SLC vote canceled; 'no interest in race,' Kersten declares

by Anthony Abowd

SLC elections, originally scheduled for this Thursday, were cancelled indefinitely in an unilateral, verbal edict issued by R. Calhoun Kersten, SBI, late last night.

"I called off the SLC elections because I felt like it. There was no interest in them," Kersten declared.

The SBI gave two other reasons for his decisions. This will give us time to come up with an alternative to the SLC," Kersten said. "It will also allow the ND women to vote and run for the Board of Commissioners, SLC or its replacement next year.

Kersten did not set a definite date for the rescheduled elections. "I like to put things off, not think about them, then put them off some more. The elections will definitely be held before April first next year," he said.

The Prime Mover, however, would not issue a written statement declaring the SLC elections will be permanently cancelled until next year. He preferred to rely on his personal integrity that he would not reverse this decision and reinstate elections for this semester.

In other, more personal matter, the SBI cleared up his summer plans. He said he would ascend on May 11 and rule in absentia for three months. All unfinished student government business would be left to Uncandidate the Cat, Student Body Vice-President.

"I can see no business during the summer that Uncandidate can't handle," Kersten said.

a good administrator

Hesburgh rebuts letter charges

by Mike Baum

Assembled members of the faculty and administration last night heard University President Fr. Theobal M. Hesburgh announce that he would be entering a period of serious crisis... endemic to the total cause of American higher education.

Speaking at the annual President's Dinner, Fr. Hesburgh addressed himself to issues raised in two recent faculty letters concerning the administration of the University.

Stating that as president of the University, "there are two fruits I must do," Fr. Hesburgh said he wished "to assure all of you that we have not come to the point where conscientious advice is not welcome or can be given only in fear.

Secondly, Fr. Hesburgh said, "If I must be against anything it is that which polarized this community." Citing the "period of serious crisis" in higher education in this country, Fr. Hesburgh said, "The worst thing that can happen to us during this crisis is to become polarized. The moment we become disillusioned - at that moment we are finished.

Reading from his general letter to faculty members, which will be received this week, Fr. Hesburgh stated that he was not "at this time joining issue" with either the first letter, or the reply to it. He noted the current revision of the Faculty Manual, at present in committee. The manual will be discussed extensively by the full Academic Council in the fall, said Fr. Hesburgh, and he felt this "the appropriate time and place for this discussion.

Carnegie Report

Enclosed with the letter, will be a copy of the Carnegie Commission report on the state of higher education, dealing with a university's "wise and efficient use of resources." In this report, according to Fr. Hesburgh such recent steps as the guidelines on tenure faculty, and the regulations on research hours are "minimal proposals for the survival of any institution." The report is being given especial attention by the faculty members, and has not yet been released for publication.

"The fate of higher education is pretty dismal unless the universities are able to discipline themselves," Fr. Hesburgh said, adding, "only with flexibility, strength and humanity can we survive." Remarking that he wished to "put things in better perspective," Fr. Hesburgh said that recent attacks centered around the Provost, Fr. James T. Burtchaell. "May we discuss principles, not people, and facts, not impressions," he said.

Quoting a 1970 statement made by Fr. Burtchaell, Fr. Hesburgh emphasized, "a good administrator should be the major initiator of policy." "This policy should be put before a body to be "tested and tempered," Fr. Hesburgh said.

Assembled members of the faculty and administration last night heard University President Fr. Theobal M. Hesburgh announce that he would be entering a period of serious crisis... endemic to the total cause of American higher education.

In other, more personal matter, the SBI cleared up his summer plans. He said he would ascend on May 11 and rule in absentia for three months. All unfinished student government business would be left to Uncandidate the Cat, Student Body Vice-President.

"I can see no business during the summer that Uncandidate can't handle," Kersten said.

a good administrator

Hesburgh rebuts letter charges

by Mike Baum

Assembled members of the faculty and administration last night heard University President Fr. Theobal M. Hesburgh announce that he would be entering a period of serious crisis... endemic to the total cause of American higher education.

Speaking at the annual President's Dinner, Fr. Hesburgh addressed himself to issues raised in two recent faculty letters concerning the administration of the University.

Stating that as president of the University, "there are two fruits I must do," Fr. Hesburgh said he wished "to assure all of you that we have not come to the point where conscientious advice is not welcome or can be given only in fear.

Secondly, Fr. Hesburgh said, "If I must be against anything it is that which polarized this community." Citing the "period of serious crisis" in higher education in this country, Fr. Hesburgh said, "The worst thing that can happen to us during this crisis is to become polarized. The moment we become disillusioned - at that moment we are finished.

Reading from his general letter to faculty members, which will be received this week, Fr. Hesburgh stated that he was not "at this time joining issue" with either the first letter, or the reply to it. He noted the current revision of the Faculty Manual, at present in committee. The manual will be discussed extensively by the full Academic Council in the fall, said Fr. Hesburgh, and he felt this "the appropriate time and place for this discussion.

Carnegie Report

Enclosed with the letter, will be a copy of the Carnegie Commission report on the state of higher education, dealing with a university's "wise and efficient use of resources." In this report, according to Fr. Hesburgh such recent steps as the guidelines on tenure faculty, and the regulations on research hours are "minimal proposals for the survival of any institution." The report is being given especial attention by the faculty members, and has not yet been released for publication.

"The fate of higher education is pretty dismal unless the universities are able to discipline themselves," Fr. Hesburgh said, adding, "only with flexibility, strength and humanity can we survive." Remarking that he wished to "put things in better perspective," Fr. Hesburgh said that recent attacks centered around the Provost, Fr. James T. Burtchaell. "May we discuss principles, not people, and facts, not impressions," he said.

