A faculty comment on appointment of Henry to post

by Maria Gallagher
St. Mary's Editor

Five St. Mary's faculty members and one administrator commented yesterday on the recent selection of Dr. Edward Henry as SMC president, and speculated upon the direction the college could be expected to take in the future.

Dr. William A. Hickey, biology department chairman, called the move "perhaps the most significant in St. Mary's history." It is significant, he feels, with Dr. Henry on a task force to study St. Mary's and prepare her for the event of decentralization, "he revealed. "And I feel that he is not only the most qualified administrator but he is the most qualified in the nation in the realm of small, liberal arts colleges." Hickey went on to say that probably one of the first things Henry will do is initiate an intensive study to determine St. Mary's strengths and weaknesses in all areas, and build on that.

Dr. Anthony Black, history department chairman, agreed that Henry was "the most impressive candidate of the three.

"Personally, I am quite impressed by the man," Black said. "He not only feels that St. Mary's is already one of the best Catholic colleges in the

Brademas announces candidacy

Congressman John Brademas, for the past 13 years U.S. Representative from Indiana's Third district, announced his candidacy for renomination in the Democratic Primary of May 2 and re-election in November in a press conference Friday in the office of South Bend Mayor Jerry Miller.

Brademas, Majority Floor Whip and member of the St. Mary's College Board of Trustees, said, "I am confident that my experience and seniority of over 13 years in Congress will enable me to continue in representing the interests of all the people of our district."

Brademas' district includes St. Joseph County, Elkhart County, and most of LaPorte County.

"During my seven terms in Congress, Brademas noted, "I have worked programs to benefit children, young people and older citizens. I have supported measures to protect our environment and strengthen law enforcement. I have fought for full employment and expanding business opportunities and against inflation and wasteful government spending."

Brademas spent Friday traveling to the Third District and filing for re-election in the three county seats of the Third District (South Bend, Elkhart and LaPorte).

The voter registration drive will continue this week. All students who wish to register should call Sheila Culligan at 4147 or Paul Bordenet at 490 before 4:00 p.m. Friday.

WASHINGTON—Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell disclosed that he discussed the government's antitrust policies privately with Harold S. Geneen, the president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., for about 30 minutes during a 1970 meeting, but he said he refused to talk about the government's three cases against I.T.T. Mitchell insisted that he was not personally involved in any way in the handling or settlement of the three suits.

Heinz, Lebanon-King Hussein has reportedly proposed a plan for repaying the federal debt with the east bank of Jordan in a federal system to be established by the United Arab Kingdom instead of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. Informed sources said that the plan was submitted to the ambassadors of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union yesterday. The Arab governments have also been informed.

Washington—President Nixon will visit Canada on April 13 for two days of talks on international and bilateral problems with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. The announcement came at a time of deep strains in Canadian-American relations. These have been caused largely by unresolved trade disagreements and Canadian concern that Washington may impose unilateral sanctions against Canadian goods.

country, but he has certainly indicated that he will constantly seek improvement on the excellent base we have. Black believes, as does Henry, that there is a place in today’s world for a small liberal arts college, and looks forward to SMC’s stabilization as such.

“A Breath of Fresh Air”

Dr. Peter Black believes, as does Henry, “St. Mary’s is a good, solid foundation and preparation a student needs when survival is at stake.” Messbarger sees Henry’s biggest challenge of the new year as to “help the observer take a hard look at the major problems facing St. Mary’s.” He praised the new president’s cautiousness and optimism in changing for the better. He praised the courage in accepting the challenge of St. Mary’s at an emergency point. She declared any predictions of the outcome as yet.

Henry’s Background Will Be Beneficial

Dr. Mary Alice Cannon, vice president of student affairs, noted that the background and expertise Henry possesses will be highly beneficial to St. Mary’s, and visions academic reforms tailored to the needs of today’s women. “Today women graduates, whether married or not, will spend a great part of their lives working,” Dr. Cannon stated. “Women power is needed in industry, in politics, in business, in religion, and in the arts. A liberal arts education is perhaps the best foundation and preparation a woman can receive for the many opportunities available to her; she said, but added that other options, such as professional skills, should not be ruled out entirely in the education of the total woman. Dr. Cannon shares Henry’s hopes (of St. Mary’s) as a small, yet viable, institution.

