Judge John J. Sirica refused to budge. The date was too early for both sides to prepare their cases, and agreement by the prosecutor that the attorneys and the defendants could not be turned into an election issue.

McGovern said today that Democratic charges of political sabotage would be turned into a campaign issue. The political situation may induce voters to look at his stand on the war, and now President Nixon's chief campaign fund raiser, Maurice H. Stans, a former chairman of the National Re-election Committee, to appear at the trial.

Judge sets Watergate trial for November 15

by Ed Ellis

A "permanent state of receivership" resulting from "interest group liberalism" is the pathological condition of the American political system, according to Cornell political scientist Theodore Lowi.

Lowi, speaking last night in the Library Auditorium before a crowd of about 200 students and faculty members, argued that the occurrence of "positive government" alongside the non-coercive, "soft," or liberal state creates a dilemma around the political power inherent in the state itself. This results in the interest group liberalism.

Avoidance of Coercion

The concept of the state, Lowi said, implies coercion, but liberal-minded politicians--even so-called "conservative" politicians--try to avoid the concept of coercion in running their governments. In order to avoid coercion, power is split up and handed out to various segments of government.

Lowi listed two manifestations of what he called a "pathological" dilemma. First, he said that laws of such a society are characterized by "high-flight" language backed by minimal sanctions. Second, political rhetoric in such a situation is concerned primarily with populist participation in government, which is really an issue participation in individual cases only, not in the general principles to be applied.

Minimal Risk

The society faced with such a dilemma, argued Lowi, will tend to minimize risk to anyone in the system, because this is its function as positive government. At the same time, the society will try to avoid restrictions on anyone, because of the nature of a liberal-oriented government.

Because the government must support interests, it must then do things like loans money to Lockheed, which cost no one in particular any money, propose revenue sharing, and enter the housing business on a large scale. Lowi noted that the Federal government now owns more property in the United States than even "the church."

Institutionalization

Lowi further stated that this pattern of a positive-softer government has become institutionalized in the United States, i.e., it has managed to succeed itself and grows upon itself over the last forty years. President Nixon, he noted, "leads the way as President Johnson did, which was much the same as President Kennedy. The major positive, soft programs have not been cut back, and must have been expanded..."

Nixon, contended Lowi, could have changed things, but instead he chose to expand and confirm them. "The only area where this was not true, according to Lowi, is civil rights, where the President has "misrepresented" boycotting, its causes, meaning, etc. In other fields, the Nixon Administration has expanded the role of the Federal bureaucracy, which Lowi opposes, he said, because people running these programs are "stupid." The Federal government, he said, "is a big dumb clock."

Furthermore, anyone at all running a Federal bureaucracy in those areas will be a "big dumb clock."

Bad City Government

Lowi said he was especially pessimistic about the chances of the Federal government's turning into revenue-sharing. He stated city governments need to have the same pathological fear of coercion that is prevalent in the national government. Because the cities are privilege-protected, machine-run, and corruption-ridden, the Federal funds will be totally wasted. In short, the recipient of the revenue will have all the money to distribute, but no power to do with it because all the power has been spread out.

State government is the only level of government according to Lowi that ever used the coercive power inherent in the nature of a government, and this means that nearly 98 per cent of coercive laws are state laws.

Sick Polity

Lowi concluded that a polity whose politics was afraid of power yet was expected to "intervene sooner than later" was a pathological rather than physiological, solution-oriented, problem-solving, "sick polity," and that the proper function of responsible political science was to be pathological rather than physiological, solution-oriented, problem-solving, "sense of alternatives." This is the function of an intellectual in Lowi's terms.
World

Briefs

(c) 1972 New York Times

Nov 15 deadline set

Council to help find seasonal jobs

Research and Development commissioner Jim Clarke has initiated a program to find summer jobs for Notre Dame students. The program will be run with the cooperation of the Alumni Association and the Placement Bureau.

Applications will be accepted at the Placement Bureau beginning next week and until November 15.

Female representative to SLC to be elected Oct, 24

The special election to select a representative for the Student Life Council from Badin and Walsh will be held on Tuesday, October 24, according to Peg Pollers, a member of the Walsh executive council.

Female undergraduate students at Notre Dame are eligible for election. Sign-ups begin today in the off campus lounges (Walsh Hall) or in the basement of Walsh. All candidates must declare by Friday. No petition is required.

One representative from Badin, Walsh, new campus women and Notre Dame women living at St. Mary's will be elected.

