WASHINGTON (UPI)-Spiro T. Agnew resigned as vice-president of the United States "in the best interests of the nation" Wednesday, and pleaded no contest to a charge of income tax evasion in 1967. Agnew was the second vice president in history to resign and the first to do so under duress.

President Nixon, expressing "a great sense of personal loss," said he would begin prompt consultations with national leaders of both political parties on nominating a new vice president, who must be confirmed by a majority vote of the House and Senate.

U.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman, accepting the result of two days of secret plea bargaining between Agnew and Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, fined Agnew $10,000 and placed him on three years probation.

At Richardson's urging, Hoffman said he was for- sak ing his office for the sake of "prosecuting in the best interests of the nation that I relinquish the vice presidency."

Richardson appealed to Hoffman to keep Agnew out of court as much as possible, "out of respect for the office he has held and out of appre- ciation of the resignation he has spared the nation the prolonged agony that would have attended upon his trial."

The 35-minute ordeal that began for Agnew when he learned in early August he was under federal invesigation for possible violation tax, bribery, ex- tortion, and conspiracy, ended at 2:05 p.m. EDT, when he entered courtroom No. 3 on the fifth floor of the federal courthouse in downtown Baltimore and pleaded no contest to the Justice Department's criminal division, told Hoffman of the plea of guilt under which he would resign and plead no contest (no contest) to the charges.

"The White House said Agnew told Nixon of his resignation and unprecedented suspension of procedural rules."

"It was the first time a U.S. vice president had resigned in 140 years, since John C. Calhoun quit on Nov. 29, 1833—three months before expiration of his term—to fill a Senate seat to which he had been elected.

The United States was last without a sitting vice-president between Nov. 22, 1963, when Lyndon B. Johnson succeeded the slain President John F. Ken- nedy, until Jan. 20, 1965, when Johnson won election as President with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey as his vice president.

The news of Agnew's resignation stunned and sur- prised members of Congress, even the House and Senate Republican leadership, and raised the possibility of a bitter political struggle over Nixon's choice of successor.

As soon as he received a letter from Agnew informing him of the decision, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called a meeting of the Senate leadership of both parties and ranking members of the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committees to consider the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committees to consider the possibility of a bitter political struggle over Nixon's choice of successor.

Among those mentioned in speculation as the most obvious candidates for election were former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, the former Democratic governor of Texas who became a Republican last spring; former Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and possibly Richardson.

During the 35-minute court hearing in Baltimore, which Hoffman called "this tragic event in history," the judge said the Justice Department had done so.......

Hesburgh OK's liquor guidelines

Announcing Fr. Hesburgh's acceptance of the new role of serving as president of the Student Life Council, the Student Life Council ended its longest meeting in history.

Council Chairman, Professor Fred Syburg, read a brief letter from the President, indicating his approval of the newly drafted rule number seven on page 27 of the Student Manual. The Council has passed detailed guidelines for the week's meeting, and is preparing to submit the new rule to the Committee on Alcohol Policy for its consideration.

The new rule reads in part: "The Student Life Council shall adopt guidelines for the week's meeting, and is preparing to submit the new rule to the Committee on Alcohol Policy for its consideration."

Dr. Philip Baccara pointed out that many halls have already made extensive plans for parties this weekend and in the interest of not penalizing these well-prepared halls, he recommended immediate implementation of the rules. The Council agreed unanimously, and the guidelines will be in effect this weekend.

Final revisions to the Student Manual were then adopted unanimously as the meeting in the basement of Flanner Hall drew to a close. The revisions dealt with disciplinary procedures described on pages 32, 33 and 34 of the current Manual. Among the more obvious changes was creation of a new Student Life Council. The revisions now go to Fr. Hesburgh for his approval.

The Chairman announced with a smile that, the new Manual will be complete, the SLC could resume regular procedure. The technical meeting which ended yesterday was the same one which began several weeks ago and has continued with two sessions per week to facilitate revision of the Student Manual.

Israel tanks launch raid into Egyptian territory

By United Press International

Israel tanks launched a lightning raid across the Suez Canal into Egyptian territory today and pushed across the Golan Heights for twin thrusts into Syria, military spokesmen in Tel Aviv reported.

The spokesman said the Israeli tanks were pushed across the canal in the southern sector, striking at Egyptian convoys in the rear areas of the west bank.

Israel said the armored units pulled back into the Israeli-occupied Sinai desert after the raid. There was no report on how the Israelis crossed the 100-yard-wide waterway.

