Macheca clarifies drug policy

The complete statement of Macheca to the campus media follows:

"There is no question that pushers are not going to be tolerated in this community," said Macheca.

The privacy of a student's campus residence will be protected unless there is sufficient advance knowledge of a violation, he said. The student's right to personal reputation outweighs the student body's right to know the particulars of disciplinary proceedings.

1) The privacy of a student's campus residence will only be compromised if there is good reason to believe that there is a violation of University rules or regulations taking place within that room.

2) Provided there is sufficient advance knowledge of a violation, the Dean of Students will provide the occupant(s) of a room with a written explanation of the reason for the official inquiry as well as any appropriate verbal elaboration. Such inquiries will normally be the responsibility of Student Affairs personnel, including the staff of the particular hall.

Macheca's guidelines were issued in conjunction with an SLC recommendation that the Student Affairs Office "publicize the procedures used in enforcing regulations and clarify the rights of the students involved." Also in line with those recommendations, Macheca said he does not "believe that there are any deceased or individual cases.

"A general awareness of what's going on with a problem like drugs is good," Macheca said. "It's the awareness constructive for the community." He added that the awareness established through his guidelines would hopefully "decrease the reported paranoia."

Representatives of St. Edward's Hall confirmed yesterday that one resident of the hall has been expelled over the drug situation as reported in Tuesday's Observer. However, they denied that the raid had taken place in the hall. The presentation did not elaborate on how the individuals were apprehended.

Mid-term vacation changes schedules
by John Mceachin
Staff Reporter

Classes are about the only thing that will not be happening during the midsemester break. Notre Dame students this weekend will be enjoying the first mid-term vacation since the University started scheduling final exams in December. For those who plan to remain on campus during the break, the South Dining Hall will close after the evening meal on Thursday. Meals will be served for all students in the North Dining Hall. Breakfast on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday will be from 8:00 to 8:30 and on Sunday one hour later, from 9:00 to 9:30. Lunch all four days will be from 12:00 to 1:00, and dinner Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be from 5:30 to 6:30.

The South Hall will re-open Monday for dinner at 5:30 p.m. as the regular meal schedule resumes in both Dining Halls. The public cafeteria will be open as usual from 7:45 a.m. to 7 p.m. Huddle patrons should not that the Huddle will not be open Saturday and Sunday. Thursday evening it will close at 7:30 and Friday's hours will be from 8:00 to 4:00. Regular Hours will be followed on Monday, 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The only change in the Library's hours is that it will close at 5:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and remain closed all day Sunday. The Bookstore will be open as usual, as will the ACC and the Rockne Memorial.

In terms of animation, the weekly events provide a break from the usual daily routine. The World of the Wild Estate series continues with the final screening of "The Wild" on Friday evening, with a discussion to follow. The Black Studies program also continues with "African American Women and the Black Power Movement." The Art Gallery will exhibit "The Art of Africa." The week ends with a presentation of "The Black Panthers and the Black Liberation Movement." The Library will present "The Black Panthers and the Black Liberation Movement." S.U. normal Commissioners drop Rybarczyk charges

by Tony Proscio Staff Reporter

Student Union is back to normal. S.U. Director Jim Rybarczyk, whose recent impeachment by the Board of Commissioners was dropped Monday, has said his office will function "just as we did before this whole thing started." "I don't see any bitterness here," he commented. "This hasn't hurt our relationship with Student Government at all. I'll still go out drinking with 'h (Student Body President Dennis Etienne), and I hope they feel the same way."

Rybarczyk's impeachment, which drew protests and resignations from Student Union administrators, caused a two-week delay in regular Union business.

"The dormant period slowed us down a lot," Rybarczyk continued. "We'll have to accelerate now to keep programs going, but beyond that, there has been no real hin derence to the S' rent Union."

Public relations, he noted, have not been damaged. Citing a "quick start and several successes" early this year, Rybarczyk explained that his own confidence that student reactions will continue to be positive. "Student Union stands on its record," he explained. "Given our history of past accomplishments, I think that as long as we are functioning, we are working for students, and our PR should be good."

The impeachment, he charged, was a "freakish misunderstanding," resulting from rumors, a lack of communication, and "sensational news." A particular case against the office of director was exaggerated into a campus-wide issue, he said.

The charges which were addressed to Rybarczyk alone, caused further controversy when three SU officials threatened resignation and cancellation of non-contract events if impeachment was begun. Associate Director Kenneth Muth, Assistant Director Peter Bohlander, and Comptroller Robert Fahrbach submitted resignations when the commissioners voted unanimously for impeachment.