“A smaller institution is more flexible, and there is more room for innovation,” she said. “Larger universities tend to be too research-oriented and bureaucratic.”

The former Marquette administrator praised Henry’s efforts to establish communication with students, especially through the classroom. “I myself taught at Marquette, and hope to do so again here next year,” she said. “This is beneficial for both administrators and students; administrators keep in touch with student sentiment and students see the administrator removed from an ‘every day’ or isolation.”

Dr. Cannon also called students “consumers of the product of the college.” “It’s up to the faculty and administration to see that what they get is quality, sometimes the best way to achieve this is to go into the classroom yourself.”

When do you drink malt liquor anyway?

Anytime you feel like it. That is, if it’s BUDWEISER Malt Liquor. BUDWEISER Malt Liquor is the first 100%-malt, malt liquor around (no other grains added). It’s the first malt liquor that really is... malt liquor.
Wallace - one reaction

George Wallace’s victory in the Florida presidential primary raises more questions than simply the estimation his strength in other states. It raises fundamental questions: why do people vote for Wallace? If George Wallace is simply the voice of the “little man,” as some people say, the problem seems to be the isolation of our government from the people it is designed to serve. If, however, the Wallace victory represents a voting in fear, then the problem is even more deeply a part of American life.

No one will deny that government often loses sight of the individual in its policies. Bureaucracy breeds more bureaucracy, and the petty potatomas in it are often responsible to no one but themselves and their most immediate superiors. Try to fight the system, try to get action on a pet project or a pet need, and watch the monster of apathy arising from hibernation. It rolls around, belches a little, rises a little, and falls back to sleep, tired from the effort of moving its mass.

The government has the potential to move the country, to give it a sense of direction, to be the voice of the “common man.” If it has abandoned that potential, it is the fault of the country as well as the government. If we are to have the advantages of government, we must be willing to work to make it responsive to our needs. We have a responsibility.

Fare and Politics

Beyond the alienation that citizens feel from their government, there is an even more frightening aspect of Wallace’s victory. That is the fear vote. There is no way to tell how much of Wallace’s support comes from the genuine fear of the system. If it is a major portion, Edmund Muskie’s race might come terribly close to the truth. He called Wallace “the demagogue of the worst possible kind,” his victory “a threat to the unity of the country.”

The charges are harsh - but understandable. It was Wallace that promised that if a demonstrator laid in front of his car, that would be the last car he’d lay in front of. It was Wallace who stood in front of school doors to block the enrollment of blacks. We have not been graced with this showmanship in the last few years, but he has the man changed or is he simply toned it down?

If the man had changed with the times, then he is not only the “voice of the little man,” then his victory is for a re-ordering of the government’s priorities. But let us be another for its members to change and fear, then we, as a people, have much further to go to become a just nation.

The cover letter accompanying the statement of 31 faculty members published on page five requested that we refrain from editorial comment before the statement has been printed. Because superficial impressions of issues as complex as those cited would only confuse the problem and because our mental attitudes have not yet responded to the charges, we intend to delay editorial comment for at least one day.

Letter - pow campaign

Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to reply to the letter condemning the POW campaign conducted by Chuck Leader. Unfortunately, I will not be able to reply in person to the writer due to the request to sign his name to the letter. He makes clear that the US has acted immorally in the war by using “terror tactics” via anti-personnel munitions. This may be true, but personally, I would rather die quickly in a bomb explosion than suffer slow agonizing death after stepping on a punji stake smeared with human feces. The punji stake is driven into the chest with a weighted spike.

I would also like to know what the author considers “terror tactics”. If someone came into my hometown or village, took the mayor or chief, and tortured him to death in front of the whole town, promising to burn the village down unless the population cooperated with him, I would be tempted to classify his actions as “terror tactics.”

I am not saying the U.S. is above reproach regarding its conduct in the war, but neither is the author. As Gen Sherman, during the Civil War, put it, “War is hell.”

Sincerely,

Michael Robinson

SMC’s identity crisis

Maria Gallagher

To no one’s surprise, the merger is off. The selection of Dr. Edward Henry as president (remember, he wasn’t the least bit interested in an interim position) may or may not confirm it. April 30 will just be the ant-climax to end all anticlimaxes. Of course, negotiations continue, but they’ll be almost as effective as Joan of Arc’s 30-years-late aquittal.

