Security officer hit-skip victim

by Jeff McPherson
Observer Staff Reporter

Notre Dame security officer Richard W. Binasz remained in serious condition at St. Joseph Hospital Monday after being hit by a car Friday night while patrolling the university parking lots.

Binasz, a Notre Dame off campus student working in his second year for the Security Department, was walking along Juniper Road between parking lots CI and DI when the incident occurred.

He was well off the road when the vehicle veered onto the grassy shoulder region and struck him. The car failed to stop.

Kevin Durbar, another security officer, was walking with Binasz at the time of the accident, but was not hit.

The car was identified as a 1968-69 Nova with extensive damage to the front end and possibly with Michigan license plates. St. Joseph County, Indiana State and Michigan state police are cooperating in the search to locate the vehicle.

In another incident reported to the Security Department over the weekend, $705 in stereo equipment, $275 in cash, an electric typewriter and a radio were stolen from room 35 in Pangborn Hall.

Security personnel are also investigating the weekend theft of two bicycles, one from the Grace Tower vicinity and another from the northern end of campus.

A car parked in the Stepan Center parking lot was vandalized with several hammer strokes to the windshield. Also over the weekend and early Monday morning the candy machine in the first floor of Flanner Tower was forcibly entered and the money removed.

Security begins to register bikes

by Greg Ryan

A program for bicycle registration will be available soon to aid in the identification of bikes stolen on the campus. The student government project, under the direction of Jim Clarke, coordinator of Peers, will allow ND cyclists to register their bikes with the security department for a charge of seventy-five cents. Bikes will then be filed by the name of the owner, make, and serial number, under the direction of the Bike Project, under the direction of the Bike Project, under the direction of the Bike Project, under the direction of the Bike Project, under the direction of the Bike Project, under the direction of the Bike Project.

According to the head of campus security, Mr. Arthur Peers, out of the sixteen bikes stolen on campus so far this year, only two have had serial numbers. "The most important part of the registration is the serial number," stated Peers. "Because it is hard for the owner to claim his bike without it.

Peers doesn't feel that the thefts are the works of an organized ring, but that students are losing track of their bikes. He cited as an example the case of two South Bend students who were apprehended on campus this week as they were attempting to steal a bicycle. "They were quite brazen," said Peers. "We are able to get the bike back, but we are able to prevent thefts, but also to avoid damage by the snow plows to bikes locked to fences along walkways, according to Peers.

A good lock and a strong chain strong through the frame and a tire and then secured to a rack is one of the best ways to deter thieves, Peers felt. Peers also mentioned that the bike rack on the Student Center parking lot at night is helpful in discouraging thefts and said he has plans to provide better protection of racks by lighting the bike area.

Student govt. leaders acknowledge problems

by Greg Aiello

Reactions from student government yesterday varied concerning H.P.C. Chairman Butch Ward's letter urging students to work through their Hall Government in the absence of a viable student body leader.

These officials contacted acknowledged the existence of the problems Ward described, but they were not in agreement in their interest in mainx, namely problems. Student Body President R. Calhoun Kersten was unavailable for comment. Executive Co-Ordinator Dennis "H-Man" Ellis blamed student government's lack of direction on inadequate student participation.

"We are either a student body without a leader or we have a leader without a constituency," said Ellis. "For adequate direction you need adequate student input. We are offering great possibilities because we are an open student government and so far there has been no student input."

"Butch is right about the destructive cynicism and apathy," Etienne continued, "but the solution can't come from student government without the help of students. All your big changes come from the students, not the government."

Leaders emerge

H-Man noted that as of yet no issues have arisen, but when they do leaders will emerge. He cited the parietals issue of last year. "The Observer was the leader in that case. They opened the people up, not Barkett," Etienne said.

"Student Union Research and Development Commissioner Jim Clarke underscored this point. "Student government is handicapped by the fact that the student government is diffused in such a manner that only the S.B.P. can provide effective leadership."