James Coney, executive director of the alumni association, plans to meet with five regional committees during October to begin local efforts to find summer jobs for those who apply.

"We plan to ask the regional committees in each of the major cities to determine the availability of summer jobs and file this information with the Placement Bureau," Coney said.

Clarke noted that the purpose to the program is to find jobs for those students who have trouble finding summer work during the Christmas vacation.

In the result that it will be difficult for students to know if they are going to have trouble by Nov. 15, the Alumni Association needs some estimate of the demand for these jobs during its November and December traveling," Clarke said.

The Research and Development Commissioner noted that the program would try to place students in jobs in their hometown and in fields related to their majors.

We can make no guarantees about wages, location of the job, relationship of the job to a particular major or even the availability of the jobs. All we can say right now is that we are doing our best to get a summer job program started. Clarke added.

In order to check that the jobs will be provided for those students who are having most trouble finding summer work, Clarke said that a follow-up questionnaire will be sent out in January.

The program is open to all graduate and undergraduate Notre Dame students.

Research and Development commissioner Jim Clarke has initiated a program to find summer jobs for Notre Dame students. The program will be run with the cooperation of the Alumni Association and the Placement Bureau.
Nixon vetoes water pollution act

by E. W. Kenworthy

Washington, Oct. 17—President Nixon vetoed today the Federal Water Pollution Act of 1972. In doing so he brushed aside the recommendation of William D. Ruckelhaus, the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. He also chose to ignore the overwhelming support for the bill in both Houses of Congress.

In a letter to Senator William E. Marcy last week to Casper Weinberger, the Director of the Office and Management Budget, Ruckelhaus strongly recommended that the President sign the bill, saying that it was "faithful" to the intent of the President's own proposal to Congress in 1971. Ruckelhaus also said that while the bill authorized much more money for control of Water Pollution than the President had proposed, the bill also would allow the President to imposed funds if he found that expenditures would increase inflationary pressures.

Undoubtedly, in the course of the bill, Ruckelhaus said, many environmental groups raised the question "of the degree of Federal commitment and interest and the Federal Government's ability to provide stable and effective leadership in environmental legislation.

Ruckelhaus's recommendation reflected the support of the bill in both the Senate and the House which came after a conference committee with the House after 39 meetings by a vote of 74 to 0. The Senate passed the bill which came after a conference committee with the House after 39 meetings by a vote of 74 to 0. The House passed it 366 to 11. The Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 authorized the largest appropriation for environmental cleanup ever approved by Congress if it also set the most ambitious goals, the most stringent standards and the most strict control mechanisms of any environmental bill yet passed.

It aroused intense opposition from industry because of its goals which would require large investments to achieve, and from the White House Office of Management and Budget because of the huge grants of Federal money authorized for the construction of waste water treatment plants. The bill authorized appropriations over three years of $16.5 billion of which $8 billion would be for grants to states and municipalities for sewage plants, although the actual expenditure of funds would be spread over seven years, the Federal share of the cost of the waste treatment projects would be 75 per cent, as compared with a maximum 45 per cent under a 1966 law.

In addition the bill provided $2.7 billion to reimburse states and cities for the Federal share of projects already completed or in progress which has not been paid. The total amount of these "reimbursements" now amounts to $27.6 billion according to congressional estimates, but only $2 billion according to the estimates of the Environmental Protection Agency.

By contrast, Nixon had proposed only $6 billion in appropriations for sewage plants over three years, and any payment of reimbursements would have had to come out of that. The bill set a goal of eliminating all pollution "no discharge" by industry and municipalities by 1985, although it was generally agreed that this goal was almost impossible of achievement.

But to this end, it required that industry employ the "best practicable control technology by 1977, and the latest available by 1985," taking into account what was "technically achievable" based on the direction of the no-discharge requirement.

In his veto message to Congress, the President based his action on four major points: "the $24 billion price tag in the bill, the time required to build plants for the Federal share of projects, the necessity for controls on federal spending, and the need to hold inflation and avert a necessity for a tax increase."

Emphasizing that environmental protection has been "one of my highest priorities as President," Nixon said he was also concerned "that we attack pollution in a way that does not ignore other very real threats to the quality of life, such as spiraling prices, and increasingly onerous taxes."

"Any legislation which would continue our efforts to raise water quality, but which would do so through extreme and needless overspending, does not serve the public interest," he said.

The President's veto message was delivered within minutes after the Senate this evening had rejected his proposed $25 billion spending ceiling--a fact duly noted by the New York Times, who linked the water pollution bill to the issue of higher taxes and inflation.

