On The Inside
Pears discusses crime

Vol. VII No. 69
serving the notre dame - st. mary's community
Tuesday, January 30, 1972

Pistols used to reinforce demands

Theft victims bound, gagged

by Greg Rowinski
Staff Reporter

The armed robbery of five Alumni residents Sunday night could have been a Jack Webb production, according to Dave Burch, one of the victims.

But it was a real experience for the five and a visitor, Terry Schneider, as they lay tied and gagged while three black youths rifled the suite rooms 208-210.

The drama began at 9:30 as four of the roommates watched Lawrence of Arabia on television. The three robbers knocked and were invited in.

The three took positions and demanded money. Terrorized by their display of weapons, the group gained a grim reality, as they produced two pistols and a blood-bladed knife.

After emptying the roommates wallets, the three bound the residents with suitability, bathtub to bats, and undershirts and used socks to gag them. They then began to rifle the rooms.

Their operation took on the appearance of a well-executed game plan until some complications arose.

The robbers were not able to "take all night to read the room, as they said, and they couldn't find a huge amount of money." The robbers appeared to expect to be able to "trap the roommates," suggested Burch, and proceed with their crime uninterrupted. But they were unaware that people would drop in through the evening and prevent such.

The first to intrude on the robbers were Dennis Lamouine, another roommate, and Terry Schneider, a visitor from St. Louis.

Schneider entered first to find a gun pointed at his head and the four roommates teared up on the floor. Lamouine saw the four on the floor and thought it was "some kind of joke." The look on Schneider's face and the gun pointed at his own head convinced him that it wasn't. He and Schneider joined the other four on the floor.

The rooms were being crowded with the two latest additions, joining Steve Deryndov, Steve Teso, Bob Lee and Burch. The robbers were nowhere else to walk, often stepped on the backs of the victims. Besides the sound of the gun and the light blaring, it was the roughest treatment the victims received.

The robbers, realizing their miscalculation, were "pretty shook," according to the residents. They held up control of their captives, now numbering six, but the very number was spooking to them.

The three had began their crime very professionally, not using names and keeping their faces averted as much as possible. But they tended to let their guard down, the evening progressing.

Objections among the roommates and residents regarding their personal danger. The guns pointed at their heads were instrumental in keeping all as "real cool." The robbers suggested and threats to shoot if no more money was found. The three meant business. But cash was the primary interest of the invaders.

Gerry Hill's knock again interrupted the thieves activities. Hill responded to "Who is it?" with his own question, regarding the question as a joke being played by the occupants. He was answered as one of the three opened the door and pointed a gun at his head.

Hill saw his roommates on the floor and feared that they were dead already. "Getting out was my only chance" was his reaction, so he turned and ran, screaming my head.

The three decided it was time to leave the scene of the crime, and also ran out of the room. In their haste they left one of the two pistols.

The three headed out of the hall as Hill ran down the hall. The rescued captives locked their door and called security.

continued on page 2

On The Inside
Pears discusses crime

War continues with small-scale attacks

by Charles Mohr (C) 1972 New York Times News Service

Col. Long. South Vietnam-South Vietnamese forces were openly ignoring the cease-fire agreement in the area northeast of Saigon today, but on a relatively small scale and selectively.

Government spokesmen in Saigon were charging that there had been hundreds of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese violations of the cease-fire since it supposed began at 6 a.m. Sunday.

occupation

But a foreign observer touring routes 1 and 22 in an area 30 miles northwest of Saigon for the last two days, there was no clear evidence.

What was happening was that South Vietnamese forces were trying with considerable success, to drive away Communist forces that had blocked roads and occupied hamlets in a last minute offensive shortly before the cessation.

The sound of an American B-52 bombing could also be heard faintly from Cambodia, a few miles away.

American sources said Communist forces in a last-minute offensive was moving on in South Vietnam indiscriminately.

There was no full-scale rebellion of Viet Cong. But instead, there upset to win semantic arguments with bombs and bullets in isolated areas.

road blocks

The Saigon government clearly seemed to have made a decision that it would not tolerate the Communists' successful efforts to block key roads and lines of communications just before the cease-fire. On a much smaller scale, government forces were shelling the fringes of hamlets under military pressure from the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in-fighting.

granades

For instance, at this hamlet about 10 miles South East of the provincial capital of Ty, the road to Saigon was closed because of the presence of an undetermined number of Communist soldiers in the northern part of the hamlet, about 4 miles from Saigon.

Late this morning and early afternoon South Vietnamese troops were throwing grenades and spraying troops especially at his time period. The sound of occasional gunfire from the road, sea and air combat forces of the parties of South Vietnam shall remain in place. That is, in order to ensure a stable cease-fire, there shall be no major redeployments or movements that would extend the enemy's area of control or result in contact between opposing armed forces and clashes which might take place.