Clarke also cited John Barkett, last year's S.B.P., for failure to lead the students last year in the parlimental issue, but expressed a lack of confidence in Kersten's ability to provide leadership this year if needed. Clarke agrees with Ward's letter and added, "With the situation as it is the students should turn to the H.P.C., but I don't agree that the situation should be. Hopefully, it will be resolved after the S.L.C. elections and if Kersten resigns. Of course, you can't tell."

H.P.C. an alternative

Academic Affairs Commissioner Ed Ellis also recognized the viability of the H.P.C. as an alternative to student government. "It's quite possible," said Ellis. "People have been talking about it for years. I'd like to see it happen because the HPC would become politicized and this would take away from their contributions to the individual halls. The H.P.C. can take us a long way, but I'd rather see student government do it in conjunction with the Halls."

While Clarke sees a lack of government leadership and H-Man a lack of student input, Ellis views the problem in terms of a lack of experience. "Butch is absolutely right," said Ellis. "Things like loved dorms, campus bars, and academic changes are important issues that require leadership with experience. The problem is that we have good people with no experience."

As far as criticisms of Ward's letter, S.B.P.V. Ed Gray contended that Ward's reference to Kersten's letter to the freshmen missed the whole tone of the letter. "He took it out of context," said Gray. "It was actually one of the most honest things we could have written."

Ellie criticized Ward's contention that student government has damaged student relations with the administration.

Kersten good

"At a meeting with the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees four months ago, a group of Trustees spent a good deal of time convincing Kersten to stay on in the capacity he was elected to, as a figurehead. "They thought he was good for the students because he took the professionalism out of student government," Etienne said.

Etienne mentioned that Barkett told the Alumni Senate Meeting last May that Kersten had established greater rapport with the administration at that one meeting that he had all of last year.

Ed Gray noted that student government was in a period of transition, a possible explanation for its present lack of direction. While creating a new government with a new constitution and a new atmosphere, he said they are presently handicapped until the S.L.C. is elected. Gray stated that the new government will try to get away from playing politics and to involve new faces. He emphasized the forthcoming S.L.C. elections as an important beginning to the rejuvenation of student government.
British announce North Ireland conference

By Bernard Weinraub

London, Sept. 18 - The British Government announced today that a conference on the political future of Northern Ireland will be held next week despite the decision of the Roman Catholic minority not to take part.

The three-day "all-party" conference, starting Monday at a hotel near Darlington in County Durham in the North of England, had been promised by the Government to see what common ground can be found in governing Northern Ireland.

Nd Security undergoes change; seeks involvement, better image

by Maude Pytyna

In May of 1972, the Dean of Students received a report from the Security and Traffic Advisory Board recommending that the Notre Dame Security Department establish a system that would take the "palace consent" from the Department and set up a public relations program for the entire University community.

At the close of the 1971-1972 school year, Notre Dame graduate students took up positions on the Security Department. William Hake, the first of the three, is presently in the PIO program and works twenty hours per week as a security officer. William E. Barnes, the second, is a Teaching Assistant majoring in art, and he has worked as a Radio Dispatcher for the Security Department.

Politics keynotes Administration view of SLC

by Don Raane

Executive Editor

Student Life Council elections for the six student representatives, will be held Wednesday.

This is the third and final part of a series presenting the outlook of the 1972-73 SLC from the point of view of student, faculty and administrative representatives, who are new members or are returning members from last year's council. Today, the administration outlook.

Politics and the efficiency of each member seem to be the major threads of concern about the SLC from the administrative point of view, according to comments made Monday by one half of that section.

The political aspect involves power voting blocks, for whom the SLC is intended, and its effectiveness since it was formed in the fall semester of 1968. Membership efficiency concerns the knowledge a representative has of his constituents' views, the effects of their other activities, and how well they are able to prepare for a meeting as a group such as a committee.

According to Dr. Robert Ackerman, director of student activities and a rookie in SLC circles, the past has been marked by the "anticipation of group voting, usually the administration making the decision. All students of the faculty becoming the swing vote."