Noting that there was "a well-organized political axiom which says that any election-year spending bill, no matter how ill-advised defies veto by the President," Nixon said: "but I say that any spending bill this year which would lead to higher prices and higher taxes defies signature by this President."

HPC plans budget appeal

by Mike O'Hare

Observer Staff Reporter

The Hall President's Council plans to appeal the Student government's finance committee-proposed HPC appropriation. As a result of last night's meeting of the council, Coordinator Steve Spak will appear before the Board of Commissioners (the six student HPC representatives and the student body president and vice president) instead of the recommended allocation and present an alternate proposal.

The finance committee recommended appropriating $7,500 to the HPC with $2,500 going to the HPC sponsored Triota weekend and $4,200 earmarked for the Hall Life fund. The $7,500 proposed HPC allocation would average out to about $1.25 for each of the 6,000 or campus students.

The HPC appeal however will call for a budget appropriation of $6 per on campus student, totaling about $36,000. Sorin Hall President Spak explained the HPC's rationale for the increased allocation as "getting more money that will be directly available to the students." Spak explained that the students could become more personally involved in the control of this money and that the students fee if more of this money was budgeted to the HPC.

The HPC also heard a report from a special committee appointed at its last session to study the potential scope of the HPPC. Consisting of Walt Spak, Chuck Singleton, Jim Clarke, Fred Baronowski, and Ron Ruckelhaus the committee recommended the establishment of the HPPC and $10 to student government.

Spak believed that "a treasury would improve relations between hall presidents and their residents and insure the use of this money for student activities only."

HPC Chairman Robert Ward stated: "We as halls are not going to use hall funds for maintenance."

He added that student activities fees should not be used for repairs that should be paid for out of room and board fees.

The HPC did not however take any action to adopt the special committee's recommendation to establish such a fund.

Also at last night's meeting, Mike Jordan of the Alumni Office, held the HPC of the scheduled Alumni Senate meeting the week of November 12. He expressed the desire of the alumni to live in or telephone during their conference and asked the council to help find rooms for them to stay.

University of Notre Dame Concerts presents Little Theatre of Sicilian Puppets in DON QUIXOTE

Thursday, Oct. 19 8:15 p.m. WASHINGTON HALL Admission - $3.00 ($2.00 students) Call 283-6211

HANDMADE LEATHER Belts - Handbags available TONY'S SHOE SHOP Behind the Dome

University of Notre Dame Concerts presents Little Theatre of Sicilian Puppets in DON QUIXOTE

Thursday, Oct. 19 8:15 p.m. WASHINGTON HALL Admission - $3.00 ($2.00 students) Call 283-6211

OBSERVER NEWS MEETING REORGANIZATION OF NEWS STAFF

6:30 pm THURSDAY Room 2D LaFortune EVERYBODY BE THERE! New People Welcome.
Despite the early date, plaudits are already due to the Academic Commission and particularly to its head, Jim Novic. Barely two months into the year, Novic's program has already surpassed any Academic Commission schedule in recent memory. Quality events are the rule and not the exception this year.

Last year's program

Last year, the Academic Commission suffered through an uninspired year. This was due largely to their philosophy, which emphasized addresses by lesser known figures from the academic world.

This year, however, Novic has added to his philosophy. He has included on the list of academic favorites, celebrities whose qualifications, presentations, and knowledge are as great as their drawing card names.

The biggest name thus far on Novic's list is Norman Mailer whose crew drew a large crowd to Stepan Center. Though Senator Edward Kennedy's speech was organized by the McGovern people, Novic's crew added their expertise to the running of the event.

Lowi and Wills

Last night, Theodore Lowi spoke before a good crowd in the Library Auditorium. Lowi is a well-respected and reasonably same level of excellence.

forward to a continuing program with the Wills, the famous author of Nixon Academic Commission. We're all looking to list of academic favorites, celebrities which emphasized addresses by lesser which is contagious. The fervor with which they perpetuate the festival is contagious. The fervor with which they perpetuate the

This project requires the aid of the entire student body and furthermore, it is not necessary to drink beer in order to have a good time. The only thing that can outclass the size of the celebration is the magnanimity of the German people. The language barrier proved to be no obstacle to enjoyment and fraternizing with the Bavarians. You would be surprised how easy it is to learn German with a stein in your hands. Beer is beer. "Eins, zwei, drei!" is the most popular toast and drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus

An Apology

One of the hardest things to do in the journalistic world is to admit that you made a mistake. There's a good deal of institutional pride caught up in the whole process, but there's no point in feigning infallibility.

