Boycott on turkey market called

A consumer boycott of turkey's called by Pine Manor Co. has been called by The Farm Labor Aid Committee, in conjunction with MASH rescheduled

Cultural Arts Commissioner Bob Brinkman last night revealed a mixup with the same film company that caused a cancellation of "2001, A Space Odyssey" also caused the cancellation of "Mash" this weekend. Brinkman said that all of the remaining fund raising films have been rechecked and that they are all coming. He also said that "2001" will be shown in February and that they will attempt to reschedule "Mash" for the second semester.

In place of "Mash" the CAC showed two Paul Newman movies, "Sweet Bird of Youth" and "Long Hot Summer." Brinkman said that this happened because of the mix-up by the distributing company. If the CAC cannot reschedule "Mash" they will substitute other films. Brinkman speculated that the films would probably not be of the same quality of "Mash" though. Brinkman said, "We don't feel we are screwing the students because we will show three films in its place and then the patron card will be good for free admission to thirteen movies instead of ten."

CSC priest shot in India
First missionary to be slain

Rev. William P. Evans, C.S.C., a 67 year old Notre Dame Graduate and a member of the Holy Cross Mission force in India and West Pakistan the last 30 years, was shot and killed Saturday (Nov. 13), the first missionary to die in India and West Pakistan forces.

Reports of the shooting were received in this country yesterday from the U.S. State Department are incomplete, and it was not immediately known if Father Evans was killed by Army troops or Razacars (rebels faction). The report stated the priest was en route by boat from Golla to Banshanagar when he was stopped by military forces and told to report to the police station.

Father Evans reportedly spent one hour being questioned at the police station and was shot when he returned to the wharf to resume his trip. His body was thrown into the river and later recovered and returned to Golla for burial. The place where the shooting occurred is approximately 30 miles west of Dacca. West Pakistan officials are investigating the incident.

Mission officials at Notre Dame said members of the Holy Cross order had been instructed to quit ouiliving mission posts and return to Dacca when the present troubles started. An occasional visitor at Notre Dame on furlough trips to this country, Father Evans was last assigned to a mission post in the Mymensingh District.

Father Evans was born in Greenfield, Mass. January 13, 1919, and entered the Holy Cross Novitiate in August, 1938. He was ordained on June 10, 1943, in Sacred Heart Church, Notre Dame. A memorial mass is scheduled for 5 p.m. Thursday (Nov. 26) in Moreno Hall chapel.

Wilbur Mills speaks here: defends Pay Board decision

by John Abood
Observer Assistant Editor

Asserting that the federal government had no right to "abrogate any contract" House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, defended the Pay Board's decision to allow unlimited wage increases to miners. Mills indicated that the decision would be kept within State Department ranks unless there was direct challenge to the Board's authority. Mills added that he had no intention of referring the matter to the Labor Department. Mills defended the coal miners' right to unlimited wage increases, a decision that he had made."I think the idea has a great deal of merit," he said. "This time I hope the Senate will stay with it. Candidates shouldn't be stigmaized by contributions. "This plan provides a way for everyone to make some kind of contribution to the party or parties of their choice."

Mills denied that he had any intentions of running for president before the primaries.

He cited an estimated cost of $200 million as the primary reason for his decision to not enter any.

Cuss Regent

The Student Government Office has received an additional $400, and it expects to reach the committee goal of $500 set by the basketball team. It has received letterhead that says it will donate the proceeds to the basketball team. The names of the benefit sponsors will be printed in the game program. $10 and $25 captions are scheduled for special recognition.

Personnel for the game have teamed their services. Officers, security police, ticket and parking lot attendants, and other workers have volunteered their services.
Thanksgiving

This Thursday there will be a familiar and touching scene repeated in the dining rooms of millions of homes across the nation. The family mother, father and children-will gather around the table, a table groaning under the weight of luscious delicacies dominated by the all American bird, the Turkey. The family will sit down at the table and enjoy a feast not much of a feast by ancient Roman standards to be sure-but a goodly feast nonetheless.

Others won't have it that way. There are many who haven't been included in the "American Dream"-people like the migrants, the blacks, and the Indians. They have the same dreams. As the night goes on, they think about their children getting bitten by rats, or acquiring lead poisoning from eating paint chips. Their bargain gets picked up when it is supposed to and the schools their children offer to offer an education or a reasonable facsimile thereof. Most of them can walk the streets of their towns at night, without a cold lump of terror wedged in their throats.

