South Vietnamese paratroops walk past the wreckage of a truck on Highway 13, decade of experience in the area, disturbing developments.

During the last two weeks enemy activity has increased sharply throughout nearly all the provinces south and west of Saigon, but some key intelligence sources find the following developments particularly disturbing:

- North Vietnamese forces moving into Tayninh province toward the delta last week hit the 49th regiment of the South Vietnamese 25th division so hard as to "render questionable its value as a combat force." The North Vietnamese captured equipment from the unit that included four 155-mm. heavy howitzers, two 105-mm. field howitzers, 10 armored personnel carriers, two M-41 light tanks and 14 trucks.

- South Vietnamese units operating across the border in Southern Cambodia as a blocking force are reported to have sustained heavy equipment losses and many casualties. During the last month alone, they are said to have lost some 40 tracked vehicles -- tanks and armored personnel carriers -- either destroyed or captured by the North Vietnamese.

- Heavy guns and tracked vehicles captured by the North Vietnamese are apparently being put to effective use against Saigon forces.

- The pace of attacks by North Vietnamese or local Vietcong units on government positions is increasing as enemy strength rolls eastward into the delta.

Yesterday, for example, Communist forces reportedly overrun a militia post 30 miles west of Mykhe, a key delta city. According to reports reaching here today the defenders suffered 41 killed and 31 wounded.

Doors not safe

Roads in many parts of the delta, which had been considered safe for several years, are again reportedly subject to Vietcong sabotage, ambushes and harassment.

"None of this means that the Communists are about to go over the delta or the rest of Vietnam," one veteran analyst said. "In any case, nothing ever happened that fast or automatically in Vietnam."

"But the balance is being tipped again by a number of different factors. I don't feel it's realistic to expect the Saigon forces ever to regain the territory they've lost in the last two weeks and priorities will have to be re-established for the areas that can and must be held."

\[c 1972 New York Times\]

\[109\]

\[The delta is just about at the top of the list, it seems to me, and we're all going to have to start worrying a lot more about it very soon.\]

\[Thursday, April 13, 1972\]
Lowenstein, O'Brien keynote mock convention

By Joseph Abell Managing Editor

Al Lowenstein, former Congressman from New York, will join keynote Lawrence O'Brien as a featured speaker during the Mock Convention, Academic Commissioner Eric Andrus announced.

Lowenstein will speak on the night of the convention, Wednesday, April 26, at 7:00, Andrus added.

"Lowenstein has spoken here every year I've been here," Andrus commented, "but I still think it's pretty big; the students like him a lot."

In other Mock Convention news, he described the state meetings for selection of platform committees as "just about done."

"There are still about fifteen states that have yet to hold meetings, but they should be finished by the end of this week."

Concerning the convention schedule, he mentioned a slight change of session times.

The session set for Monday afternoon has been canceled, and the Monday night session will kick off the convention. Afternoon sessions will remain on the schedule for Tuesday and Wednesday but will not be held on Thursday. All evening sessions will be held.

Andrus also felt confident, if a bit more hesitantly, that one or more of the Democratic Presidential hopefuls could be scheduled.

Concerning the election of platform committees, Andrus expressed confidence that the platform committee will have a full agenda drawn up before the arrival of O'Brien.

"The committee will meet on Sunday night or Sunday afternoon, and should have everything ready for Messrs. O'Brien and Lowenstein," he said.

Concerning delegates, Andrus emphasized the need for more people to volunteer.

"We're just short of the 1004 delegates we need," he said, "and we could really use more people."

However, he added, if some states were short of delegates, this would not affect the voting. Each state would retain the proper number of votes for that state.

"It would just be up to the delegates of that state to work out a system of voting," he said.

Anyone who wants to help, he said, should call the office of the Academic Commissioner.

Regional Environmental Teach-In

April 15

Sessions from 10-5

Admission - Free

Life Science Center

ELTON JOHN

Wednesday, May 3 at 8:00

in the ACC

Tickets are $5.50, 4.50 and 2.75

Sales start

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

at 3:30

in the Fiesta Lounge
Gallo vs. Colombo

Bloody battles terrorize Brooklyn streets...

By Nicholas Gage

(C) 1972 New York Times

New York — There is an all-out gang war in Brooklyn between the Gallo and Colombo groups, as the increasing number of bullet-riddle bodies over the past few days seem to prove. Both sides have the men and the guns to make it the bloodiest internal Mafia conflict in many years.

A check of the committed members of the two sides as listed in a report compiled by the Intelligence Division of the Police Department shows that the Colombo group numbers the Gallo group 118 to 85.

But the Gallo group includes men with more "war" experience than the Colombo group. Some of these men have the capacity to provide the strong leadership lost to the group with the murder last Friday morning of Joseph Gallo.

The experienced Gallo men are veterans of the Profaci-Gallo "war" in the early 1960's. In that conflict, which resulted in a dozen murders, a faction led by Larry, Joseph and Albert Gallo rebelled against Profaci over division of the family profits. Joseph Gallo took over the Profaci family in 1964 and concluded a peace with the Gallo group. But to secure his position as leader Colombo sidelined many of the men who had been close to Profaci during the war and replaced them with less experienced younger men loyal to him.

Since last June, when Colombo was critically wounded at Columbus Circle, none of those young men has been able to give the family strong leadership.

Joseph Yacovelli and later Vincent Alo reportedly have tried serving as acting heads of the family but with limited success.

Neither has the experience or the temperament to be a wartime leader, according to law enforcement officials.

The one who does qualify is Carmine Persico, who started serving a 14-year federal prison term 9 weeks ago for hijacking.

Persico was the most daring front-line Lieutenant for Profaci in the war against the Gallos a decade ago.

There was no indication that any of the Mafia figures had gone into hiding, apparently to avoid questions about the recent spate of gangland-style murders.

