An Academic Vigil: The Struggle for Student Power at Notre Dame

By Mike Baum

Pledging "a new base for student power," SBP candidate Paul Dziedzic opened his campaign last night in Alumni Hall. Speaking with running mate Bob Constelato, Dziedzic said he saw this as a distinction between "student influence," naturally concomitant with the position of SBP or SMC, and "student power," stemming from the active support of the student body.

Dziedzic emphasized the formation of coalitions with the SMC administration, and with the Notre Dame faculty. He said the fact that he and Dziedzic opened his campaign last night in Alumni Hall. Speaking with running mate Bob Constelato, Dziedzic said he saw this as a distinction between "student influence," naturally concomitant with the position of SBP or SMC, and "student power," stemming from the active support of the student body.

Higgins also said he would work for a "close cooperation between student government and faculty, specifically through the two student seats on the Board of Trustees," which he dismissed "unused," and through the SLC. He also contended that the student government should be prepared to respond with power, to "kick some problems," and to "challenge" the student body, which he acknowledged as the Ad-men-tors' desire to create a "Notre Dame man.""}

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.

The Student Body President for the current year, Professor Gary Cuauso (AC-2), is the only one who had accepted. "Rhetoric isn't all you need for an administration," Kezele said. "More important, you have to establish mutual trust with the administration and the students. You have to create a form of close communication with them."

Kezele also contended that the basic social problem at Notre Dame is simply an "unbalanced ratio" of faculty to students. When dates don't matter, he said, "things aren't orientated to a date society here because there aren't enough girls," Kezele remarked. By informal open-air movies and concerts and Over-the-Hill dances Kezele said the social atmosphere on campus can improve drastically.

He also suggested renovating the basement of the LaFortune Center. "There's many possibilities with that," said Jones, who appeared with Kezele in Alumni and Keenan-Stanford. "There's a bar down there and we could get a small hand every weekend.""}

"I really think that apathy is on the way out. I think people are getting excited about student government this year."

On the subject of hall life, Higgins said that he hoped to get some $20,000 back in the halls, twice the amount budgeted this year. Higgins bases this hope on a budgetable $9,000 available after this year from the payment of the student government debt, and on this year's practice of matching funds one-to-one.
Schlosser pledges social, cultural reforms

by Ann-Therese Darin

Associate Editor

Self professed "activists" Joe Schlosser, SBP candidate, and his running mate, Luken, have pledged to revitalize the social and cultural scene on campus. Last night in their debut before campaign audiences, Schlosser said, "Social culture is a basis for the student power movement." Schlosser opposed student-owned and operated exam cheating, saying that we must take control of our own decision-making and responsibility. This body would give recommendations for a fairer and more democratic decision-making process.

The University is willing to make promises, too, said Luken. "We want to involve students in a common goal or activity on a cultural basis, so that when we're interested in changing structures on campus, they'll know each other."

During the half-hour talk with eight Alumni representatives, Schlosser endorsed hall autonomy for both men's and women's dorms and a "redefinition" of the student Senate so that every proposal reaching the SLC from the student representatives could first have Senate approval. The Schlosser-Soldati campaign envisions the Hall President's Council as "essentially a research and information committee." Although they anticipate "a paternalistic attitude" on the part of the administration toward the women on campus, they will lobby for women's parietal hours equal to men's.

The candidates, both of whom live off-campus included a detailed off-campus plank in their platform. It contains proposals for a food cooperative and a tenants' union. Soldati, a two-year army veteran and INPIPG organizer, listed several activities they plan to stage.

In the Huddle Friday evening, they will premiere a movie filmed Tuesday on "spontaneous trucking experience" before the Chuck and Mary Perrin concert. Also based in the Huddle are guitar concerts, which started yesterday at noon. "We had no interference from the Huddle people at all," said Soldati, "when we turned off the records. If there had been something, the students would have stood behind us. We had everyone at the Huddle together with what was going on."

They also plan guerrilla theatre, and a parade to organize at the LaFortune Student Center "for the fun of it." Friday at 11:30 a.m.