Quoting a 1970 statement made by Fr. Burtchaell, Fr. Hesburgh emphasized, "a good administrator should be the major initiator of policy." "This policy should be put before a body to be "tested and tempered," Fr. Hesburgh said.

"A good administrator should be the major initiator of policy." "This policy should be put before a body to be "tested and tempered," Hesburgh agreement. He offered, "My opinion of administration is that one should find the best people one can and turn them loose.

Most Chauvinistic

Commenting on other events, Fr. Hesburgh said of the merge attempt, "We thought it was a good thing to try to do, we all approached it in good will... it somehow didn't work out." On coordination, he commented, "I think it is a marvelous thing to be happening here. This is by all odds one of the most male chauvinist institutes in the world. It is one going to be easy to turn it around. I call upon all of you to get behind this and make it work.

Fr. Hesburgh also announced the resignation of the University of several honorary degrees, the most familiar name on the list being, perhaps, Vice­ President for Special Projects Sr. Alma Peter.

Fr. Hesburgh cited Sr. Alma as a woman of "great courage and great integrity, somewhat maligned by the media here at the University... a person perhaps hurt more, by our failure (at merger) than anybody else.

The President's address was preceded by a brief talk in praise of the faculty by Edmund Stephan, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and by the announcement of faculty promotions for 1972 by the Provost.
Salgin - Two South Vietnamese fire bases on the approaches to the city of Hue were attacked by North Vietnamese troops as the city itself braced for attack. Big. Gen. Thomas W. Bowen, the sentio American advisor in the region, said that serious attacks could be expected in the next few days.

Ottawa — The Canadian government announced that all prospective buyers of Canadian businesses worth at least $250,000 and whose employees exceeded 250 were to be reviewed by the cabinet level. Unless the review found that the purchase would result in significant benefit to Canada, it would not be permitted.

Washington — Albert E. Pass, a member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, was arrested in Kentucky in connection with the slayings of former union official Joseph A. Yablonski, his wife and daughter. He is the highest ranking U.M.W. official linked to the murders.

New York — Three police sergeants, 10 patrolmen and one policewoman were arrested after they had been indicted by a Brooklyn Grand Jury on charges of having accepted $250,000 in bribes to protect gamblers. The arrests followed the suicide Monday of a police lieutenant who had been under investigation and, according to District Attorney Eugene Gold, would also have been indicted.

The report of the Advisory Committee on Coeducation, designed to cover everything from renovations in Baslin and Walsh Halls to "role models for women," is due for release later this week or early next week, according to committee chairman Sr. Elena Malike, C.S.C. The report was scheduled to be published for May 1, but according to Sr. Elena, "as the committee got more and more into its work, it found its scope broadening, and the report became more than what we had originally envisioned."

The committee was appointed by University President Rev. James T. Burtchaell, C.S.C., shortly before Easter vacation. Since then, it has worked in three major areas affected by coeducation. These areas correspond to the three subcommittees established by the Badin Raffle for Sr. Marita.

by Dan Ryan

A 1972 Philco Color TV, with automatic fine tuning will be raffled off this week by the residents of Badin Hall. All proceeds will go to charity. The T.V. is valued at over $440. Chances will be sold Wednesday, and Thursday May 3 at both dining halls during both the lunch and dinner hours. Cost per person is 50 cents or three for a dollar.

The drawing will be held Friday May 5 at noon from the porch of Badin.

Charities under consideration are Sr. Marita's Primary School, Logan Center and Rev. George Nockes, CSC who is involved in work in Bangladesh.

Chi Symphony Trio performs Friday

The Chicago Symphony Trio will perform a program of Brahms, Kodaly and Arentsly at 4:30 p.m. May 5 (Friday) at the University of Notre Dame's Library Auditorium. Victor Altay (violin), Frank Miller (piano) and Clara Siegel (piano) are members of the Chicago Symphony and Altay is also a resident of the Notre Dame's String Quartet. Their appearance is sponsored by the Department of Music, and is open to the public without charge.

ELTON JOHN TONIGHT

WED, MAY 3
3:30 in the ACC
Ticket Prices
$4.50
$2.75

Tickets
ACC Office
9 am 5 pm
& opens again at 7:30 pm

PROOF
OF AGE
REQUIRED
NOW THRU TUES.

Elton John, acc

at notre dame - st. mary's
J. Edgar Hoover, whose tenure as Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for 48 years and built it into a dominant and controversial force in American law enforcement died today, March 20, 1972, from a massive blood pressure.

He was 72 years of age still given the news and reports of it the death at 11 a.m., after F.B.I. began to circulate here.

HE Hoover was born in Washington on New Year's Day in 1895, the youngest of three children of Dickinson Average Hoover, an easy-going federal official, and the former Annie M. Scheinbl, the granddaughter of Switzerland's first Consul General in America.

Mrs. Hoover, who has been described as "Old-world strict," recalled in not an intense discipline and stern sensitivity to moralism. By all accounts, she was the dominant influence on his childhood.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.

His flattened nose was the result of a hard-hit baseball although he was never a good athlete. In his disappointment, young Hoover sought the the most intense and serious to the school's military drill team, of which he became the 1915-year-old cadet. According to one biographer, he never had a regular girl friend in high school; friends teased him, "Anne M., Mrs. Hoover," before he went away ever after.
McGovern, Humphrey locked in Ohio race

by Douglas E. Kneeland
(c) 1972 New York Times

Columbus, Ohio - Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, who had withdrawn from active campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, switched back to the stump tonight in a presidential primary contest that was marred by voting-hour problems in some states.