There was no indication that any of the shooting gangsters had themselves been murdered, the officials said. But police sources, familiar with the case, feared that the real toll of the past two weeks may have far exceeded the seven known killings.

The gangster assassinations came to light today, however, and deputy police commissioner Robert Daley observed in grimm jest: "They must have run out of bullets."

Anxious residents of South Brooklyn, a Mafia stronghold, spotted a corpse floating in Graver Canal, but it had disappeared by the time police sped to the scene.

In Brooklyn and elsewhere scores of detectives and federal agents continued to investigate the murders.

They reported that many Mafiosi, notably members of the Gallo Group, were keeping close tabs on recent developments in Brooklyn.

The records show that in the last three weeksPersico's brother, Alfredo, who is listed by the police as a Colombo family member, and his chief lieutenant, Jerry Langella, have visited Persico at the prison four times.

Cindiscutently, Persico's cellmates at the experienced Gallo men are veterans of the Profaci-Gallo" war in the early 1960's. In that conflict, which resulted in a dozen murders, a faction led by Larry, Joseph and Albert Gallo rebelled against Profaci over division of the family profits.

There was no indication that any of the Mafia figures had gone into hiding, apparently to avoid questions about the recent spate of gangland-style murders.

There was no indication that any of the shooting gangsters had themselves been murdered, the officials said. But police sources, familiar with the case, feared that the real toll of the past two weeks may have far exceeded the seven known killings.

The gangster assassinations came to light today, however, and deputy police commissioner Robert Daley observed in grimm jest: "They must have run out of bullets."

Anxious residents of South Brooklyn, a Mafia stronghold, spotted a corpse floating in Graver Canal, but it had disappeared by the time police sped to the scene.

In Brooklyn and elsewhere scores of detectives and federal agents continued to investigate the murders.

They reported that many Mafiosi, notably members of the Gallo Group, were keeping close tabs on recent developments in Brooklyn.

The records show that in the last three weeksPersico's brother, Alfredo, who is listed by the police as a Colombo family member, and his chief lieutenant, Jerry Langella, have visited Persico at the prison four times.

Cindiscutently, Persico's cellmates at

...while Mafia leaders retreat from government investigations

By Eric Pace

(C) 1972 New York Times

New York — A high police official said today that a number of Mafia figures had gone into hiding, apparently to avoid questions about the recent spate of gangland-style murders.

There was no indication that any of the shooting gangsters had themselves been murdered, the officials said. But police sources, familiar with the case, feared that the real toll of the past two weeks may have far exceeded the seven known killings.

The gangster assassinations came to light today, however, and deputy police commissioner Robert Daley observed in grimm jest: "They must have run out of bullets."

Anxious residents of South Brooklyn, a Mafia stronghold, spotted a corpse floating in Graver Canal, but it had disappeared by the time police sped to the scene.

In Brooklyn and elsewhere scores of detectives and federal agents continued to investigate the murders.

They reported that many Mafiosi, notably members of the Gallo Group, were keeping close tabs on recent developments in Brooklyn.

The records show that in the last three weeksPersico's brother, Alfredo, who is listed by the police as a Colombo family member, and his chief lieutenant, Jerry Langella, have visited Persico at the prison four times.

Cindiscutently, Persico's cellmates at

NILES, MICHIGAN 49120

"The Pit Stop"

"On the Mall"-McKeeley Town & Country

Boutique-Elaines

Country

"Cocktail Lounge

Bowl ing Billiards

Sheila's Nite Club

2802 SOUTH 11th ROAD

NILES, MICHIGAN 49120

616/683-4350

"One stop entertainment center"
And when the snow had gone and spring burst upon the land, the people rejoiced and drank of spring wine.

Start your own spring celebration with Tyrolia, California white wine and natural fruit flavors. The new wine that captures the spirit of spring. Pure wine that's as light and bright as that first spring day. With the crisp, clean taste of oranges, lemons and flowery spices. Drink Gallo Tyrolia, the wine of spring. And celebrate!
The Wisconsin Primary

Ed Ellis

There are three currently fashionable interpretations of last week's Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary. The first, the McGovern theory, emphasizes the South Dakota Senator's strong showing in all parts of the state, and notes quite accurately, that McGovern ran well in blue-collar districts, labor-union-dominated districts, and ethnically-oriented districts, all of which were con­ceded to either Maine Senator Edmund Muskie or Minnesota Senator Hubert H. Humphrey only a few months ago.

This interpretation counters the view of McGovern as a one-issue candidate, and notes, quite accurately, that McGovern's youth­ful organization, "which, in the words of one exhuberant aide, "rang one million doorbells." This machine beat Muskie decisively despite Muskie's thick portfolio of political endorsements.

The second theory, which might be called the Wallace theory, emphasizes Wallace's strong showing in a Northern traditionally liberal state. The Alabama governor finished an unexpected second, and ran close behind McGovern in most of the state's eleven congressional districts, where heberger no delegates. George Wallace, in "part of the country where you can win, he'd win.

A third theory notes that the two General's success is largely due to their an­ti-establishment candidates, total of five candidates which is to say there is a fun­damental malaise abroad in our land (or at least in Wisconsin during this election year).

There are, of course, weaknesses to all three theories. Twenty-nine percent is not stunnmg by any stretch of the imagination. Neither is 36 percent, estimated Republican crossover votes. There are, of course, weaknesses to all three theories. Twenty-nine percent is not stunnmg by any stretch of the imagination. Neither is 36 percent, estimated Republican crossover votes.

Wisconsin Conclusions

Despite the confusion generated by the 12-way split in Wisconsin, we can draw several conclusions. First, three men are left in the race: McGovern, Muskie, and Humphrey, though not necessarily in that order. Wallace would have gained some too, but not nearly as much.