After the Alumni speech, the candidates went door-to-door in Dillon, before appearance at the Kesten Stanford chapel.

Joe Schlosser: endorses hall autonomy for both men's and women's dorms.

1000 students polled

Luken surveying attitudes

Chuck Luken: "I will make not make promises that I cannot keep."

Sherrod opens campaign: calls for student decisions

by Jim McDermott

Mike Sherrod opened his campaign for student body vice-president calling for student decision-making and responsibility. He spoke last night in Grace, St. Edward's, and Farley Halls.

Sherrod, who is running with Paul Dziadzic, detailed their platform with students making their decisions on their life styles, parietal, and the planning for future coed dorms.

Under this plan, students would be brought into the decisions by a new University Forum, composed of all halls presidents and section leaders. This body would be new to all students, will have no voting power. All legislative power will be in an assembly where the members would be selected by the halls on a proportional basis.

"It's time that we started to accept our own responsibilities and time that we start to make our own decisions," Sherrod said. He called for an end of secrecy in planning here.

Among other plans Sherrod announced was a student-owned and operated store on campus. "The University is willing to make loans if it is for a good cause," he noted.

Students must take control of their student affairs, too, Sherrod said. He emphasized studying enough, saying that students must "make students aware of their morality."

Mike Sherrod: announces plans for new "University Forum."

Dziadzic and Sherrod are basing their campaign on a theme of student power. "There is authority inherent in the student body to make their view of Notre Dame a reality, just as the trustees and administration have done," he concluded.
Only 465 delegates

courtesy Eric Andrus

Mock Convention will need more delegates
by Jerry Lutkin
Observer News Editor

Mock Convention Director Eric Andrus expressed disappointment last night at the number of students already signed up for the Mock Democratic Convention to be held in April. The convention must have 1,000 delegates and so far the total stands at 465.

Andrus noted that many students may be concerned over the amount of time necessary for the convention, but he explained that it only takes about 200 delegates to run the committee set-up. The other 800 students serve simply as convention delegates. Nonetheless, he stressed that registration must be completed well in advance of the convention for organizational purposes.

If the convention does not come up with enough delegates, it would become a real problem. But Andrus is confident that enough students will support the convention.

He stressed, though, that St. Mary's has been really slow in signing up. The National Convention is split half and half between men and women in the committee set-up. Andrus hopes to duplicate that situation but, he repeated they need girls to sign-up.

Many of the small states have already have their state delegations filled, but the large state delegations are still wide open. Andrus explained that California, New York, Ohio, and Illinois are still open.

Of the students who have signed up, nearly 90 percent have remained uncommitted. Andrus explained that when students sign-up for the convention they are asked to note three states they would like to represent. Next, they are given the option of committing themselves to candidate or remaining open. The commitment is solely a student's view and is in no way applicable to the actual opinion of the state he represents.

Thus far in the pre-convention work, candidates Henry Jackson, George McGovern, and John Lindsay have emerged with the most organization. But Andrus stressed that the organization really doesn't mean too much. The powerful state delegations of California and New York are wide-open and if there is power it will be located in the big delegations, according to Andrus.

There has been some controversy thus far over power and factional control by organizations. Andrus made clear that "No one faction controls the small states due to the fact that 90 percent of the people are staying uncommitted. Even a group of 10 small states would have little control. We have no problem with having a fair convention."

Andrus informed the various organizations that if they required advertising in The Observer for their candidate, they should work through the Academic Commission. They should contact the Commission "at least two days in advance so that all the organizations are subject to the same ad discount rate as the Academic Commission."

Mock Convention Director Eric Andrus

$3 million endowment

Minorities comment
by Larry Dailey

The leaders of two minority groups have expressed varying opinions on Fr. Hesburgh's recent announcement of a $3 million endowment fund for undergraduate minority students.

Armando Alonzo, spokesman for the undergraduate members of MECHA (Chican Student Movement) explained that he personally wondered about the adequacy of the sum.

