that first straw ballot nobody really thought much about the whole situation. Wright was there because for real, all things were taken into consideration. We took a chance and nabbed him. He was a good thing, too. Nebraska even started cali-ning him "one of the guys from the Orange Bowl. What are you
going to do? Ya know?"

Jim Wright wins after permit to track down even ball carriers. Jim's speed has enabled him to be strong against both run and pass.

Finally we get back to the question about the Jocks. Jim Wright was paging through this year's football review as I kept interrogating him. He came to the centerfold and the picture of Joe Theismann standing, arm outstretched on the floor of the muddy Coliseum. "Look at that.

Boy what a shame. We should have won that one. Jones had his day and the 'D' couldn't adjust equally enough."

I asked Jim if this defeat left the team in a bad psychological state for the Cotton Bowl. He looked pensieve. "New, I don't really think so. Of course we were down right after the game.
We were shocked. Well, now it's overwith and we have Texas to worry about."

Next question Jim, will we be up for Texas? He laughed. "I wanted to beat them, huh? Did you see them against Arkansas?
Man, they're dynamite. If we want to beat them we gotta score.
The defense has to force them to pass. It'll be tough but I think we have the personnel to stop them. We've been practicing against the Wthbone-Tall season.
Maybe the coaches were looking ahead to this game."

I think when I go back to The Zoo tonight (7:30) and get to know some of these "New Jersey jocks" I have any more hot tips.
They sure were right about me.
One of them said, "He's dynamite!"

FOX'S diamond import savings

WIN
Media Bowl!

On a cold, windy day in November, the first annual Media Bowl was won by the Wonderful WSNW (Wiz-nid)
over a stubborn Observer team.
The game was a bitter defensive struggle between two ancient (?)
rivals.

WSNW's Mike Murphy
intercepted a pass in the early part of the fourth quarter and rumbled about sixty yards for the day's only score. Murphy
played a standout game on
both offense and defense.

Wright's interception kept
both teams from mounting an offense. The wind blew up to 30 mph at times and neutralized any passing attack both team might produce.

The Observer squad tried to come back in the late going but didn't have it together most of the time. The closest they came was 5.

With this game goes the
coved Old Oaken Little Brown
Typewriter to the winners and
a bushel full of sour apples for
the losers. Just wait until these Playoffs in roundball WSNW!

Everybody ski Caberfeid and Big "M", even Super Skier. Whether you've been up there or not, what you want and much, much more. For instance, our new full service lodge includes "X-Ray" hair salon; powder snow, excellent uphill transportation and 60 slopes to skil from. "Yes, March is here and so is snow," says the snowman. For information check us out. Four floors devoted to excellent food, cocktails, deep powder and single double chairlifts. Or you take their annual contest or just a snow report. Phone 616-775-7755, ask for the head guy.

THE OBSERVER
Wednesday, December 9, 1970

The N.J. Jocks had (W)right idea

by Terry Shields
Observer Sports Editor

I remember back to sophomore year (1968) when these new guys from Jersey moved into Zahn Hall Section 2-D.
They tried to be everybody a hard time, ever—Anna the Maid.
They called them"the New Jersey jocks" and everytime you mentioned anything about Notre Dame football, or any sport for that matter, they could rattle off a list of athletes
from the Garden State that could impress anyone. One of the guys they always mentioned
was Jim Wright.

I had been a close observer of spring football practice in 1968
and I remembered a little bit about Wright. He was 6'1" and about 220 lb. and he seemed to be where the play was going a lot of the time. I figured he just
was three because linebackers
were supposed to be at that spot. I wasn't overly impressed
but when we returned to school
in the fall of '68 I heard that Jim Wright won a starting position
for the indoor season.

"Are you kidding?" I thought,
"That first straw ballot nobody
really thought much about the whole situation. Wright was there because for real, all things were taken into consideration. We took a chance and nabbed him. He was a good thing, too. Nebraska even started cali-ning him "one of the guys from the Orange Bowl. What are you
going to do? Ya know?"