At any rate, The Observer wishes to apologize for the Edward Kennedy cartoon which appeared on last Tuesday's editorial page.

It is part of a newspaper's job to leap into the middle of a controversy and ferret out both sides of the argument. It is not, however, part of our job to generate controversy by dredging up outdated editorial material.

It remains true that cartoons and columns represent the opinion only of the writers and artists but in this case the material should never have appeared in print.

So, once again, we're sorry.

John Abowd

The Westerns

When I met him, 60 year old Schmon had already drained six liters of beer (The equivalent of about four kegs) and finished four more liters after I joined him. His spirit and zest typify the magic that happens. As he taught German toasts, drinking songs and spoke of traditions and legends, the magic came alive for us.

Perhaps Leslie Cella summed it up best. "Wurst and Kraut stands about for the young and the young at heart. Wurst and Kraut stands about for the square mile of carnival rides and games provide cheap thrills for the drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus

Still Need Tix

For the third year running, the ticket exchange program has been forced to extend the dates for turning in tickets. Program director B. J. Bingle announced last night that exchanges will be taken today and later into the week if necessary.

The program will be jeopardized if an additional 200 tickets are not turned in to the Athletic and Convocation Center today.

We've said it already, but repetition seems in order. This project requires the aid of the entire student body and furthermore, it is not necessary to drink beer in order to have a good time. The only thing that can outclass the size of the celebration is the magnanimity of the German people. The language barrier proved to be no obstacle to enjoyment and fraternizing with the Bavarians. You would be surprised how easy it is to learn German with a stein in your hands. Beer is beer. "Eins, zwei, drei!" is the most popular toast and drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus

An Apology

One of the hardest things to do in the journalistic world is to admit that you made a mistake. There's a good deal of institutional pride caught up in the whole process, but there's no point in feigning infallibility.

At any rate, The Observer wishes to apologize for the Edward Kennedy cartoon which appeared on last Tuesday's editorial page.

It is part of a newspaper's job to leap into the middle of a controversy and ferret out both sides of the argument. It is not, however, part of our job to generate controversy by dredging up outdated editorial material.

It remains true that cartoons and columns represent the opinion only of the writers and artists but in this case the material should never have appeared in print.

So, once again, we're sorry.

John Abowd

AC: Good Job

Munich's blast

Munich, Germany - Did you ever invite 4,000,000 people to a 24 day celebration and get 4,000,000 positive RSVP's?

That, in a nutshell, is Oktoberfest. The world's largest beer blast, hosted by the world's largest beer-brewing city, for the sole purpose ofasting life with the season's new brew.

"I never saw such a hauty beer," said Ed Pascoe, "such a huge display purely for enjoyment."

Munich is Proud

Munich is proud of her stature as the giant of the beer industry, and celebrates accordingly, in giant style. The festival grounds, located on the edge of the city, entreats guests from all parts of the world.

A square mile of carnival rides and games provide cheap thrills for the young and the young at heart. Warm and kramt stands about for the hungry while 55 beer halls, each larger than a football field, satisfy the thirsty, who range in age from 2-100.

Every ball is packed to the rafters with beer drinkers who overflow into the aisles. This makes it nearly impossible to polka to the lively drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus

An Apology

One of the hardest things to do in the journalistic world is to admit that you made a mistake. There's a good deal of institutional pride caught up in the whole process, but there's no point in feigning infallibility.

At any rate, The Observer wishes to apologize for the Edward Kennedy cartoon which appeared on last Tuesday's editorial page.

It is part of a newspaper's job to leap into the middle of a controversy and ferret out both sides of the argument. It is not, however, part of our job to generate controversy by dredging up outdated editorial material.

It remains true that cartoons and columns represent the opinion only of the writers and artists but in this case the material should never have appeared in print.

So, once again, we're sorry.

John Abowd

Down, Four to go

When I met him, 60 year old Schmon had already drained six liters of beer (The equivalent of about four kegs) and finished four more liters after I joined him. His spirit and zest typify the magic that happens. As he taught German toasts, drinking songs and spoke of traditions and legends, the magic came alive for us.

Perhaps Leslie Cella summed it up best. "Wurst and Kraut stands about for the young and the young at heart. Wurst and Kraut stands about for the square mile of carnival rides and games provide cheap thrills for the drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus

An Apology

One of the hardest things to do in the journalistic world is to admit that you made a mistake. There's a good deal of institutional pride caught up in the whole process, but there's no point in feigning infallibility.