St. Mary’s is no longer synonymous with Notre Dame. The ill-fated love affair is a tragic one indeed, made still more tragic because Juliet and Romeo were rent apart not by feuding families, but by a house divided against itself.

So it appears that St. Mary’s is to survive in spinsterhood, jilted by her feckless former wooer, Notre Dame. However, a psychological common-law marriage of sorts has existed for some years now, and it is from this non-organized bond that she now must break. The honeymoon is over.

Most St. Mary’s women identify themselves with the total community of ND-SMC; reservations regarding St. Mary’s alone. When asked where they go to school, they will boast “Notre Dame;” their automobile stickers would identify them as Damers; their marriageable selves are almost destined to claim one of Our Lady’s sons; the only alleviation some share with SMC is eating and sleeping, and some don’t even come home to do that.

Now that the separate Boards of Trustees have dissolved the two communities to go their unmerger ways, an identity crisis has arisen. The women of St. Mary’s-those who chose to remain-must re-orient themselves toward a separate identity, independent from the shadow of the Dome. They must establish faith in themselves as members of the viable community, yet with recent events (i.e. last December) it is eating and sleeping, and some don’t even come home to do that.

It is one thing for an institution to re-orient itself academically toward a different concept, but it is entirely another to make them re-orient themselves and change their mental attitudes. Neither can be accomplished overnight, but the former is far more easily achieved than the latter.

Such a reversal in attitude can only evolve if the students of the St. Mary’s community are willing to comply. There is no sense in clutching onto what was once a dream. If the St. Mary’s women will wake from their pouting apathy, they can help create for themselves an invaluable educational institution. All the ingredients are there—a well-qualified faculty, an intelligent student body, a hopefully progressive president—but it is up to the women themselves to utilize their potential. With the appointment of Dr. Edward Henry as president, St. Mary’s has the opportunity to come into its own, independent of Notre Dame and proud. All it needs is for its women to face the challenge.
The signs are new, it seems to me, that the American university is in a period of decline. Such a possibility arises with the change in governmental style which came consequentially a remarkably stable and change in governmental style which came realities. Notre Dame has been, con­sequently, a remarkably stable and distinctly personal University. The Office of President, however, has modified the system. Rule has subsumed Style and policies have now reached democratic practices to its service. The of subordinates is inevitable; the style at the government is in itself a mark of democratic decline. of professional decline. University, in short, is moving toward University, in short, is moving toward growth in its academic quality. The whole growth in its academic quality. The whole governing of student affairs. Like the other. The whole governing of student affairs. Like the other.

Non-tenured faculty, in particular, have been thrown into the habit of direct consultation and into the habit of direct consultation. Many aspects of the announcements of policies or sub­stantial changes, for example, or one's knowledge of the space reserved for faculty comment. Therefore, among those of the sponsors of the observer. The observer. The observer.

count the cost before it is abandoned? The very fact that I can find no administrator who will listen or even tolerate the presence of a Scholastic in his own name to be printed in the space reserved for faculty comment. Obviously, as the observer. The observer.

The irony of all this is that the new style itself, of its very nature, faces a poor future. It is an arising at abstract descriptions of campus situations, in abstracting opposing systems by which to change the campus, in announcing its decisions to all beneath it, providing it with a new style which gives a show of brilliance and color, but without any new abstract concepts to concrete realities in blind and shabby. It realities refuse to change, the new style is in danger of risk of eventual abandonment. And the style from the observer's point of view the observer. The observer.

The fortunes of the Notre Dame-st. Mary's faculty are now worked from bottom up, but it was brought to a precipice and precisely with a shift in the observer's principles. Of its own nature, the new style gives us a future in which, if the observer. The observer.

Administration ok's InPIRG fund

by Robert Stecker

The Notre Dame administration has approved the funding mechanism for the Indiana Public Interest Research Group (InPIRG) as requested in a petition signed by about 75 per cent of the 3,500 undergraduate students.

The 78 member varsity band,including the Irish Guard, will depart Thursday morning and arrive at the Sheraton Cleveland Hotel late in the afternoon. Thursday evening the band will be the guests of the Emerald Civic Society at an evening party, attended by 100 students near the nearby St. John's College at a Cleveland restaurant.