Section 8 of the main agreement itself says that "The armed forces of the two South Vietnamese parties shall remain in place."

In practice, these provisions seem to be about as useless as others that stipulate that the Viet Cong should act as "a view to ending hatred and enmity" and "in the spirit of mutual non-involvement."

refugees

It was clear that the Viet Cong and North Vietnam tried to exploit the approaching cease-fire last week by closing such roads as Route 1. If a true standard cease-fire had taken place, all traffic to Tay Ninh, for instance, would have been either blocked or would have had to pass through an area of Communist control. Even such a "centrally controlled" area would contain only a few men, according to residents in the road.

"drive fast"

But today a steady stream of civilian and some military traffic was going through after heavy government fire had forced the enemy troops back a short distance.

Government troops advised travellers to drive fast past the bad stretch. There was no trouble going northwest. Coming back in the afternoon the roads were open. The bodies of two Vietnamese girls were seen in the middle of the road near their overturned motor scooter.

As they appeared to have been killed by artillery shells that were falling close to the road, cars, buses and armored vehicles did not stop but raced past to a safer area.

A South Vietnamese lieutenant said the girls had been hit and killed by a speeding truck.
Robberies hit ND campus

by Dave Rast
Staff Reporter

A wave of thefts has been sweeping through campus since the school year resumed Jan. 16, confirmed by Sunday night's armed robbery in Alumni Hall.

Security chief Arthur Pears has on exact figures on the number of thefts, burglaries and robberies that have occurred, but admits that this recent rash has been "alarmingly severe."

During the past weekend, thefts were reported in Farley, the dormitory besides the armed robbery in Alumni. In addition, a couple of would-be thieves (possibly the same person who entered Sue's desertsations matched) went to the Dignity offices on the fourth floor of LaFortune Saturday night at around 11:30, were told by Dignity Editor-in-Chief Mike Paulius that there was no money to be had, then rammed the floor, breaking into lockers and forcing entry to the student union Campus Academic Commission office and ringing the doors and windows inside.

"Paulius definitely saw them at work," said Pears, and "he can identify them." On the previous weekend this same group might also have forcibly entered the Observer office on the floor below and stolen several items, including a cassette recorder.

None of the thefts reported this semester include planter, Grace, the basement of LaFortune, chemistry continuing education, and Howard, where a particular large theft allegedly occurred. This is not a complete list.

Why all the recent robberies? Security chief Pears does not believe they have been "inside student perpetrated jobs."

"It would appear that we have some people from downtown who are in it for money and drugs," explained Pears.

"The Alumni Hall incident is very similar to what's been happening in the residential/ South Bend area—the theives break in and demand marijuana or money."

He places most of the motivation for the crime wave in the search for drugs and ways of financing the drug habit.

"Perhaps a source has been dried up somewhere by some law enforcement," said Pears. "We don't know. But we've traced each instance of theft, robbery and burglary to drugs."

For the past week, breaking and entering has been rare on campus, said Pears, during this recent rash of robberies. The only report of an instance of it was that attempted by the thieves last Saturday evening.

"Our resident hall thefts," said Pears, "have come from dorms locking their rooms. What's happening is that they are trying to get into a vending machine. A R.A. caught them at it. They threw their cell phones into the hall.

"We've got 63 residence halls on campus," said Pears, and "they have a lot of rooms. And the student center is wide open in the evening."

Even if we could concentrate exclusively on one hall we still wouldn't have the men to stand at all the doors and guarantee that no one would take place. You can't ask a police force to guarantee that a house won't be robbed."

Pears plans on continuing security procedures: security men walking the campus, floor checks (make sure to be locked, look them in if aren't, explore inside if any evidence of entrance), and manning the telephones for calls from students reporting fresh incidents.

"We got alot of crank calls," said Pears, but we answer every question or two about their being a random walk, this seems enormously impractical, and Pears admits that one "has to be realistic" in the case of large parties and visits from students from other halls.

Yet, it is the hall resident who stands to lose if access into the hall is not controlled.

"Each hall should take it upon itself," said Pears, "to determine that each person they use in the hall belongs in the hall."

Arthur Pears: Search for drugs behind recent thefts.