The two candidates were locked in a first-ballot race in Ohio tonight. With more than a million labor union members and a million college or university students to cast their ballots, the outcome was uncertain.

Humphrey sought to capitalize on blue-collar workers and blacks, and he did not visit a single Ohio college or university, a considerable shift from his usual tactics.

Muskie was withdrawn from active campaigning following decisive defeats by McGovern in Massachusetts and Humphrey in Pennsylvania, the confusion multiplied.

What had been expected to be a three-man race suddenly became essentially a two-way contest. Left stranded without an active candidate were Gov. John J. Gilligan and most of the other prominent Democrats in the state, who had been on Muskie's delegate list.

In a few areas, such as Toledo and Cincinnati, Muskie delegates continued to press for the election to their at large and district slates, but the Governor ceased canvassing for his five delegates.

One of the few indications of how the blue-collar areas might have voted came from Lorain County, traditionally Democratic, where Muskie had about a 4-to-3 edge over Humphrey.

There will be 32 Indiana delegates to the Democratic National Convention in June, and that group will automatically get all the at-large delegates as well as the 153 Democratic convention delegates being selected at large. The remainder of the 19 at-large delegates on the first ballot are not fit on the machines.

The voting machine problem is only the latest confusing element in this election.

Humphrey defeated Wallace in Indiana

by Seth S. King
(c) 1972 New York Times

Indianapolis - Senator Hubert H. Humphrey won a slight, narrow victory over Governor George C. Wallace in the Indiana Presidential Primary last night. The Alabama Governor, who was winning at least 48 of Indiana's 76 districts, was leading in the at-large convention ballot. Wallace was leading six of the 11 Congressional districts, which would give him 27 delegates.

With 79 percent of the state's 440 precincts reporting, Humphrey had 233,091 votes, or 46 percent. Wallace had 212,079, or 42 percent. Muskie had 90,088, or 18 percent.

The Alabama Governor's percentage of the total vote was the highest he has held in any primary state, and as large as he won in New York.

From the trend developing with more than half the vote in, Humphrey appeared to be running well in greater Indianapolis, though Wallace was getting a slightly larger number in some Indianapolis suburbs, where the possibility of busing school children has been a disturbing problem.

Wallace, as was expected, was running ahead of Humphrey in the Lake County area. But in the city of Gary, with its large black population, the vote had not been counted yet and Mr. Humphrey should draw very well from that area.

The results of today's balloting will get the benefit of carrying a moderate number of Democratic state committee members, whose votes represent a typical mixture of urban and rural areas.

But the 74 delegates Indiana will send to the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach will be bound by the outcome of today's election only on the first ballot of the convention. The delegates themselves will not be selected until the Democratic National Convention in June, and that group may well favor one or several other candidates on later ballots.

The winner in each of the state's 11 Congressional districts will get the first-ballot support of the delegates apportioned to that district. In addition, the statewide winner will get the 19 at-large delegates on the first ballot.

There will be 52 Indiana delegates at the Republican National Convention. President Nixon is unopposed on the Republican Primary Ballot and will automatically get all 52.

With only Humphrey, Wallace and Sen. Roman B. Mankiewicz as Democratic ballot, the choice has been a narrow one.

And Muskie's withdrawal last week from active campaigning left many regular Democrats only with the incentive of uniting behind Humphrey to block a Wallace victory.

Despite the distraction of campaigning in neighboring Ohio, which also held its presidential primary today, Humphrey has managed to cover about as much of Indiana as Wallace has in the last two weeks.

Although busing of school children is a highly emotional issue in Indianapolis and Evansville, and local taxes are a burden in Indiana as anywhere else in the country, these questions have dominated the campaign.

Humphrey sought to capitalize on the issue earlier than the other candidates. Jackson campaigned hard in the state, spending most of his time in the last two weeks in what would be considered the more conservative working-class districts in rural areas. By the end of his drive, his principal theme was an attack on McGovern for what he termed his leftist positions on Humphrey for assertively having failed to make his stand on the issues clear.
Alumni Hall proposes plan for coed living

Alumni Hall president Butch Ward has announced his plan to release to the University his hall’s proposed plan for coeducational living.

Ward said that the report has been in the making since last October, when he, Ron Pogue, past president of the hall, and Hector Fr. Denis Madden began work on what he termed to be a definitive page document.

The proposal was originally meant to be an experiment to be conducted this semester, but because of time limitations and also because of the fact that the sponsors of the plan felt that they should “sound out” some members of the administrative faculty, the proposal is instead being suggested for next year.

Concerning the sounding out, Ward said that the primary purpose was to get new opinions and ideas on the plan. He further said that the co-residents were not out to shock the University; rather, they want this to be seriously considered.

“The president said, ‘We’re not out to make noise; we want to present the Administration and Board of Trustees with a definitive plan which they could take seriously.’”

Too Soon?

Ward also said that perhaps one of the reasons that the University might oppose coeducational living is that they might feel it is coming too soon, that is going straight from incorporating women into the coed dorms.

Of this, Ward said that the hall has already taken steps to insure a type of “middle steps” which would entail the establishment of orientation committees to begin to acclimate some women to the prospect of living with men.

By working with the Notre Dame counseling department, we could get women on our social and academic commissions and hold symposiums to show women just exactly what it is like to live with men. And vice versa, it would also give Alumni Hall men an opportunity to see what coeducational living entails,” Ward added.

