For commercial airlines

Nixon urges tighter security measures

by Robert B. Semple Jr.

In a strongly worded statement which followed an explosion this week aboard one commercial aircraft and the discovery of explosive devices on two others, Nixon ordered into effect new security regulations published two days ago in the Federal Register that, under normal circumstances, would not have been implemented for 90 days.

Recalling his efforts in 1970 to curtail hijacking, he said:

"Our air transportation system faces a new threat in the form of vicious extortion plots like the ones which have been directed at air traffic across the country this week. We must not be intimidated by such lawlessness. Rather we must and will meet this blackmail on the ground, as vigorously as we have met piracy in the air."

Nixon also disclosed that he had ordered John Volpe, the Secretary of Transportation, to summon "leaders of the aviation community" to discuss ways to implement the regulations. The executives of nearly 30 airlines are expected to meet with the secretary tomorrow morning.

As sketched in general terms by the President, the regulations direct every air carrier to prevent or deter "carriage of weapons or explosives" aboard aircraft; to prevent or deter "unauthorized access" to aircraft; to tighten baggage checking procedures; and to improve the security of cargo and baggage-loading operations.

Officials said tonight that the federal aviation administration, which drew up the new regulations, has also devised a specific set of procedures which it is prepared to recommend to the airlines. These are said to include more electronic surveillance, more frequent baggage checks, and personal inspection of individual passengers.

They conceded that some new manpower and equipment might be required, and said the costs would be borne by the carriers.

Law Chair to be temporary or permanent?

by Mike Baun

The Notre Dame Law School is presently discussing with the Administration the feasibility of awarding one of their newly endowed Chairs on a temporary basis, rather than making it a permanent assignment.

Endowed Chairs, usually financed by private individuals or corporations, are one of the best methods for a University to enlarge its teaching faculty. The University has at present six, almost seven of these Chairs, the last five being the result of contributions from the Summa campaign, and are not yet officially filled.

University President Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., noted at the announcement of these chairs that "the establishment of these Chairs is a significant way of underwriting continuing academic distinction at Notre Dame." Named professorships enable the University to honor outstanding scholarship among its own teachers and to attract scholars of the first rank to the University to honor outstanding scholarship among its faculty.

The Law School has two new Chairs, only one of which, the White Chair, can be considered fully funded. A result of the Summa drive and the recent Law School fund-raising campaign, the Chair represents a $100,000 gift from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. White. The other, the Kenneth Redman Chair, is presently being funded on your year to year contributions.

The Law School, according to Dean Thomas Shaffer, would like the White Chair opened for temporary appointments, such as Visiting Professors, instead of being restricted to permanent appointments.
Students nix new schedule

Students polled last night in a random survey voiced 1) opposition to Notre Dame's schedule next semester. The question asked of residents in fourteen halls was: Are you in favor of the planned schedule change for next semester?

Yes 13
No 17
Undecided 3

Heavily opposed the plan. Many students revealed that they had already signed a petition expressing their disapproval. Most were skeptical, however, of the ability to change the new academic calendar.

"I want the University to reconsider.

Some students expressed the votes cast in favor of the new schedule by the seven student members of the UAC. "Why wasn't the student body consulted about the change?" many ask. In view of the fact that the change was introduced to the HPC as early as February first, it is clear that the new schedule was not made as well known as it could have been.

What will happen now is uncertain. Not all the students agreed about the entire schedule, but 80 per cent confirm that their opinions should have been considered more seriously. The students are not asking that the entire new schedule be scrapped, but they are asking for more awareness of their personal needs.

Calendar protest!
2400 sign petition within two hours

by Mary Remer

Within two hours last night, 2400 students signed a petition to change the new academic calendar for next year. The new schedule, as approved by the Academic Council three days ago, calls for the opening of school on August 31, an eight day Thanksgiving break and a three day weekend October 14-16. Prompted by popular disapproval of the new schedule,Badin Hall freshman Mike Davis drew up the petition. Davis said they hoped to get more names by canvassing the halls, the library andCU.