"Our resignations are withdrawn," Fahrbach said. "In light of the activities of (Rybarczyk) not being dismissed, I think the impeachment was partially motivated by an emotional response on both sides." Bitterness is temporary, Fahrbach continued, but Student Union and Student Government attitudes now favor greater communication and cooperation.

"We look to the future with hope," Rybarczyk commented. "We can work problems out peacefully and rationally; we proved that here."

Fieldhouse alive and well

by Bill Powers Staff Reporter

Five years after the threat of demolition, the Fieldhouse is alive and well, and still renovating to suit the needs and activities of the campus artisans. In addition to the various studios and the student gallery, the art department is currently constructing a ceramics area in the center of the Fieldhouse.

In the past week, a 33' by 60' cement base was constructed on the dirt floor by students and helpes. Under the direction of Bill Ramee, a ceramics instructor, two gas kilns used to fire pottery are being built. The building of a third kiln is expected to be a student project.

In addition six potters' wheels will be built, thereby transferring the ceramic activity from O'Shaugnessy's more spacious fieldhouse. Under the south bleachers, rooms are being designed by Fr. Albert Moore, implementing colorful acrylic plastics.

The old boxing and fencing rooms, as well as the handball courts are now used as studios for undergraduate and graduate work. Undergraduate studio art courses are held in the Fieldhouse as well. Student cooperation in improving the Fieldhouse has been cited by Thomas S. Fern, the chairman of the Art Department. "The creative and artistic motivations of the students have produced aesthetic decisions and are to be praised," commented Fern.

The best examples of student work can be viewed in the art gallery, directed by graduate student Chris Gregory. The required senior seminar for art majors is now planned in conjunction with the student gallery.

Since artistic activity has terminated in the Fieldhouse, the autonomous Art Department has made ample use of the structure. The remarkable factor contributing to its success is the cooperation of the students and faculty to make it almost accommodating and comfortable place to learn.

The Israeli military command refused to comment on the airlift. "United States jet transports have not been official. "They must have come to the American Embassy to bring food, I presume, or cigarettes or booze."

The equipment shuttled in by the big American planes was not disclosed, but the United States said it would supply Israel with tanks, armored personnel carries, warplanes, artillery, helicopters and ammunition to replace losses in the last 11 days of the war.

Appeals court to hear IBM case

BY JERRY R. WILSON

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The IBM-Telex antitrust case will go to a U.S. Court of Appeals without a determination of damages, a federal judge said Tuesday.

Citing the evidence presented to him as insufficient, U.S. District Judge A. Sherman Christensen of Salt Lake City said he would certify his previous judgment, finding IBM guilty of antitrust violations and Telex guilty of industrial espionage, for review by the higher court but would leave the question of damages open pending a later determination on that part.

"I have concluded that the evidence before me is insufficient to justify the recalculation or redetermination of the amount of antitrust damages by specific or approximated sums and accordingly I intend to grant an amendment to the findings of fact, conclusions of law and judgment leaving the amount to be determined at a special hearing or to grant a motion for a new trial on the subject of damages only," Christensen said.

In a decision handed down Sept. 17, Christensen awarded Telex $352.5 million in treble damages in its antitrust suit against IBM, and awarded $22.9 million to IBM in its industrial espionage counterclaim.

On Oct. 9, however, Christensen notified both parties that he had made a "substantial error" in making his calculations of the judgment against IBM, later explaining that he had failed to deduct from the IBM judgment certain amounts he felt might be used to offset the Telex claim.

Attorneys for both sides commented after the judge's statement that it appeared he would send the original judgment to the appeals court and would decide later on how to proceed with determining the amount of the antitrust judgment.

Jackson leads mayoral election

By SAM MILLER

ATLANTA (UPI) — Maynard Jackson, seeking to become the first black mayor of a major southern city, said Tuesday that if independent candidate Sam Massell ran neck-and-neck Tuesday night in early returns from the city's runoff election for mayor of Atlanta.

With 70 of the city's 110 precincts reporting, Vice Mayor Fowler appeared to be the favorite, had 15,000 votes of vote, with 6,000 votes for Massell and 4,500 votes for Fowler. Jackson, 35, came within "too young to die." He lumped Jackson and Williams together virtually as a ticket — despite Jackson's refusal to support Williams, and Williams' denunciation of Jackson. He said their election would mean the decline of Atlanta because many whites were "scared" of them.