The “salt and pepper” arrangement includes room-by-room changes that would have to be made in the event that coeducational living comes about, reasons for coed dorms, reports from other colleges and some necessary conditions and prerequisites.

The major stated reason concerns the improvement of hall life. Ward said that there has to be “a great improvement in hall life,” and that he feels that this plan would accomplish this purpose.

Major Objective

The plan states that the major objective of coed living is the possible promiscuity that could result. It continues, however, to say “we do not seek to have women residents to exist solely to satisfy selfishly use each other, but rather to grow and learn from each other...we want to share our university community... It also cites other cases of coeducational living where promiscuity did not develop; instead, a type of “family” arrangement “brother-sister” relationships developed instead of sexual ones.

As for the matter of the possibility of grades dropping, the report cites cases where the students’ grade-point averages went up throughout the entire coed hall.

Ward expressed the hope that this report has brought the University “perhaps four years closer to coeducational living than it was.”

WHAT’S HAPPENING THIS WEEKEND

If there’s one time you need a friend...

...it’s when you seek employment. That’s our business. When you are seeking employment or a step-up from your present job, visit us. You’ll become involved in our solutions to your problem. And it’s something about it. That’s why we’re here. Our consulting is aimed at bettering your present job, we’re not going to make a friend. And we will use.

Snelling-Stinger

World’s Largest Professional Employment Service

Call 674-8384

Notre Dame Poets POETRY READING readings by students:

Rick Fitzgerald, Dan O’Donnell, Cathy Wolfe,
Mary Pat Quinlan, John Coury, Gary Robinson,
Jim Wilson, and Eileen Dugan

SUN. MAY 7, 2:00 pm LIBRARY AUD.,

LIQUORS BEER WINE DANCING TAKE-OUT & PIZZA

403 N. 2nd St. Niles, Mich.
Phone 683-9783

GRAND OPENING

All ND & SMC Students Welcome
Have the SLC vote in September

The upcoming SLC elections have been called off. The obviously (and painfully) apparent reason is that only two of the new election districts have an actual race. Districts V and VI of the six divisions are the races contested.

It would be a mockery of the entire election process to ballot when four people (out of the eight of which the commission will be composed) are running uncontested.

Better to hold the elections three weeks after the next term begins. This will not only give more time for the possible candidates to consider issues and plans, but it will facilitate in better representation in that it will allow incoming freshmen and the women who will be living here next year to take an active role in the elections for the Student Life Commission.

In addition, since Bob Kersten has proposed a plan which will greatly limit the number of people who take part in the running of Student Government, this election takes on tremendous importance. The eight people elected assume effective control of Student Government. They should be elected at a time when the entire student body can take an effective part in their election.

Since March 1, games have been played with, and at the expense of student government. A point must be reached where the people playing those games come to the realization that they are playing with real people and situations, not chess pieces on a board. To have the elections for commissioners now would only prolong the game. Hopefully, some type of effective reality in the running of student government can be reached by next year.

John Abowd
Don Hopfer

Foreign affairs

A sadness in the family

C. L. Sulzberger

(e) 1972 New York Times News Service

Rome-The saddest aspect of Italy's current election campaign, which ends with a critical vote on Sunday, is the pattern of violence and organized terrorism on its fringes of extremism, particularly that of the revolutionary left.

This is especially tragic because it can have no serious influence on the outcome and because the left-wing youngsters chiefly involved are in fact working against their own interests by encouraging a reactionary backlash and adding strength to the small but growing new-Fascist movement.

Almost certainly the balloting will demonstrate once more that almost two-thirds of the electorate backs a center-dominated coalition which, after much bickering, will again be led by the stodgy Christian Democrats, while the main opposition continues to be the sclerotic, if massive, communist party.

The youthful extremists, numbers of whom come from prosperous and cultivated families, are therefore expending blood and dreams on a chimera employing the Italian personal trait of individualism fullfils against the Italian national trait of submission.

Yet many a family has been riven by this phenomenon and few more unhappily than that of Luigi Barzini, the brilliant author, journalist, and liberal party politician. Barzine's two sons are deeply committed to 'workers' power,' one of the most violent of the 'Gruppuscoli,' as the revolutionary factions are known, and one of the youngsters is in a Sicilian prison, charged with distributing incendiary pamphlets.

Barzine's step-son by an earlier marriage, Giangiacomo Feltrinelli, a blazingly successful publisher famed for issuing the first edition in any language of Pasternak's 'Doctor Zhivago,' was passionately committed to the terrorist left. He was killed in a mysterious explosion this spring, apparently while preparing to blow up power pylons near Milan.

In a deeply moving reflection, Barzini-a political conservative-recalls: "I myself was a rebel against the Italian academic, bourgeois, provincial habits....and yet, he adds: "Perhaps we could not understand each other because we were utterly different."

"This is the kind of man who is common in Italy and who is able...to go from an extremist movement (Fascism) to the opposite (Communism) provided it be illiberal and mythological, without stopping at the stage of the ideas (maybe boring and too serious because they don't promise any miracles but only toil) of the bourgeois revolution, of freedom laboriously conquered and defended every day, allow problems to be faced and gradually solved, tolerating--or rather extracting and using--what is valid as dissident and heretical movements."

After Feltrinelli joined the communists, Barzini observed: "That he would have abandoned the party as soon as he would have felt its discipline, its control, its constraints, and as soon as he would have noticed that it was not an organization of terrorists and dynamiters, spreading the corpses of foes in the streets at night, but a vast, cautious, for its own sake, was clear to anyone who knew him...