The main objection to the calendar is the reduction of time on working time could mean as much as a $300 loss in some cases.

Any student wishing to help with the petitioning can contact Mike Davis at 6938. The petitioning will be continued in the dining halls tomorrow night.

Fox: Another sly one?

By Henry Raymont
(c) 1972 New York Times News Service

New York, March 9—The authenticity of a published memoir—a best-seller here and abroad—by a man claiming to be a Hindu swami and a self-styled former vaudeville and movie actor who has also produced a collection of books and movies, has been long doubted by some of the country’s leading authorities on American Indians and challenged in a lawsuit charging plagiarism.

Published a year ago this week by McGraw-Hill, Inc., the book, “The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox,” has just been issued as a paperback by Pawprint. The hard-cover edition, which sells at $6.95 a copy, has gone through at least seven printings, according to the author, William Red Fox, a sought-after television celebrity.

The plagiarism charges stem from evidence indicating that some 12,000 words have been drawn from other works or from words for a book published in 1940. It is “The Wounded Knee Memoirs, From the viewpoint of the Hitokota” by James B. McGregor, which historians and ethnologists consider the classic in the long struggle to get federal compensation for injustices committed against the Indians.

The Red Fox memoir claims, among other things, that the author, a self-styled former vaudeville and movie actor, played an eminently role as a champion of Indian Rights—a claim that also won him praise from President Nixon for “the outstanding leadership and direction you have given to your people.” The occasion was a centennial greeting on June 11, 1970, nine months before the book was published.

An extensive inquiry by the New York Times has failed to produce any evidence to corroborate the origins alleged by Mr. Red Fox, who says he is a nephew of Crazy Horse, the celebrated Sioux warrior.

Commemoration plans announced by Pifferetti

Senior Class President Tom Pifferetti announced yesterday that plans for the 1972 Commencement Exercises in May are already in the planning stages and that all persons for housing accommodations for guests and parents and guests and sisters, may be taken care of.

“Housing for parents will remain basically the same as last year,” Pifferetti said, “parents will be housed in various dorms on campus for a very nominal price per person.”

Senior parents will be sent a packet of information in about two weeks which will include an application form enabling them to request any one of a series of dorms and the number of rooms they will need. A letter of explanation and a tentative schedule of events for the weekend will also be enclosed in the packet. Parents will be sent a copy of the letter.

The letter “There is no limit to the number of guests permitted,” Pifferetti stated. “Seniors, ask for help to keep the number reasonable.”

In order for all forms to be sent out properly, and to facilitate further Commencement plans, seniors are urged to check their name and address carefully and to have one senior name for any discrepancies on the computer tape which will be posted in the lobbies of each hall throughout the next week, and to make any necessary corrections.

As far as the graduation ceremonies themselves are concerned, Pifferetti confirmed that the University is hoping to change the ceremony, “perhaps” to make them less formal and more “personal.” Class representatives have been asked to sit on the planning committee.

Pifferetti said that anyone who would like to contribute ideas or have any questions concerning housing or the Commencement weekend could contact him at 234-9534 or leave a message in the Student Government office.

Tooyee: Prove it!

Rev. William Toohey, C.S.C., Director of Campus Ministry, released the following statement regarding the Kersten coronation plans.

"A number of inquiries have reached me about the announcement Kersten made about his coronation in Sacred Heart Church. I believe it should be revealed that I, too, have been in communication with God on this topic.

I was instructed to go to the chapel of Walsh Hall, where I found, near the base of the Infant of Prague, a tape recorder. The message was recorded on a tape which the immediately self-destructed told me to go to the Shrine at the Fiat Hall Chapel. At the house for "Fatima letter" with further information.

I found the following letter: "Happy to consider coronation possibilities to be held in My House for King Kersten, if he can pass a series of credibility tests. The first of these will be to walk on water—specifically, across St. Joseph’s Lake, before one minute past midnight, April Fool’s Day. Upon completion of this demonstration of authenticity, further instructions will be sent. In the author’s hand and subject to K fail (for which it would seem a patina letter " would be necessary), I want you to be sure he receives every final consideration, with appropriate services, if possible.”