"There was no way in the way of counting the faculty, by both sides, which made the SLC idea of discussion and rational thinking into a campaign and vote situation, he added.

Dr. Ackerman urged that the concept of the council be more than a "representation board," stating that it should provide a forum similar to the Academic Council.

If it does not become "viable" a concept which has become popular among SLC representatives this year, there will be nothing relating to students beyond the academic areas.

Scheduling problems and lack of enthusiasm among class members resulted in the cancellation of all plans for a Sophomore Parents' Weekend at Notre Dame this year.

Eighteen sophs attended the general class meeting in LaFortune last night-a turn out which Vice-President Greg Garrison described as a "disillusionment."

President Dave Yates apologized for a mix-up this summer which caused temporary cancellation of the weekend, originally scheduled around the Ten Commandments movie in October 20. Letters announcing the weekend did not reach sophomore parents in time for them to purchase football tickets.

Yates added that the weekend could be rescheduled later in the year and suggested several possible dates, including March 2, when Mardi Gras Funds remain and can qualify as Mardi Gras, and An Tostal.

"I'd rather we did nothing as Mardi Gras because of possibly hazardous weather, March 3, because of its proximity to spring break, March 9, because of its nearness to spring vacation and its lack of parent-oriented activities."

Many felt it was already too late to begin planning a worthwhile event. "I'd rather we did nothing than do a halfway job on this," one soph said. Very few indicated that their parents would attend the event if it were held.

In order action, the class set tentative dates for freshman class elections, voting will take place on Thursday, October 12, and campaigning from 6 p.m. on Sunday, October 8 until midnight on Wednesday, October 11. For more information, contact Dave Yates.

Yates encouraged any soph who object strongly to the cancellation of Parents' Weekend to present their views at the next class meeting on Monday, September 26, at noon.

"We (the officers) are sorry Parents' Weekend fell through. But if we had had more people behind us, pushing us harder than we pushed ourselves, it might not have happened."

SLC Endorsements

The Observer decided to endorse candidates for the Student Life Council election because the body's potential could be realized under the Acting Vice-president of the Student Affairs Phillip Fasciullo. Prospective council members were asked standard questions about their opinions on the role of the SLC, the role of SLC representatives under the new constitution (if it is approved), the effectiveness of the Kersten government, and proposals for co-residential dormitories. In addition, each candidate was asked how often he thought the SLC should meet and how much time he would be willing to devote.

The form of the endorsements is changed over past years. The endorsements are:

District I (Off-campus)
Recommended: none

District II (Farley, Breen-Phillips, Cavanaugh, St. Ed's)
Recommended: none

District III (Grace, Flanner)
Recommended: Floyd Kezele. Kezele's two years of experience and his record are impeccable. He is one of the outstanding candidates in the election.

District IV (Stanford, Keenan, Zahm, Holy Cross, St. Joe, Moreau)
Recommended: Anthony Abowd, Bill McLean. Both candidates showed a good understanding of the role of the SLC and of the expanded role of student representatives under the new constitution. The editorial board could make no distinction.

Acceptable: Tim Schwartz, Schwartz showed good enthusiasm for the job. He did not favor the 10-15 hours a week that would be required to devote.

Not acceptable: none

The following candidates chose not to be interviewed: Rich Eshelman, Jim Hunt, Mark Knevel, Jim Napier, Bob Sauer.

The Editorial Board

Wednesday, the student body of Notre Dame will be put to the task of selecting six student representatives to the Student Life Council. Despite the death of a new student government, the election doesn't generate a whole lot of excitement. Throughout the week, articles and columns appearing in this newspaper having severely tilted the chances on the death of the SLC. Countless people have noted that the SLC is on "its last legs," which may or may not be true. But in a column in Monday's Observer, Ed Ellis issued a call for all good men to "come forth." Ellis heralded an opinion that was heard countless times last evening.

Last night the Observer editorial board met concerning endorsements for the SLC positions. In what proved to be one of the most close of the election, the board "decided" on the recommendations that are found on this page.