The Israeli command said its naval units bombarded Syrian petroleum installations at Baqas, Tartus and Latakia along the Mediterranean coast. The command reported large fires at the facilities.

Officials in Damascus said the Israeli warships shelled "civilian targets" at Burj Islam, Latakia and the Banias oil terminal. They said the Israeli attack sank a Greek merchant vessel at the port of Banas.

The Syrian command said its naval units clashed with the Israelis. "Three enemy gunboats were sunk and the rest withdrew," the command said.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said Israeli armored columns launched two thrusts Wednes­day into Syria from the Golan Heights, pushing three to four miles inside Syrian territory. The sources said the tanks pulled back to the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights at dusk.

Washington (U.P.) — Text of a letter by President Nixon to Spiro T. Agnew accepting his resignation as vice president.

"Dear Ted:

"The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know your decision to resign as vice president has been as difficult as any facing a man in public life could be.

"Your departure from the administration leaves me with a great sense of personal loss. You have been a valued associate through these nearly five years that we have served together.

"However, I respect your decision and I also respect the concern for the national interest that led you to conclude that a resolution of the matter in this way, rather than through an extended battle in the courts and Congress, was advisable in order to prevent a protracted period of national division and uncertainty.

"As vice president, you have addressed the great issues of our times with courage and candor. Your strong patriotism, and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of others throughout the country.

"I have been deeply saddened by this whole course of events, and I hope that you and your family will be sustained in the days ahead by a well-justified pride in all that you have contributed to the nation by your years of service as Vice President.

"Sincerely, Richard Nixon"

Work-study alternatives set

by Howard Wood
Staff Reporter

Cassell A. Lawson, director of off-campus student activities and minority affairs, has announced an educational alternative for seven undergraduate work-study students. This program, Paraprofessional Student Development Training, trains these undergraduate students as paraprofessional counselors working with the Counseling Center.

"The program endeavors to combine both content and experiential learning, which will focus on the development of personal and interpersonal competencies within the paraprofessionals and their peers," stated Lawson.

LaFortune Student Center. Craig Crawford and Lionel Phillips are assigned to the Black Cultural Art Center on the third floor of LaFortune. These paraprofessionals work twelve hours a week and get no accreditation.

Craig Adams and Sharon Browner, the two graduate students, will function as liaison personnel from the University's counseling center and also, as the master guidance to provide professional therapy of needed.

The goal of the program is to facilitate student transition to the college experience through student paraprofessional counselors. Lawson hopes that the program will increase student self-awareness and self-direction, thus enhancing the possibility that they will through their own initiative, seek out alternatives and achieve a more rapid adjustment to the University environment.

This program's responsibility is to all students and particularly freshmen, who might confront emotional or social problems.

Lawson pointed out that the program serves as an example to the University that undergraduates can take an active and meaningful part in academic affairs.

The Paraprofessional Student Development Training is in its first year of activity and is an extension of the Counseling Center. The two will coordinate and work together.

Resignation of Trust

For only the second time in the history of the United States, and for the first time in well over 100 years, the Vice President of this country has resigned his office. And because the deed has prompted a discussion of the repercussions stemming from the break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters and subsequent cover-up of the Watergate affair, allocations of high level involvement in the scandal has led to the resignations of some of the President's closest associates. With each succeeding accusation, both factual and merely hearsay, a cloud of distrust has grown more dense over the White House and its occupants.

And yesterday, the second highest elected official in the United States resigned following his plea of "nolo contendere" to charges of income tax evasion.

Despite reactions to Mr. Agnew's resignation that ranged from those whose long-time impressions were finally confirmed to those who swear the original accuser is a scapegoat for the President, the fact remains that the Nixon Administration continues to be ravaged by criminal investigations and actual convictions.

The doubts are indeed starting to be confirmed.

The sobering question resulting from the past year of Grand Jury investigations and Senate Hearings is how long this government, which is of the people, can operate without the trust of these people. The present Administration has done very little to develop that trust.

And with every passing indictment and conviction, the Administration's task becomes that much more difficult. But outcome of the remaining Nixon years in the White House depends integrally upon some restoration of confidence on the part of Americans for the men in their government.

Mr. Agnew leaves his post in Washington and returns to Maryland a disgraced and sad figure. Perhaps even the claims of innocence ring much emptier now. As his figure becomes less familiar in the daily news, he will simply fade into the increasing number of Nixon officials who have contributed to this crisis.

As Senator Ervin pointed out at the start of the Senate Watergate investigations, the bright spot about the past year of criminal allegations is that the American government at least offers that opportunity.