Finally, Jim Wright, are you
satisfied with your first year at Notre Dame? He hesitated a discussion real sincere and
said,"Well it's not the perfect simple place you heard about when you were a kid. You find out that some guys don't go to class every Sunday (a big game)." Yeah, it's a hard
subject but I'm glad I came here.
Some of the guys on the team
were talking about this situation
that we've made some good friends, and they're not all football players either. My brother came here but I didn't talk to him in coming. I'm enjoying the situation to him you know, social life and all that. He still wants to go down there. Sorry I came and I don't think he is."

Jim looked at his watch. He had to wash clothes in the downstairs for there is still one
game left for him to play at ND.
Then of course, he plans a career
with the pros. He's realistic about
the situation. "I think I should be dynamite enough to make it. I'd like to stay in the East, but I'll go anywhere to play."

Jim got us then, asked if the defensive statistics were handy.
He looked at the player under only for one question. The first annual Media Bowl was won by the Wonderful WSNW (Wiz-nid)
over a stubborn Observer team.
The game was a bitter defensive struggle between two ancient (?)
rivals.

WSNW's Mike Murphy
intercepted a pass in the early part of the fourth quarter and rumbled about sixty yards for the day's only score. Murphy
played a standout game on
both offense and defense.

Wright's interception kept
both teams from mounting an offense. The wind blew up to 30 mph at times and neutralized any passing attack both team might produce.

The Observer squad tried to come back in the late going but didn't have it together most of the time. The closest they came was 5.

With this game goes the
coved Old Oaken Little Brown
Typewriter to the winners and
a bushel full of sour apples for
the losers. Just wait until these Playoffs in roundball WSNW!
NEW YORK (UP) - UCLA, with four straight NCAA titles in hand, is off to a good start in its quest for No. 5.

The Bruins walked off with the No. 1 ranking today in the first week's balloting by the 35-member United Press International Board of Coaches. UCLA received 31 of the 32 first-place votes cast and 319 points in theballoting for games played during Sunday Dec. 6.

South Carolina was received the lone first-place ballot not cast for UCLA was ranked second.

Notre Dame was sixth followed by Southern California, Western Kentucky, Kansas and Pennsylvania to complete the top 10.

NEW YORK (UP) - The United Press International top 20 major college basketball teams with first place votes in parentheses. First week.

Team Points
1. UCLA (31) 2-0 319
2. South Carolina (1) 2-0 276
3. Kentucky (2) 2-0 215
4. Jacksonville (2) 2-0 190
5. Marquette (2) 2-0 139
6. Tennessee (1) 2-0 133
7. St. John's 2-0 133
8. Western Ky. 2-0 123
9. Tennessee 2-0 123
10. Pennsylvania 2-0 107
11. Villanova 2-0 107
12. Villanova 2-0 107
13. Utah St. 2-0 107
14. Drake 2-0 29
15. Louisiana 2-0 29
16. Florida St. 3-0 23
17. Long Beach St. 1-1 23
18. Tie New Hampshire 1-1 23
19. Tie Tenn. 2-0 23
20. North Carolina 2-0 9

UCLA put on an awesome offensive show during the weekend to walk off with top honors. The Bruins crushed Baylor 108-77 Thursday night with their five starters being pulled with five minutes remaining in the first half. The following night UCLA destroyed Rice the defending Southwest Conference champion 124-78.

Texas Tops No. 20

NEW YORK (UP) - The national football championship will remain in Texas for another year. The United Press International top 20 teams for 1970 with first place votes in parentheses. Final week.