It was signed: "The King’s King.”

New constitution proposed for ND

A proposed new constitution was unveiled last night at a meeting of the Notre Dame student Senate. It was described by B. Ellis, a member of the constitution committee as a constitution "that will give student government some real power."

The proposed constitution, which was drawn up by a committee made up of St. Mary's Notre Dame students, provides for a concentration of all student governments power into a Board of Commissioners, composed of six elected representatives from assigned districts, the chairman of the Hall Presidents Council, the Student Body President and Vice-President, the SBP would be chairman.

The members of this board would also serve as the student representatives to the Student Life Council and assume all the powers of the student Senate. Ellis felt that "by creating such a board we can formulate unified student government policy."

Following the discussion, amendment to the constitution were discussed by St. Mary Senate. Sauer closed with the announcement of a new meeting next Tuesday at 7:00 in the amphitheater, at which time the Senate would have the opportunity to pass decision on the bill.

Sauer also announced that he would discuss the proposal with the SBP-elect Bob Kersten.

Nixon's campaign builds

(© 1972 New York Times
Washington, March 9 - President Nixon's Political operatives are clearly using the early presidential primaries as training grounds for next fall's nationwide election, and there is no better illustration of this than their activities in Florida.

The Committee to re-elect the President - the hub of the Nixon operation with headquarters across the street from the White House on Pennsylvania Ave. - is, of course, anxious to make the best possible showing in these early contests. The Committee was pleased with the New Hampshire results and hopes to do even better next Tuesday, in Florida, where representatives Paul McClokey and John Ashbrook are again on the battle opposing the President.

But to anyone who has traveled to primary states it is plain that the Committee's efforts to get out the vote now are also aimed at improving its campaign techniques next November.

Vibrant, Nehru the softest, and Davies best, had a different personal charm of the man.

A reminder to vote for Nixon on March 14 but an appeal for volunteers to fill vacancies in the party organization at the county and precinct level.

In addition, several young specialists in direct mail advertising, youth organization, and other areas have been dispatched from Florida to headquarters here to on-the-job training. And when one asks leading Florida Republicans about Nixon's opposition, they do not talk about Ashbrook and McClokey - the immediate challengers - but about George Corley Wallace, who is perceived as the real threat next fall.

Three other aspects to the Nixon Florida operation that suggest something about his present and future strategy:

- It is so low key as to be almost inaudible, and so low profile as to be almost invisible, compared to the Democratic campaigns.

- It is being run largely from Washington, despite the assertion here yesterday by Francis Dale, Titular Chairman of the Re-election Committee, that "we take most of our keys from, our state organizations." It has a clear "southern" cast to it - the people who are speaking on the President's behalf are almost always conservatives - despite statements here recently by some Nixon operatives that they intended to run the "same" campaign in all 50 states.

- With one eye trained on November, the Nixon forces have made no pretense at separating the Florida Committee to re-elect the President from the State Republican Committee, which is theoretically supposed to remain impartial as long as more than one Republican is on the ballot. Indeed, the Chairman of both groups is one and the same man: "Tommy" Thomas of Panama City.

Davies: Nixon's goodwill trip amends 1944 policy mistakes

by Don Hopfer

Calling President Nixon's recent to China "one of reconciliation, an attempt to repair damage done", John Paton Davies, a former member of the State Department's Foreign Service, lectured last night in the Library audience on "China: The Balance of Power."

"We would not have become enemies if, in 1944, we would have had a different policy", Davies felt that our backing of the Chinese Nationalists under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek caused the Communists to seek support from the other available source-Moscow.

While Davies was a member of the American consulate in China during the war, he had a chance to deal with the present premier of China, Chou En-Lai. He said that although China has not Chou, himself included, have been "enormously impressed" by the performance of the man.