And then one can never explain so complex a primary as Wisconsin in terms of a single factor's such as establishmentarianism. Both Wallace and McGovern hit big on tax reform (with almost identical stance) and inflation, which seem ready to join school busing as major issues in 1972. However, the entire vote cannot be explained by this.

Consider, for a moment, the nature of these issues. The busing question represents, to a large degree, an attempt by "common folk" to reject urban plans of "pointy-headed intellectuals in Washington," in quite George Wallace. The tax reform issue, manipulated well by McGovern in Wisconsin, is a revolt by the blue-collar lower middle class against the socio-economic elite of America. Basically, we have a class division in the nation, if Wisconsin is any indicator.

The inflation issue also hits home with the poor, since the poor are most damaged by the rising price of foodstuffs. The "average man" is confused, poorly presented, and angry at leaders who cannot lead. This year may just be the year of the average man. So far, the "big winners" in the "key primaries" have been Wallace and McGovern. McGovern and Wallace are the two least identified with any power structure and most identified with the great mass of Democratic voters. Humphreys and Muskie would do well to note this in upcoming weeks.

Wisconsin Conclusions

Despite the confusion generated by the 12-way split in Wisconsin, we can draw several conclusions. First, three men are left in the race: McGovern, Muskie, and Humphrey, though not necessarily in that order. Wallace would have gained some too, but not nearly as much.

And then one can never explain so complex a primary as Wisconsin in terms of a single factor such as establishmentarianism. Both Wallace and McGovern hit big on tax reform (with almost identical stance) and inflation, which seem ready to join school busing as major issues in 1972. However, the entire vote cannot be explained by this.

Consider, for a moment, the nature of these issues. The busing question represents, to a large degree, an attempt by "common folk" to reject urban plans of "pointy-headed intellectuals in Washington," in quite George Wallace. The tax reform issue, manipulated well by McGovern in Wisconsin, is a revolt by the blue-collar lower middle class against the socio-economic elite of America. Basically, we have a class division in the nation, if Wisconsin is any indicator.

The inflation issue also hits home with the poor, since the poor are most damaged by the rising price of foodstuffs. The "average man" is confused, poorly presented, and angry at leaders who cannot lead. This year may just be the year of the average man. So far, the "big winners" in the "key primaries" have been Wallace and McGovern. McGovern and Wallace are the two least identified with any power structure and most identified with the great mass of Democratic voters. Humphreys and Muskie would do well to note this in upcoming weeks.

Wisconsin Conclusions

Despite the confusion generated by the 12-way split in Wisconsin, we can draw several conclusions. First, three men are left in the race: McGovern, Muskie, and Humphrey, though not necessarily in that order. Wallace would have gained some too, but not nearly as much.

And then one can never explain so complex a primary as Wisconsin in terms of a single factor such as establishmentarianism. Both Wallace and McGovern hit big on tax reform (with almost identical stance) and inflation, which seem ready to join school busing as major issues in 1972. However, the entire vote cannot be explained by this.

Consider, for a moment, the nature of these issues. The busing question represents, to a large degree, an attempt by "common folk" to reject urban plans of "pointy-headed intellectuals in Washington," in quite George Wallace. The tax reform issue, manipulated well by McGovern in Wisconsin, is a revolt by the blue-collar lower middle class against the socio-economic elite of America. Basically, we have a class division in the nation, if Wisconsin is any indicator.

The inflation issue also hits home with the poor, since the poor are most damaged by the rising price of foodstuffs. The "average man" is confused, poorly presented, and angry at leaders who cannot lead. This year may just be the year of the average man. So far, the "big winners" in the "key primaries" have been Wallace and McGovern. McGovern and Wallace are the two least identified with any power structure and most identified with the great mass of Democratic voters. Humphreys and Muskie would do well to note this in upcoming weeks.

Wisconsin Conclusions

Despite the confusion generated by the 12-way split in Wisconsin, we can draw several conclusions. First, three men are left in the race: McGovern, Muskie, and Humphrey, though not necessarily in that order. Wallace would have gained some too, but not nearly as much.

And then one can never explain so complex a primary as Wisconsin in terms of a single factor such as establishmentarianism. Both Wallace and McGovern hit big on tax reform (with almost identical stance) and inflation, which seem ready to join school busing as major issues in 1972. However, the entire vote cannot be explained by this.

Consider, for a moment, the nature of these issues. The busing question represents, to a large degree, an attempt by "common folk" to reject urban plans of "pointy-headed intellectuals in Washington," in quite George Wallace. The tax reform issue, manipulated well by McGovern in Wisconsin, is a revolt by the blue-collar lower middle class against the socio-economic elite of America. Basically, we have a class division in the nation, if Wisconsin is any indicator.

The inflation issue also hits home with the poor, since the poor are most damaged by the rising price of foodstuffs. The "average man" is confused, poorly presented, and angry at leaders who cannot lead. This year may just be the year of the average man. So far, the "big winners" in the "key primaries" have been Wallace and McGovern. McGovern and Wallace are the two least identified with any power structure and most identified with the great mass of Democratic voters. Humphreys and Muskie would do well to note this in upcoming weeks.
Term papers & fraud

Its about time! Its about time at least one university - Ohio State - took legal action to prevent the sale of professionally produced term papers.

OSU nabbed Term Papers Unlimited, Easy Writer and Education Term Paper Research for doing what professors and university academic councils have prohibited for years - cheating, on a massive and public scale.

Students have a variety of reasons for going to college. Not all of them are equally noble but all should include at least some educational motives. The draft is no longer a significant threat. The current state of the job market belies any intention of getting a college degree to get a job. Students, then, are paying both to receive an education and to cheat themselves out of that very education.

There are no real recourses within the university. The fake paper sellers are marketing a product indistinguishable from the real thing. One professor's remark to the effect that he could tell the difference was just an exercise in naivety. Any student purchasing a term paper is probably going to be sharp enough to tell the company what "special angle" the professor wants.