NOTRE DAME BOOKSTORE BRINGS YOU A FANTASTIC THE GRASSROOTS THE BEACH BOYS MOTHER EARTH THE MAMAS & THE PAPAS LOBO THE FOUR SEASONS RICK NISSEN JOHN MAYALL ALBUMS WITH SUGGESTED LIST PRICE VALUES TO $9.98 NOW ALL RECORDS ONLY

HUNDREDS OF STEREO RECORDS TO CHOOSE FROM

BOAC's EUROPE! 18 Days, May 21-June 8 only $180.00, Round Trip CHICAGO-LONDON-CHICAGO Sign-ups at Travel Bureau Sign-up Deadline: FEB. 2

An invitation to join...

The Paulist Fathers... A contemporary religious community serving the people of America communicating the Christian message in the city, on the campus, in the parish, on radio and TV. Dispelling uncertainty and imparting peace, celebrating the hope of the people of God and speaking on issues that concern the Church.

As an individual, you can develop and share your talents with others. As a member of the Community, you will experience the encouragement and support of fellow Paulists. We're interested, if you are.

The Observer is published daily by the College of Notre Dame of the Sacred Heart. It is the official newspaper of the University of Notre Dame, St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $10 per year. The Observer is not affiliated with or endorsed by the University. Information, Res. Dept., Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

Round Trip Round Trip

FEB. 2

Take advantage of these fabulous prices.
Five Alumni residents held at gunpoint

continued from page 1

Another Alumni resident saw the three in flight and pursued them, at a distance of about sixty to eighty yards. Going out of the door, he ran for about twenty yards, until he heard a shot and stopped. The three continued to flee toward O'Shaughnessy Hall, then cut between that half and the Engineering Building. The telephone line to security was busy. Their call to the main gate was somewhat garbled and not understood by the guard on duty. Finally security was reached. Officers, contacted by some other party reached the scene. The guard at the Main Gate saw no one there, but an officer heard three reports identified as 22 shots. Security officers arrived at the scene within fifteen minutes claiming their arrival was delayed when the callers failed to give a room number. The revolver left by the robbers was a .32. It will be sent to Indianapolis for ballistic and fingerprint processing, said Arthur Pears, head of security.

No gloves were used, so Pears saw a chance of finding a latent print. But the rugged surface of the pistol's handle would make such a discovery difficult.

The six Alumni residents will be questioned by St. Joseph County police today and will look through the department's mugbooks for possible identification of their robbers.

The sheriff's department has jurisdiction in this case since armed robbery is a felony.

St. Joe's County police report that the conduct of the crime is similar to that involved in six cases in the last two weeks in South Bend, in which robbers enter a house and rob the occupants without any ill treatment.

Pears believes that the three were not students. No student, he suggested would be "crazy enough" to take the chance of being identified.

The incident is frightening, said Pears, in its picturing of armed criminals against unarmed victims and security. But he cannot foresee the arm of his force because of this one incident.

"We are not in the business of apprehending outsiders," he said, but in "protecting the interests of the Notre Dame community."

The robbers failed Alumni's hall-security system. A fourth unidentified youth had accompanied the three into the hallway of Alumni. He asked a passing Alumni resident for Lee's room number. Seeing the youth on the phone, and thinking him familiar to Lee, the resident let the four in with his identification card.

Thousands flee from lava of 'dormant' volcano in Iceland

by R. Thomas Thues
Staff Reporter

5,300 inhabitants of Heimaey Island in Iceland fled from columns of molten lava as a presumably dormant volcano spewed molten lava 70 yards into the ocean.

Tuesday, after the first eruption, thousands expected to return to their town within a few days. Wednesday, however, two more volcanic craters erupted in the fishing capital. By Wednesday the rift was threatening to split the 2.5 mile wide island in two.

Although no casualties were reported it is doubtful that Heimaey's $12 million fishing economy will be restored to normal for many months.

Thousands of rescue boat lights Tuesday night contrasting with the blazing volcano and pictured the terror and disbelief that such an eruption could occur after 1,000 years of volcanic inactivity. The last man to see the rage of the Heimaeyfjall volcano were the Viking explorers of 864 A.D.

Murphy noted that rifts like the Andreas fault of western North America, including Nicaragua, and the mid-Atlantic ridge of Iceland are merely breathing gills of a constantly growing earth. What is considered disaster by the fiddling human race is just the early growing pains of our young earth. The sinking of Iceland would be the result of no more than the formation of an age wrinkle on the face of the earth, Murphy implied.

GSU SKI TRIP
Sat. Feb. 17
$510 p.m.
Tow. Rental, Lesson
1st 50 $3.00-reg. $6.00
Swiss Valley, Mish.
Pay by Feb. 7 Jim Sullivan Rm. 1028 NSH
For Info. Call 2724858

ATTENTION SOPHOMORES

Are you aware that the Army ROTC Two-Year Program at the University of Notre Dame prepares you for an officer's commission the the United States Army while paying you $100 per month during your Junior and Senior Years? Do you know that you are also eligible to compete for subsidized medical schooling with full pay and allowances, subsidized Graduate study with full pay and allowances for two years flight training or Ranger and Airborne Schools?