He continued that there were only as other men with this common trait of tremendous personal magnetism: noted philosopher Teilhard De Chardin and the late prime minister of India, Jawaharlal Nehru. "Of these, De Chardin was the most vibrant, Nehru the softest, and Chou the supplest - sinewy and bending."

Three other aspects to the Nixon Florida operation that suggest something about his present and future strategy:

- It is so low key as to be almost inaudible, and so low profile as to be almost invisible, compared to the Democratic campaigns.

- It is being run largely from Washington, despite the assertion here yesterday by Francis Dale, Titular Chairman of the Re-election Committee, that "we take most of our keys from, our state organizations." Indeed, the Chairman of both groups is one and the same man: "Tommy" Thomas of Panama City.

Davies briefly recounted our relations with the East, dating from the time when the first clipper ships established trade with Japan and China. He recalled the time when the Japanese were attempting to expand in the mid-30's: Japan had always looked upon the US as imperialists, and they thought rather hypocrical for "being so self-righteous" about their own expansions. The bitter feelings that ensued as a result of this culminated in the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Davies was born in China. His parents were stationed there as diplomatic missionaries. He served in the Foreign Service in the USSR, Persia, Germany, and China. Before the Chinese Civil War, he predicted the conquest of that country by the Communists. In 1954, he suggested to the State Department that the US resign itself to the inevitable Communist role and set-up relations with the Communist regime. Because of the intense McCarthy sponsored investigations at the time, Davies underwent eight loyalty tests, only to be fired by then Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, because he refused to capitulate. He was later reinstated, after the denunciation of McCarthy.

Premier · a subject on which Sato stated: "I expect that new talks on Indochina Peace will start soon and that they will be based on the recent U.S. proposal."

Apart from his observations on the prospects of Vietnam Peace - a subject on which Sato admitted he had not been informed in his briefing by Green, Sato said Japan was most anxious to have President Nixon pay this country an official visit.

Sato said he thought it would be more suitable for Emperor Hirohito, this country's Chief of State, to make an official visit to the United States first; after that, Nixon would come to Japan.

Sato indicated that such a formula would permit the Emperor to express the gratitude he and his country felt for American aid after World War II. The impression given by Sato was that, despite a desire to arrange this exchange swiftly, it might not be possible before 1973 because of the American political campaign.

The Premier also made the following points:

Talks aimed at arranging a formal peace treaty between Japan and the Soviet Union, thus putting an end to World War II as far as those two countries are concerned, will commence before the end of this year.

Tokyo would look with favor on a nonagression pact among Russia, China, the United States and Japan - but only if it includes a clause providing for sanctions against any violation of such an agreement.

He implied the United States should limit its base facilities in Japan to positions required to help protect this country under the Security Treaty rather than to support any U.S. commitments elsewhere in Asia.

Nevertheless, he stressed that an American Military presence was necessary to ward off Russian threats.

Farley residents organize donors for dying girl

Three year old Michele Jordan is dying of leukemia. Thanks to Hank Zielinski and his friends she may live a little longer.

Zielinski was moved when he heard about Michele's condition and after going downtown to give blood, he talked it up among his friends in Farley.

Michele is now in Wylers Children's Hospital of the University of Chicago. Any type of blood can be given at the Blood Bank, 212 W. Navarre Ave., South Bend, for her benefit.

The endowed Chairs

The establishment of endowed chairs from the money generated by the SUMMA drive marks the University's emergence into a new academic era. Permanently funded professorships are a luxury most universities, especially small private ones, simply cannot afford to any great extent. The creation of five, possibly six, endowed chairs represents (along with the minority scholarship fund) the most significant improvement in the long term academic excellence of Notre Dame to emerge in several years.

Professor Abell of the department of economics estimated that the funds required to support these five professorships would range from one and a half to two million dollars. The exact amount, of course, depends on the salary and growth arrangements. It is understood that the endowed chair by unilateral designation of an endowed professorship is the type of agreement involve the designation of the endowed chair by unilaterally determined by at least two members of the faculty. When one considers that Harvard runs on an endowment in excess of two billion dollars, establishing five permanent seats from ND's meager endowment of $67.9 million is a major accomplishment.