At any rate, The Observer wishes to apologize for the Edward Kennedy cartoon which appeared on last Tuesday's editorial page.

It is part of a newspaper's job to leap into the middle of a controversy and ferret out both sides of the argument. It is not, however, part of our job to generate controversy by dredging up outdated editorial material.

It remains true that cartoons and columns represent the opinion only of the writers and artists but in this case the material should never have appeared in print.

So, once again, we're sorry.

John Abowd

Down, Four to go

When I met him, 60 year old Schmon had already drained six liters of beer (The equivalent of about four kegs) and finished four more liters after I joined him. His spirit and zest typify the magic that happens. As he taught German toasts, drinking songs and spoke of traditions and legends, the magic came alive for us.

Perhaps Leslie Cella summed it up best. "Wurst and Kraut stands about for the young and the young at heart. Wurst and Kraut stands about for the square mile of carnival rides and games provide cheap thrills for the drinking songs the oom-pah bands supply. Tabletops provide the only drink in your ticket and then step back and watch the joy of a child. There's no better payment.

Jerry Lutkus
Last week, Rod Bray, the editor to whom I submitted my articles each week, asked me for a title for my Observer column. I am not gifted in choosing titles, but I decided, for the time being, to label my work “Letters to a Lonely God.” The phrase is an echo of a book both my wife and I have read, Richard Rorty’s The Lonely God. The book consists almost entirely of material of mine that has appeared in the Observer for over two years now, and will come out in January. By way of self-defense, I would like to say that I do not necessarily agree, but I fear, is a very real problem for God. It is the price you pay for not being popular.

Sometimes I feel that my dog, Darby O’Gill, is keeping secrets from me. Rather regularly these fall weekends, he takes off without previously consulting the Kennel Master to skirmish with the stout terriers of the neighbour. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air.

The phrase is an echo of a book both my wife and I have read, Richard Rorty’s The Lonely God. The book consists almost entirely of material of mine that has appeared in the Observer for over two years now, and will come out in January. By way of self-defense, I would like to say that I do not necessarily agree, but I fear, is a very real problem for God. It is the price you pay for not being popular.

Sometimes I feel that my dog, Darby O’Gill, is keeping secrets from me. Rather regularly these fall weekends, he takes off without previously consulting the Kennel Master to skirmish with the stout terriers of the neighbour. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air. Darby is really too earthbound to trap butterflies; and though he does chase shadows. Anyway, the sporting aspect of my seven months with Darby is that footballs make as they spiral through the air.

The phrase is an echo of a book both my wife and I have read, Richard Rorty’s The Lonely God. The book consists almost entirely of material of mine that has appeared in the Observer for over two years now, and will come out in January. By way of self-defense, I would like to say that I do not necessarily agree, but I fear, is a very real problem for God. It is the price you pay for not being popular.
Racism charged on budget

by Tom Sheridan

The New Frontier Scholastic, charging "institutional racism," the New Frontier Scholastic Society (NFSS) is objecting to the proposed Student Government budget. The student government joint funding recommendation of it to another organization, the current and future trends in the nationally selected readers. automatically considered by Evanston, Illinois, on Saturday, October 14, 1972, as one of the nation's selected readers. The student government will discuss current and future trends in the Advanced Placement Program, including recent changes in the American and European History

Nine freshmen awarded AFROTC scholarships

Nine Notre Dame freshmen have been awarded Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) scholarships in national-department competition. Each grant pays full tuition, book costs, laboratory fees and $180 per month for nine months.

Recipients include:
- John W. Froman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Froman, 14 Walter Lane, Freehold, N.J., a member of the National Honor Society and Shield and Key at Freehold High School. He will major in business administration at Notre Dame.
- Robert C. Parro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Parro, 1106 Couch Rd., Horace, Ill., who named Pullman and Illinois State Scholar at Marten Catholic High School. He will study electrical engineering at Notre Dame.
- Joseph A. Eichelkraut, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Eichelkraut, 7229 Davian Drive, Amundale, Va., a member of the Bishop Ireton and National Honor Societies at Bishop Ireton High School. He will major in aerospace engineering.
- Charles W. Quackenbush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Quackenbush, 143 Spinning Rd., Dayton, Ohio, a member of the National Honor Society at Walter E. Stevens High School. He will major in economics at Notre Dame.
- David B. Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. James Richter, 120 Bedford Lane, Ballwin, Mo., winner of scholarship given at St. John's Kennedy High School. He will major in aerospace engineering at Notre Dame.
- Daniel L. Cramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Cramer, 410 E. Tiffin St., Fostoria, Ohio, an honor roll student at St. Wendelin high school. He will major in aeronautical engineering at Notre Dame.
- Michael J. Worle, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Worle, 410 E. Tiffin St., Fostoria, Ohio, an honor roll student at St. Wendelin high school. He will major in aeronautical engineering at Notre Dame.