The board's decision is not really what I care to talk about here. There is something that is much more important. Despite the death tolls that have been sounded, 20 positions have expressed an interest to sit in the six chairs that have been delegated to the students on this tripartite assembly. (Two chairs are for seniors.)

In the last SLC election that we had (Spring '79) approximately the same number of candidates ran for office. Despite the state of the SLC, candidate interest has not decreased. People are still interested and enthusiastic about serving on the Student Life Council. And it was this enthusiasm and the accompanying optimism which made the editorial board meeting worthwhile despite the intense wrangling amongst the members.

All of the candidates opted that the SLC is still a viable operating forum where students, faculty, and administration could meet together. All of them also called for more "teeth" to be put into the Council—a cry that remains to be the loudest complaint issued when speaking of the lack of power. Some kind of power, some "teeth" that it needs desperately. That remains uncertain, something that will be decided early in the SLC's first 60-70 reign. If the body declines to redefine itself and continue plodding along, it's some old, well-worn path, then both students and faculty will be searching desperately for some kind of forum where they can be heard, if not the choice of one that is left open to them.

To the students this seems to be crucial. If the forum that is created in the SLC breaks down, the students really have nowhere to look. The Office of Student Life Baird Person Full of pomp, power, and a general ineffectiveness in student affairs. Kersten is on the fence, seemingly undecided about what his next move will be. In that state, he cannot offer an effective forum for students.

The Senate will be its same old, ineffective, impotent self, that is until tonight when (according to widespread rumors) it will vote on the new Constitution. Student Government sources are unclear whether the Senate will be able to meet at all. (The problem seems to lie in getting all the Senators together in one place.) If the Senate does meet and pass the Constitution, it will be destroying itself and establishing a new form of student government.

The only other outlet of student frustration will then be the Hall President's Council. The HPC can rule on affairs dealing with the Halls, but beyond that they don't have any other power. To top that, they don't seem to have the potential for any other power.

The SLC has that potential. The SLC is essential to student input in the next year... a year in which student input seems to have lost all channels.

Most of the candidates expressed that opinion last night. They view the SLC as both a new opportunity and a last chance. The Kersten regime has created a reactionary impulse in student leadership. In the absence of a strong executive, they have taken it upon themselves to serve the students. Perhaps that's what Kersten wanted to do all along, but I'll let him reap his own paddy.

Nonetheless, there is the importance of tomorrow's election. It is perhaps the SLC's last chance, but it's an optimistic last chance. It is a last chance that could blossom into a smooth-operating, rightfully powerful body of students, faculty, and administrators all meeting for the good of the University.
SLC candidates' statements

Tim Schwartz

The Student Life Council has failed miserably in the past several years simply by its negligence in recognizing two essential facts. The first is that student government is a success or a failure in the eyes of the students, not the faculty. The second is that student government is changing in character year by year as is our student body. This is in contrast to the traditional college administration-faculty coalition which inevitably devolves into the dead hand of the state determination of student lifestyles. The SLC must recognize the representation units which the students are in self-control. Changes that occur this year will be those which a minimum acceptance quote of 30 percent women for next fall, co-ed housing, and the estaminements of off-campus tenements union to challenge exorbitant rents.

Milt Cavanaugh

District 1

The voice of the student must be heard. With the advent of co-adviser and the need for extensive representation, it becomes evident that the Student Life Council must retain its self-elected status for a decision making body at Notre Dame.

Questions such as the next women's dorm adopted by upperclassman who possibly will be the student of a company at Notre Dame will be decided by the SLC this year. Students have the right and the obligation to take part in this process. I will consult with the student members of the board to answer these questions and I will forward the student ideas and view through the SLC.

Juan Manigault

District 2

Student government has been a dream of which the student body has longed for realization. Now it is finally a reality. The battle for student self-government was not an easy one. It must take place this year from the inactivity to the new, if you wish to have a meaningful voice in the change. As I personally would attend this Student Life Council. As a member of the Council for the past two years, I have seen it in protecting the student rights, and I am dedicated to the students. To counter this the SLC should evolve into a much more active and a viable body.

