Claiming to represent "a consensus of the community" of the whole St. Mary's College community, the academic administration and the Park-Mayhew report as a basis for negotiation with Notre Dame, and a plan for the next academic year for coeducation study, the group said it recognizes the need for the University to remove itself from the University.

They concluded in "the best interests of the college, we MUST SUMMARIZE St. Mary's position, the statement lists two points.

(1) "We are firmly committed to a coeducational plan which arise from diversity in academic programs."

(2) "We are committed to a coeducational plan which arise from diversity in academic programs."

The report also stated that "we must increase the size of units and the number of units to accommodate the two institutions running counter to this is that the committee was not a TPC (Temporary Planning Committee) that is concerned with the new institution.

The committee's recommend to Notre Dame and St. Mary's students to the Park-Mayhew side of negotiations with Notre Dame, during the English Industrial Revolution. Their push was that English Industrial Revolution.

They also stated that this push is parceled out to students in several ways until after the turn of the century.

No vote will be taken at tomorrow's meeting however according to the manager of the university, the vote will be held at the Allen Committee meeting.

At the present time, fifty-four per-cent of the students are enrolled in coed majors, and 15 per-cent are enrolled in majors that are coed majors. These include majors in biology, chemistry, biology, chemistry, biology, and chemistry.

Rev. Charles Sheedy

"It's a way to help students discover what learning is about," said Burel. "Coed education is not a gimmick but a way of life. By putting into practice a well planned environment we had hoped to undertake the program.

The students went on to say that the best feature of the college at Holy Cross was the Cross Hall.

They said that Holy Cross was the only logical choice for the college because it is the only college that can be able to provide a long-term plan for the program.

Over half of student body receives financial aid

The following is an in depth article done by the Observer Associate Editor Steve Hoffman on the scholarship and financial aid at the University for the spring semester and the fall semester.

At the present time, fifty-four per-cent of the total undergraduate enrollment receives some type of financial aid.

According to Mrs. June McCauslin, Assistant Director of Admissions, these financial aid awards begin at the freshman level. Not all financial aid is available to upperclassmen, since most financial aid is awarded at the freshman level.

All scholarship awards are currently given underclassmen, since most financial aid is awarded at the freshman level.

Mrs. McCauslin stated that the majority of scholarships derived from University benefit donors, and a lesser number of scholarships derived from private sources.

She emphatically denied that scholarship donors have any personal influence in the allocation of scholarships.

The University informs the donor only of the press the donor's name, to the donor's credit.

The University awards all current scholarships based on the following three criteria:

1. Academic ability and need
2. Major determination
3. Community service and leadership

No student is allowed to accept or reject these stipulations.

Other than scholarships, financial aid is also derived from loans and Student Federal Loans from the present $240 million to a $1 million line.

The federal government, through this action, hopes to remove the schools from the lending mone.

K of C needs volunteers

by Mike Nevins

The Notre Dame Council of the night of Columbus and the local Muscular Dystrophy foundation will sponsor a collection from 10:00 to 3:00 this Saturday in the South Bend Mishawaka area.

Co-chairmen Dave Jaworski and Don Kelly also said that collections will be taken in the dining halls Thursday night and through the halls during the week.

They also pointed out that workers are needed for Friday and Saturday's drive. There are already seventy volunteers from St. Mary's and Holy Cross School of Nursing but many more are needed from Notre Dame.

Anyone interested should contact Dave or Don at 8365. There will be a parade for workers with a prize for the top collectors in the council's building on campus. All workers are asked to meet at the building at 9:30 Saturday morning.

Johnny Dee and Austin Carr are giving promotional assistance to the drive in the South Bend area. The group is also being assisted to its fifteen hundred dollar goal by honorary local chairman Pat O'BRIEN.

The Center has in the Library only since November, so not all the students who might wish to use its services are aware of its location and its function. This is especially true of off-campus students who have never had to use drug users than students in the dorms.

Currently the use of the Center is rather predictable. The workers say they average about one person per hour during regular school periods and about six each hour during exam time. The find that during exams student queries are mostly about "speed." Antoher point in the Center's favor is that if a student needs more help than they are equipped to give them they can always act as an informal force that helps that student (continued on page 4).

No one files for G.S.U. presidency

by Rick Gering

According to Bill Lorimer, G.S.U. President, no candidates have yet been announced for the upcoming G.S.U. presidential election. If there are no candidates, the Grad Student Union will cease to exist.

According to Bill Lorimer, G.S.U. President, no candidates have yet been announced for the upcoming SGSU presidential election. If there are no candidates, the Grad Student Union will cease to exist.

The current president says the grad students want things handed to them, but don't want to expend any effort to help the G.S.U. He also stated that people seem to expect the Grad Union to exist indefinitely, but warned that "we aren't going to go on forever if people don't start lending a hand."

The Graduate Student Union no longer needs to "justify its existence," according to Lorimer, because it is only since the institution of the G.S.U. that Grad students have become a part of the university community. While he admits that there are still many unresolved problems facing grad students, Lorimer feels that these could be overcome, and that the only threat to the G.S.U.'s future is grad student apathy.