External legal action was an excellent, and long overdue approach. If the companies cannot be stopped judicially they should be banned legislatively. Virtually every company currently on the market uses the mails providing the federal government with the necessary legal basis.

Some term papers are unnecessary exercises in intellectual masturbation but that is not really the important concern. Every student in any class has to submit even these unnecessary papers. Why should a rich or crafty student be rewarded on an equal basis with those who have taken the time to produce a paper which was not only an individual educational experience but a public demonstration of that student's knowledge?

Ohio State is right cheating is cheating. Period.

John Abowd

THE OBSERVER
AN INDEPENDENT STUDENT NEWSPAPER
Thursdays, April 13, 1972

News: 203-3735
Editorial: 203-3861
Business: 203-7471

John Abowd
Editor-in-Chief
Jim Jendryk
Business Manager
Dan Ruane
Executive Editor
Bill Bauerle
Advertising Manager

Observer

The death of Rasputin

Russell Baker

Dilating sentimentally upon summer nights of his childhood when he had caught lightning bugs on the steppes of Russia.

Washington, April 19 - It was difficult to assassinate Rasputin, as the many readers of "Nicholas and Alexandra," among others, can testify.

A group of "high noblemen," according to the World Book Encyclopedia, decided that the assassination was necessary because Rasputin, although he "had common sense," was "selfish, greedy and dissolute." They invited him to a palatial residence in St. Petersburg and served him poisoned tea.

Rasputin was not delectably affected.

Several of the attending princes held a hurriedly called conference. They had read about hurriedly called conferences being held at the White House whenever presidents had a nasty crisis, as princes, they felt more entitled to hold hurriedly called conferences than presidents, but had never had a pretext for holding one.

Rasputin's failure to respond fatally to the poisoned tea seemed the ideal pretext. The conference was held in a billiard room while several other princes sat in the library with Rasputin, who was imbibing his third glass of poisoned tea and \"Swimming in thick, rich butter.\" Baron Boyer-Devitzky, watching behind the screen, saw Rasputin finish his meal, heard him call for more fried eggs and a tureen of caviar, however, Rasputin rose on one elbow and dropped the plate of fried eggs and a tureen of caviar, thus appeasing the hungry and the noble and the people who hated selfishness, greed and dissolution could not expediently dispose of a raffish nuisance, Baron Boyer-Devitzky rushed upon Rasputin and stabbed him several times in vital organs.

Rasputin frowned and said to Colonel Klopatsky, one of his noble hosts, "I hate to seem like a poor guest, but I should very much like to have two more fried eggs and some Band-Aids."

"Can't you take a hint?" Colonel Klopatsky replied.

Simultaneously, he drew his pistol and fired it several times into Rasputin. Rasputin fell to the floor, apparently dead. Prince Kurilinsky said, "Lieve!" which is the Russian equivalent of, "I think there's a light at the end of the tunnel."

While the noblemen were toasting their victory in a corner, however, Rasputin rose on one elbow and said he would appreciate it if someone could find him one more pork chop somewhere in the kitchen.

The noblemen fell upon him with clubs and beat him until he seemed lifeless.

They then dragged him outside - the temperature was 70 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit - and left him in the snow. As they were re-entering the palace, they were startled to hear Rasputin speak to them.

"A little more of that tea would taste mighty good on a night like this," he called.

In a group, they lifted him from the snow, shot him several more times, carried him to the river and threw him in among the ice floes.

"Next time," shouted Rasputin, as he was coming up for the eleventh time, "I am not going to be so quick to overlook had mistakes.

As he waded out of the river on the far side, hungering for another cigarette, his mouth set for a restorative plate of fried eggs, a whole squadron of nobles bombarded him from 30,000 feet.

Rasputin's dying words were heard only by the light of the cold Northern Star: "Something I did," he said, "must have made me a threat to the national security of the United States."

0

N

Art editor: Dan Barber
Asst. Night Editor: Beth Hall
Headlines: Pete Fries, Ken Kampan
Layout: Mary Raner, Becky Griffin, Jerry Lutkus
Night Controller: Joe Wilkowski
Day Controller: Pat Kennedy
Day Editor: Jack Kelly and all the mama writer's gang.

"ROOM PICKS" or..., from 9000

You've Got Your Pick of Real #1s in the First Place
The Southwester Center of the Track Show. He Jot Through an Amazing

...
Sophomore Literary Festival

Six novelists and three poets will comment on the current status of American novels and poetry at the sixth annual Sophomore Literary Festival at the University of Notre Dame April 16-21.

Charles Newman, critic, novelist and editor of Northwestern University's Tri-Quarterly magazine, will open the weeklong student-directed and funded festival with a keynote address in the Memorial Library auditorium at 3:30 p.m. April 16. The winner of the 1969 National Book Award, novelist Jerzy Kosinski, will speak at 8:30 the same night in Washington Hall. Kosinski is the author of "Steps," and the two books written in the early 1960's under the name of Joseph Novak, "The Future is Ours," and "No Third Path."

Speaking at 3:30 p.m. April 17 in the library auditorium will be Diana Wakoski, the first woman to participate in the festival organized in 1967. She gained acclaim for two collections of poetry, "Inside the Blood Factory" and "Motorcycle Betrayal." Robert Coover, described by the Philadelphia Bulletin as "one of the most talented American novelists," will speak at 4:30 p.m. on April 17. He is the author of "Origin of Brumms" and "The Universal Baseball Association," as well as a collection of short stories, "Pricknongs and Descents." Reading selections from their fiction in the library auditorium on April 18 will be Charles Newman at 3:30 p.m. and William H. Gass at 8:30 p.m. Gass is a literary critic and fiction writer who gained recognition for his "Omensetter's Luck." "In the Heart of the Matter," "Willie Master's Lonesome Wife" and "Fiction and Figures of Life." A second lecture by Gass at 3:30 p.m. on April 19 in Carroll Hall of Saint Mary's College will concern metaphor and measurement.