The morning of St. Patrick's Day, the band will attend a concert at St. John's Cathedral, before playing the Irish National Anthem, the Star Spangled Banner, and the Irish "clog" in a nontraditional colors ceremony at Cleveland's Public Square. Following the afternoon parade, the band will return to Notre Dame late Friday evening.

He also noted that within the next few months, 18 schools in Indiana will have petitioned for the InPIRG funding mechanism. At Notre Dame, 64 per cent of the undergraduates, campus coordinators are preparing to approach the administration for approval.

In response to this administration approval, a short meeting will be held tonight at 6 p.m., in the Panza Lounge of Lafayette Student Center, for the purpose of enlisting new members and discussing possible projects. Speakers from several public interest groups, including Common Cause and PACE, a prison reform group, will attend the meeting and offer suggestions.

The general areas in which InPIRG will be working will be the environment, racism, sexism, consumer affairs, and corporate and government accountability. One project that has already been initiated will look into the possibility of recycling paper, glass and other resources from the waste collected at Notre Dame.

The feasibility of doing public interest research for course credit will also be discussed. InPIRG coordinator George William stated that two departments have been contacted and have expressed interest in establishing InPIRG-related courses.

Willard stressed that the meeting is open to all students interested in developing InPIRG projects as well as all those who have worked with InPIRG in the past.

The University of Notre Dame

varsity band will march in the 1972 Cleveland St. Patrick's Day parade. The band will be the guests of the Emerald Civic Society, a Cleveland organization interested in the promotion of Irish culture.

Robert O'Brien, director of the "Band of the Fighting Irish" explained that "this March maintains our record of approximately twenty consecutive appearances on St. Patrick's Day, and the Emerald Civic Society has been a very hospitable group.

Accompanying the Notre Dame band on the parade route will be Raymond College, governor of Ohio, and an N.D. graduate, along with the current Miss America, a Cleveland native.

To adopt ND calendar

SMC follows suit

St. Mary's College will follow Notre Dame's academic calendar next year, announced Acting President Rev. Alina Peter. The schedule adopted Tuesday by the Academic Affairs Council differs from Notre Dame's schedule only on a few dates.

In passing the new calendar, the "one last thing" noted was the group of St. Mary's people not involved in the original planning of it. Sr. Alma noted: "With two schools as close as we are and with co-op classes practically forcing St. Mary's to adopt Notre Dame's calendar, the Council felt it should have had an input into the original planning."

Sr. Alma also changed the calendar in response to student suggestions. The Council would reconsider its action. Sr. Alma added:

The tri-partite Council also reviewed individual petitions from St. Mary's students asking for changes in their programs, but made no decisions on these special cases.

Digger Philips' first year at the helm of the Irish cagers was not a spectacular one. Nor did it even begin to approach the achievements of his first-and-only year at Fordham. The Irish cagers went 19-20 during the campaign. Philips took an understrength of 11 men (of which 5 were freshmen) and drove them to a 3-21 record, and earned a number of national coaching honors himself.

Things were different during the past season. In 1970-71 the Irish cagers were 15-7. They were one of five teams invited to the NCAA Final Four during the previous year. During the summer, it was to lose its captain-elect to a motorcycle accident.

And by the time the season got well underway, Digger's roster would have needed something besides his material, and no miracles were forthcoming. The Irish cagers finished this year with a 4-8 record.

"It isn't really surprised that the season turned out like it did," Digger said. "A lot of people will not look at our overall record, but look at what we started with on October 16th. We lost Doug Gemmel and John Shumate, and if you count Jim Regelan and Tony Valibus then we lost a total of 11 players to our program.

We knew we had to put things together the best we could after that. And I'm looking at things from Thanksgiving to the Villanova game. I think we had a great year. Look at how close we were in some of John's, Villanova, West Virginia— we were in them until the last second two games.

"The kids never quit," he continued. "We never let up. A lot of kids would have packed it in and said, 'well, let's just go through the motions'.

But we let teams that are NTD, Breen-Phillips' Larry Quinn. And by the time the season got underway. Digger's roster would have needed something more than his material, and no miracles were forthcoming. The Irish cagers finished this year with a 4-8 record.

"We're after. and it wouldn't be fair to the kids who wasted a season. It's a question of variables involved. To discuss it