Applicants must pass an interview by a board of officers successfully complete written tests be medically qualified and have at least two academic years of undergraduate or graduate work remaining commencing in the Fall Semester 1973. Upon being accepted into the program students must attend a six-week summer camp after their sophomore year. They then take Military Science training with those Notre Dame cadets already in the ROTC Program.

Two-Year program participants are also eligible to compete for Two and One-Year scholarships which pay full tuition, books and academic fees.

INTERESTED? For more information visit Captain Weimer at the Military Science Building on the Notre Dame Campus or telephone 283-6264/65.
A Shade of Gray

The past weeks have driven a point home hard and fast—something must be done about Notre Dame Security. Arthur Pears, Director of Campus Security, claims that his job is not to apprehend outsiders but to protect the interests of the Notre Dame community. Yet—

-Sunday night six students are held captive in a room in Alumni Hall. Seventy dollars is stolen.

-Over the weekend, would-be burglars entered the offices of the Domo and the Student Union.

-Also, over the weekend, thefts were reported in Sorin Hall and the Wilson Halls.

-Further thefts have been committed in Howard, Gray, Farley and Flanner Halls. The Observer offices have also been broken into before and after $60 was stolen.

These incidents are not enough to sound the alarm of a general crisis, but they are indicative of something that is rapidly developing. The campus is getting reputation as an easy target. The students are not apprehended, the pickings are plentiful, and security presents no barrier to youthful thieves who can pass as college students.

All in all, it seems that Pears and his department are not taking any action for the safety of those who man the security posts.

A second complaint was registered by Pat McLaughlin, President of Pangborn Hall. Pangborn suffered a bomb threat earlier in the year, but with no thanks to security. An anonymous phone call informed security of the threat and they failed even to investigate. The extent of reaction to the call was that the maids and janitors of the hall were given the day off.

Yet, an anonymous phone call about a male living on Lewis Hall brings immediate response.

The problems of security on a college campus are many and this is recognized, but improvement must be found somewhere—perhaps in the attitudes of those who man the security posts. Protection of the campus and its people is more important than what cars gain access to the campus.

This rash of thefts has pushed the issue to the fore and it is not one that can be ignored. If security cannot find a way to better protect the campus than the future in deeks perilous.

Security exists to serve the campus, not to decide the morals of the people who live there. Once they get these priorities straight perhaps then they will set about curing the problems which are coloring the immediate future a shade of gray.

Jerry Latkus

Notice to SMC Students

The second semester bill for Saint Mary's students included a card for the $2.00 Observer yearly subscription fee. Only 50% of these cards were returned with payment. Many thanks to those people but this is not sufficient for as to consider the present delivery system adequate.

Jason Lindower, vice president for fiscal affairs, has arranged a system which would allow direct payment of the $2.00 fee on Wednesday of this week. A list of those people who have paid will be posted on the wall outside the cashier's office. Those who have not paid may do so from 9:30 to 12:00 and 1:00 to 3:30 at the cashier's window.

The fee may also be paid by mail but Lindower emphasized that only checks and not cash should be mailed. The card which accompanied the Saint Mary's bill is not needed whether you pay in person or by mail.

Our present method of delivery is not practical unless 80 percent or more subscribe. It would not be fair to those who have paid to subsidize the subscriptions of those who have not. However, no other method of delivery is financially feasible. Failure to subscribe in sufficient numbers would force a cutoff in Saint Mary's bill.

This would be the third year that Saint Mary's students for some reason or other have not paid the full subscription fee for the newspaper which we have delivered. It's not fair to the Notre Dame students who do pay the full subscription fee and it can't continue.

John Abowd

For What It's Worth

Notre Dame Students

Notre Dame student fans have done it again, matching their performances at the Miami football game and at various hockey games. This time the added dimension of national television has brought many alumni from New York to California to see what sort of real alumni matter come out of this university.

Actually those fans who cursed the referees, threw shoes, coins, and a bag of some sort of powder aren't regular alumni material, but irregular. Notre Dame probably has the largest alumni around when you consider the financial support they give this university, and the services they provide for themselves and future donors through local clubs activities.

The UCLA game was the first basketball game I've seen this year and it might be the last because I don't want to be associated with the fans mentioned above. I'm not that excited about Notre Dame anymore, but I like to go to events which promote exceptional performances or have something big at stake, like a record or a championship. I don't go to listen to some idiot curse or watch him throw objects into the arena.