The Rules

For some reason, however, the Board of Trustees has already promulgated regulations governing the appointment of students to these chairs. These rules are probably an outgrowth of the original SUMMA plan when twenty five such positions were planned. Now that some appointments are being made, it seems quite arbitrary to strictly follow rules formulated several years ago.

Fortunately, the rules are anything but arbitrary. The Provost is allowing Dean Shaffer plenty of latitude in selecting the people to fill his two chairs. In the Law school, especially, this makes sense. If Shaffer is able to persuade someone on the caliber of an ex-Supreme Court Justice or a prominent legislator to accept the law chair, he will undoubtedly add to the University's academic prestige. But, as the dean himself admitted, his main concern was to be sure that no guarantee that a prominent politician will be able to teach law.

Temporary?

If Shaffer can produce a professor of national acclaim and if the terms of his agreement involve the designation "visiting professor," then there is no reason why the academic value of the endowed chair by unilaterally determined by at least two members of the faculty. When one considers that Harvard runs on an endowment in excess of two billion dollars, establishing five permanent seats from ND's meager endowment of $67.9 million is a major accomplishment.

The parents and the trustees

The continuing mass of misinformation and confusion about the state of the merger may be cleared a little this week, if the organizers of the student movement, more parents weekend take advantage of the St. Mary's Trustees meeting.

It is understood that some parents and groups have something to say to each other. The parents' concern for the standards of education at SMC requires answers from the trustees, who have control of the education. The department chairmen will not have all the answers? they are in the dark too. The decisions, the knowledge, the planning are all contained in the Board, and its principal members: Sister Mary, Sister Dorothea, and Mother Olivette. They have the answers.

The opportunity is there - and the need is there. The sophomores, perhaps more than any other class, will be affected by the merger or its total breakdown. The decision to transfer or stay presses on the sophomores more than anyone else. The organizers of the Parents Weekend, Maureen Rogers and Jill Hampe, should arrange the meeting - and the Board should meet with the parents.

The thought of school starting in August, and still ending in May, has caused little happiness on the campus. The problems are obvious. When students are forced to rely more and more on their summer earnings to finance college expenses, shortening the summer vacation for an eight-day Thanksgiving break is senseless.

Students are now circulating a petition asking that the administration or University Academic Council reverse the decision on the calendar. There is no choice that the calendar will be changed if the petition cannot get any support. It's in the interests of all students to sign the petition. It's our schedule, we should be heard in its formulation.

For what it's worth

Let's take a stand

Although a cool breeze was blowing in off the ocean, the afternoon of July 12, 1971 was a hot, dusty time for some twenty-odd young men who were kicking, heading, and dribbling a half inflated soccer ball up and down a sun parched field in Atlantic City, N.J.

It was more than just a pickup game, it had to be unless they were just plain crazy to want to run around on a field strewn with broken glass, and just a little smoother than the frozen mud characteristic of the area. That's the best rule.

Reflections on Poobahism

Jerry McElroy

Even though the promises of the candidates this year were particularly unoriginal and hardly seemed to indicate that the candidates are aware of the complexity of the problems which they spoke of so confidently, each of the candidates made noble efforts to drum up support for his brand of reform. Realizing, of course, that it would be foolish to hold up John Barkett's administration as an example of how poobahs have saved the ignorant proletariat from the exploitative Administration, all of the candidates made a special point of slinging mud at Barkett. Paul Dziedzic, in response to the demand that the star of student government, pointed out "that's bullshit. I have never considered myself a poobah." The Observer, caught up in Dziedzic's "view approach," declared that he had the élan, the drive, and the responsibility to "fight in the student body" and to "fight the staid, pompous, and unapproachable university with a carte blanche. To justify that portrayal of Mr. John Barkett as a "knight of the dark art," the Observer noted that Dziedzic had told John Barkett to "go to hell" when he disagreed with Barkett's position on the strike at St. Mary's. This same sort of courage and individuality was manifested when Dziedzic asserted that he would "kiss ass where we find fat asses." Although Mr. Dziedzic's vocabulary did set him apart in some way from other candidates, a close inspection of his position on the standard campaign pledges revealed that he was mainly interested in a poobah parade, not in our wearying