A member of the San Francisco group of poets, Robert Duncan will speak at 8:30 p.m. April 19. He is the author of "The Opening of the Field" and "Bending the Bow." Duncan and Diane Wakoski will join with Allen Ginsberg, the poet-laureate of the "counter-culture," in a poetry symposium at 3:30 p.m. April 20 in the library auditorium. Speaking at 8:30 p.m. on April 20 in the library auditorium will be John A. Williams, black novelist and author of "The Man Who Cried I Am" and studies on Martin Luther King, Jr. and Richard Wright. The appearance of Williams is co-sponsored by the Notre Dame Black Studies program.

Jay Neugeboren, author of "Big Man," "Lisen Rubes Fontenes" and "Corky's Brother," will speak at 3:30 p.m. April 21 in the library auditorium. Ginsberg will close the festival with a talk at 6:30 p.m. the same night in Washington Hall. His published works include "Howl," "Kaddish," "America," "In Back of the Real" and "Reality Sandwiches." Raymond M. Funk, Jr., a sophomore from Libertyville, Ill. is serving as chairman of the 1972 festival.

Tull in Concert

Jethro Tull, the rock group that replaced the Beatles in the No. 1 spot, will be presented in concert by the Student Union Social Commission in the University of Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center April 18 at 8 p.m. A companion group, Wild Turkey, will be presented on the same program.

Led by Ian Anderson, Jethro Tull has amassed a modern-day record of sellout concerts in only three years of existence. Anderson has become known as the "dancing master of rock" for his stage antics which include jumping, skipping, lunging and presorting while playing the flute and singing the lead vocals. Appearing with him will be Jeffrey Hammond-Hammond on bass, Barriemore Barlow on drums, Martin Barre on guitar, and John Evans on piano and organ.

The group has earned gold albums for two current recordings, "Benefit" and "Aqualung." The latter is a biting, controversial look at modern-day religion that has merited an additional platinum disc for exceeding sales of one-million units. Their first album, "This Was," reached the top ten of English album charts after the group had played together only six months.

Tickets for the April 18 show range from $2.75 to $5.50 and may be purchased at all AUN outlets or from the Student Union Ticket Office.

Charles Newman

Robert Duncan

Diane Wakoski

Jerzy Kosinski

William Gass

Jay Neugeboren

Allen Ginsberg
Women at Yale: part 3

Dr. Robert Ackerman

This is the last of a three part series in which Dr. Ackerman, assistant dean of students, explores the views of Yale Women.

Tuesday Ackerman discussed the problems Yale encountered in recruiting female students. In addition, he summarized the "realities" in the coed environment, in the Ivy League school's environment. The mixer dance and the weekend date were also discussed.

Sex at Yale

The witness concluded that the majority of Yale's male students were attempting to relate to females in a special way but that they were very much afraid of being hurt of being used. The concern was frequently reported that women were out to trap a Yale man as a husband. The women at Yale were prepared by both fact and rumor to deal with his, the Yale philosophy of male-female relationships. The student handbook distributed to the yale Class of 1972 implied the philosophy:

"Yale as you would a good woman. Take advantage of her. Nourish yourself with the fruits of her wisdom, curst her if you will, and consider yourself for the possession of her. But treat her with respect. When you leave her, do you valorously and quietly, profit from the education she has given you."

The most frequently reported term used to describe the relationship between Yale men and women was objectification. While the term itself was not specifically defined, it implied depersonalization or deindividualization. The complaint was that Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

One concern brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

One concern brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.

The writers devoted detailed attention to discussing the attitudes of Yale students under the heading of traditional, romantic, meaningful, and friendly sex. Their conclusion generally stated, were that the sexual mores of students were in a process of change. Coeducation had not, by itself, brought to light the double standard. The most common form of relationship was the weekend date. In this sense one was not a person but a "girl." As a spin-off of coeducation and, perhaps, as a byproduct of the double standard, Yale men did not perceive their female colleagues as individuals, but rather as members of the category "girls." In the classrooms this objectification occurred most frequently when the professors called upon female students to respond to the discussion topic from the "girls' point of view." In this sense one was not a person but a representative or spokesman for a group. Objectification at the student level could simply be that the "girls" were to be viewed by the men solely as potential sex partners.

Coeducation brought to light the double standard of role expectations that existed as a common belief among the male students. A sophomore explained it simply:

A girl who sleeps around is in some sense going to be looked at as a woman she is not. A guy who sleeps around becomes an object of admiration.
5th annual spring weekend
An Tostal plans unveiled by HPC committee
by Jim E. Brogan

Last night General Chairman Fritz Hoefer unveiled the plans for the upcoming An Tostal Weekend, sponsored by the Hall Presidents Council. The Weekend of April 20, 21, and 22 will mark the fifth annual celebration of welcoming Spring to Notre Dame. An Tostal, which in Gaelic means "The Festival," is its christening back in the spring of 1968 and has grown steadily ever since.

The celebration, originated by the former Badin-Sorin Olympics was adopted and reared by the Hall Presidents Council and in its five year life has developed a distinct personality of its own.

Hoefer explained the weekend's composition, putting special emphasis on signing up this week in the Dining Halls for the free picnic. He announced that the picnic will take place on Saturday, April 20 and will again be located on the lawns of Holy Cross Hall.

He added, "There is no cost to anyone who signs up. A student simply has to present his meal card in the Dining Hall and he will be given a ticket for the picnic. The only catch is that if you sign up for the picnic, we ask you to please eat that day at the picnic, and not in the dining hall.

The chairman praised the efforts of the Food Services staff at the dining hall as well as the cooperation of the staff at the dining halls in both places, and asked everyone's cooperation in showing up in their assigned places."