"The endowment doesn't solve the problem. It is simply an attempt to set-up since La Raza has never had a recruiter or counselor on this campus. If the administration could match that endowment with a supplementary sum for supportive services such as recruitment, admissions, counseling, and tutorial, then Notre Dame might be a conducive location for Chicano students."

"This is merely one step," explained Armando. "MECHA member, "and the establishment of a whole program is necessary." However, Forrest Whitberabt, head of the Native American Association stated that he was "impressed and relieved at the university thought of this."

"We will take a wait-and-see attitude as to how much will be channelled into each minority group, but we are glad that the university made this commitment."

Whitberabt suggested that a portion of the fund be used on recruiting, and that there are only three Indians on campus.

"The problem in the past has been that the financial aid package that Notre Dame normally offers to an Indian on the reservation is normally not as good a deal as the state schools might offer him. However, this might be a change for the better."

$500 needed for appearance

Breslin talk anticipated
by Ann Therese Darin

Five hundred more dollars in Grad Student Denise Askin's pocket will bring novelist Jimmy Breslin to campus to megaphone the Ulster, Ireland novelist Jimmy Breslin to campus problems, March 1.

Miss Askin already has $500 in her fund, $250 pledged by the Graduate Student Union plus the same amount from Student Union Academic Commission coffers. Breslin guaranteed he would speak here and donate his $1000 lecture fee to the Ulster cause.

Breslin's anticipated speech would kick-off local support of a nationwide boycott on $1,200,000,000's worth of British exports, retaliation for British persecution of the Ulster Catholics. Britain's biggest export is Scotch.

The boycott includes closing American ports to British ships by the National Longshoreman's Association, the AFL-CIO, and the National Truckers' Union.

Miss Askin, member of a national association to aid Ulster victims, plans to organize a campus chapter. She hopes to educate the students through Breslin's speech so that they will canvass South Bend urging residents to participate in the boycott.

"I would appreciate any contributions for the Breslin fund by Friday." Miss Askin said, "so that we could contact Breslin's office to finalize the speech plans. She may be reached at her room in Lewis Hall (283-2146).

Peking-President Nixon conferred again privately yesterday with Premier Chou En-Lai of China and later attended a dazzling display to gymnastics in an indoor stadium in Peking. Early Thursday, the President began a visit of the Great Wall of China and the Ming Tombs. The summit meetings are to resume after Nixon's sightseeing trip.

Washington--A compromise house bill was introduced by Senate leaders in a Senate said to be seething with antipathy. The bill, offered at the minimum that Congress might accept, would prohibit busing to desegregate schools if it would risk the health of the children involved or retard their education.

Washington--The Supreme court ruled that the apparent election victory of Sen. Vance Hartke in 1970 is subject to a recount in Indiana. The court added that the Senate would be the final arbiter in the situation, in which Hartke, now a democratic presidential contender, faced former Rep. Richard L. Roudebush.

Unlike the 1964 Mock Convention shown here, the 1972 Convention is having trouble getting delegates.

THE OBSERVER

Pleasingly, a winning combination of Zaccharia's and the Student Band convivially entertained at a recent party.

Thursday, February 24, 1972

world briefs

(c) New York Times

on campus today

1:30-2:00--meeting, meet watch, candidate for governor of Indiana, Fiesta lounge, later time.

evening: the campaign, candidates speak in the halls.

at notre dame - st. mary's
Empty Convention

Eric Andrus was pretty disappointed last night, but he could still manage some optimism. The Mock Democratic Convention he is organizing is suffering from a fantastic lack of support from the student body. The Convention only happens once every four years and we think it should be vigorously supported. But the support just isn't there. Andrus needs a minimum of 1004 delegates to put together a well-run convention. As of dinner time last night, he had 465 people, less than half the necessary populace. That's bad—real bad.

Furthermore, the disappointment has been heightened by an almost complete lack of response from St. Mary's. National Democratic rules dictate a 50-50 women to men ratio and it would be nice to operate the same way here. But, unfortunately, at the rate things are progressing, that's just a fond hope.