The failure of the poobahs to transform Notre Dame's Administration is no more evident than during the election campaigns for Student Body President, and this year's campaigns were no exception. The campaign of Jerry McElroy and the less effective campaign of John Barkett had similar campaign promises. Although none of them wore crowns or explicitly sold on the virtues of bureaucracy, which is so unwieldy that it seems to call into question the validity of our national political figures, who are our national political figures are, who are similarly segmented institutions, and who are not of the bureaucracy. Admittedly, our poobahs aren't able to start wars and drop bombs, but they have managed over the years to alienate Notre Dame students from the students in the governing of their own lives at Notre Dame.

The student political establishment at Notre Dame is thus a microcosm of the sickened state of politics on the national level. It is against this environment that Kersten directed much of his campaign activities. As Kersten's point of emigration is nowhere that he defended the state of student

Fr. J. Kelly named Moreau superior
by Jim McDermott

Rev. James E. Kelly, C.S.C., has been named to a three-year term as superior at Moreau Seminary. Fr. Kelly, who starts his term June 15, is presently an associate professor of sociology at the University of Portland. He succeeds Rev. Louis Putz, C.S.C., who has been superior at Moreau for six years.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Kelly received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Notre Dame. He was awarded his doctorate by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1967. When it comes to engagements, we wrote the book...

It's 40 pages filled with diamond engagement and wedding rings. In beautiful full color you can look at hundreds of different styles. Everything from antique to modern.

Vanity Fair has been in the diamond business since 1921. We import our own diamonds, design and manufacture the settings, and mount the gems. And since 1921 we've sold directly to dealers. Now in a new and unique marketing policy, we're selling directly to college students.

What it all means is that we've eliminated the middleman profits that can drive up the price of a diamond ring.

In fact we've done it so well, we can probably sell you a diamond ring for 50% less than anyone else. If we don't we'll give you your money back. We give you that guarantee in writing.

You can read all about our guarantee and a lot of other interesting facts about diamonds in our book. It's free...

The relationship between jazz and rock music dominated the jazz symposium held last night at the Center for Continuing Education.

The symposium opened the 14th annual Collegiate Jazz Festival being held this week-end at Notre Dame.

Collegiate audience, panel members offered their insight also judge festival bands, was unable to attend the Center for Continuing Education.

Russell continued. Freedom really means getting deeper into the laws of music. If the artist fails to achieve a deeper level, he becomes mechanical. Panel members also commented on four jazz numbers played during the symposium. The audience received information on these songs, but the panel did not.

"Improvising is a greater challenge to me than playing traditional music." Laws replied.

"It is a splendid Afro-American music which represents many sources and ethnic backgrounds, affects people all over the world; why is it totally misunderstood and unsupported in its native land?"

"Meet your major" nights

Sophomores can talk with their parents over spring break before making their decision. The choice of major must be turned in during Advance Registration.

Sophomores interested in majoring in undergraduate education may fulfill state requirements by taking courses at St. Mary's, according to Kunz. The St. Mary's Department of Education will have a presentation on undergraduate education during the "Meet Your Major" program.

Kunz also reminded students interested in Communication Arts that the program has been merged with the American Studies Program.

One additional feature this year will be the student majors to talk with interested individuals about their major. Some departments have already released a list of the available majors in the department.

The program leaders stressed that the Arts and Letters Student Advisory Council is happy to talk with any student about liberal education and the programs of the College.

A Letter... on life insurance

The following letter was submitted by John Consul, assistant baseball coach and a salesman for the Fidelity Union Insurance Co., in reply to the recently printed Consumers' Union article on life insurance.