As always, An Tostal will begin on April 20 which has been dubbed "Gentle Thursday." Why it has been nicknamed "gentle" is anybody's guess for it includes such unbridled events as "Thud," a pie toss booth, the ever popular dunking booth, a flour blowing contest, as well as such happenings as an Irish Lunch in the dining halls, the annual ND-SMC Trivia Bowl, can stacking, a local band performing on the North Quad, and the Jocks vs. SMC Basketball Game.

Several new events have been added to the already bulging Saturday agenda. Hoefer explained, "As far as new Thursday events go, we've added a bubble-gum bubble blowing contest, a two-wheel and under Animal Race, a Burlap Sack Race, and human pyramid building.

Likewise, Friday of the Gaelic Weekend has been greatly expanded. It has been nicknamed "Privyton Friday." The frivolous events feature repetition of last year's hits, namely the jello toss, the old tire race, and a tremendously popular Impersonation Contest, as well as live events. They are listed as a shoe race, an egg toss at the world's record of over 300 feet, a penny pitching contest, the iron-man five football finals, and the Original An Tostal Amateur Hour.

Concerning this last event, Hoefer said, "There is a tremendous amount of talent on campus. It is our hope that as many people as possible will participate in this Friday night event. Anyone with any talent at all is invited to compete for our prizes.

Of course there is the full complement of Saturday events again this year. Repeats from last year include the gimmick type road rally in the morning, the free picnic, the Ben-Hur Chariot Race, a kite flying contest, a pie eating contest, a tug-of-war, and an ND vs. SMC touch football game.

Besides these old festivities, there will be searching for a needle in an haystack, a water 'n' flour balloon fight, a Robin Hood 'Little John' type jousting contest with pillows instead of sticks over a mud pit, and a modified roller derby.

Hoefer emphasized that "concerning the roller derby, a premium will be placed on skating skill, rather than on pushing and shoving. Anyone that gets out of hand will be thrown out of the contest.

The staggeringly full weekend is capped off as always with the Irish peak. Chairman Hoefer explained, "it is always the cheapest party of the year. This year we have the South Bend Armory, and only three dollars buys your bus transportation, your admission to the door, and all the free beer you can drink.

Details on all the events will be explained in depth in An Tostal's upcoming booklet. Pre-publication reviews have modestly announced it as: "A unique item in literature...strikingly original. . . Touches something very deep in us... rare, fantastic, terrific...an unrestrained imagination... passion and craziness." Hoefer was no less vehement in his praise calling it, "a classic in our times."

Ed Ellis
Wisconsin primary

(Continued from Page 5)

Democratic nominee. This year, the three will be three groups, the smallest of which will still control over 500 delegates. At this stage, we have three separate commitments representing two of the groups, all three of whom are likely to get pretty nasty in coming weeks. And there, the potential possibility of a three-party split, should Hum­

World and McGovern gauged feeling well, circumvented the "leaders" and, Bob Kersten-style, drove straight to the people, with his machine, Wallace with his big-time rallies.

If they are to win, Humphrey and Muskie must keep an ear or two closer to the ground floor. George Wallace has "sent a message." They ought to listen. There are 22 more primaries to be assigned and the message won't change much.

Wallace and McGovern gauged well, circumvented the "leaders" and Bob Kersten-style, drove straight to the people, with his machine, Wallace with his big-time rallies.

If they are to win, Humphrey and Muskie must keep an ear or two closer to the ground floor. George Wallace has "sent a message."

They ought to listen. There are 22 more primaries to be assigned and the message won't change much.

There are 22 more primaries to be assigned and the message won't change much.

Wallace and McGovern gauged well, circumvented the "leaders" and, Bob Kersten-style, drove straight to the people, with his machine, Wallace with his big-time rallies.

If they are to win, Humphrey and Muskie must keep an ear or two closer to the ground floor. George Wallace has "sent a message."

They ought to listen. There are 22 more primaries to be assigned and the message won't change much.

Wallace and McGovern gauged well, circumvented the "leaders" and, Bob Kersten-style, drove straight to the people, with his machine, Wallace with his big-time rallies.

If they are to win, Humphrey and Muskie must keep an ear or two closer to the ground floor. George Wallace has "sent a message."

They ought to listen. There are 22 more primaries to be assigned and the message won't change much.
"He misjudged"
West's condition is critical

Freshman Warren West remained in critical condition yesterday in St. Joe's Hospital after surgery Monday morning. West dove out a window in Cavanaugh Hall on Thursday and critically injured himself.

Cavanaugh, after surgery Monday morning, remained in critical condition "He misjudged," said Lt. Larry Faye, who was engaged in horseplay. "Warren dove out the window of a kind of a plan, he was daring himself. Nobody actually dared, he just kinda jumped."

Apparently, West struck his head on the bank that slopes away from the hall under his window. The bank is not visible from the window.

Lt. Faye said that "He misjudged." West's misjudged results in the crushing of two discs in his back. Monday's operation fused his spine. Hospital sources say that it will be six weeks before he knows the extent of West's paralysis, which is presently complete.

In the meantime friends and residents of the hall are helping to make things more comfortable for West and his parents, who arrive early Friday morning from their home in Dumont, N.J. West's parents are staying at the retreat house, and a student has offered his car for their use.

A list has been posted in Cavanaugh, according to Fr. Faye, for those to sign who wish to spend a few hours with West each week for the next month and a half while he recuperates. It is hoped that enough people will sign to provide 24 hours of company for West.

March of Dimes
Walkathon set for Saturday a.m.

The Saint Joseph County March of Dimes is holding its walkathon this Saturday morning. April 15 starting at 8:00 and 9:00. Walkers are to solicit sponsors who are willing to pay them a straight rate per mile for the 25 mile walk. Sponsors can pledge anywhere from $.10 to $100 to each mile walked. The money was tabbed for parties in each of the ten sections.