Mrs. Fred J. Worle, 728 Snowberry Lane, Central Islip, N.Y., who won the Regent's Scholarship at Central Islip High School. He will study in the College of Arts and Letters at Notre Dame.

Joseph A. Eichelkraut, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Eichelkraut, 7229 Davian Drive, Amundale, Va., a member of the Bishop Ireton and National Honor Societies at Bishop Ireton High School. He will major in aerospace engineering.

Charles W. Quackenbush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Quackenbush, 143 Spinning Rd., Dayton, Ohio, a member of the National Honor Society at Walter E. Stevens High School. He will major in economics at Notre Dame.

David B. Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. James Richter, 120 Bedford Lane, Ballwin, Mo., winner of scholarship given at St. John's Kennedy High School. He will major in aerospace engineering at Notre Dame.

Daniel L. Cramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Cramer, 410 E. Tiffin St., Fostoria, Ohio, an honor roll student at St. Wendelin high school. He will major in aeronautical engineering at Notre Dame.

Michael J. Worle, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Worle, 410 E. Tiffin St., Fostoria, Ohio, an honor roll student at St. Wendelin high school. He will major in aeronautical engineering at Notre Dame.

The teachers and professors who attend the conference will discuss revisions of their classroom teaching and testing techniques in each subject area.

The advanced testing program then is based upon the national norm which results from the widespread use of the "duplication of services." The report of Bay Turner, a member of the NFSS, Student Government has labeled the society "black" because its membership at this point is predominantly black. He said that Student Government has wrongly implied that Ujamma represents the consensus of Notre Dame students.

Turner feels that the joint allocation of funds is not effect of a larger aspect, the thwarting of Ujamma and the NFSS into a corner as "black organizations." The Finance Committee's report has recommended that the NFSS and the Society of Ujamma receive one joint allocation of $2,500 to prevent the duplication of services.

In his appraisal of Bay Turner, a member of the NFSS, Student Government has labeled the society "black" because its membership at this point is predominantly black. He said that Student Government has wrongly implied that Ujamma represents the consensus of Notre Dame students.

Turner feels that the joint allocation of funds is not effect of a larger aspect, the thwarting of Ujamma and the NFSS into a corner as "black organizations." The report of the Finance Committee's recommendation, Ron Newkirk, who holds membership in both organizations, suggested that the lumping together of both groups by Student Government was an act of "overt racism." According to Newkirk, the NFSS may reject the joint allocation and ask for a separate allocation.

Bob McCrady of the executive council of Ujamma said that he felt the joint allocation procedure as recommended to be "based on certain prejudices" and that he saw no reason to the proposal.

Mike Nickerson, vice-chairman of Ujamma asked only for what it needed, presenting a definite plan for usage of the money. For example, a Black Arts Festival is being considered among the activities.

Nickerson said that he has no real concern at present, since the budget is only a proposal, but that he feels there is no sense in this part of the budget.

He also said that he feels that if reasonable answers are given concerning the failure to meet Ujamma's proposed separate allocation, the members will come to agreement.

---

BICYCLE SALE
Savings up to 15%

BICYCLE CENTER
OPEN MONDAY 'TIL 8:30 PM

days: 8:30 'TIL 9:00 PM

Phone 387-1023
2400 East Ave.

Students for McGovern

"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT"

7:30 11 pm

Thurs., Oct. Engineering Aud. Admission $1.00

DUKE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

A member of the faculty of Duke University School of Law will be on campus Tuesday, October 24 to interview prospective applicants. Please contact the Placement office for an appointment.

A member of the faculty may also be obtained from Associate Dean Frank T. Read, Duke University, School of Law, Durham, North Carolina 27706.
US silent on new Israeli reprisals

by Oswald Johnston
(C) 1972 Washington Star-News

Washington, Oct. 17—Israel's top diplomat yesterday was fixated on the suspected Arab Guerrilla executions in the West Bank, as the US late Wednesday threatened to drop its policy of only excluding some diplomats. An official, speaking to the observer council resolutions that rebuke Israel for reprisals without also condemning the terror acts. The US has refused to be the first nation to condemn the terror acts, especially Arab terrorism, and has invoked unusually stringent entry controls against the 8000 Arab diplomats who have already exceeded this international convention. A wide range of financial aid is available. Write for free catalog.