Floyd Keezle

District 3

This is a year of change for Notre Dame, and if the student wishes to have a meaningful voice in the change, this is the year to get involved. I was satisfied with their experience to change the Student Life Council. As a member of the Council for the past two years, I have seen it in protecting the student rights, and I am dedicated to the students. To counter this the SLC should evolve into a much more active and a viable body.

Anthony Abewd

District 4

The SLC is the last vestige of student life into campus activity. We need to devote the time necessary to make the SLC effective. The student-directed energy the SLC can work. Administrators and faculty are waiting for student initiative. They have said so. A Student Life Council representative must be prepared to work responsibly and especially the committee is prepared to take the initiative and do the work. The SLC has been a dead student body. Why?administration faculty coalition. Why do we care about the conditions of student life? Be positive. Support me.

Rick Hilton

District 5

The student body at Notre Dame is out of contact with the administration. In theory, the SLC should provide the means for liaison through which the needs and wants of students could be satisfied. But the SLC has been used, in Debonnaire, a flaccid phallic which renders the nonexistent student body impotent. It is my purpose to act aggressively and form the student government to make the difference if the 18-to-24's help out by conservative votes in the San Fernando Valley.

Frank Devine

District 5

It's strange running for office again. After a short as assistant manager and a frustrating term in the imperial senate, I left Senate Government. We've had a void which needs to be filled. We asked students to support us postulate the inevitable:

a) True co-educational
b) A co-educational center

d) Slowly rising room fees by cutting back unnecessary services (option for students who don't want co-education)

They'll all come as surely as "co-education." The SLC must show the university we have nothing to fear from tomorrow. I'll try.

Gred Fridfri

District 6

Tomorrow's election will bear directly upon the fate of both the SLC and student government. The latter, because, should Bob Kershner resign, the burden of reorganizing student government falls to this election's victor. Thus, if you are taken seriously.

Today, student Power is dead. Now, perhaps, present dishonesty must share its casket. The present task, then, is adapting these bodies to the remaining legitimate goals, to communicate the needs, wants and feelings of the students to those in power. An earth-shattering goal? Certainly not.

SLC

It is time the student government elects a president. I am prepared to take the plunge. You may sink or swim. You may do the work.

Joe Lipka

District 6

The problem facing the SLC this year is little student participation in determining the student agenda. For the first time, published articles, the SLC agenda has been described as "spontaneous" and mostly dependent on student action. The present task, however, has not been active in helping form the agenda. A new direction is needed. The student members should be an active body, with a strong representation protection group" in that they are aware of current events and use their influence to make the student government have a more direct administration aware of the student's roles in these plans.

New voters may decide presidential election

(Few first-time voters — perhaps 25 million of all 75 million voters — are the difference in this year's Presidential election. Star-News staff writers have canvassed the country to talk with Americans who are new voters for the first time. This is another of his reports.)

by Duncan Spencer

SEPT 1972 Washington Star-News

Los Angeles, Sept 18 — Could it be only two years ago that the Bank of America at /\ita Vista near the Santa Barbara branch of the University of California was burned? And campuses disrupted all over California? The law and order forces could be called on to protect students.

"SDS Students for a Democratic Society." Their slogan is: "We're a young people on a campus in this country these days.

"War is an issue that was brought to the campus first by the students and the college community — it was a moral issue. But now, to labor, the issue is the meaningfulness in Washington, and California." It's the economy, I guess.

The students entering were Alan Unger, a first-time voter himself, a community organizer for McGovern in Los Angeles' 25th assembly district, and a member of one of two arinutons of students who are running California for McGovern. In California as in fewer states, the campaign techniques are adapting to the new young people of the day. They're interested in involvement in the electorate. The issues of the campaign are their concern — the less and less important every day.

Two large groups of students and young people are struggling to register every voter they can. One of the most "victory" campaigns, Republicans"Bruce Nast_KP.1, remarked, "The California campaign is issue-oriented, with a focus on registration."