Philippines victimized

Ruth hits islands

MANILA (UPI) — Typhoon Ruth, the third major storm to hit the Philippines in a week, swept away a bridge Monday night with 40 people on it and only four were rescued, the official Philippine News Agency said Tuesday.

There were at least five other drownings reported due to the typhoon that caused flooding and landslides and forced the evacuation of thousands of persons.

The storms triggered floods from Manila to the "rice bowl" provinces of central Luzon. In metropolitan Manila areas alone, an estimated 15,000 persons fled their homes along the banks of the rain-swollen Pasig River, according to the Department of Social Welfare.

Ruth, however, spared the main Manila area and its 4.5 million residents of the full force of its 85-mile-an-hour winds but it whipped up fringe "scared" of them.

Now that the Student Union "crisis" has subsided and the Board of Commisioners has decided to turncoat on their original decision to impeach S. U. Director Jim Rybarczyk, it's time to look back at the crisis and suggest methods with which to handle the ticket situation. Also, it is the time to make a suggestion for the return of a popular Union activity.

In 1970 and 1971, football tickets for the Homecoming Game were distributed through a lottery system. All students interested in purchasing tickets got into the lottery and took their chances.

That system for some reason was scrapped last year, but if the union learns by their mistakes, they will see that the lottery system should be resumed. (Even though this union staff all power next year, they can lay the groundwork and pass on the advice.)

The Over-The-Hill night on Wednesday nights in LaFortune is the activity that should return. Over-the-Hill was a project initiated by the Union a few years ago featuring campus folk talent and rock bands in the second floor ballroom of LaFortune every Wednesday night. It was always a great way to break up the week and provide an informal gathering spot for students. Further, it created a large showcase for campus talent and brought many people into the student center.

The return of an activity of this order would be a big plus for the S.U. Jerry Lutkus

Where Are The Students?

Leanne Jacques

Last weekend that famed elusive group, known as the SMC Board of Regents met. They were faced with the revised male visitation policy which opened up a 12-22 vote. Why? Mary Ellen Stumpf, student representative, declares the new Board members (12 of them) needed time to get "informed about the entire picture". Why weren't these new members informed before the meeting? Because they weren't chosen in ample time. Why weren't they chosen with a considerable amount of time by which they could have received information? Doesn't St. Mary's own owe this much to the students?

And what do the students owe? They owe it to themselves the opportunity to get out from under the barrel. I don't believe that the students are apathetic because there seems to be genuine concern over the issue. The problem results from a defeatist attitude. "What can we do?" is the common question.

First of all the Board of Regents meet during hard times for the students. Right before breaks. During breaks. Exam time. Clearly, taking time for action jeopardizes a student's grades which is important. Yes, sir, exams certainly keep us in line. (Remember the exams?)

Secondly, any action such as a mass violation of the no-male visitation policy works against rather than for the student body. We would only prove that we aren't "irresponsible" and confirm the idea that we are not mature enough to handle partials.

Obviously the Board of Regents do not recognize the change in student life as it is today. They view the halls as wall to wall bedrooms rather than the homes that they are to the people who reside in them. Nothing is immoral about entertaining in your homes.

It seems ironic that the women at St. Mary's, in the eyes of the nation, are old enough to marry and bear children, but in the eyes of the college are not old enough to run their own lives. Ironic! It's pitiful.

The objection of violating someone's privacy is totally absurd. Privacy is something that roommates work out among themselves, not something handed down by holy decrees. Privacy is not dictated. It is negotiated between the involved parties.

The social life at St. Mary's lacks a comfortable and natural atmosphere. (Oh, those phrases from across the road!) St. Mary's is going to need all the social advantages it can get. The increasing co-education of Notre Dame will make the social situation at St. Mary's a lot lighter. St. Mary's decides for academic independence but still carries a social dependence on Notre Dame. Isn't it time we shared social opportunities rather than lived off them?

So what CAN we do? Last year a random survey was sent out among the student body to poll opinion on the parietal issue. We need a total view of the student body, a complete poll. This poll could then be sent to each member of the Board of Regents. And then? Try to set up a schedule for meetings called for this purpose the time would be greatly shortened.

And if after we have acted reasonably, maturely and logically and still get no response or even an inane response... what do we do? (Raise our status to become equal to parents and alumni. Initiate bake sales and funding campaigns to raise brie money.) Hold a mass violation of the rules. What have we got to lose then?