Though it must remain a government of the people, a government whose officials are elected from among the people, those elected officials must somehow rise above the shortcomings of the populace they serve.

Leaders have to do that. Unless they prefer the complete lack of respect now being experienced by the Nixon Administration, they must do that.

They must rise above.

...and again, Regina

Who needs another election? Apparently Regina Hall does if it is to have a vice president, and it looks like the elections committee will have its wish as a fourth ballot is today forced on a reluctant electorate.

Regina Hall has, to my knowledge, continued to function rather well this year despite its lack of vice presidential guidance; and there are no indications that it will not continue to do so if today's vote still fails to yield a winner. Mr. Kempen's resignation and her admonition that students should take the situation "more seriously" approaches a much ado about nothing absurdity. If the electorate has indicated that it doesn't give a rip -- which past results confirm -- then it's put up with this foolishness. If student government cannot bear to let the position go untilled, they should appoint someone. But obviously the students simply care less, and if student government is truly representative, then they shouldn't either.

Flunk The Band

Dear Editor:

Thanks to the kind help of the university's band managed to flunk a rather insignificant test (40 percent of the course grade) tonight. While trying to play in the engineering building in the whereabouts of 7 p.m., we discovered the all the other students, failed to be able to concentrate due to the sporadic tunes of the band playing during the test.

I would like to bring it to the attention of those involved in the organization of the band, that if they keep up the habit, they will slowly lose the little respect that they have as the student body. Surely they can practice in the afternoon, when little studying is on going. Or, they could also find other premises to practice their sound throwing other than so close to buildings where tests and studying is going on.

Pissed,
Tim Trixel

Love The Sinner

Dear Editor,

I was deeply troubled by the letter, No Censors, Please, October 4, by David S. Matthewson. I can not understand why no one else has come to Father Toohey's defense against these charges. It's just not true that Father Toohey supports McCarthyism. Actually he deplores it and spoke out against it when it was in vogue. But that does not mean that he has forgotten that it is our Christian duty to take the sin while still loving the sinner. And Father Toohey lives by that theory. He has demonstrated his genuine concern for the people by marching in picket lines in front of hostile crowds whenever human rights have been at stake. Just recently he gave up a whole afternoon to demonstrate for the rights of our oppressed farmworkers. Hardly a sin goes by that he does not stand up for the people in his sermon- and not just the middle class either.

Even though McCarthyism is evil, we must still love and help these people, no matter how terribly wrong they are. And that is all Father Toohey is trying to do--his Christian duty. And if Mr. Matthewson does not understand this, he doesn't understand Christianity. As Father Toohey said in his sermon just yesterday, if you don't like his message, Don't blame him, blame God.

Peace,
Mary Ellen Gallagher

Chess Defense

Dear Sirs:

The other day you published a letter complaining about the of- ficiating. We the undersigned believe that the allegations made by Mr. Caminite in that letter are totally false.

This tournament was the second largest of its type ever held at Notre Dame. There were 40 players involved and only Mr. Caminite complained about the officiating. The other players were complaining about the continual disruptions caused Mr. Caminite. These disruptions were of such magnitude that the tournament, madirector was forced to withdraw Mr. Caminite from the tournament, make him forfeit his last game, and refund his money while asking to leave. Mr. Caminite continued his use of abusive language and display of unmanly behavior, but was soon persuaded to leave. After his departure all returned to normalcy and the tournament was completed.

We hope that this letter ends any and all discussion on the subject of Mr. Caminite's letter.

by Mike Kulczycki

Strains of German music along with Bavarian bier provide two of the main ingredients for any Oktoberfest celebration. Germans boast in their song: "In Munchen steht ein Hofbrauhaus. (In Munich there is a Beer Hall.)

Now Michiana too can boast of a "beer hall" atmosphere complete with Lowenbrau bier and German music (by Lloyd's German Band of Elkhart, Indiana.) The scene of the Oktoberfest celebration: where else, but upon the site of old Kamm and Schellinger Brewing Company, now the 100 Center Complex on Lincolnway Avenue in Mishawaka, Indiana.

The origin of Oktoberfest extends back to 1810 in the land of Bavaria. Crown Prince Ludwig was to marry Princess Therese of Saxonia, and a special celebration was planned for the people. After the wedding ceremony, horse races and festivities took place at a large meadow, with music, food and drink provided for all.