Team Points
1. Texas (25) 12-0 321
2. Ohio State 8-2 288
3. Nebraska (12) 10-0 274
4. Tennessee 10-1 264
5. Notre Dame 9-1 257
6. Ohio State 8-2 215
7. Michigan 9-1 210
8. Arizona St. 10-0 185
9. Auburn 9-2 173
10. Stanford 8-3 173
11. Air Force 9-2 173
12. Arkansas 9-2 173
13. Houston 7-3 173
14. Dartmouth 9-0 173
15. Oklahoma 7-4 173
16. Colorado 6-4 173
17. Tie Ga. Tech 8-2 173
18. Tie Toleda 11-0 173
19. Tie Penn St. 7-3 173
20. Tie Sue. Col. 6-4 173

* Dual Motor System
* Dynamic Microphone
* Impulse for auxiliary (radio & phones etc.)
* Sockets for remote start
* AC/DC adapter
* Controls for external speaker & earphones

Norelco CASSETTE RECORDER

AL SMITH'S RECORD BAR
128 W. Washington Ave.
Phone: 232-3344

FROM THE LATEST
PRE-RECORDED TAPES
AND RECORDS

 Holmes'

two for tea

From one beer lover to another.

THE EIBAR COMPANY, DIPARTMENT, MICHIGAN 73572

---
ND crooners accused of sour notes

Last night about midnight, the Fourth Floor Keenan Hall carollers were summarily evicted from the St. Mary's campus because "there are 80 to 90 nuns living in that hall and they are irate."

The domicile in question was the convent adjacent to Holy Cross Hall, where the carollers had been serenading the St. Mary's belles for over 20 minutes. The nuns in question, obviously oblivious to the impending Yuletide season, were disturbed by the unrefined singing of the young men, and summoned their local constables (both of them) who promptly told the "boys" to cease and desist.

This was accomplished with all deliberate speed. After they returned to Notre Dame, choir directors Mike Lally, Dan Roche, Jim McKernott, and Jim Leroy released the following statement to the campus media: "We believe these actions constitute a flagrant infringement of our God-given rights to freedom of assembly, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion. The good sisters apparently have no conception of the Christmas Spirit, and even less appreciation of good music."

Clip and Save

A List of the Times of Scheduled Masses at Notre Dame

SUNDAYS: 5:15 P.M. (Sacred Heart Church); Saturday midnight (Alumni, Badin, Breen-Phillips, Flanner, Grace, Holy Cross, Howard, Keenan-Stanford, Lyons, Morrissey, Sorin, Zahm); 8:30 A.M. (Sacred Heart Church); 9:45 A.M. (Sacred Heart Church); 10:00 A.M. (Carroll); 11:00 A.M. (Sacred Heart Church, Walsh, Keenan-Stanford, Grace, Farley, Dillon, Cavanaugh, Cavanagh, Holy Cross); 11:30 A.M. (Lyons, Fisher); 12:15 P.M. (Sacred Heart Church); 5:00 P.M. (Walsh, Keenan-Stanford, Alumni); 11:00 P.M. (St. Edward).

WEEKDAYS: 8:00 A.M. (Dillon, Sorin); 11:30 A.M. (Sacred Heart Church, Walsh, Fisher); 5:00 P.M. (Farley, Breen-Phillips, Grace, Howard, Walsh); 5:10 P.M. (Keenan-Stanford); 5:15 P.M. (Sacred Heart Church, Zahn, Fisher, Cavanagh, Carroll); 10:00 P.M., M-Th (Holy Cross); 11:00 P.M. (Pangborn, Morrissey, Flanner, Keenan-Stanford, Dillon, Cavanagh, Breen-Phillips, Alumni); 12:00 Midnight (Ridley); Saturday only, 11:00 A.M. (Cavanagh), Saturday only, 11:30 A.M. (Keenan-Stanford).

GOOD NEWS! THEY'RE IN! A NEW SHIPMENT!

The one...the only

LEVI'S

BELL BOTTOM

BLUE JEANS

Nobody, but nobody, makes them like Levi's! We have just received a new shipment of these indispensable standbys. While you're at it, take a look at our other famous LeJee slacks and flares.

GIFTING A DAD...A BROTHER...AN UNCLE, ETC.?

Solve your problems ... a quick browse through our shop will uncover many fine gift ideas ... shirts, ties, belts and many, many more. Come See!

Use your account...

PAY ONE-THIRD

In January

PAY ONE-THIRD

In February

PAY ONE-THIRD

No Carrying Charge

ON THE CAMPUS ... NOTRE DAME