True, the Convention isn't until early April, but for organizational purposes, these delegations of delegates must come now. A student delegate's time commitment, except for those integrally involved in the committee and organizational positions, isn't overbearing and really isn't prohibitive.

90 percent of the students who have signed-up are not committed to a candidate. The large and powerful delegations from California, New York, Ohio, and Illinois are unfilled. The people who are elected to head these delegations are potentially powerful participants. Organizations supporting Henry Jackson, John Lindsay, Hubert Humphrey, and George McGovern have all been created. There's an organized effort.

Everything points to a tremendously exciting convention, something the students really shouldn't miss.

It would be a true shame if a convention so wide open, and potentially exciting would have to be cancelled because of the shortage of delegates.

The problem is simple—no people—and the answer is even simpler—sign-up.

Incomplete Commitment

Armando Alonso is right—compared to efforts the administration has made to secure black students, Chicanos and Indians have definitely been slighted. Let us look at the record:

--there are 160 blacks on campus; less than 50 Chicanos; 3 Indians.
--there is a black guidance counselor; no Chicoan; no Indian.
--next year there will be a black recruiter; once again no Chicano; no Indian.

As we said when the endowment was first announced, $3 million is no small effort. While the fund should be designed to grow, that is no excuse for it to sit back and ignore the plethora of other problems surrounding minority recruitment. We don't think the Admissions or Financial Aid offices intend to ignore the recruitment of Chicanos and Indians but the record is terribly unimpressive.

It would be naive and overly simplistic to suggest that every minority group would have a representative in the guidance and recruiting programs. But that doesn't mean that non-black minorities should be as completely ignored as they have been. We suggest a Chicano and an American Indian should be vigorously supported. But the support just isn't there. Andrus needs to make available through the Admissions office on whatever basis he deems appropriate to attract these students.

The problem is simple—no people—and the answer is even simpler—sign-up.

ATTENTION: SBP-SBVP Candidates

The Observer will publish a special election issue on Saturday of this week. As a public service we will publish the platforms of all candidates who submit them. The maximum length is two and one half typewritten pages, double spaced. All platforms must be in The Observer office by noon Friday.
Caruso releases results of investigations

by Joseph Abel

"We want to get across the point that we are doing things now," Cary Caruso told a large crowd last night in Morrissey as he kicked off his campaign with talks in that hall, Grace Hall, Alumni Hall, and Farley Hall.

To support his statement, Caruso offered four releases detailing his platform and challenges made by Caruso's staff into various areas of student life, and a proposed challenge to the University.

The first of the four releases dealt with the recent controversy over proposed refrigerator fines. Caruso conducted a survey to discover the situation of electrical appliances in the halls. This was followed by an interview with Brother Kieran Ryan on hall wiring. The results of his survey and interview were included in the release, along with the promise of a Caruso proposal on places as subject to open parlors.

Caruso's fourth release entailed a proposal to challenge the University's stand on parietals, utilizing a recent action of the Alumni Hall rector as a basis for the challenge. That rector, said Caruso, declared that a room in Alumni could have open parietals so that it could be used as a campaign headquarters. Caruso pointed out the possibility of using this action to force the University to declare all public

Pogge talks about information, power

by Don Hopper

Citing poor information as the true cause of a lack of student power, Ron Pogge, candidate for Student Body Vice-President, opened his campaign last night in a speaking tour that included Morrissey, Alumni, Walsh and Farley halls.

Pogge, who is running with SBF candidate Bob Higgins, promised that the Higgins administration would be one which would deal tactfully but forcefully with the officials of the University while backing up their proposals with massive student support.

The candidate spoke about the difference between power and influence, and their effect on accomplishing goals. "Winning the election will bring influence but that's only half of it. In order to get the power to get things done, one must get the student support, and the only way to get that is through keeping the students informed."