"The secret plot is always a fascinating explanation for the right-wing...It is impossible not to feel respect for his sacrifice... Pisacane (a hero of the Risorgimento) also met his death with courage and levity, under the illusion he could provoke an outcome and because the left-wing political fans..."Barzine's step-son by an earlier marriage, Giangiacomo Feltrinelli, a blazingly successful publisher famed for issuing the first edition in any language of Pasternak's 'Doctor Zhivago,' was passionately committed to the terrorist left. He was killed in a mysterious explosion this spring, apparently while preparing to blow up power pylons near Milan.

In a deeply moving reflection, Barzini-a political conservative-recalls: "I myself was a rebel against the Italian academic, bourgeois, provincial habits....and yet, he adds: "Perhaps we could not understand each other because we were utterly different."

"This is the kind of man who is common in Italy and who is able...to go from an extremist movement (Fascism) to the opposite (Communism) provided it be illiberal and mythological, without stopping at the stage of the ideas (maybe boring and too serious because they don't promise any miracles but only toil) of the bourgeois revolution, of freedom laboriously conquered and defended every day, allow problems to be faced and gradually solved, tolerating--or rather extracting and using--what is valid as dissident and heretical movements."

After Feltrinelli joined the communists, Barzini observed: "That he would have abandoned the party as soon as he would have felt its discipline, its control, its constraints, and as soon as he would have noticed that it was not an organization of terrorists and dynamiters, spreading the corpses of foes in the streets at night, but a vast, cautious, for its own sake, was clear to anyone who knew him...

"The secret plot is always a fascinating explanation for the right-wing...It is impossible not to feel respect for his sacrifice... Pisacane (a hero of the Risorgimento) also met his death with courage and levity, under the illusion he could provoke an outcome and because the left-wing political fans..."
the mystery of the countryside

tom thurber

The mystery of the countryside unfolded during a time of drought. The corn didn't grow, the fields were bare, the Lethebrook dried up, and the sun grew hotter, brighter. The forest, inside and outside, the sound of God, dancing, prancing through the air, to give comfort, lovingly. They would know if they were alone and frightened, losing the work ethic or gone back to street mobs used to treat private property with wanton disrespect. They must be celebrated, even when the light of his campfire, he saw that their clothes were filthy.' They smelled terrible, agreed to wash, put on clean pants and said Henreddy, "Tell me."

I woke them that he was going to send them all to Trenton for 30 days unless they agreed to wash, put on clean pants and curl their hair so that it was no more than two inches long at the forehead, didn't come below eye level at the sideburns and was two inches above the collar in the back."

I woke and the morning, washed, and went to an ancient grove of trees, dug a hole, and sat singing all day far away, heated silent song. Every morning, everyday. Some mornings, some days, they have a chance of finding, but not if you're late. It moves from morning till night that impression. Instant glimpse of our living space. The brightness is often dismayed of what we see, what we are. We all board that ark, illusions we did not see. A few stayed behind to battle the new, to change the day. Until the holocaust.

I woke this morning as I had many mornings before, remembering how I had died among and with the rest. It was a time, recalled in not days or years, when all artists died. (We had created illusions, the punishment severe) Howling, begging for forgiveness, a tiny new fire. I couldn't remember the ones who died or the ones who were living. The close contact I once favored had left to be missed.

I wandered.

I walked near Rock House again and heard a rhythm music. The earth is young again in our natural vocation. We need no pondering. Please join us! It's spring now time to live again.

1) Who was Mr. Television?
2) Who was nicknamed the "First Lady of Television"?
3) Name the two famous parents of the immortal kid?
4) Name these people's famous "pets":
   - Gene Autry's horse
   - Roy Roger's dog
   - Cisco Kid?
5) After being named NFL Commissioner, what was the first controversy those heard during the An Tostal Trivia (The Invaders is the wrong answer).
6) Who played the policeman in Yancy Derringer?
7) Who said those immortal words to Alan Ladd, "Come back, Shane?"
8) Who wrote "The Homecoming"?
9) Who created the character, "Swingin' Safari."
10) Who played the lead part in "Big Valley'?
11) Name the Drydenville store that fronted for the UNCLE organization.
12) What was the correct name of the restaurant next to 77 Sunset Strip?
13) What was the name of Jon and Gordon's homing pigeon on The Wild, Wild West?

...in the mystery of the countryside...

...the observation of self and its relationship to the whole. I am particularly aware of sound, the audibility. Vibration, daze, dream, the movement through TV, give pleasure, to warm, Sounds are clouded and not in any framework of empirical observations. The rustling of a windbreak forest, inside and outside, the sound of God, one million leaves humming.

...the sound rang from a chorus. Millions of suns, million moons, million stillness, I went indoors and fell a sleepless slumber. I woke in the morning with blood on my tail. In my village, the class, the clash; the prophet as artist and the artist as prophet. The Renaissance, commanded recent centuries. The link was near.

The new epic. Men found the key to God. The new epic. Men found the key to God. The new epic. Men found the key to God.

Washington - A scant four years into the future and we shall be kept in a nightmare of American Government: 1976 - 200th anniversary of the American - Oh boy! A 20th anniversary cannot be ignored or whistled away. Anniversaries are as American as the greeting card industry and counter-revolutionary politicians.

They may be celebrated, even when they are anniversaries of - dare we breathe the word - revolution.