W. C. A., Chapman College, Box CC40, Orange, Cal. 92666

WA + 92666

Wednesday, October 18, 1972

7

The observer

Deadline to be extended for turning in football tix

The deadline for those students who wish to turn in their tickets for the N-D - Mo game this Saturday will be extended today and tomorrow.

Yesterday's turn-in was not sufficient to reach the needed quota, and according to B. J. Bingle, student director, if close to 200 tickets are not turned in today or tomorrow the entire project will be put on hold.

Senior Bar manager Jim Madison told last night that the bar will be open during the Missouri game to entertain those students who wish to support the TCU Exchange Program.

This exchange project's deadline has been extended through Thursday, November 1. According to Bingle, keeping the bar open will enable students to purchase tickets that are no longer available at the box office. The bar closes shortly before game time, but this weekend it will be open from 1 p.m. Saturday until 2 a.m. Sunday.

In addition to student tickets, the exchange project also urgently needs drivers and monitors. Anyone interested in helping to sell these capacities is requested to attend a short meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the second floor lobby of the Texas Union.

About 700 South Bend children associated with the exchange program, in which many N-D students are involved, are promised a Thanksgiving dinner. The program is now in its third year and is rumored to be replacing the ticket exchange program.

All three have told the student staff that they will be unable to contribute their tickets. Usually the bar closes shortly before game time, but the deadline will be extended to 2 a.m. Sunday.

FOR SALE

New Westinghouse Compact 40 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

New TCI F3000. 300 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

For sale: kitchen set 5 plates & 4 cups $10.00, 20 oz. & 6 cup coffee mugs $15.00, 3 pt. & 5 pt. $10.00, 4 pt. & 6 pt. $15.00. All 4 sets of pots & pans $50.00, 8 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 10 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 12 pt. stew pot $20.00. On four way table $20.00. Call 275-2526.

For sale: 1971 Suzuki 500 with 35000 miles (also at best offer, Call 275-2526.

For sale: Far East Airline Far East Airline, $175 tax. 2 tickets, tickets home + 2nd trip to Hong Kong. Call 275-2526.

FOR SALE

New Westinghouse Compact 40 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

New TCI F3000. 300 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

For sale: kitchen set 5 plates & 4 cups $10.00, 20 oz. & 6 cup coffee mugs $15.00, 3 pt. & 5 pt. $10.00, 4 pt. & 6 pt. $15.00. All 4 sets of pots & pans $50.00, 8 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 10 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 12 pt. stew pot $20.00. On four way table $20.00. Call 275-2526.

FOR SALE

New Westinghouse Compact 40 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

New TCI F3000. 300 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

For sale: kitchen set 5 plates & 4 cups $10.00, 20 oz. & 6 cup coffee mugs $15.00, 3 pt. & 5 pt. $10.00, 4 pt. & 6 pt. $15.00. All 4 sets of pots & pans $50.00, 8 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 10 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 12 pt. stew pot $20.00. On four way table $20.00. Call 275-2526.

FOR SALE

New Westinghouse Compact 40 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

New TCI F3000. 300 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

For sale: kitchen set 5 plates & 4 cups $10.00, 20 oz. & 6 cup coffee mugs $15.00, 3 pt. & 5 pt. $10.00, 4 pt. & 6 pt. $15.00. All 4 sets of pots & pans $50.00, 8 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 10 point stainless steel frypan $10.00, 12 pt. stew pot $20.00. On four way table $20.00. Call 275-2526.

FOR SALE

New Westinghouse Compact 40 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.

New TCI F3000. 300 watt capacity, factory warranty, $60.00. Call 275-4245.
Success hasn't spoiled Creaney

Mike Creaney admits that successful season may have spoiled him. "I was spoiled rotten as a sophomore. Now, a senior, I don't think I can take an experienced offensive line, with everybody's All-American split ends, a Big Ten fullback, everybody's Heisman Trophy winner. I think just the way they were, we were successful right from the start."

"But junior year," Creaney continues, "wasn't at the same efficiency. We were bogged down and it was definitely a season of our general inexperience."