Editor:

Last week, while I was in one of our agencies in New England, I saw an article appearing in the January 1972 issue of a magazine known as "Consumers' Union." This particular article briefly described the sale of life insurance to college seniors and graduates. The opinion of the writer of the article was that college seniors should not buy life insurance unless they have children.

The article condemned the purchase of life insurance by college seniors in general, and mentioned our company in one brief paragraph.

In order to re-emphasize why we strongly disagree with the position that a college senior doesn't need, or shouldn't know you are familiar with.

The deferred premium arrangement fills a very real need for college seniors and graduate students of legal age, many of whom have family and other responsibilities and many of whom upon graduation will be in the armed forces and possibly serving in VIet Nam among other areas where the prospect of premature death is very real. The deferred premium arrangement, when used, permits those students to commence a permanent insurance estate at a time when they are in a favorable position to secure standard insurance at reasonable cost because of age and non-hazardous duties, but when they might not be able to make regular payments conveniently.

Our CollegeMaster policies generally have received commendation from educators, parents and others who speak highly of a plan which provides permanent life insurance protection for these young adults.

We have paid to widows and parents almost Two Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars in VIet Nam death claims on this plan alone over the past few years. Of course, we have paid many more thousands of dollars in benefits on account of natural and accidental death.

Our leading policy in this market is a low-premium, participating form of life insurance to which the applicant can add a number of optional benefits if he desires, including the very valuable Guaranteed Insurability Option which permits him to secure additional policies at stated ages or events without evidence of insurability. The applicant executes a five-year promissory note for most of the face value of the policy, the balance being remitted in the form of a cash payment. These notes are made payable directly to the Fidelity Union Life Insurance Company. Formerly, such notes were made payable to the agent who sold the note to our wholly owned subsidiary, the Mayflower Investment Company or to the agent's own local bank. The policy contains a special five-year pure endowment benefit payable at the end of the fifth policy year designed to take care of the major part or all of the note given for the first year's premiums. Thus, if the policy is continued to the end of the fifth year, the majority of the note (and in many instances all of the note) will be taken care of through this benefit payment from the policy.

Our company takes every possible precaution to make certain that the applicant who avails himself of this plan knows exactly what he is doing. We follow very rigidly the regulations promulgated for this type of plan by the various State Insurance Departments. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners have adopted a model regulation for this type of life insurance sale to prevent abuses in the market, which model regulation we strongly endorse. A few of the safeguards include the following:

Recieving the giving of the note in the application for the policy, a copy of which is attached to the contract; attaching a copy of the note to the policy when it is issued; using a policy acceptance letter in which a full disclosure of our clients, we do not offer the note privilege to students under age 21 without the co-signature of a parent or legal guardian.

Sincerely,

Wm. B. Stephenson, C.L.U.
Executive Vice-President

Letters to the editor should be typewritten and sent to The Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co., P.O. Box 48356 or delivered to the office. Letters must be signed (unless they deal with a sensitive ethical question). Names will be withheld by request.
Bengal Bouts begin Monday

The 41st staging of the Notre Dame Bengal Bouts boxing tournament begins Monday, March 13 in the Notre Dame Athletic and Convocation Center.

The first round action begins with elimination bouts in 10 weight classes at 8 o'clock on the opening night. It continues Wednesday, March 15 and concludes with the championship matches on Friday, March 17.

A total of fifty-eight student boxers, including six returning champions, will take part in this three-day affair which benefits the Holy Cross mission in Bangladesh.

This year's tournament will mark the 50th year that Dominic J. “Nappy” Napolitano has directed this amateur boxing tournament begins Monday, with elimination bouts in the exception of three years during World War II. Nappy has staged the intramural bouts which have donated almost $175,000 for missionary work in the Far East.

South Bend's Roland Chamblee is perhaps the most experienced fighter is Larry Secondary who advanced to the championship round last year by unanimous decision over Terry Kasperak for the junior middleweight crown. He will be paired against newcomer Tom Strachota in the opening night action.