Bad Waves

Dear Editor:

On Friday morning I woke to the sound of my phone ringing. I fell out of bed to answer it and on the other end of the line was a friend of mine, Tim Eisele, former vice president of our nation, who was being publicly accused by the University of Notre Dame.

I turned on WSND, "the voice of Notre Dame," and could only listen for a minute. It was sad, the radio station represented the University of Notre Dame, acting so juvenile, so bush-league, just because the person running the show, Fred Graver seems to have a personal gripe against the Nixon administration.

I turned on Graver's articles printed in the Observer and to castigate Mr. Agnew. It was the entire staff of WSND, the entire University.

I have read Graver's articles so juvenile, bush-league, just because it wasn't just Graver, maybe it was the entire staff of WSND. It is sad to watch a radio station as bad as WSND would capably of the least logical thinking, insisting even infants have tickets or the stadium to allow the couple to enter with their 5 month old baby and the corresponding University policy, the Observer refuses to get their grubby hands on an additional.

I only hope that no one other than regular listeners will watch this show, for it certainly was a bad reflection and disgrace for the entire country.

Gina Hafta, a staff member at WSND, once told me that those movies, their tickets, their shows, for them, for their customers, for them.

Students unaware of activities

by Judy Raumhorst
Staff Reporter

Many students are unaware of off-campus activities and jobs programs offered to minority students through Student Activities. Cassell Lawson, director of off-campus student activities and minority affairs, is the main behind these two programs.

As director of off-campus student activities, Lawson coordinates volunteer functions with the South Bend Community. He said that 1200 students spend time outside the University in volunteer roles. One program involves students who work with the Urban League Street Academy. "These students spend time with dropouts in a tutorial capacity or as a teacher's aide," explained Lawson.

The second aspect of Lawson's job, that of working with minority students, involves coordinating black organizations on campus.

"I see our role as a service type role and a training type role," said Lawson. In explaining the service role, Lawson said it mainly involves counseling minority students that may not seek it elsewhere. "The emphasis is to help students to get a direction and to better understand the structure they are caught up in," he stated.

This counseling addresses itself to all aspects of student life: social events, financial aid, boy-girl relations, admissions, anything that is not within the academic realm. All academic questions go to Dr. Joseph Scott of the Black Studies Program, continued Lawson.

The director of minority student affairs is responsible for two facilities in LaFortune. The Black Cultural Arts Center on the third floor allows students to have a place they can go, external to the classroom. It is an extension of the classroom complete with artifacts and literature, enabling the individual to become intellectually involved," explained Lawson. He emphasized that the center is open to all students to become aware of the Black situation and to socialize. "Every Wednesday evening we have a film in the center in conjunction with the Black Studies Program," said Lawson.

In describing the training role, Lawson told of the seven students he works with. Undergraduates Lionel Phillips, Greg Crawford and Richard Dickinson keep the Black Cultural Arts Center open. Albert Mendez and Billy Banner manage the Minority Counseling Center located in the basement of LaFortune. Two graduate students, Sharon Browner and Craig Adams, act as a liaison between the two centers.

"These people are in interiors of training. Each week we meet and discuss skills that help them to work efficiently," said Lawson. "When notified of a student that needs help, we move out into the University environment and knock on doors. If we cannot help, we will direct the student to a special service. It is important that the trainees know how to communicate and confront people in their own environment," added Lawson.

One of the activities this semester was a black student convention held September 15. "I saw students sit down and take a hard look at the issues in the community," said Lawson. As a result of the conference they hope to implement academic houses where "improved" students could live to reinforce their behavior and eliminate anxiety.

Lawson emphasized that the programs set up are nothing new. "We want to coordinate counseling functions with the University for students who might come to LaFortune while feeling reluctant to go to the Administration Building," said Lawson.

"I feel very warm and positive about what has happened to minority students and I am happy in my role. I think things will continue to improve in working with the students toward their goals," claimed Lawson. His main objective is to help students achieve academic excellence and allowing them to make adjustments to a new environment. "We have a lot to do, but I am comfortable in the progress we have made," concluded Lawson.

Prior to coming to Notre Dame in 1970, Lawson was director of the Urban League in South Bend for three years. He is presently working toward his doctorate in Counseling Psychology.

Professors receive awards

Three Notre Dame economics professors have received the Kazanjian Foundation Award for their achievement in economic education.

The award, that of working with minority students, involves coordinating black organizations on campus.