Government, even upon the shore of menace, has taken forces deployed, trying to arrange something moving yet dull for the occasion. Little has been accomplished so far because the task forces have been too busy investigating their members to make sure they all hate revolution. Many, many meetings are held, however; meetings of groups like the Task Force on heroes, chaired by Art Basom of the White House Staff.

Bascom opened last week's meeting by asking if anyone had come up with any genuine revolutionary heroes who could be celebrated in 1976 without giving people the idea that revolutionaries could get away with any rough stuff. Perhaps suggested Roginalt Blintz Quimper, Blintz Quimper, it seems, was an off-duty policeman in Boston during the time street mobs used to treat private property with wanton disrespect. They were living on top of the tea, the mob began dumping it into the water.

"Where was the National Guard?" asked Bascom.

"The forces of law and order were handcuffed by indecisive leadership and a series of court decisions that made it very hard for police to get convictions from men who threw tea into harbors," Perkins said.

Blintz-Quimper happened to be passing the adjacent ship. Mary Anne, which had a large cargo of sugar, at the moment one of the mob said, "Let's go for the Mary Anne." Blintz-Quimper suggested that the people who put sugar in tea, drew his fork and threatened to shoot anybody who failed to treat the sugar with respect.

"There were men of courage in those days," Bascom murmured, "but the gods sounds to me like he might have wound up on the King's side. That hyphenated name... Blintz-Quimper. A guy with a name like that could have wound up on the same side as the House of Lords."

...in the mystery of the countryside...

"Sir, I couldn't work or change or grow..."

"Yes, Sir,..."

"I am naked here and not living..."

"After all, I am naked here and not living..."

"The mystery of the countryside unfolded during a time of drought. The corn didn't grow, the fields were bare, the Lethebrook dried up, and the sun grew hotter, brighter. The forest, inside and outside, the sound of God, dancing, prancing through the air, to give comfort, lovingly. They would know if they were alone and frightened, losing the work ethic or gone back to street mobs used to treat private property with wanton disrespect. They must be celebrated, even when..."

...in the mystery of the countryside...
Dr. James Massey

A faculty letter from overseas

The voice of the Observer is heard across the Atlantic!

While the signers of the letter intitled "The Future of Notre Dame" (which appeared in your issue of March number) include many who I consider Notre Dame’s finest faculty members and several of my closest friends, I am, as I have been saying all these years, simply compelled to register my complete disagreement with the thesis of that letter. This thesis, in a nutshell, is that Notre Dame is converging toward a Fourth Reich of which I will be the Fuehrer, James T. Hesburgh, C.S.C., now merely Provost—although only a temporary retreat from the hallowed academic tradition of obliterating Burtchell’s name appears nowhere in the body of the letter.

The main evidence adduced for this thesis by the nearly anonymous writer were the following items:

1. The severity of "overworked load" on the faculty resulting from the Provost’s "new twelve-hour equivalent teaching load" rule.

2. The fact that I joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1962, was told that the standard teaching load was 18 hours a week, taught 16 hours, taught 14 hours, including a 3 hour night class, in the final year, these numbers will be the same, and is used to even out the load on individuals. All too often an individual hour teaching load would be equally distributed to the actual load. I believe that the Provost intended his rule as a yardstick for measuring the contributions of all faculty members. This is not my standard and I believe wise practice in these times of ever-increasing enrollments. Notre Dame is the name of the school which do the most and most effective teaching, who do the most research, and who do the most supervision of student research. Yet, at present, these overworked people are generally required to do the same amount of academic housekeeping (registration duties, service on time-consuming minor committees, etc.) as those more leisureed brethren.

3. The alleged creation of an elite (the Natzs) among the faculty to follow from the Provost’s recently announced rule that at least one-half and no more than two-thirds of the faculty in any department shall be tenured. The writer concludes that “the number of available places is fixed, those who have them and those who want them are bound to be in tension.” To me, the central conclusion is obvious: “If there is to be any change (which I doubt) it is the relations between the tenured and non-tenured faculty resulting from this rule. It will be more bootlicking by the latter of the former as the non-tenured faculty members jockey for the favors of the Appointments and Promotions Committee on which only the tenured may serve.” I happen to think that this new rule is wise one provided it is regarded as a norm to be approached and is open to exceptions with sufficient justification. It will tend to cause a balanced distribution of ages in the departmental faculty with a preponderance neither of greybeards nor young Turks (I must admit), however, that this rule will indeed place a greater psychological strain on the non-tenured faculty, but I believe this is a necessary evil in the first-rate university. It also places the non on the tenured faculty of members of the same university and Christian community to lessen this strain by all possible means. We might profit from the example of M.I.T. (which has a much more restrictive tenure policy) which now possesses a wide open departmental faculty benefits several free visits to a psychiatrist. I do not make this suggestion facetiously. Notre Dame has not yet come to grips with the real mental strains on both faculty and students in the first-rate university which we have only lately sensed.

4. The introduction by the Provost of the mandatory course evaluation system which will allegedly “corrupt good teaching” (the Gestapo system). I fail to see how the information obtained from these student evaluations can be anything but beneficial and I have much more faith in the writer than in the ability of students to render a fair and accurate judgment. In fact, I cannot imagine how I or my faculty colleagues could sign a letter which alleged that “one’s preparation for class...or one’s knowledge of the subject...is fake,” a claim which is entirely contrary to all my experience.