Another experienced fighter is Brian Bend's Roland Chamblee, who will compete in the NCAA Indoor Track meet at the University of Oklahoma. Much attention will be focused on Irish heavyweight wrestler Mike Fanning. The Tulsa, Oklahoman lightweight, Pat Steenberge, will compete in the light heavyweight division while Webb will slug it out with the heavyweight.

Heavyweight division while Webb will slug it out with the heavyweight.

Tickets are priced at $1.00 for general admission for the first two nights and $3.00 for the finals. Ringside seats are $2.00 each, and all tickets may be purchased in advance at Gate 10 ticket window.

Fencers visit Great Lakes for tourney

Notre Dame's fencing team, boasting a lofty 18-2 record, will renew its yearly battle with two Detroit schools - Wayne State and the University of Detroit - for midwest and national supremacy during the next three weeks.

The Irish will compete in the annual Great Lakes Fencing championships at Cleveland Friday and Saturday, battling undefeated Wayne State and defending champions Detroit for the title. Detroit handed the Irish its first loss of the season a month ago, 14-12.

Notre Dame, the Great Lakes champion two of the past four years, will meet at home the following Saturday, March 18, against Wayne State in the Athletic and Convocation Center.

The NCAA championships are scheduled March 23-25 in Chicago at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle.

Irish coach Mike DeCiccio indicated that he will enter two fencers in sabre, foil and epee. Hon Sellitto (40-5) and Matt Frumovitz (32-6) will compete at the Midwest regionals two weeks ago. Another experienced fighter is Paul Simmons' team.

The 41st staging of the Notre Dame Jr. Varsity hockey team concluded its 1971-72 season with an outstanding 11-2-2 record. Coach Charles Burroughs' team played many fine clubs and had a number of top notch performances from key personnel.

Jerry McPartlin led the Irish J.V.'s in scoring, finishing the season with 25 points on 15 goals and 10 assists. Returning to the serum position for tourney will be Tom Lindsey, Mike Tardani, and Bob Howe.

The Notre Dame rugby team will open its 1972 Spring season this Saturday afternoon against John Carroll behind Stepan Center.

The cumulative efforts of the season included a four-game sweep of the tough Chicago Minor Hawks, an exciting overtime win over Hillsdale College, 7-6, and a victory over the previously undefeated Park Ridge All-Stars in the seasons finals, 7-4.

New York, March 9 - Clifford Irving's purported "autobiography" of Howard R. Hughes was officially discredited today as the expatriate author, his wife, Ethel, and his researcher, Richard Suskind, were indicted here on criminal charges.

In the climax of a six-week investigation, a New York county grand jury charged the three with grand larceny, conspiracy and possession of forged instruments. Then, in a second indictment, it charged the 41-year-old Irving and Suskind, 38, with perjury.

In yet another indictment, handed up by a federal grand jury, Irving and his 36-year-old wife were charged with conspiracy and mail fraud. The federal indictment named Suskind as a co-conspirator but not as a defendant.

According to court papers, the success of the purported design rested on the belief by Irving and Suskind that the 66-year-old industrialist was either dead or "not of sufficient mental or physical capacity to denounce his life story."

Among the details — some ironic, others bizarre — that emerged from the allegations in the indictments were:

The germ of the plot was planted during Christmas week, 1970, when Irving read a New York newspaper article about Hughes that was accompanied by a photograph of the last 11 lines of a Hughes letter. Dissatisfied with his forgery after seeing in Life an enlarged version of the Newsweek letter he had used as his model, Irving referred the letters and was replacing them as late as last January.

To give their manuscript "the aura of spontaneity and a real impact," Irving and Suskind took turns at playing the role of Hughes in interviews the two conducted to furnish them with letters for their book.

With the cooperation of Life, which had a $200,000 contract to publish excerpts from the "Autobiography," Irving was given the chance to see the content of the letter about Hughes of Life's parent concern, Time, Inc., and took more than 350 photographs of the contents of the file.

The search for material for the "autobiography" included a stint at the Business Week and Aviation Week reference library at McGraw Hill, the purported victim of the plot.