The jobs they occupy are moderately interesting and rewarding, for the most part, and the chances of advancement are good. They don't have too many jibes and sIBes and not so subtle remarks about their racial or ethnic backgrounds.

The "American Dream" for them is a reality. There is nothing illusory about having a four bedroom house with a half acre of land around it, or an annual income of $25,000.

There is something horribly real about having a job with $2.12 an hour wage rate, with acres and acres of dirty urinals waiting to be washed. The garbage, lime and filth that is a part of the slums in ugly contrast to the pleasant, winding tree lined roads of Laurel Hollow, an elite Long Island suburb. Somewhere in between the darkness and the light there is the Flushing of the nations-the row upon row of dozen frame houses, depressing similarity, neat and filth and falling plaster.

For America's impoverished it will be one day in a liquid process of many, a twenty-four hour span of grinding poverty, the kind of poverty that holds out no hope of any goodness.

Those that sit down at the groaning tables have many things to be thankful for -many things to be ashamed of also. They have a decent clean house, plenty of food and a good income. They don't have time to think about their children getting bitten by rats, or acquiring lead poisoning from eating paint chips. Their bargain gets picked up when it is supposed to and the schools their children offer to offer an education or a reasonable facsimile thereof. Most of them can walk the streets of their towns at night, without a cold lump of terror wedged in their throats.

The streets there aren't really safe anymore, there was a stabbing down the road; the schools have been very good either. The teachers don't seem to give a damn and the kids know it and run circles around them, Dad's income has gone sour somewhere.

It that same night before is lost in the glare of the sun or the chill of the brisk wind or the rotten smell that the Brunk left in your hallway from the same night before. And all that "Christian community" that you come in every month- bigger and better than ever. It's too far removed from us. We can't identify with their crisis. Their income has gone up every year-the union-negotiated contract took care of that. It's too far removed from us.

But despite their cries, the students' complaining allow as more and more children and adults die each day in Pakistan. But for their sake, in light of their pleas for another chance, we're bringing the crisis home to you. We'll put it in your backyard. Sure, it's perhaps not as serious as the kids and people dying daily, but it's something you can-"relate to-identify with." It's something that's close to home.

"Tonight, the varsity basketball team of Notre Dame takes the court against their freshman counterparts this time telling me that all this rubble has led up to a crummy basketball game?"

"Yet, to put aside an older cliché, it's more than just a basketball game. This game has come about because of the work John Thorn to and John Diette. Adding their support and their efforts were Coach Digger Phelps and John Barkett and his Student Government crew. The purpose behind the whole game is to collect clothes, canned food, toys for the adults and children of South Bend who aren't fortunate enough to go to Notre Dame. They really could care less if ND beats or loses to St. Louis. Sure, it's perhaps not as serious as the kids and people dying daily, but it's something you can-"relate to-identify with." It's something that's close to home.

Dillon repeats as IH champ

by Stan Ursakar '71

The Interball football championship will remain in Dillon Hall. The Big Red successfully defended their title yesterday afternoon when they outlasted Morrissey, 20-12, in overtime on a snow-covered Carter Field.

The sloppy conditions hurt the Marauders’ famed triple option by slowing the cuts of Kirk Miller and Pat Casey, and making their patented pitchouts even more difficult. Dillon coach Mike Caufield praised the work of the proud Dillon defense in holding Morrissey to only 63 yards rushing, better than 70 yards below normal.

"It was a tremendous team effort by the defense," commented Caufield. "Our plan against the option was to have the outside linebackers (Eddy Carney and Nick Pel use) watch the tight, and would've bet they'd get the ball first at the line of scrimmage."

From there, Miller led a 13-play drive, highlighted by a 29-yard aerial to Fran Finnegan on fourth down, that put the ball on the 20 for good.
The Irish Eye

Despite the fact that his club swept two games from WCHA foe, Colorado College, Notre Dame hockey coach, “LEFTY” Smith wasn’t overly pleased with his team’s performance.

“Anybody I ever had before that had to work to do,” Smith commented after Saturday’s game. Smith was a bit disappointed in the team’s pre-checkoff on Friday night and the lack of a well-rounded scoring attack.

The line of John Campbell, Eddie Bumbacco, and Ian Williams has accounted for 19 goals and 42 assists this season. The Irish have tallied three goals, meaning that Notre Dame’s second line just doesn’t seem to be connecting with Larry Parker in his first four games, scoring at least two goals each in game. He had the first Irish “hat trick” of the year at Friday night against Colorado.