Pogge, part of the coalition Higgins-Seymour ticket, envisioned a "well-informed" student body which would dictate what issues the student government would pursue. The SBF could then "stress the Administration the fact that we have the student support and we want things done."

Notre Dame - St. Mary's Theatre presents Judas Christ

A NEW PLAY BY MICHAEL REHAK

Feb. 18, 19, 24, 25, 26, 8:30 pm
Washington Hall
Tickets $2, $1.50 for ND—SMC Staff, Faculty, Students
Reservations at 284-4141 and 283-7054

Alumni Club

(Senior Bar)

FRIDAY: Oldies Night with Dance Contest. Prizes for Winners

SATURDAY: Live Music Introducing "Ox Peddle"

10 pm-1 am

Citroen

Used Specials Of The Week

76 FIAT 124 SPORTS COUPE Sharp - An excellent buy
71 FIAT 124 SPIDER Modern - More popular than ever
66 VOLVO 142 All Wheel Drive
72 OLDSMOBILE Delta 88

REAL SAVINGS Power Steering & Brakes, A/C
NEW 74'S SPORTS COUPES 4 to choose from

Pogge need for "massive student support"

In speaking of the Barkett Administration, Pogge thought that Higgins's methods would differ greatly from Barkett's in dealing with the Trustees and the Administration. He said that Barkett's methods were established on a friendly basis. We will be dealing with them on a professional basis.

In a question session at Walsh Hall, the SBF candidate countered a parietals question by claiming that ND women should have any gripes, let us know and we'll have an answer for you.”

Caruso and Long described themselves as “unique” in all their talks with regards to campaign procedures. "We're the only candidates to take the initiative to check things out before we're elected," Caruso said. "We intend to get some things done, whether we win or not."

ARE YOU READY FOR Together?

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR WORK WITH THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA IN THE SOUTH BEND AREA

If interested contact
Charlie Lucy at 272-3552, after 5 pm.

ARE YOU READY FOR Together?

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR WORK WITH THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA IN THE SOUTH BEND AREA

If interested contact
Charlie Lucy at 272-3552, after 5 pm.

ARE YOU READY FOR Together?

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR WORK WITH THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA IN THE SOUTH BEND AREA

If interested contact
Charlie Lucy at 272-3552, after 5 pm.

ARE YOU READY FOR Together?

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR WORK WITH THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA IN THE SOUTH BEND AREA

If interested contact
Charlie Lucy at 272-3552, after 5 pm.
Rogers, Mack in Régina

by Marlene Zlota

Advocating a "service-oriented student government" and the initiation of a stay-hall policy, St. Mary's candidates Maureen Rogers and Mary Claude Mack began their campaign Wednesday night in Regina North Hall. In question-and-answer sessions on each floor, Miss Rogers' - well-digging - doubt also about the possibility of a merger between the two student governments. According to the sophomore class president, "as long as we have two distinct administrations to deal with, we must have two separate but cooperative student government structures. A merger would be unemployment for the workers at least a financial loss."

Both candidates contended that since the merger postponement has been the major issue this year, academic, student and degree programs will be of great importance in 72-73. "A forceful, dedicated academic commissioner will be a must if we are to have any influence on major academic decisions and plans," Rogers said.

Placement Bureau posts summer job information

Placement Bureau Director Richard Willemsen has posted information important to students in Business and Engineering who cannot find employment. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation and John Company both have announced programs for summer employment.

Rothlehem is interested in students majoring in Mechanical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Industrial Engineering and Chemical Engineering. They should not receive a degree prior to June, 1972.

All students majoring in Business Administration will be considered as possible employees of Jewel Company. Willemsen stressed that students should sign up immediately for interviews with these companies for summer employment. Sign-ups are at Room 207, Placement Bureau, Administration Building.