The story in the Observer concerning the drive for blood donors contained two errors. First, the dates of April 17 and 18 are correct, but they are on Monday and Tuesday of next week, not this Friday and Saturday. Also, the statement that any donors would be able to receive an unlimited blood supply for themselves and their immediate families for a year is incorrect. Donors will be able to receive one pint of blood for themselves and their families.

SMC concert features outstanding guitarist

Michael Lorimer, classical guitarist and protege of the great Andreas Segovia, will be presented in concert at 9 p.m. April 15 by the Performing Arts Series of Saint Mary's College. Reservations are now being accepted for the performance in O'Loughlin Auditorium.

March of Dimes
Walkathon set for Saturday a.m.

The Saint Joseph County March of Dimes is holding its walkathon this Saturday morning. April 15 starting at 8:00 and 9:00. Walkers are to solicit sponsors who are willing to pay them a straight rate per mile for the 25 mile walk. Sponsors can pledge anywhere from $.10 to $100 to each mile walked. The money was tabbed for parties in each of the ten sections.

Only 25 years old, Lorimer is already reaching the top of his profession. He began his studies at the age of 16 and eventually attracted the attention of Segovia at his home in Sienna, Italy. He spent six summers studying with the master, prompting him to predict "I am certain that in a few years his name will be respected and esteemed in the United States and abroad."

In the short time since Segovia made this statement Lorimer's concert appearances in Spain and America have drawn the critical praise of many newspapers. Column George of Detroit Free Press wrote that "Lorimer belongs in the top rank of classical guitarists," and the New York Times praised him for "superb technical control and sensitive spirit."

When he is not on tour Lorimer teaches guitar at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and at the University of California at Berkeley where he has a master class. High Fidelity magazine selected him as one of the most promising young artists in a recent poll.

*mock convention

The George Wallace for President Organization will have a meeting Thursday night, April 13, at 8 p.m. in the Radio Vintage Cinema. All who are interested in supporting or working for Governor Wallace during the Mock Convention are invited to attend. Governor Wallace who finished first in the Florida primary and second in the Wisconsin primary, the only two primaries he has so far entered will be in South Bend early next week. For information call 582-1000.

JETHRO TULL
with Wild Turkey

THIS TUESDAY, APRIL 18 at 8 pm

TICKETS: $5.50, 4.50, 2.75

SOME GOOD SEATS STILL AVAILABLE AT THE STUDENT UNION TICKET OFFICE

Presented by the Student Union Social Commission
ND tennis team splits in Michigan

by Eric Kinkead

A strong Michigan tennis squad ended Irish hopes of an undefeated season in Ann Arbor Monday afternoon thrashing the Wolverines in starting a new win streak in East Lansing.

Irish look good in first scrimmage

by Vic Dehr

A hockey defenseman turned quarterback a wide receiver named Washington, and a fresh- man running back shared the spotlight with Ara Parseghian's merry men in Notre Dame's first 'live' scrimmage of the spring season.

There was plenty of player and position debut of the spring season.returns of interceptions and positions on the field, but several of the tangles were set up by defensive returns of interceptions and fumbles.

There was plenty of player and position debut of the spring season.returns of interceptions and positions on the field, but several of the tangles were set up by defensive returns of interceptions and fumbles.

Assessing the MU blitzkrieg, coach Fallon said, "They were just too good on down the line."

"They had real good depth," he continued "and in a game like today, one guy is a little better than another in each spot, you get blanks."

"Michigan is the defending Big Ten champ, and no one is expected to beat them in the conference. They have a real nice team."

Irish captain Buster Brown echoed the sentiments of Fallon. "They were just better than us man for man. And they had good depth in their personnel."

The Irish reverted to form in East Lansing, taking four of the six singles matches and sweeping the doubles competition against the Spartans.

The match started off on a sour note as both Brown and John Allare, the ND one-two singles punch, dropped close matches to the top MSU players.

Nick Vetter decisioned Brown, 6-2, 7-5, 74 and Dave Williams handled Allare 75, 74, 74.

But from there on, it was all Notre Dame as the Irish swept the next seven game points.

Mike Reilly snuck past Joe Fodell 6-7, 7-5, 7-4 while Brandon Walsh finished in dropping Scott Rosen 6-1, 6-4.

Rob Schelter defeated Al Jacoby 7-6, 6-4 and freshman John Carrico wrapped up the win the Staters left the Irish with a 6-1 mark.

Next on the agenda for the two teams is a series of four doubles matches, and the Irish are considered to be the favorites to win.

The Irish will field a team expected to beat them in the conference. They have a real nice team."

Next on the agenda for the two teams is a series of four doubles matches, and the Irish are considered to be the favorites to win.

Mike Reilly's bouncing serve helped him record a 6-7, 7-4, 7-6 victory over Michigan State's Joe Fodell Tuesday in East Lansing.

The Irish will spend tomorrow afternoon playing doubles action as all three ND combos dropped their Spartan challengers in two sets.

Brown and Allare swept Vetter-Williams 6-1, 6-4, Walsh and Chris Kane recorded a win over Fodell-Olson 6-2, 6-0 and Reilly and Carrico finished up the afternoon's work with a 6-4, 6-0 decision over Jacoby Jagger.

The split with Michigan and the Staters left the Irish with a 6-1 mark.

There will be a meeting for all delegates to the Mock Convention interested in nominating

Senator Edward M. Kennedy for President, on Wednesday April 12 at 7 pm

in the Fiesta Lounge of LaFortune

New office hours - 10:am - 5:pm M-T
10:am - 2:30 pm Friday

Soccer team debuts today behind Stepan Center

The Notre Dame soccer team will open its spring season this afternoon at four o'clock, hosting the St. Joseph Kickers behind Stepan Center.