The winning program was developed two years ago by Professors William Crosson, Frank Bonello, and Kenneth Jameson, along with Frank Navratil, a graduate student here. The program involves two facilities in LaFortune. "The Black Cultural Arts Center on the third floor allows students to have a place they can go, external to the classroom. It is an extension of the classroom complete with artifacts and literature, enabling the individual to become intellectually involved," explained Lawson. Committee probes dark spots

by Jeanne Murphy
Staff Reporter

Have you recently seen a group of girls walking around campus at night with a flashlight in one hand and a map in the other? They were part of a Lighting Committee organized by Sister John Miriam Jones to find the darkest spots on campus.

Sister John Miriam, assistant to the provost, has been concerned for some time about the inadequate lighting facilities on campus. She attributes the major problem of the "inadequacy" to the fact that "lighting has not kept pace with the expansion of the campus."

She organized a committee of ten women students who made nightly tours of the campus and indicated on a map, dark areas which needed lighting. The girls on the committee were Elizabeth Santos, Dina Mentes and Kathy Johnson from Bremen-Philips; Ann Weber and Evelyn Mongoven from Badin; Maureen Lathers and Barbara Budde from Parley; Gina Smith and Sue Darin from Walsh; and from Lewis Hall, Sr. Theresa Sandbeck and Sr. Arlene Lenox.

The committee designated fourteen different locations where lights are needed. Some of these dark areas include Sacred Heart Church between the Administration Building and Soin Hall; St. Edward's Hall and the Administration Building route to the laundry; the area between the library, the Business Administration and Newland Science; the right and left sides of the Field house; between Howard, Lyons and Morrissey; the road along the lake to the ROTC building, to Old College; and to Lewis Hall from the power plant; and the St. Mary's road to St. Joseph Hall where there are no lights at all.

Safety precautions, not so much security precautions are Sister John Miriam's main concern. She claims that there are many hazardous spots on campus where it is hard for anyone you are walking. Thus, she is "not interested in supermercet lighting."

Eventhough Sister John Miriam reports lighting for safety, not only security, it is hard for anyone to walk in the dark. It is hard for anyone to see what is around them. It is hard for anyone to hear what is around them.

A's net Mets in 11th, 3-2

NEW YORK (UPI) - Bert Campaneris singled home an unearned run in the 11th inning Tuesday night to give the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets in the third game of a seven-series game decided by defensive lapses.

The victory gave the A's a 2-1 lead in this World Series which has been notable for nothing good play but has had plenty of excitement.

New York staked Tom Seaver, his best pitcher, to a 3-6 lead, but he wasn't able to hold it when Joe Rudi punched a single just under first baseman John Milner's glove in the eighth inning to score Campaneris with the tying run.

Errors by Felix Millan, the goat of the Mets' first-game defeat, gave the A's scoring chances in both the 9th and 10th innings but each time, Buck McDougald laid down a bunt play, reminiscent of catcher Mickey Owen's famous gaffe which cost the Brooklyn Dodgers a shot at the 1941 Series set up the winning run.

This game, the first World Series game ever played at night in New York, which has hosted more of these contests than any other city, marked the first time in 50 years and the second time ever that two successive series games ran into extra innings.

"UFO's sited around the world"

By United Press International

It's red. It's blue. Sometimes it turns green. It has wriggled skin, crab-claw hands and pointy ears. It has feathery wings and skid at the mouth. And the Russians say it may be trying to say howdy.

Workers and brilliant It astronomer, Dr. Allemn Hynek, of the University of Chicago, has said that an object travelled in a straight line out near the airport at Beckley, W. Va., in the piney woods of so to prove their story:

Workers claimed they were hustled aboard a blue, fish-shaped craft by circular motion while shifting its light intensity. These girls weren't like scanning device.

Another call reported spotted a streak of lightning but we couldn't get any closer. I don't think it was an airplane because the whole thing would change color at the same time.

Two Pascagoula shipyard workers claimed they were hustled aboard a blue, fish-shaped craft by three weird creatures who gave them the once over with and eye-like scavenging device.

A NorthWestern University astronomer, Dr. Allan Hynek, said flatly the craft was from another planet.

"Where they are coming from and why they were here is a matter of conjecture," Hynek said. "But the fact that they were here on this planet is a beyond a reasonable doubt."

The attorney for the two shipyard workers - Charles Holloway, 29, and Calvin Parker, 18 - said they were "just resting" Tuesday and would take lie-detector tests in a week or so to prove their story.

Around the world in Moscow, Soviet scientists said they picked up unusual radio signals from space and didn't rule out that they came from another civilization.