---

Fitzpatrick opens campaign: tours Augusta, Holy and Cross

by Beth Hall

SBP candidate Eileen Fitzpatrick, the top-floor question-and-answer session at Augusta and Holy Cross Halls last night said that "self-determination" and "broadening of students' interest" has been her platform during the next week. Miss Fitzpatrick said the need of "search out the styles" and "determine a platform" that contended that this is impossible in the present environment at St. Mary's. She contends that "Education must be carried out in every room of the campus." Mary Orr, Miss Fitzpatrick's running mate, said she saw a need for "more student voice" in the St. Mary's affairs. "Tools are needed for students and need on policy making committees as well as investigative committees."
The Observer

SPECIAL REPORT

The Flock: Notre Dame Trackmen

By Eric Kinkoph

Notre Dame coach "Lefty" Smith knows the frostbitten plains of Canada looking for ice talent, while "the Daggers" and Alex confine themselves to the continental United States when searching for hoop and gridiron potential.

It seems as though track coach Alex Wilson has a much better recruiting plan, one that confine themselves to the continent.

At least it seems that way, since this year two of the track team's standout performers freshmen Greg Cortina and Eric Penick, are officially listed on the University budget as recipients of football scholarships.

Coach Wilson contacted Greg and Eric when they visited the Notre Dame campus last fall, and came up with a bargain, at least on Eric's part.

During the fall, Greg and Eric were listed on Coach Denny Manion's annual recruiting roster as linebacker-defense end for the upstart Blue Devils. But with the end of the gridiron campaign, the duo shocked those fans who came up with new monickers.

Now it's shot-putter Greg Cortina and javelin thrower Eric Penick, much to the delight of Wilson.

The 6-1, 255 pound Cortina has already established a new Notre Dame record in the shot with a toss of 60'10" last week, and the 6-1, 210 pound Penick continues to flirt with the ND mark in the 60 yard dash of 6.1 seconds (usual performance) to 6.2's in that event.

Both Eric and Greg consider football to be their main sport, but they both thrive on the individual aspect of the track and field competition.

"On the money end," it's said, "and there's nothing like that crowd reaction when you win a long one, but it does give me a chance to show in a different environment. If you win, your gain, and if you lose, it's your fault. I love the contact in football, but I enjoy the personal competition track and field.

I like to beat people, and I like to win. Losing embarrasses me more than it does in head to head competition in track.

Greg echoes Eric's sentiments.

"It's that individual competition that I enjoy in track. In head to head competition you can't say that one guy is better than another like in football or basketball because he can pass or dribble better. In track you're measured by a tape, or a clock. There you show your stuff. You push yourself to do what you want to. And you don't have to worry about time on a team for victory."

Both men came to Notre Dame with impressive football credentials as well as present strengths.

Cortina was an All American linebacker in high school, while Eric earned his honors in Ohio at his halfback spot.

And you would add to Penic's accomplishments a spectacular performance at the Ohio State Track Tournament in his junior year at Gilmour Academy.

The only representative from the Cleveland schools at the State Meet was Cortina, who walked off with, 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes.

And for Eric, the switch from the football stadium turf to the tartan surface of the Convos hasn't proved too difficult.

"For football, the leg muscles have to be extremely tight, but for track they can be loose and easy. Other than that there's not much of a difference as far as strength. I could be Accepted as a sprinter getting in shape for football, it's been a good experience so far in getting to shape for track."

Greg considers himself to be a shot-putter as far as shot-putting goes.

"Being a shot-putter isn't like being a football player. I'm born with speed, but you really have to work at being a good shot-putter."

And Greg's daily routine bodes that philosophy of hard work.

The muscular shot-putter lifts weights (300 pound press, 350 bench, 120 pound dumbbells for each arm) on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, and throws and runs (55 yard sprints) on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday is his day of rest.

Both freshmen phenoms have qualified for the National Track Tournament in his senior year at Gilmour Academy.

"I think I have a pretty good shot of making the squad," Eric said. "If 100, I guess I'd compete in the 220, ran a 26.4 in high school, and I figure I'd have to get it down to about 20.3 or 20.4 to qualify. Marshall Hall (Michigan State sprinter) qualified for the 220 Am games with a 20.3 so I think I have a chance. The biggest thing though, is consistency at that time."