It's coming down to the organization.

"That's something that the parties agree on. Our plan," says Friedman, "is to have McGovern's staffers in the San Fernando Valley, "to register every McGovern supporter we can get our hands on."

Republicans put in simply "This is the most intensive campaign ever in the history of California politics," Nast_Kim said. "It's a fortunate situation that a person is running for president statewide, and that's the President. California has 2,605,000 voters between the ages of 18 and 24, according to a recent bureau estimates. That is more or less that out of 2,500,000. Of the total, 214,000 are black, more than any other state, except for New York, and Chicagoans make up another important bloc. More of the young are either are close and further along in college or, about one college than in any other state."

The sheer number of the first voters can make a big difference in the presidency. Nixon over Hubert Humphrey in the (35-26). And even in the unlikely chance that Johnson could count on all of the 1968 Wallace vote, there are no four or five to make the difference if the 18 to 24s actually do vote, only 58.4 percent of the young part of the electorate went to the polls in 1968.

Both parties have set up a "Co-field headquarters throughout the state. The Democrats claim they will have 200, split evenly between half apiece in the state's 80 assembly districts. The Republicans say they have over 2,000. Of the youth vote."

Pat Nixon launches tour

by Nan Robertson

Chicago ey Sept. 18: Mrs. Richard M. Nixon began her first and longest political swing on her own of the 1972 Presidential campaign today by declaring: "I'm taking the White House to the people." Mrs. Nixon's six-day schedule embraces seven states, three of them—Illinois, California and Texas—crucial in any bid for the Presidency.

Her first stop today was Chicago, a city that has not been carried by a Republican Presidential candidate since Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956. This trip has been frankly billed as "political," and the Committee to Re-elect the President is picking up the tab.

The First Lady bookended her way through a lunchtime crowd on the steamy sidewalks of Michigan Boulevard in front of a Nixon Campaign headquarters. Surrounded by a tunnel of roughly 150 Chicago Police, Secret Service agents and television photographers, she listened to a band rendet "Hail to the Chief" in a rock beat that made the tune that utters in Presidents victories almost surreal.

Then Mrs. Nixon toured the campaign headquarters seven stories above ground, in an office skyscraper. There she talked with Dr. William Abraham, volunteer, and Wanda, a woman with a wispi of a voice, who danced in front of William McKinley's second inaugural hall. She brought her daughter, Julie, with her in case someone did not believe her age.

Downstairs again, Mrs. Nixon heard 12-year-old Terri Seletie sing "Mr. Nixon in '72, is the man for me and you!" in a piercing nasal tone that carried far beyond the crowd of several hundred still waiting for a glimpse of the First Lady.

At a brief press conference in her hotel this afternoon, Mrs. Nixon became flustered when asked whether she thought the Watergate hearings had hurt the President's chances.

She paused and then said tensely: "No, I don't. The polls haven't indicated that. They know he has no part of it." A questioner said: "When you and your husband discuss the election and the campaign, does the Watergate situation concern him?"

Mrs. Nixon answered: "We don't discuss it, because all I know is what I read in the papers. That's the only knowledge I have, so there's no reason to discuss it. I think it's been blown completely out of proportion. I think the Chairman has answered all the questions on it."

It was believed she meant Chairman Clark MacGregor of the Committee to Re-elect the President.

"Are you concerned about what you read?" she was asked. "No, I'm not," she retorted.

Moreau seminary to discontinue Liturgy

The 8:16 a.m. Sunday Mass at Moreau Seminary which has long served as a regular liturgy for hundreds of university people will be discontinued this year. This announcement came after a meeting held by Moreau students and staff in early September. Moreau students and staff point out that the new music, new preaching and other prominent features which were brought in as innovations a few years ago, have become standard institutions in any number of local parishes and campuses today.

Instead of duplicating, Moreau men will now concentrate on helping student programs and groups in training. Moreau is intensifying its long-existing participation in the local parishes and organizations.

