Party Service off to good start

by Jim Lindsay

The student government Campus Party Service, initiated two weeks ago to lead party-hunting students to on and off-campus open parties, is off to a promising start, according to the program's originator, student affairs director Walker Holloway.

The party service, one phase of a general campus activity information program, consists of a telephone service by which any group hosting an open party can have it publicized and any person hunting for parties be directed to the right direction.

Although early response to the new service has been somewhat slow, reactions have all been positive, according to Holloway. A lot of guys who just don't know about the service or they don't think it's on the level," he said.

Assuring students that the program is "on the level," he said, Walker pointed out that party hosts need not fear the service worsening an already overwhelmed bingo girl ratio. Only girls are directed to guys' parties, and guys to girls.

In addition to the direct telephone connections, Holloway also spreads the word about various parties through personal contacts at both St. Mary's and Notre Dame.

Notre Dame. "Students just don't know that their own word of mouth doesn't travel as far as they think it does," observed the student affairs director.

Holloway also remarked that he himself often attends publicized parties and ratings of the four-party joint military commission subcommittee on the question of prisoner exchanges.

New York-A $200,000 cash contribution was revealed to have been made to President Nixon's reelection campaign last April as a result of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement. The Nixon campaign committee said that the contribution had been returned last Jan. 11 to Veasey along with $50,000 he had given at another time.

Holloway- The Supreme Court ruled that a suburban swimming club cannot refuse to accept blacks who live in its immediate area if it gives a membership preference to others living in the same neighborhood. The decision was unanimous.
Election committee active

The election committee decided to act upon the election decision. The commissioners voted on Fred Giuffrida’s motion that “the Board of Commissioners override the decision of the Election Committee and instruct them to invalidate all write-in ballots.”

The motion passed 7 to 1 with Ennetia’s vote in dissent. Commissioner Matt Gavanagh claimed that “it’s more the principle of the thing. The rules were set up one way and we shouldn’t change them now.”

The constitutionality of the Board of Commissioners’ move prompted the Judicial Board Coordinator Greg Smith to call the board to order. They ruled in a 3 to 2 decision that the Board of Commissioners does have the constitutional right to override the decision of the Election Committee.

Claiming that he was “very sensitive” to drawing the Judicial Board into political matters, Smith attempted to withdrawn his resignation if necessary to prove it. The Election Committee’s case was presented in the Judicial Board by members T.C. Treanor and Rod Braye. SLC Chairman Fred Giuffrida spoke for the Board of Commissioners.

Treanor argued that the Board of Commissioners used a power they did not have in overturning the Election Committee, and that write-ins should be considered valid ballots.

The Board of Commissioners granted the Election Committee the power to rule on the election without review,” Treanor claimed. “Under the Constitution and under the rule they passed, they are using power that they don’t have.”

Braye continued that “with the lifting of the vote, a large part of what the students want is, in fact, lost. The student body should be given the option of voting for who they want.”

S MVC sponsors panel

by David Kamnitzer

St. Mary’s College Dean of Students office sponsored a panel discussion on Alcoholism Monday night for the St. Mary’s R.A.s as part of their in-service training program.

Participants in the panel were Dr. Mark Bambanek, Professor of Chemistry at St. Mary’s, Mr. George Lough, a counselor at St. Mary’s and his wife, Mrs. Rosemary Lough, Coordinator of the South Bend Alcoholism Council.

“The problem with alcohol at St. Mary’s and Notre Dame,” commented Kathleen Mullaney, St. Mary’s Dean of Students, “is that it is the backbone of the social life here. That’s not such a problem yet, but ten years from now, when your body isn’t the same as it was in college, the alcohol habit could develop into something serious.”

Cathy Lisseman, an R.A. in LeMarr, was one of about fifteen R.A.s who attended the discussion. She said afterwards: “To someone who knows nothing about alcoholism, alcoholism in the first place, the panel was very informative. I don’t think the drinking problem at St. Mary’s is more serious than anywhere else.”

HOW ARE THINGS AT HOME?

Long distance is the next best thing to being there. And you can save money by calling nights or weekends.
Enough of this!

The fireworks started this year after all the ballots were counted, and the final results announced making Jim Clarke and Glen Sorge the run-off candidates in this year's S.B.E. election.

In the next five hours the defeated candidates endorsed and subsequently retracted their endorsement of one of the run-off candidates.