"There are millions of ways to qualify," Greg said. "They usually invite the top six in the NCAA's and the top three in the AUA's to the Olympic tryouts. Track and Field News recently listed the top ten shot putters in the country with the best chances for Olympic berths. The tenth place man was listed as his best throw, so I figure I broke into the top ten in the country with my last three throws."

"I consider Cortina to be the best shot putter in the Midwest," Coach Wilson said. "He was the favorite out of the top five or six in the College Track meet."

It won't be very long though until both Cortina and Penick will be back to the pads and helmets working out with the Irish football team. And Eric is definitely looking for a starting spot next year in the Irish backfield.

"I'd like to do much better, in order to win a starting spot than I did this year," Eric said. "I have to work on my blocking and receiving. At Gilmour all I had to do was run with the ball. Up here you have to block and catch as well."

But coach Alex Wilson isn't looking that far ahead yet. He's just enjoying the kids' respite from the blocking dummies and tackling drills.

But there is one thing that Eric about track at Notre Dame.

"The people up here just don't seem to follow track. I came from an area (Cleveland) where everyone seemed to attend almost every track competition. We have a really good squad here but it seems funny to me that people don't support a winner."

But perhaps coach Wilson continues to feel such exciting performers as Greg and Eric that it will change.

If so, you can credit it to fellows like Cortina and Penick, who combine strength and speed with an intense desire to excel.

Voice from the crowd

John Egart's knee is certainly not as celebrated as that of Willis Reed's. However, medically doctors share the same malady. Did the N.Y. Knicks fans boo Reed's appearance last season and bellow mocking cheers at his widely diffused, and disparate "Three men in a boat"? Quite the contrary, indeed. Fans Reed was placed in highest esteem by the three most cherished ingredients on any team - sacrifice, discipline and fitness of spirit. Two knee specialists informed John and his coaches that the malaise he had developed may be a terminal knee injury. Whatever John's motives, he bellow mocking cheers at his widely diffused, and disparate "Three men in a boat"? Quite the contrary, indeed. Fans Reed was placed in highest esteem by the three most cherished ingredients on any team - sacrifice, discipline and fitness of spirit. Two knee specialists informed John and his coaches that the malaise he had developed may be a terminal knee injury. Whatever John's motives, he discriminate. If one of their programs falters or falls, or perhaps just gets too boring, will their fans underwrite the cost of this barefaced charlatan? On the basis of the Fordham game, I would be inclined to think so.

---

Irish vs. Wolverines

Debut a Fanatic

Fri. Sec.

Sat. Sec. 6

Tickets on sale at Gate 10, ACC
Jones stresses "stress in unity" in Zahn

by Art Quinn

SBVP candidate Milton Jones told a crowd of 20 students in Zahn Hall last night that "The power of the students is in unity." He contended that the Student Government in the past has operated on an "I to You" concept. We can see the result of that in the current way students handle issues. He added, "The power of the Student Government is the power of students." He went on to argue that the "We concept has "duality, power, and confusion." Jones, who is running with Student Life Council Vice-Chairman Brian Welte, said that the "we" have to stand up and do things for themselves. He added that the administration will wait longer than we can stand behind them and work against us.

In the area of academics, Miss Seymour, who is currently SMC Academic Commissioner, presented several proposals, including a complete revision of the pass/fail system. She contended that it is possible for a student to take as many courses as desired and fail them, which is a major concern of the pass/fail system. Miss Seymour also vowed that the entire ticket is "prepared" for next year. She also contended that if we wait for another majority selects the ticket, things will move much more immediately.

Within Europe. Leave your formation of these events. They are--see none of the students is in mutual interest. We have adopted the same ideas and ways to implement them. We are mutually endorsing each other; it is our way of forming a mutual interest. We can't let communication break down," she said.