Sure they missed some, maybe a lot of calls, but they missed them both ways especially underneath the boards. I don't think they did an exceptional job and geriatrics shouldn't be allowed to wear striped shirts, but they did do their job adequately.

I realize the fans were upset because there was a change of playing the national champs, who were also on the verge of setting a win streak record. I realized we were the last team to beat them. I saw that the game and the fans behaved themselves even though it was close all the way. I realize that had we upset the Bruins, we could have jumped somewhere into the national rankings.

However, these considerations do not provide license to heave sneakers and shoes which can cut a scalp, or break a nose, tooth or pair of glasses of someone who turns around at an inopportune moment. They don't give license to throw coins which can cut, split, blind or cause an ankle or knee injury on the court. Likewise for the bag of powder.

Profligacy isn't licensed either. Notre Dame students don't even know how to behave properly. Maybe everybody should spend a semester in Philadelphia and learn the art. People are offended by such behaviour which can't be justified. The profaner is crying sour grapes, and admitting he can't accept the fact that his alma mater was matched for the Bruins. Why compliment UCLA when you can tear down the referees and make illogical arguments based on second guessing. If you think Larry Hovfiedly was bush, you don't think very well.

Well, we were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

We had a group of students and we sort of thought that they would be thrown out of the rink. We were upset with ourselves that Larry Hollyfield was hurt, you don't think very well.

-}---
Death as a Fact of Life

By David Hendin

Norton 87.30

"I don't understand what I'm supposed to do," Tolstoy said on his deathbed--and neither do most of us. The conspiracy of silence which we surround the subject of dying led Geoffrey Gorer, the British anthropologist, to coin the phrase "the pornography of death." But a "good death" is an indispensable end to a good life--so not only to the dying person, but also to the living, we will always be able to remember today is often rendered obscene by technology. Many patients are sometimes forced to lie away from him by machines. And no one knows exactly when death expires with only technology for support. It may be a positive or negative experience with someone we love, it is natural to feel sleepy. I mention these two remarks because I feel that, somewhere between them, we may find the answer to life's most intimidating question.

To die with dignity is important not only to the dying person, but also to his or her family and friends. Hendin quotes surveys to show that most dying people would prefer to talk about it, and are therapeutic to bring that partial assuaged.

The author has done a brilliant job of bringing together the literature of death--from the legal, medical and psychological criteria to the fact that the dead permit: the advantages of the "hospices" and the need to train doctors to deal with the dying person.

When Hendin speaks of the inevitability of deterioration, I remember the humiliation I saw in my own father's face when he was a rube goldberg tangle of tubes and life coercing machines. His difficulties were increased by his "stiff upper lip" philosophy that locked both of us in the anguish of all that we wanted to, and could not say. A terrible loneliness lurked in his eyes, but it was too late for him to bear or to change.

What the author does not say because it may be beyond the scope of his intent is that our entire life is a preparation for our death, and we may expect to die well or badly depending on how we have lived. Hendin tells a story of visiting William James at a time when the American psychologist and philosopher had a brush with death in the form of a heart attack. He could not refrain from asking James afterward how he had felt about the prospect. James replied that he had lived his life and done his work. Death held no terrors for him.

Edmund Bergler, the psychiatrist, remarks in one of his many books that, after a satisfying sexual experience with someone we love, it is natural to feel sleepy. I mention these two remarks because I feel that, somewhere between them, we may find the answer to life's most intimidating question.

SPECIAL SCHOLARSHIP OFFER

CLASS OF 1975 ONLY

SCHOLARSHIP INCLUDES: 2-year tuition...free! $100 monthly. Book fees paid, lab fees paid, etc.

DO YOU QUALIFY? Talk to the Professor of Aerospace Studies at the University of Notre Dame. Building 5. Call 283-6635 for further information. (If you're class of 74, next year is your year!)

DEADLINE: Application deadline is 23 February 1973. Act Now!

FIND YOURSELF A SCHOLARSHIP IN AIR FORCE ROTC

HOW ARE THINGS AT HOME?

Long distance still is the next best thing to being there. And you can save money by calling nights or weekends.

FREE FLYING LESSONS

PLUS $9,800 INCOME YOUR FIRST YEAR

And that's why the start of your career as a pilot/aviator: An Air Force officer. You'll acquire valuable experience that will Hendin, and you have a head start on a commercial flying career... or immediately take the job you want.

United States Air Force

109 E. LaSalle St. SOUTH BEND, IND. 46601
Phone: 233-4747

Indiana Bell

1973 New York Times Service
Letters...

The Peace

Editor:

Some thoughts on an honorable peace.