Now, of all these shenanigans we were not without provocation:

- At 9:00 pm in the main lobby of LaFortune a member of the election committee announced the final results.
- At 10:50 pm Dennis (H-man) Etienne walked into the Observer office and delivered a written statement declaring that he and Bob Kersten would enter the run-off as write-in candidates.
- At 11:00 Election Committee chairman Paul Dziedzic began polling the committee to determine if it could allow write-in votes in the run-off election. The committee decided to allow write-ins.
- At 11:30 the Board of Commissioners convened an emergency meeting at which it overturned the Election Committee's rule and declared that write-ins were invalid votes and a candidate needed to collect one of the valid votes to win the election.
- At 11:45 the Judicial Board was convened to rule on the constitutionality of the Board of Commissioners decision.
- One hour, twenty minutes later the Judicial Board upheld the action of the Board of Commissioners.
- At 1:15 Dziedzic announced that the Election Committee had declared blank ballots would be considered valid votes.
- At 2:00 am Dennis (H-man) Etienne delivered a signed statement to the Observer withdrawing the Kersten/Etienne write-in campaign and substituting the blank ballot appeal.
- At 3:01 the Editor-in-chief locked the door of the office, declaring "Enough of this bullshit!"

Now it is perfectly obvious that nobody doesn't like the results of the run-off election. It is further perfectly obvious that extremely elaborate means were taken to undermine the decision of the electorate. In a few more hours the voters' ballots themselves might have been ignored.

It is finally perfectly obvious that the issue is far from dead. So much happened in five hours in LaFortune that it is virtually impossible to believe that more harm has not shown on the campus in the next 24 hours.

Bob Kersten and the current administration are upset enough with the results that LaFortune literally swarmed with politics until the wee hours of the morning plotting the overturn of the announced results.

Nobody knows what anybody's next move will be. In fact, the whole rotten mess wreaks of the same distasteful "poobah" air that was the whipping boy of so many of the same people earlier in the week and earlier in the year.

If the King is so upset over the results what is he willing to stand for re-election; then, he should say so point blank. None of these old in-again-out-again tricks. If his only purpose is to subject the campus to another election extravaganza on the same order as this last fiasco, the idea is genuinely repulsive.

But who knows. It's getting harder everyday to tell who's a "poobah" and who's not.

For What It's Worth

Two candidats handled ballots

don ruane

Two candidates for Student Body President were allowed to have private provision of an undetermined number of write-ins this year, see with the tacl petition of the election committee chairman Paul Dziedzic.

James "Zero" Brennethong the original allotment of ballots for the candidates was later distributed, but they were distributed by ballot box by candidates the Government Cabinet office. According to Dziedzic, elected commission chairman John Braye, who was the ballot box committee chairman and two other halls, told him was all right because Braye had a class and was therefore available.

Thus Brennethong was allowed to leave the office for the Fisher Hall with the ballots. It was certified, according to Braye, that all ballots were cast in the empty ballot box and by the way, was the Fisher Hall election chairman.

At approximately 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, a call was placed to the Student Government office from Keenan Hall asking more ballots. This reporter was standing in the office when the secretary gave candidate Don Nollet a sealed envelope containing stack of ballots roughly one-half inch thick. Nollet left the office with the ballots, but with no supervision by the election commission. However, member of the Observer staff were there.

When I questioned the ballot box monitors in Keenan Hall about 15 minutes later, they said the envelope arrived with Nollet and had not been opened. But then it was opened. The ballot box committee had only a single ballot box, and candidates were not allowed to handle the ballots, why was an undetermined number of ballots distributed to each hall, and why was the election committee so negligent in its duty.

The ballot box committee has ordered the election to degenerate by allowing candidates to violate the rules it established, by not requesting its own rule, and by hiding facts the students should know behind terms such as "trivial," and rationales such as "it was done in good faith.

The ballot box commission is naive.

At the start of the campaign, the committee sought to establish a spirit of "fair play" among the candidates, according to Dziedzic. "It was just a bunch of spit and bad intentions here where the candidates knew they would violate the rules and still went on about it," he said. "We would have to get serious right now on the severity of the offense.

Removing all or partial credit at the Campus Press is a minor sanction, according to Dziedzic, which was applied to two candidates for the Student Government Cabinet position. Dziedzic and other candidates started campaigning early, but only two were sanctioned.

For example, the Keenan Hall ballot box monitors were sanctioned for their participation in the "pussycat" system. The Keenan Hall monitors took the position that the rules did not apply to them and that the balloting was to be a judgment call by the election committee. They were also sanctioned for their participation in the "pussycat" system, which is obviously tied to the poster about Nixon's secret tape recordings.

NOLLET'S PLANS TO RESIGN

President JON M. MARRlöd

Honorable friends and associates,

If anyone wants to clear the slate, they should tell the students. Isn't it great that the student body may have a clean slate.

If anyone wants to clear the slate, they should tell the students. Isn't it great that the student body may have a clean slate.