Seymour added that their plans are "now one of the above" movement, but so far he has received no response. O'Connor started the movement to "show my disgust with this big bureaucracy idea." He charged the government with "inconsistent contact with the students," "bureaucracy," and what he called "selfish concerns." (They are) not able to put anything together. The movement follows closely a bill passed in the student senate two weeks ago, which states that if 31 percent of the student body checks "none of the above," a "re-election" is held. If, in the re-election another majority selects "none of the above," the entire ticket will hold an emergency meeting to decide what to do.

But O'Connor says that he doesn't expect to "wipe out the ticket. They are in the air. The issue and to show that they stand up and do things for themselves." O'Connor did not think of anyone on or off the ballot he would be willing to replace. When asked if he would run, he replied no. He added, "I don't have the money to find support, only about four kids are working with me. I put an ad in the paper and got a really bad response." He attributed the lack of support to student apathy.

Seymour and Welte launch bid

by Maria Gallagher

Jean Seymour and Sue Welte launched their bid for SMC's top student government positions last night with a floor to closet campaign in Augusta Hall.

Speaking to audiences ranging from 10 to 25 persons, the candidates outlined their stand on mergers, priorities in the hall life area, and they are "hard to find"

"This is our way of forming a mutual interest. We can't let communication break down," she said.

Seymour added that their plans are "now one of the above" movement, but so far he has received no response. O'Connor started the movement to "show my disgust with this big bureaucracy idea." He charged the government with "inconsistent contact with the students," "bureaucracy," and what he called "selfish concerns." (They are) not able to put anything together. The movement follows closely a bill passed in the student senate two weeks ago, which states that if 31 percent of the student body checks "none of the above," a "re-election" is held. If, in the re-election another majority selects "none of the above," the entire ticket will hold an emergency meeting to decide what to do.

But O'Connor says that he doesn't expect to "wipe out the ticket. They are in the air. The issue and to show that they stand up and do things for themselves." O'Connor did not think of anyone on or off the ballot he would be willing to replace. When asked if he would run, he replied no. He added, "I don't have the money to find support, only about four kids are working with me. I put an ad in the paper and got a really bad response." He attributed the lack of support to student apathy.

Jones asserted that the social life at Notre Dame has to be improved. He contended the "We concept can be applied to society." He advocated having social events on the SMC and ND campuses in order to develop an "open-minded feeling" concerning social life between SMC and ND.

Other plans include open air concerts, "Dine with Notre La" Foundation. He stated that "La Foundation should be available to students at all times." On Friday and Saturday nights, "Dine with Notre" will be turned into a place with a night club atmosphere for the students, Jones suggested.

O'Connor feels "none of the above" best selection

by Nell Kline

Terry O'Connor believes voting for "none of the above" in the coming SBVP election is the "lesser of a dozen evils." This is why he started a "vote for none of the above" movement, but so far he has received no response. O'Connor started the movement to "show my disgust with this big bureaucracy idea." He charged the government with "inconsistent contact with the students," "bureaucracy," and what he called "selfish concerns." (They are) not able to put anything together. The movement follows closely a bill passed in the student senate two weeks ago, which states that if 31 percent of the student body checks "none of the above," a "re-election" is held. If, in the re-election another majority selects "none of the above," the entire ticket will hold an emergency meeting to decide what to do.

But O'Connor says that he doesn't expect to "wipe out the ticket. They are in the air. The issue and to show that they stand up and do things for themselves." O'Connor did not think of anyone on or off the ballot he would be willing to replace. When asked if he would run, he replied no. He added, "I don't have the money to find support, only about four kids are working with me. I put an ad in the paper and got a really bad response." He attributed the lack of support to student apathy.

if found please contact 6746. Reward: For return or in-

+1.282.619.2158. PM. Look this newspaper today. You may be able to find something. But O'Connor says that he doesn't expect to "wipe out the ticket. They are in the air. The issue and to show that they stand up and do things for themselves." O'Connor did not think of anyone on or off the ballot he would be willing to replace. When asked if he would run, he replied no. He added, "I don't have the money to find support, only about four kids are working with me. I put an ad in the paper and got a really bad response." He attributed the lack of support to student apathy.