The meadow was renamed Theresian Wiese and made the site of an annual harvest festival in memory of the wedding day. It later became a custom for peasants to bring fruit, produce and handiwork to sell, with music and amusements also provided. The festivities grew into what is called the Munchen Oktoberfest, a seventeen day celebration from the end of September through part of October, one of the largest fairs in Europe.

bier and bratwurst

Bill Strong, the general manager of 100 Center Complex, explained the plans for Oktoberfest, to be held Friday and Saturday, October 12 and 13. "Beer and food are the key to the whole event." Strong added that all shops are participating in some way by decorating or wearing costumes. The Oktoberfest activities run from 4 p.m. till midnight Friday and 11 a.m. till midnight Saturday. Most of the shops agreed, according to Strong, to stay open until ten or eleven o'clock in the evening, depending on the traffic in the complex.

As part of the Oktoberfest, the 100 Center Complex has contacted Wiesel's Sausage Company of Wisconsin to provide the food services in a nearly authentic German manner. Food will be served from a concession which is built like a Bavarian chalet, with the menu featuring Nurnberger and bratwurst, wieners, Polish sausage and smoked sausage (free sauerkraut provided admitted he was "literally on the verge of tears") of the building's original handiwork to sell, with music and amusements also provided. The festivities grew into what is called the Munchen Oktoberfest, a seventeen day celebration from the end of September through part of October, one of the largest fairs in Europe.

The festival concept at the 100 Center Complex is not a new one, since the Brewery has already witnessed two Arts and Crafts Festivals, the last one in July drawing approximately 15,000 people. In choosing to stage an Oktoberfest, Strong explained, "The management of 100 Center and some of the merchants suggested an Oktoberfest, since we are situated in the old Brewery. The concept (Oktoberfest) seemed to lie well with the nature of the project (100 Center)."

Strong enviions the Oktoberfest and the Brewery as a "fun place" and a leisurely type of center, where people could "literally spend a whole day." A free parking and free admission policy for the Oktoberfest, according to Strong, is another way of indicating to the people of Michiana, 100 Center's invitation to just come to the Oktoberfest and "participate in anything.

beer barrels and iceboxes

Commenting on the nature of the 100 Center Complex, which was "situated within the original buildings of the old Kamm's Brewery." Strong also added that though the Center was just starting to pull together, it was being recognized by the community as a valuable project. Strong admitted he was "extremely satisfied with the community support."

In pointing out the unique atmosphere of the Brewery complex, Strong explained the sources of some of the building materials. Approximately 50,000 paving bricks, originally from South Bend streets, were evident in the main courtyard, along with railroad ties and 35 streetlights, formerly from Miami Avenue in South Bend. Old beer barrels, which were made by cooper's at the Kamm and Schellinger Brewing Company, pop up as fixtures and plant holders.

Even the new Ice House restaurant exhibits the use of beer barrel light fixtures, old iceboxes used as waiters' stations, and other artifacts from the old brewery.

Remember the words of the German drinking song on the way to the Oktoberfest celebration.

Leave all your cares at home!

Don't frown.
Marijuana laws tested
by David E. Anderson
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Advocates of marijuana law reform seeking to test in court the constitutionality of the nation's pot smoking laws, and former U.S. attorney general representing the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said prohibition against marijuana "could be an unwarranted intrusion into the private lives of millions of Americans."
A suit by the group, being filed in U.S. District Court today, may test the constitutionality of the prohibition of the private use of marijuana serves no useful purpose while causing irreparable harm to the lives and causings the approximately 250,000 young people who are arrested each year in this country," Clark said.
He said the nation should "discourage the use of marijuana as we should the use of all recreationally drugs, including alcohol and tobacco. But arresting smokers is no solution. It merely exacerbates the situation."
The suit asks the court to declare that laws prohibiting the private possession and use of marijuana violates an individual's right of privacy and other guarantees of the Constitution.
It relies on recent Supreme Court decisions concerning abortion, birth control and the private possession of pornographic materials, all of which reaffirm the individual's basic right of privacy, said R. Keith Stroup, director of the organization.
"While no drug, including aspirin and over-the-counter preparations, is totally harmless," Stroup said, "marijuana is a mild, relatively harmless drug as used by the overwhelming majority of persons."

Despite a scare by unranked Michigan State, Notre Dame remained ninths in the UPI poll this week, and fell one spot to ninths in the AP. Both polls list the same top ten teams, and all are repeats from last week’s ratings.

Woody Hayes’ Ohio State baseball captured the first place spot, after a convincing victory over Washington State. A distant second was Nebraska, who defeated Minnesota for their fourth straight win. Meanwhile, two touchdown winner Southern California dropped two spots to fifth in the UPI poll. They remained fourth in the AP. Both polls list the same top ten teams, and all are repeats from last week’s ratings.