(Continued on page 12)
HOOVER CHECKED RADICALS, KKK

(Continued from page 3)

Hoover took charge of assembling a card file on lawlessness and brutality are more to be relied upon. The modern bureau -- renamed the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1935 -- was born. And when the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. said that Southern blacks could not turn to their local F.B.I. office -- a controversial tool of power, he was being the Civil Rights Movement.

Hoover'spower was a compound of force and diplomacy and publicity and personality. At the end of it, however, there was an additional tool to the Bureau -- an extraordinary record of innovation and modernization in law enforcement -- most of it in the first decade or so of his tenure.

The centralized fingerprint file (the print total has passed the 200-million mark) at the Identification Division (1905) and the crime lab (1927) had gained the gradual application of science to police work. The National Crime Information Center enables local law enforcement agencies to enter records and get questions answered on a network of 35 computer systems.

Discipline and Morale

For Hoover, his personal grip on all the important strings was the organizing principle of the Bureau. He had everything to do with discipline and morale: Hoover made the FBI assignments and the commissionate transfers. It had a lot to do with the agency's efficiency and its incomparable record of probity. Hoover had power over the Hoover inspection system, there were no secrets and no independent power centers in the F.B.I. In recent years, the system also seemed to have influenced the Bureau from taking worthwhile risks. There is a curious phrase that echo's through the bureau: "There is a chance of a Hoover over Wallace in Ind.

(Continued from page 5)

Wallace would consider the 30 percent of the total vote a very good showing. But through today, Gordon S. Angelo, the Democratic state chairman, has insisted that Wallace had the potential to win Florida. And with the exception of Florida, where he got 12 percent, this would be the last chance Wallace has in the South.

Humphrey over Wallace in Ind.

Nore Dame - St. Mary's Theatre presents

SHOWBOAT

A musical by Kern & Hammerstein II

April 28, 29, May 4, 5
8:30 p.m. in Loughlin Auditorium
Tickets $2.50, $2 for students, ND-SMC faculty, staff.
Information and Reservations at 284-4114, 284-4118

WE'RE MOVING JUNE 1st:
COMMUNITY NEWSSTAND
to 113 W. Monroe St. South Bend, I-a

Student discount

Rates in Hilton Hotels from Boston to Honolulu.
(Faculty and graduate school students get a discount too.)

Let us send you a pamphlet listing the Hilton Hotels and Inns that offer special student rates. Also a Hilton Student Identification Card to use whenever you register.
Mail this coupon to Hilton Hotels Corporation,
Travel Department, National Sales Division, 9880
Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, California 90210.

We want to make it easy for you to come visit
the

Hilton K

Name...
Address...
City...
State...
Zip...
College...
Class...

These Cabinet Positions Are Open:

Executive Coordinator
Research and Development
Hall Life
Human Affairs
Academic Affairs
Public Relations Office
Ombudsman Judicial

Apply in the Student Government Office by May 3.

Support expected for Development

Walk on May 13

by Stan Podlesek

Project workers are reported to be optimistic about receiving support from the Notre Dame and St. Mary's students for the Mishawaka Development Walks. The event will be held Saturday May 13.

Larry Maloney, a teacher at St. Mary's Academy working on the project, said registration for the walk would begin 8 o'clock Saturday at Potawatomi Park, located at Mishawaka Ave. and Ironwood Dr.

One out of every one of many sponsored by the country by the National Housing Authority. Students are asked to find people willing to walk for an entry fee of $10, $100, and $50 per mile, and then walk as much of the 35 mile route as they can.

The total walk will be distributed by this rate: 15 percent to the Notre Dame and St. Mary's students for local projects; 42.5 percent for foreign projects.

Local projects will include a variety of juvenile delinquency programs for boys in Indiana Boys Homes, a health program on West Washington St., and equipment and food for a Day Care Center.

Money will be spent abroad in Equador, Mozambique, and Portugal.

One of the reasons mentioned by Maloney for ND-SMC participation is the 'public relations' people along the route are friendly to the students. The 1967 walk was sponsored by mostly high school, participated in last year's walk. Officials hope that help from ND-SMC, PAN, a controversial tool for smooth things out in Mishawaka, twice that number will walk this year.

FRANKIE'S
evety dinner specials
- Ocean Perch $1.25
- 10 oz. Rib-Eye Steak $1.50
- ½ Broasted Chicken $1.50

Includes Tureen Soup, Salad, Bread, Butter and Coffee
Planning a Party? Frankie's has Special Rates for Student Parties!
Fernandos voted Pan Am head

The Pan American club elected Juan Carlos Fernandos president at its final meeting this year.

Other newly elected club officers are:

- Juan E. Rivera, vice-president
- Paul Romo, treasurer
- Cesar Munecas, secretary
- Rodolfo Saborje, committee coordinator

The club created the post of committee coordinator to orient the activities of the club's regular committees.

Eight faculty members granted emeritus status

The promotion to emeritus (retired) status of eight faculty members at the University of Notre Dame who have a combined total of 232 years of service to the University, was announced yesterday by Theodore Hesburgh, C.S.C., President.

Also announced at the annual President's dinner in the North Dining Hall were the promotions of six members of the teaching and research faculty to the rank of professor. It is the 11th in the rank of associate professor, one to assistant professor, and two promotions on the library faculty.

In addition, nine faculty members were honored for 25 years of service.

Named to emeritus status were Dr. Andrew J. Boyle, assistant dean of Freshman Year of Studies and professor of chemistry; Dr. Anna Harnett Christoff, professor of history and law; Bernard B. Finnan, associate professor of accounting; Louis L. Hasley, professor of English, Rev. Edmund J. Murray, C.S.C., assistant professor of history; Dr. Gustave Hendricks, professor of government and international studies; Dr. Julian Sabogal, associate professor of economics; and Dr. Richard F. Otter, professor of mathematics.