When the special meeting was held he was supposed to hear complaints against any ticket, but against the two in the runoff in particular, Dziedzic said.

If one complaint against the candidates is "do nothing" the violation will be more serious, other than that the golf course is enclosed by a fence that will trap all that literature. The whole system is a lie. The poster artist, Kubic had his slogan plastered all over campus on flyers announcing a "Huddle Ballot" system.

When screws the system, the whole system is a lie. The poster artist, Kubic had his slogan plastered all over campus on flyers announcing a "Huddle Ballot" system.

It was finally perfectly obvious that the election committee is incompetent in the ballot distribution. Besides having the boxes ready until last night, the actual ballots were distributed to the halls in clumps, determined numbers. This was done because the ballots were printed at the last possible moment and all the available time was used for selecting the ballot box committee.

The ballot box committee distributed in lots of 100 for the evening session of voting. Even last night the election committee was working from an arbitrary system. If any discrepancy arose concerning a hall's tally, random phone calls were to be made to those who were listed as voting. If the calls didn't check out, the hall was thrown out. However, discrepancy was not defined. It varied from hall to hall depending on who, and was an arbitrary judgment call. When one or the other ballot box was opened, the other was thrown out. When does the mismatch between ballots cast and the number of ID checked become possible.

It was had that the candidates were feeding the student body statements without factual support, outright lies, researched plans for governmental reorganization, without the election committee allowing candidates to violate rules right and left without telling the students. Isn't it great that the student body may elect a student body president whose character may be questionable?

One of the most obvious violations was the campaign committee's failure to define the term "complaint." This allows the election committee to ignore any complaints that arise, which will vary from candidate to candidate, and the general public.

What is still the biggest loads ever dumped on this campus, unless we see evidence that the candidates know they would violate the rules and still went on about it, we would have to get serious right now on the severity of the offense.

Judicial Board upholds Commissioners

Socialist: Harrington to speak

Socialist leader Michael Harrington will speak on “The Future of the Left” at 8pm tonight in Washington Hall. Harrington is part of the Student Union Academic Commission’s speaker program and admission is free.

Harrington was born in St. Louis, Missouri, and was educated at Holy Cross College, the University of Chicago and Yale Law School. He had been a leader in the socialist movement for years and has headed the American Federation in the Socialist International.

Harrington has served on the boards and executive committees for the League for Industrial Democracy, A. Philip Randolph Institute, American Civil Liberties Union, Twentieth Century Fund, and many other organizations.

between two candidates. Past elections haven’t allowed write-ins and the write-in destroys the principle of the second election.”

“The issue isn’t the motives of the Board of Commissioners,” Glielfredi concluded. “but whether it is inherent in the power of the Board of Commissioners to overrule a committee.”

Judicial Board member Steve Kane concurred with Glielfredi.

“Nothing said here tonight leads me to believe that the Board of Commissioners has given up the right to rule,” he said. “It seems that they still have the right to delegate.”

Election Committee Action

After the action by the Board of Commissioners, the Election Board releases a statement signed by Paul DiCristid, Patty Burger, John Songngetti, Diane McDonnell, Leo Monaghan, Mike Sturgeon, Rod Brayre, T.C. Treaser, and Greg Smith. The Statement said:

“We are disgusted by the parliamentary games that we have become subjected to. As a group we protest the involvement of other student government bodies in a campaign that we have been responsible for since February 4. We plan to continue as the election committee in order to keep the election free from political manipulation—even though we suspect that may be impossible now.

After the statement was released Brayre resigned from the committee. He declined to offer a reason.

Day care center needs support

by Jeanne Murphy
Staff Reporter

The growing need for modern care centers brings to focus the need for eliciting financial support to maintain these centers. "El Campito", a day care center on Thomas Street in South Bend, is struggling to meet ends financially and is looking to Notre Dame students and community for cooperation.

In September, a group of Sociology students from Notre Dame met with Mrs. Betty Samora to discuss the lack of day care centers available in the Society. Young children were left with slightly older siblings while mothers went to work. The students, calling themselves Manpower, and Mrs. Samora organized a non-profit day care center for the migrant workers children. The center is unique in that it accepts children still in diapers to those children not old enough for Head Start.

Damaged building

"El Centro", the local migrant workers agency, allowed the students to use the ground floor in their Half Way House for the day care center. The house was purchased to take in those new migrants who had no place to live. Half Way House is not a very safe building according to Mrs. Samora. It has faulty wiring and electrical work, and it is in poor condition on the whole. Last Friday night, the roof burnt off the building, and replacement of a new roof is just an added expense that "El Campito" must undertake.