If no candidate turns up for the G.S.U. elections, the grad students will lose their representation, presently provided by the Grad Union, on the Faculty Senate, Board Board of Trustees, Academic and Graduate Councils, and the Advanced Student Affairs Committee, as well as the Traffic Appeals Board. According to Lorimer, the grad students "may not miss this at first, but they will eventually miss it very much." Lorimer summed up his position of the election situation by stating that he is "sick of the mentality that says, 'Let's drop back into obscurity.'"

Father Burtchaell's report on coeducation is his first major triumph as Provost, and more than this, it is an articulate, well-drawn defense of a concept which surely needs to be implemented at this University. Father Burtchaell, in his report, indicates clearly that complete absorption of St. Mary's is not only quite possible but desirable and beneficial to both schools.

The report handles objections easily; the "special import" of courses at St. Mary's are very simply preserved if the two schools merge departments. Likewise, the humanities vs. professional-approach dialectic many opponents of merger call vital is preserved when departments merge; all students would then have the option of taking courses prescribing to either approach. The report addresses the important question of the placement or displacement of SMC faculty and students; according to most, if not all, would be included in the new emerged University.

The regrettable lack of a specific plan to deal with SMC students and faculty is one of the few deficiencies

This regrettable lack of a specific plan to deal with SMC students and faculty is one of the few deficiencies of the report. It should be clear, for example, that no SMC Juniors or Seniors would be displaced; at this point in their academic Careers, such a displacement would undoubtedly render those students unable to finish college. Beyond that, the querulous will not be satisfied until the plan is made specific. We suggest that such a specification be the first priority of the committee we hope will be appointed to implement the Burtchaell plan.

The Burtchaell plan's second deficiency is its advocacy of a two-to-one ratio. Implicit in such a ratio would be two separate standards, one for male applicants and one for females. The most important reason for coeducation—+ THAT THIS SCHOOL WOULDN'T TO DENY FAYES THEIR RIGHT TO RECEIVE AN EDUCATION HERÉ++ CRIES OUT AGAINST SUCH A DOUBLE STANDARD. We suggest that individual applicants be judged on their merits as individuals, and on those merits alone. We suspect the male-female ratio will be palatable to all concerned.

The third, and perhaps the most pressing deficiency of the report is its insistence that coed dorms must not be part of Notre Dame's future. Although the establishment of women's residence halls on the Notre Dame Campus is a monumental step forward, reason dictates that that step will not be complete until coeducational dorms are a reality. Every normal residence halls on the Notre Dame campus on their merits as individuals, and on those merits alone. And in fact, the only group-living establishment in our society is coeducational; establishments as impersonal as apartment buildings; establishments as intimate as the family. In fact, the only group-living establishments not coeducational are monastaries, convents, and prisons, and the theory would now be useless if not detrimental to the interests of the student body.

The problem is something like this. Assume that Hall X at Notre Dame and Hall Y at SMC are to go coed. Hall X has 400 residents, 100 from each class, and wants to take in 200 girls from SMC. Freshmen will not be admitted to the hall, and so the 100 graduating seniors will not be replaced. This, however, still leaves the 300 ND students in the hall. They would only have the 200 remaining beds available to them. Now if 100 of these students would move to Hall Y, another Notre Dame hall or off-campus, then there is no problem. If not, then shit hits the fan. Students would then be forced out their dormitory.

Theory. Everybody in Halls A through L feels that those terrible students in Hall X should make sacrifices for the improvement of the social life of the entire campus. Aren't they in favor of coeducation? Then they should be glad to give up their rooms so that women can live at Notre Dame.

What is ignored by this exercise in hypocrisy is the real cause of the problem of coed juxtaposed dorms. The Stay Hall System. If there was just one non-stay hall on campus, with roughly one half seniors and one half juniors, there would be no problem of choosing between broken eggs or no omelette. In the University's haste to make sure there were no God Almighty Awful Elite Halls left, the University created a problem for coeducation. To a degree the confrontation attitude of "We want it or else" of new gone seniors has blown up in their face. They got stay halls, and have probably regretted the decision behind a year or two. But this little problem solving oriented cooperation with the Administration back might have foreseen and avoided this present dilemma.

Thejust plan's second difficulty is its insistence that coeducation plan because it would delay the earliest possible presence of undergraduate women on campus.

Some would say that this undesirable as a coeducation plan because it would delay the earliest possible presence of undergraduate women on campus until 1972. Face facts, the odds are overwhelmingly against there being even a juxtaposed dorm available next year. But it is simply too late for the Administration to redistribute its freshmen. And there is nothing for St. Mary's to stop Notre Dame from creating a non-stay hall. Furthermore the creation of a non-stay hall would be a good example for the University that a coeducation concept would take place in 1972. If it didn't take place then the University would have a terrible non-stay hall on its hands. The presence of such a hall would insure that the University would stop procrastinating the next year, and also place considerable pressure on SMC to cooperate.