It will attempt to make more impact than before. Moreau's daily services, its morning and evening prayer and Mass will be discontinued this year. This will allow the large-scale Sunday celebrations to the half chapels and to the Campus Ministry at Sacred Heart. Father William Toomey, who once resided at Moreau, has enacted a number of liturgical innovations since he became head of Campus Ministry, notably his Sunday 12:15 Mass at Sacred Heart.

Marx--confidence under pressure

by Andy Scasselliere

Greg Marx is a man who underdestands the pressure of being the preseason favorite, or the pressure of being in the dark horse.

Last year we were picked to be number one and this put a great deal of pressure on the team. This year we're green, but the pressure is still there. The pressure is the same, but it's felt on different people.

Marx, the only returnee from last year's front four, is one of those guys. He views the season with a very positive outlook.

"I think John Dampeuer said it well: we've got a lot to prove. Our greenness has caused a great many questions and we do have a lot of work as we prepare to go defensively and defensively and I think we can do it.

"Greg was an academic All­ American last year and this year he is rated one of the top defensive linemen in the country. This practice attention means little to him, however."

"Football is a team effort. For me to be successful, the team must be successful."

ND ruggers win, now 4 - 0

The Notre Dame rugby team ran its season record to 4-1 last week as they came from behind victory over the Cleveland Blues in Cleveland.

The much bigger Cleveland team took its size to an advantage and rolled to an early 4-0 lead. The Irish tied the game shortly thereafter on a try by John Greving.
The score followed several good tackles by the Irish front four and Greving picked up the loose ball and dived the last few yards for the score. However Cleveland scored on the ensuing kickoff and stretched their lead to 8-0. The Irish fought back to tie the game on a try by Lee Pollardy just before half.

Cleveland came out strong in the second half and scored on a try and a conversion to take a 14-0 lead. The Blues held this lead in the face of consistent Irish pressure but finally ND scored on a try by halfback Rick Eichnei.
Krueger's
tally cut the margin to 14-10 with five minutes left in the game. The Irish tied the score on a counter-converted conversion attempt following the try. A Cleveland player jumped up to block a low kick by Ed O'Connell but instead tapped the ball over the crossbar. The referee ruled the score didn't count and the Irish regained the tie.

In the "B" game, Paul Collins' try gave Notre Dame a 6-0 victory over the Cleveland "B" side. The Irish took control of the game in the second half and scored, the Irish continued to make their own breaks and press for the winning scores.

In the "C" game, Notre Dame scored 3-0 and 1-0, finishing out of the game.

The Irish travel to Kalamazoo this weekend to play Western Michigan and open at home on Sept. 30 against John Carroll University.

Soccer squad drops pair

by Mark Nishan

The Notre Dame soccer team got its season off to an unimpressive start this year by losing its first (2-3) two games.

On Friday night the Irish were beaten by an excellent Indiana squad, 4-0. Then on Sunday af­ daytonian 出d them a 3-1 loss.

Friday night they met Indiana. They played one of the toughest teams in the country. The Hoosiers had a record of 13 wins against no defeats last year. Their scoring punch.

The Hoosiers scored twice in the first half and once in the second half. The Irish continued to make their own breaks and press for the
winning scores.

The Irish scored 3-0 and 1-0, finishing out of the game.

Local unions push McGovern

Redwood City, California—About a dozen faculty members around a narrow table in a cavernous room that will be the site of its for- mer function, a shoe store, white floors. Whites from the suburb of Palo Alto and blacks from the ghettos of East Palo Alto, they skipped red from plastic cups and plotted how to elect Sen. George S. McGovern as President.

The conversation bristled with words like "decentralization", "visibility" and "input". An expert on McGovern and his Registrar of Liberal Activism that have been organizers did not stop, partly as President.

And blacks from the ghettos of East Palo Alto, they sipped coffee and talked about broadening the base of McGovern's support during the campaign with the film "Spackens". The McGovernites are trying to appeal to the white middle class, which was the core of the 1968 campaign.