The day care center is run by two women. Mrs. Conchita Nino and Miss Avelia Lopez. Manpower offers them a small fee for their services. Mrs. Samora feels that "El Campito" is still in need for more administrative assistance.

Funding

The only financial aid given to this center is from "El Centro" itself and the Mid-West Council of La Raza. Without their support, Samora says, "El Campito" could not stay open. Samora also appealed to United Way for funds but has not received any assistance from them. In addition, the Mocha Club from Notre Dame donated funds for the center.

"El Campito" sponsored a dance last week and took in $300 which "is a drip in the bucket," according to Samora. "The center needs much more financial assistance to work effectively and to pay off their debt."

Volunteers needed

Besides the financial support, Mrs. Samora sees a need for more student volunteers. She was disappointed in the initial recruiting of students, which amounted to three, but she is still hopeful that more students will become interested in "El Campito."

Swimmers split last duals

by Pete McHugh

After suffering a 135-67 heartbreak in the meet before, Notre Dame swim team closed this year's dual meet slate with a 124-71 victory by destroying Wayne State, 71-42, before a near-capacity crowd at the Rockne Memorial Pool.

The Irish, the victors in each of the last six league meets, one pool, and nine meet records in the weekday pool, had even greater reason to cheer after seeing sixteen tumors, scores for coach Dennis Stark. The tumors were laid in Sherk, and Gene Krathaus, who dominated the freeway events, gave the Irish all season.

For today's setback, Notre Dame could not match Illinois State in the intermediate and diving events.

ND trackmen beaten badly

(stop from page 1) 11 Dual meet was scheduled for last week was hurt. He was forced out of the competition by a leg injury.

Mike Hinley prevented a shat- tered middle distances, taking second place with a 2:17.4 effort in the 600 yard run. Freeman Greg Marine covered the 100 yard and 200 yard medleys better than any Irish first place.

Marino covered the 100 yard medley while Dan Treland and Tom McMannon placed in first and third in the 200 yard freestyle. In the 50 yard freestyle, Robert Whiten was in second record time (22.5). Graham broke his own varsity record with a 2.07.3 checking.

In the diving competition Notre Dame could only manage a second place finish by Jim Macaladi, as the Irish swept the top three positions in the 1000 yard freestyle behind Ed Strack and the event winner Kane in first 4:32-

All-American Dick Roberts set a Rockne Memorial Pool record mark (4:21.8) in the 500 yard freestyle to cut Notre Dame's lead to 40-45. The Bobcats finally regained the lead by capturing the top two positions in the 500 yard butterfly with Brian McCarthy trailing for third.

Illinois then clinched the win in the three meter diving competition, an event which Notre Dame had not lost all season, as Chris Payne's second place fell short of salvaging a win. The Irish appropriately went down fighting by setting a pool mark (13:10) in the 400-yard freestyle relay (Sherk, Krathaus, Kane).

Against Wayne State, Notre Dame captured nine of the thirteen events to easily defeat the Tartars.

Coach Stark was able to use all his swimmers after the Irish broke off in a 2-4 lead.

James Sherk. Kane. Krathaus, and Graham began the routine by bagging the first in their specialist events.

Other individual winners were Steve Rome, the 300 yard butterfly, John Conner in the 100 yard freestyle, and Wallace in the 500 yard freestyle.

Notre Dame also swept both relay events: 400 yard medley relay (Sherk, Thompson, Kane, and St. Mark, Wallace; Krathaus.)

The weekend split gave the Irish a 7-5 mark in meet action this year.

Meanwhile, both teams showed their determination to win. Notre Dame came away with a win when they took control of the game in the second half, increasing their lead to 13 points. The Fighting Irish were relentless in their pursuit of victory, with senior Jerry Hanlon leading the team in scoring with 16 points. The Irish defense was also strong, holding their opponent to just 50 points. With the win, Notre Dame improved their overall record to 13-12 and are now tied with St. John's for 6-8 in the Big East Conference.

Notre Dame is now preparing for their next game against Western Michigan University on Saturday. The Irish are looking to continue their winning streak and solidify their position in the conference standings. Head coach Mike Brey is pleased with the team's performance so far and is confident in their ability to secure another victory.

By Tom McKenzie

A strong showing in the pole vault, an impressive race by Dancil, and a solid effort by Severson helped lead the Western Michigan University track team to a solid meet against Notre Dame on Saturday. The Irish were held to just 70 points, with the Western Michigan team winning 79-70. The Irish had a strong showing in the pole vault, with senior Jimmie Steenberge taking first place and Minnie Steenberge taking second. The Irish also won the three-point event, with Dancil finishing first and Severson finishing second. The Irish had a total of 13 events where they finished in the top three, with 11 of those being in the track events.