Some might also say that it would be impossible to get 100 seniors to transfer into Hall X. Why? First, seniors would have to move in? One big one, id est, there are no freshmen in the hall. There are at least 200 seniors on or off campus who would sell their souls to get away from freshmen. But even if there weren't 100 seniors who would move in, then there are other possibilities. People who would pledge that they intend to move to Hall Y at SMC off campus could be admitted (even freshmen). The basic idea is admitting 100 people to the hall, that would not be there next year.
The text of Fr. Burtchaell’s co-education plan was to have appeared on this page, however our machines have not been functioning properly. We hope you will bear with us until the problems have been solved.

business in addition to using these funds somewhere else.

This budgetary provision will not come under inspection of the House Appropriations Committee until July 30. As a result, the Admissions Office has been forced to hedge to incoming freshmen regarding financial assistance. As it stands, Defense loans are contingent upon Congressional action.

To fill the sizeable breach that would be opened if the budget were passed as written, Mrs. McCauslin mentioned that a subsidized loan program may be implemented. The exact methods of application are presently unknown, but they would essentially involve the government subsidizing loans through banks and schools, and apparently remove aid to education from the federal budget.

Much emphasis has been laid recently on the need for increased minority enrollment, and increased monetary aid for minorities necessary to realize this goal. According to Mrs. McCauslin, until last year financial assistance for minority students was negligible.

However, the 1970 Cotton Bowl reaped $150,000 to be made available to minorities. As of yet, she has no idea how much was garnered by the 1971 Cotton Bowl.

Aside from Bowl revenues, only a small number of donors, no more than four or five, have made funds available exclusively for minority students. Much of the money that is awarded is in the form of a non-repayable grant-in-aid rather than a pure scholarship.

The difference between the two is that the recipient of the grant-in-aid is not required to maintain a 3.0 average in order to save his stipend. The regular scholarship is more of an academic award that is the grant-in-aid.

Mrs. McCauslin noted that nearly all aid is a package deal comprised of several different. It often includes a scholarship, a loan, a grant, or a work-study award, all of which is designed to add up to enough to enable the prospective student to come to Notre Dame.

One knockout highlights Bengals

The 125-pounder began the night's card and Larry Samerad was the first decision-maker in this round of competition, taking a split decision from Bob Kuhse. Next, Denver's Don Tatro defeated Charlie Fabian. It was every bit as exciting as ever.

There were four bouts in the 150-pound class. Mike Loughery won in the first round, while Kuhse won in the second. Loughery was unable to rise before the referee reached ten.

TGK 10-2 won in the second round and was forced to retire, while Carr 10-4 was able to rise before the referee reached ten.

Mike Welsh in other matches in the opening round and went on to win a unanimous decision.

Runner Impressive at Ohio

The Illini, who are the NCAA meet-to-meet each week-end were Rip Deladrier, (7-17) and Joe Gargis, (25-16) in the second round.

Kevin Kennig and Aaron Baker looked like the class of the competitors. They defeated the unseeded men, while the seed men encountered the best competition. The following day at Madison, Coach DeCicco was delighted with the fact that our number one and two men, but since we lost to Detroit, (one by pin) we'll be out to gain a measure of revenge.

Just for the Record

With the Irish definitely heading forth for Saturday, Mar. 13, it was far behind the record-breaking season of 1970. McMannon won the 70-yard high hurdles in :08.5. McMannon finished third in the two-mile run. There will be one more time-up meet this year.

Bob Habig (150 pounds) won his first two matches (one by pin) and fell in the finals, finishing fourth in the weight class.-Kevin Ryan (142) placed third, losing to a student discount. These tickets will be sold on a first-come-first-serve basis until the supply is exhausted.

The game is scheduled for Saturday, March 12.

The rest of the committee stresses coordination of the two institutions with the offices of the vice-president of academic affairs and academic dean, vice-president for student affairs and dean of students.

Although the committee suggests a merger in the area of development with fund-raising activities, and a coordination of the Registrar's office they advocate separate budget and a separate admissions office.

In this segment of the report, the community also accepts the recommendation in Park-Mayhew of a coordinator to be "sought outside the Notre Dame—St. Mary's community."

In academic affairs, the group defends St. Mary's programs as both "valuable and sufficiently different from those of Notre Dame, to provide a diversity which would be lacking if there were one Biology Department, one Art Department."

To establish coordinate departments, they suggest a variety of structures. One one hand, they explore the possibility for departments with co-

chairmen from each school, or single chairman with three assistant chairmen, one for N.D. graduate faculty, one for N.D. undergraduate faculty, and one for S.M.C. faculty.

Another possibility is an interdisciplinary, experimental college requiring major curriculum changes and a realignment of the faculties of both schools in a new and imaginative experiment in higher education. The section also cites the faculty's puzzlement at the ambiguity of Park-Mayhew on status, salary, and rank and tenure. Although "the faculty of St. Mary's is very much in favor of closer cooperation with Notre Dame," they find misleading statements in the report such as "faculty members who concentrate their efforts as under-graduate teachers should not be expected to compare for tenure or salary purposes with professors who conduct research and direct graduate students as well as teaching under-graduate students."