The Irish will field a team dominated by underclassmen against the Kickers, a semi pro club from Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Despite their youthful lineup, the Irish booters are considered to be the favorites to beat Notre Dame clubs in recent years.

NEW AD DEADLINE
All ads must be in by 1:00 the day before publication
Jethro Tull show forces change in Soph Lit Festival schedule

Student directors of the annual Sophomore Literary Festival at the University of Notre Dame are completing final arrangements this week for the event which will bring six novelists and three poets to the campus beginning Sunday (April 16). Afternoon and evening sessions during the six-day program are open to the public.

The appearance of the Jethro Tull musical concert in the Athletic and Convocation Center at 8 p.m., April 16 has resulted in a change for the William H. Gass lecture on Thursday and Friday in the O'Shaughnessy Auditorium.

The festival will open April 16 with a keynote address by Charles Newman, critic, novelist and editor of Northwestern University's Tri-Quarterly magazine at 3:30 p.m. in the library auditorium. Jerry Kaminski, professor of prose and criticism at Yale University's school of drama, will speak at the same date in Washington Hall.

Another participant in the festival will be traveling a long distance will be Robert Cooper, scheduled to speak at 10 a.m. April 17 in the library auditorium. The author of "Universal Business Association" and "Origin of Brutalist" is currently lecturing and writing in England and will return to America for the Notre Dame event.

The festival will continue April 19 with a keynote address by novelist John O'Hara. He will discuss the nature of the novel and its role in our society at 8:30 a.m. in Washington Hall.

Other participants in the festival include black novelist and essayist, John A. Williams, who will speak at 8:30 a.m. April 20 and Jay Snyder, writer in residence at the University of Massachusetts, at 3:30 p.m. April 21.

Beaver Art Ball, Saturday, April 15, 7 p.m. Zane, Old Peabody Home. Super market stamp. Tucks and Nellie Bell. Tickets $5.00, student $3.00.

ACOUNTING MAJOR FOR COLLEGE REP.
FOR NATIONAL CPA REVIEW COURSE
CALL: Clarence Chong or the
BECKER CPA REVIEW
216 E. By. Cincinnati, Ohio
Tel: (513) 222-6605.

JAMIE HIBSHMAN
PONTIAC
311 Lincolnway E. Michigan
215-4771.

CLASSIFIED
FOR SALE

For Sale: KLH Model 34 stereo system; with AM-FM stations; one year old. Call: 327-227.

We MOG: Blue, wired wheels, AM-FM radio. Super conditions, must see to believe. Brand new BF! inventory radiates all around. $150 or best offer. Call Jack at 232-245.

I bedroom home on large wooded lot just outside campus. Recently renovated. 2 bedroom with paneling and built in bookshelves. New Mical stone windows, new potential cedar siding, well is well carpeted, newly redecorated kitchen. 1000 feet from campus. $90 per month. A must, for quick sale. Call: 513-482-6443.

1969 VW $225. 2113 Dixieway North Co. 215 Dixieway North

Lincoln W.W. call Paul Bum. 995-6000.

284 Ves. Tune deck. $1195 after 8 p.m. Laketown, 336-3996.

FOR RENT
Kitchen & Rooms 45 per month. Goals only. Also free rent for summer for painting the house. 322-1209.

LINED AND FOUND

Lost: "Jakers" key ring with 4 keys, 30.40. Lost banner break. If found $450.

PERSONALS
Two daring males (twost, kind, etc.) to be trained to be 6 foot female applicants for trip to Florida. 284-732; 283-589. Two space seats left vac.

The St. Louis Arch is not the nation's tallest monument.

Jethro Tull
This Tuesday at 8 PM
Tickets at ACC (9-5) and S.U. Ticket Office (11:15-12:15, 4-5 PM)

"LONG HAIR"
strictly Caranbany St.
The British shag is here. If you have long hair Continental's Artists can trim it for a bloody true Shag, as HARE

is

Said:

health

healthy hair is our business

Continental

Hair Styling, Ltd.

Serving THE D. COMMUNITY FOR OVER 4 YEARS
Call 259-7679 for APPOINTMENT
121 E. McKinley Ave., Mish. (next door to

JIM HIBSHMAN
PONTIAC
311 Lincolnway E. Michigan
215-4771.

I bedroom home on large wooded lot just outside campus. Recently renovated. 2 bedroom with paneling and built in bookshelves. New Mical stone windows, new potential cedar siding, well is well carpeted, newly redecorated kitchen. 1000 feet from campus. $90 per month. A must, for quick sale. Call: 513-482-6443.

1969 VW $225. 2113 Dixieway North Co. 215 Dixieway North

Lincoln W.W. call Paul Bum. 995-6000.

284 Ves. Tune deck. $1195 after 8 p.m. Laketown, 336-3996.

FOR RENT
Kitchen & Rooms 45 per month. Goals only. Also free rent for summer for painting the house. 322-1209.

LINED AND FOUND

Lost: "Jakers" key ring with 4 keys, 30.40. Lost banner break. If found $450.

PERSONALS
Two daring males (twost, kind, etc.) to be trained to be 6 foot female applicants for trip to Florida. 284-732; 283-589. Two space seats left vac.

The St. Louis Arch is not the nation's tallest monument.

Jethro Tull
This Tuesday at 8 PM
Tickets at ACC (9-5) and S.U. Ticket Office (11:15-12:15, 4-5 PM)

"LONG HAIR"
strictly Caranbany St.
The British shag is here. If you have long hair Continental's Artists can trim it for a bloody true Shag, as HARE

is

Said:

health

healthy hair is our business

Continental

Hair Styling, Ltd.

Serving THE D. COMMUNITY FOR OVER 4 YEARS
Call 259-7679 for APPOINTMENT
121 E. McKinley Ave., Mish. (next door to