1) The South Vietnamese have not been given a chance to choose their government. If there are newspapers and radio stations, and if people are being paid for speaking against the enemy regime, if the people are allowed to express their opinions, they will have that same type of choice that has characterized the American free elections for the last 15 years. They will be able to choose between a totalitarian dictatorship and a democracy.

2) The Vietnamese should be able to look out for the best interests of the people, and the communists should be able to look out for the best interests of the people.

As in America, if there are two dancing serpent.

Le Quoc Quan

The Peace

Editor:

And so I am not outraged at Nixon's ordering of those bombs. I am thankful because they have brought "peace," a feeling so strongly reinforced in me by the Americans' opinion of the dropping of the atom bomb at the end of World War II. And so all the lives, destruction and horror are endured. Why do the Vietnamese think so? Did the Vietnamese have more sense?

When this peace is celebrated there will be an element of the ignorant and arrogant thinking of their loved ones lying in a pit beneath the earth with countless other bodies. There will be many a soldier thinking of his kid buddy bleeding to death on a field. And many an American soldier will feel that more sons will not be taken. Through theicken man have been "peace." (Celebrating, "The Mass is ended."

And when our wars come home and when their books have been written, then will we have a taste of what this war was like.

The Peace

Editor:

I wish there was something I could do to relieve their suffering. I had no real desire of any kind to come back here. I saw the pictures and I read the stories. Then, so now my feelings are indescribable and known only to those who come so near to the Vietnamese people. My thanks are to God and everyone that has been to know and to care for the Vietnamese people, although it may not be apparent outwardly.

Thank you Everyone!

Sincerely,

Patricia Helgeson (S.M.)
Survivor of North Central 255
December 30, 1972

Lewis Hall again

Editor:

Clearly it will be some time before the total circumstances surrounding the Lewis Hall incident are known. Some preliminary judgments seem reasonable on the known "facts." First, just as a military serviceman, Notre Dame students, undergraduate and graduate alike, appear to have given up their rights under the constitution.

Whatever procedure the university wishes to follow in enforcing its personal moral fascism, the institution pursues them with flagrant disregard of any court ruled "legal right."

Witness for instance the Provost's threat of vigil demanding "revocation for the student during days and fields."

Certainly the questionable approach on blackmail at all is a modern approach of the university's intractable, not to mention that Mr. Prer's intractable approach has clearly not reported. He violently every modern legal excuse. But the recourse for students in such cases is ridiculously inadequate as evidenced by Dr. Gordon's untenable proposal for graduate students. And the only reasonable evidence is not recover by closing the face of another far-off land.

"What did they say they were fighting for, Father?"

University English Department

Rosini's View

Editor:

While the concern for the lack of Due Process afforded some Notre Dame students as illustrated by the recent Lewis Hall incident is understandable. I feel that the thrust of the protest so far has been misdirected. Arthur Peers was not responsible for the actions of his former students. He was accused of "hypercritical" and "even if that meant at

Sincerely yours,

John H. Knight
Grad Student

The Peace

Editor:

I think that your Sports Editor should be equally realed ("Irish Faced in Orange Bowl") for having atitributed its tribulation to them in "November of 1967" (S.Sensenbrenner's article). Your article makes aronors will you discover his nature. (Once, yet, perhaps, to Purdue or USC, was a shutout.) The last Irish shutout was to Miami in 1965 (9-9 tie), again in the Orange Bowl. Let's hope the shutout's straight.

Fred Coe
Grad Student

Salvation

Editor:

I have written this in an attempt to make some type of acknowledgement and thanks to all those who I was unable to thank personally by letter.

In an age of dehumanized mechanization, de-emphasized spirituality and self-centered egoism, it is rare that one is fortunate to find that people do care. It is rare that one has the experience of an ordeal which affects and engulfs man in its totality. I feel that the experience of an ordeal which affects and engulfs man in its totality is not responsible for the victim's suffering and is deserving of the respect of the victim's suffering and is deserving of the respect of the universe.

These expressions have come to me in the form of gifts; cards, prayers, and writing. The most amazing thing is that the majority have come from people I do not know, but who have actually never met me.

As I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me. I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.

I feel as if I did that night as I stood watching the plane, I had learned the word "fear" helplessly. In flames. In disbelief and horror and in a sense of helplessness. I was actually known. It was I who guided me from that plane, but his "helplessness" (as it is yet "unknown") to me.
InPRI\te\t lacking momentum; support of ND branch meager

by Steven Carr
Staff Reporter

Ralph Nadar has been trying to institute programs in consumer research all over the country and in recent years he has been successful. However, this state's branch named the Indiana Public Interest Research Group (IPIRG), shows little if any signs of life.