Associated professors promoted to the rank of professor were Drs. Gerhard Binsch and James P. Dasey, chemistry; Dr. William I. Davison, economics; Dr. Ronald J. Dunaway, philosophy; Dr. Michael C. Sain, electrical engineering, and Dr. Clagett G. Smith, sociology.

Assistant professors promoted to associate professor were Reginald Catesby Taliaferro, associate professor of history; John A. Brown, professor of government and international studies; Dr. Julian Sabogal, associate professor of economics; and Dr. Richard F. Otter, professor of mathematics.

dr. Andrew J. Boyle, assistant dean of Freshman Year of Studies and professor of chemistry; Dr. Anna Harnett Christoff, professor of history and law; Bernard B. Finnan, associate professor of accounting; Louis L. Hasley, professor of English, Rev. Edmund J. Murray, C.S.C., assistant professor of history; Dr. Gustave Hendricks, professor of government and international studies; Dr. Julian Sabogal, associate professor of economics; and Dr. Richard F. Otter, professor of mathematics.
Eric Kinkofp

Good night Mrs. Calabash...

(To Mom and Dad, for without their love and sacrifice, there would be nothing to write.)

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with our future that lays down the law of houses ... any place that you had made with difficulty and affection your . Leaving the seaside after the summer was over .. .leaving

More on love ...

"More on love sleep on your pillow and a song in your heart."

Merrill Moore

"The living warmth of human hands ..."

Alexandre Charles August Bisson

"The only serious threat to Eich's lead came in the final stanza. An ordinary double put the bases loaded with two down, but Eich dug in and threw hard. A few other double plays could have been seemingly the closest caller in the league. Bug passe, a man-made blue- lined that the ball had gone through the fence, making a ground rule double mandatory, and innings of success that serves as the basis, and immediately the wind shifted and the leaves began to brush the ground."

Pepys, The Diary of

"Touch of Human Hands"

Edwin Arnold

"We are one by one shared four good years with

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with

Just a few borrowed thoughts on four years at Notre Dame,
Louisa May Alcott

"We are one by one shared four good years with
Dr. James Massey

Viewpoint faculty

Provost not faultless

(Continued from page 4)

with his chairperson and most influential chairman and he and his dean are the aping of the Provost, and if that style is dictatorial, then it is also dictatorial that the Provost's and, if two such apes can be remade in the image of their positions of authority.

The Provost's being set aside, I offer my agreement with the underlying tone in the matter, namely that the voice of the Notre Dame faculty is insufficient in strength in matters of University policy. I do not, however, want to assert that the blame for this sorry state of affairs is not the fault of himself and his faculty. Actually, for the Academic Council—which under the provisions of the Faculty Manual is the prime instrument for regulating the academic life of the University—is a mortified body simply because the bulk of the faculty members of this body do no work in preparation for its meetings. For several years, I served on the steering committee of the Academic Council. During this period, all save one of the legislative items prepared by the Steering Committee were accepted intact by the Council. The reasons members of the Steering Committee had necessarily done a good deal of homework while preparing the legislation and were able quite easily to counter any objections offered by the members of the Council (many of whom did not even read the legislation before the Council met). Therefore the reasoning of the Steering Committee occurred at the expense of the teaching and administrative faculty. I now submit that the fault is theirs, not their positions of authority, while preparing the legislation and were served on the Steering Committee of the (Continued from page 6)

12

the observer

Wednesday, May 3, 1972

WANTED

Need ride to Minneapolis. May 4 or 5. 21-25. Call 824-2745.

Need ride to Cincinnati. May 3, return May 7. Call 370.

Need ride to U. of I this weekend. Call 275-3743.

Ride for two to Ann Arbor Friday afternoon. Call 187.

Ride for two to Chicago on Thursday and Friday May 5. Call Joe 145.

Ride desperately needed to NJ this weekend. Call 58.

Wanted: we will do typing anytime for reasonable price. Especially typesetting. Call Chio 826-5942.

TYPING. term papers, technical reports, resumes, etc. professionally done. See Mrs. Reiter, T. Y. Memorial Library, room 240.

Work on weekends. 12 year experience. Reasonable. Call after 4 pm. 276-9902 or 276-3745.

Wanted: metal file cabinet, used 3 drawer. AC 29.

Wanted: 2 white girls for personal international correspondence, much security. AC 26.

WANTED

SUNNY DAYS NURSING HOME: Sales representative needed. Call 324-2999.

SUNNY DAYS NURSING HOME: Housekeeper. Call 324-2999.

WANTED

SUNNY DAYS NURSING HOME: Housekeeper. Call 324-2999.

WANTED

Seniors selling furniture: two couches, coffee table, stereo, bar table, lamps, manila and assorted other furniture. Call 272-1985 or after 7 pm.

WANTED

OPPORTUNITIES DURING SPRING BREAK: Sells several businesses. Call 324-2227.

TYPING: term papers, technical reports, resumes, etc. professionally done. See Mrs. Reiter, T. Y. Memorial Library, room 240. 24 hour service.

SERVICE

ANY TYPING DONE: 222-0136.

WILL BUY: wanted real photographic prints of anything at value. Call Mrs. Coles, 510-9690.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.

HAPPY DAY CARE CENTRE: Teacher for 3 grad student. 10 to 3. 3 grad student. Room and meals. Call 412-4617.