"This year, there is more experience and more knowledge of what we go with. I'm not playing football anymore. When everyone is playing just a little bit better than they did, you add that up to 640 yards." Against Purdue, he caught five passes for 114 yards and a touchdown, his best game statistics in 25 games for the Irish. But he was just as pleased with his performance against the Boilermakers earlier, even though the game plan called for him to play much shorter blocking lineman rather than a split end-tackle exchange.

"I don't care who does the job as long as they're taking in the same line and they know what I want. If we win and I do all I block, that's fine. If I catch a lot of black flags and we lose, that's my fault."

Creaney has been doing a lot of good by catching passes, blocking and also exerting leadership on a basically young football team. A team where the blocking was constant.

"Last year, I was in a position where I thought I should say anything," Creaney admits. "There were a lot of seniors on the team and I don't think anyone who wasn't a senior would have been interested. When you throw the ball as little as we did last year, other teams could put eight or nine men on the line.

"No matter what I wanted to do, there wasn't anything I could do if I wasn't getting the ball. I know Tom Gates (junior split end) must do the same way-if he couldn't get the ball, there was just no way he could lead.

"But this year, the situation is a lot different. I'm one of the few seniors, and it would be wrong if I didn't say anything. There are so many younger guys on the team and their enthusiasm is just in- teresting. Eric Penick is just like a ping pong ball in a corridor before and during a game."

"I never believed one person could make all the difference in the world, but Tommy (Clements) has made all the difference. That's our year, only the blocking was a problem."

Although Creaney himself has been complemented as one of the best tight ends in Irish football history, one of the nicest com- ments he claims he's been given is from him. When someone has pointed out to him. "Hey, how can you be a football player at all? Most people just can't separate the person from the machine on the field." They expect the prototype, big-built, dusk and upy. It is an unusual thing, but I've noticed every Saturday afternoon, you try to knock someone down. Afterwards, you're sorry for him. I know there's an ignorance there, but on the football field, everyone has the same equipment on and everyone knows the risks.

"I know what it takes to win on the football field, and it takes 100 per cent dedication of the body and mind. But I also know it takes a lot of confidence to go after the thing, and it's not the same thing. Every life situation isn't third and ten."

Creaney does not question his ability as a college tight end, but he is almost too honest with himself when considering his professional prospects.

"People have to talk reasonably about pro football," he says. "I've got to go to the workout. I probably could keep pro weight, probably pro strength is below par. I've never been a split end-tackle player. I've never felt you need much of that ability. It's more a matter of technique and finesse."

"I definitely feel I'm a good college tight end. I'm big enough to block guys like (Purdue's) Kesper, Baumgartner or Butz, but I haven't gotten what I wanted out of it."

Creaney is a psychology major, and he has not ruled out pro football, he has pretty well analyzed what he has gotten out of it so far.

"There's a time when you sit back and say, 'That's enough.' I've got an education, the friend- ship. I've earned him the position in the books.

"I've gotten enough out of it and it's time to get on with the next."

But not too quickly of course. There's still a season of offensive efficiency ahead.

Fullback Andy Huff led the way among the weekly Irish football awards this week as he was named by almost everyone's coach as the Gridiron's "Outstanding Player of the Week." Huff's performance was predictable in the Cincinnati State's 32-0 victory over Miami University, showing a total of 32 points for the day

O'Leary wants to give valuable playing time to the new men. He's one of the few seniors, and he's also concerned about finding a replacement for Holkan, who graduated in December.

The goalie situation raises another question. O'Leary has three times more O'Leary and Jim Lepler, and they're not having problems. Simmons and Roller shared the net, and the goalies are in the goal as well.

The Irish title fell to Texas A&M after the Midwest division.

"We're going to try to play in West Lafayette next Saturday for a return engagement with Purdue. They are coming off with the annual alumni game, October 28th, on Carter Field."

"I never believed one person could make all the difference in the world, but Tommy (Clements) has made all the difference. That's our year, only the blocking was a problem."

"I've got an education, the friendship. I've earned him the position in the books."

"I've gotten enough out of it and it's time to get on with the next."

"There's a time when you sit back and say, 'That's enough.' I've got an education, the friendship. I've earned him the position in the books.

"I've gotten enough out of it and it's time to get on with the next."

But not too quickly of course. There's still a season of offensive efficiency ahead.

Fullback Andy Huff led the way among the weekly Irish football awards this week as he was named by almost everyone's coach as the Gridiron's "Outstanding Player of the Week." Huff's performance was predictable in the Cincinnati State's 32-0 victory over Miami University, showing a total of 32 points for the day.