Bill Biller, one of the leaders of the movement to get Notre Dame's support for the program, explained that last year students had presented a signed petition to the administration in the hope that IPIRG would be accepted here. The administration did accept it and would have proceeded to bill each student three dollars, with the option of obtaining a refund on the money if they desired. There was one problem however, order for IPIRG to be established, the support of a least 20 students was necessary. It was obvious that Notre Dame could not give this kind of support, but it was hoped that Indiana University and the other schools would. Unfortunately, they were not able to. The trenches of the two state universities, suspicious of outside interference, rejected the program and put a stop to IPIRG in Indiana. Had they accepted it, a staff of trained professionals would have been hired in colleges throughout the state to work on public interest problems with the bulk of research being done by the students themselves.

This year, IPIRG does not appear to be in operation anywhere in Indiana and the prospects for its activation do not seem bright. Rather felt that there were a number of students interested in the program here on campus, but that, generally, the interest was not great. "For now," he concluded, "it's all up in the air."

ND law students characterized as 'more cautious and conservative'

"Law students at Notre Dame today tend to be more personally cautious and conservative than previous graduates," Dean Thomas Shaffer told New York law students last Friday at a luncheon in Thomas Shaffer's Office.

They are not interested in helping people," he added, "but they seem to want to do it on their own. They want to do it within the context of traditional law practice." Shaffer recounted the "veritable revolution" of five years ago when law students were most interested in social change. There was much interest in legal aid and public defender offices, and the Notre Dame Law School responded by including courses in law and poverty, civil and political liberties, law and social problems, and others.

"Even with the largest third-year class in Notre Dame history these courses are under­ subscribed today," Shaffer said. "Students instead are opting for courses in, in advanced estate planning, antitrust, corporate taxation and other areas into "bread-and-butter legal specialization." Shaffer said today's students seem to be much less interested in broad community leadership, public service and elective office— and more interested in quitter, law-professional, personal influence. They aim at the 'modest' professional lives of Owen Mar­ shall and Marcus Welby, rather than the 'great lads' like Thurgood Marshall or Louis D. Brandeis.

Shaffer concluded by saying that Notre Dame is attempting to accommodate a desire for diversity in the law student body by deliberately aiming for diversity in the number of applicants seeking admission to the Law School.

Tickets for Neil Young trip on sale at 4:00 outside Student Union office. Tickets- $13

A & L students have processes for 'rotten deal'

Students in Arts & Letters courses who feel they have received a rotten deal in any area of academics are reminded that they have recourse to remedy their ills.

A number of college departments have their own grievance procedures for students who feel they were wronged or unduly disadvantaged by a teaching department, course, or educational program. However, college-wide procedure also exists for redress of "problems" which is mediated by students of the Arts and Letters Student Advisory Council with faculty participation. The procedure allows for investigation of a student problem with results forwarded to the dean.

Though the dean and the council's decision will be final, the council's recommendation will be a deciding factor in the final determination of any case. For a detailed written account of the procedure, go to the College Dean's office, 117 O'Shaughnessy Hall.

WHAT'S THE RELIGIOUS LIFE LIKE?

Ask the Men Who Know

Contact: Fr. Andrew Celeri, O. Praem.
Holy Cross Hall, 107 UNO
I-204-1885

Wednesday, January 31st and Friday, February 1st, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Ask further information, contact: Doug Siddoway, 204-7265

Women's College for Drama, John DeMaggio, 203-6846

LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Tuesday, January 30, 1973

7:00—Council Chambers

Mardi Gras "Kickoff Party"

A Beer Besh With, Live Rock

Friday, Feb. 2, 1973
8:30 pm - 12:30 $5 per couple

Indiana National Guard Armory

Tickets Available at Student Union
Dining Halls (Tues., Wed., Thurs.)

Free Bus Service Provided

CLASSIFIED ADS

WANTED

Oats: Ears at $1.50 per bag. Pay for details call Mrs. Wells, 377-3797.

Need rider to Keen State this weekend. Call Ken 9947.

Part-time male clerk. Must be 21. Apply Huls' Portage Pharmacy, 1280 Portage Ave.

OVERSEAS JOBS FOR STUDENTS: Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa. Most professionals, summer or full time, expenses paid. Nothing required. Free information, write Tark Co. Dept. of Biological Geography, Berkeley, CA 94720.

Wanted: Ambitious person or group interested in earning good part-time income. For interview call Dr. Wells, 377-3797.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE - Fender (amplifier only) speaker cabinets (13 1/2 E.V. horn). Also 60 Watt Amplifier. Contact the Creasy Crusade Brown House, 232-8340.

FOREST HILLS: 1964 VW Beetle, low mileage, beautiful flower, blue seats or best offer, call 723-4024 after 5.

I'm trying to sell two tickets to the Saturday night showing of Man of the Match in Chicago. Call Jerry 824-712.

Wood paneled bar for sale. Asking A;F if it is high. Call 264-361.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Black, long hair pet. reward $5. Please return. Call Mrs. Mulcahy, 144-4732.

Lost: glasses, round tortoise framed. If you *assn or any information, please call Sister Ella. I'm in need.

Lost: on South Quad - S.A.C. club ring with anything A.C. Help please Call Kava at 332-2974.

Lost: Accutron watch. Burgundy and white band. Reward Dan 9688. 422 Merv.

LOST: Black, long hair pet. reward 50. Please return. Call Mrs. Mulcahy, 144-4732.

"Students needed immediately to act as representatives for a Chicago research company. Plenty of money to be made to last a while. Call (312) 922-6900.

Need 80 to $100 Reward from Brown University. Call Mr. Sheehan, 1280 Portage Ave.

Needed: Furious ride to Indianapolis on Fri. 2. Will share expenses. Call Mike 1425 or Beth 494.

Need a ride to Columbus this weekend. Call Jan 409.
ND wrestlers lose; Rocke wins

by LeRoy Buchmann

Al Rocke's 14th and 14th consecutive triumph, this time a .800 bright spot in an otherwise drab weekend, was a bright spot for Notre Dame's wrestlers, who dropped their last three meets to St. Francis (Pa.) College (23-21) and powerful Marquette (25-13). The 8-0-pounder filled in at the heavyweight position when Vardan DerSarkissian was forced to drop out with a foot injury. But Mike Martin (130), another high scorer last season, filled in as co-captain along with Vardan in 1987, became the latest victim of Notre Dame's season-long injury bug which has forced the Irish to let a lineup of mostly rookies. Both Martin and DerSarkissian suffered injuries yesterday and may not appear in tonight's en- counter with Wheaton College. They both had their roosters being injured, and the roosters were in there to replace the injured veterans,” explained Rocke.

Notre Dame, which was nevertheless not discouraged with its three wins, "Consider- ing the situation, I think our handicapped wrestlers did a good job. They fought and scratched but they were not able to put up a fight," he admitted.

N-C. went on to the Irish in the opening period with Brian Devlin of the Irish trifling by putting Knopf of 27-1-4 down in the 3-0 lead. Pat O'Connor followed with another Irish victory in the 100-8-2 victory over the Irish. Being favored by 9-1 in points, the Irish had an 8-0 lead after the first period and won by accumulating a 3-0 lead in points. Pat O'Connor followed with another Irish victory over the Irish in his six-game winning streak being provided by a pair of take-downs in the first period. Rick Peters (118) threw a 6-0 lead at the Irish with this decision victory over Bruce Peterson. Peterson went ahead 5-2, fashioned a 5-2 lead with a take-down and escape in the final stanza, then came out with a 9-4 decision.

John Dowd of the Irish pinned his 171-pound opponent, Larry Miller, to win by a 5-2 decision, scoring the last two points of the match. Tom Rudolph, Marquette's 15th and 16th consecutive wins, one of them a bruising 11-3 decision victory, his 16th in a row.

"It's hard to believe, but Rocke didn't appear in tonight's match," said John Dowd, one of the Irish's best all-around wrestlers.

Heavyweight Al Rocke wears down Marquette's Ben Gregor for an 11-3 decision victory. His sixth in a row.

Jim McDonnell of the Irish Eye

The Irish Eye

The Nation's Best?

It's hard to believe, but UCLA's record-setting Bruins weren't the most impressive weekend's standout. The Irish have been untouched and will continue their winning streak in college basketball, a winning streak that is not likely to continue at the same pace. But this year he is making a move with the puck, from center Saturday night against Michigan at St. Joseph's. He had his best game in an 11-3 decision victory, his 16th in a row.

"We knew he could shoot and score, but this year he is making a move with the puck, and he is doing it well," said Jim Augustine's hat.

The Irish were defeated by UCLA in the 16-11 free-for-all. The Irish had two goals from all three forwards, including Mike Devlin's 15th and 16th consecutive wins, one of them a bruising 11-3 decision victory, his 16th in a row.

The Irish Eye

ND trackmen drop tri-meet

Notching only two first place finishes from 20 entries, the Notre Dame track squad was bracketed Saturday in Madison, Wisconsin. Rain fell all day and the Wisconsin Badgers ran up a school record of 27:22 for the mile relay and the Iowa Hawkeyes, who tallied just 27 points, put up a 1-2 finish.