The Tass news agency said the signals, of a type never heard before, came in pulses after definite lapses of time, last for several minutes and are repeated several times a day. Tass said scientists have ruled out the possibility that the signals are from satellites launched from Earth.

"It is not precluded that they may be sent by a technically developed extra terrestrial civilization," the Russian report said.

Tass said Professor Samuel Kaplan of Gorky University said the first to pick up the signals. Later they were heard in other Soviet cities.

At Pine, La., sheriff's deputies reported orange-reddish flying objects 12 miles through the woods early Tuesday.

"One of our deputies was scared pretty bad," said Deputy Michael Moore. "He turned on his red lights and they came down at his patrol car. He turned them off and they just vanished like in a cloud."

And Pascagoula are 150 miles apart. The road at Sidell, across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans, Lloyd Mercier said he was driving home when he saw a UFO that was 20 feet thick with a streakthrough it.

"All I could see was a red glow. It looked like it came straight out of the sky."

"I have to believe with my own natural eyes," Mercier said. "I have to believe what I see. It was no balloon and it was no ship."

At the College of the Ozarks in Clarksville, Ark., a "ghost-like bearded creature with long, gray hair who laurens at the mouth" has been seen by students and faculty members. But that creature has been hiding for four days.

"He was last seen Friday behind McLean Hall," said Vernon McDaniel, College official. Mrs. Fritz Ehren, wife of the vice president of academic affairs and two night watchmen also said the saw the monster.

Blots at the Raleigh County Airport at Beckley, W. Va., saw a mysterious night flyer that turned red, then green, then white.

"It just kept moving away from me," said one pilot who chased the object in a small plane. "I couldn't get any closer. I don't think it was an airplane because the whole thing would change color at the same time."

Other reported UFO sightings a came from Gulfport and Meridian, Miss.

An exceptionally fast-moving and brilliant "star" caught the attention of three Breen-Phillips residents yesterday evening. Appearing directly overhead, the object traveled in a straight line and then curved, making a rather circular path before going out of sight while shifting its light intensity. These girls weren't the only ones who spotted a strange object - three girls from the same neighborhood yesterday evening.

Eight other calls reported sightings of UFO's we made to the Indiana State Post at Logier. The object was reported received from residents in Noble, La Grange, St. Joseph and De Kalb Counties.

According to Officer Don Hayden of the j-st, all reports "were described as to be white and yellow; they remain stationary for a short period and then change location with great speed; and "on" as it was perceived, caused interference with a walkie-talkie radio.

Goshen Police Department stood outside their station last night to observe a "stationary, bright light, that had been moving." This light appeared to be directly above Goshen College.

Another South Bend student spotted "seven real bright dots in the sky. They were in a V-formation and were like lights of a plane and we think it was lightening but we got a good look at them." Both students of Central Night School, called the police department at approximately 7:30 p.m. today.

Typical of other reports called in to local police stations throughout the state and nation, a local state police officer received a report from a resident of Culver who sighted a bright light with a redish tint to the east of Culver. The party calling mentioned that they observed it for at least 30 minutes prior to calling.

Again, the light intensity of the object alternately dimmed and brightened. Upon contacting the Culver police department over this incident, a South Bend state trooper received no positive verification. Of all UFO reports received, the Culver sighting was the only one that received no verification.

Pablo Casals dead at 96

San Juan, P.R.,UPI - Cellist Pablo Casals, 96, one of the century's greatest string players, was pronounced dead in a hospital in Condado, P.R., and was at his hospital bedside. Casals was struck by a heart attack and lung congestion and was in critical condition today with a heart attack and lung congestion.

He had been hidden for four days.

Casals was born in the Catalan town of Vendrell, near Barcelona, Spain, Dec. 29, 1876. He began playing organ and piano and composing at age 5.

In 1937 he instituted the Casals Festival here, and that same year married "Martha," then 21, one of his students. He was 80.

The "Party Bus" is on the road again. The uni-express shuttle bus between Notre Dame and St. Mary's will be transformed into a party bus between noon and 5 p.m. today.

Along with the usual party decor and refreshments of soda pop and potato chips, Juan Manigault, special projects commissioner for the Social Commission, has procured live entertainment.

Riders will be entertained with music or play "Pin Woodstock on Snoopy" - the "Peanuts" version of the Dalek-Dalek song."

"Your friendly host and hostess for the fun will be the Thowers and Debbie Sansoni," said Manigault.

Manigault believes that the shuttle bus is a good vehicle for more people. Yet too often the riders make no effort to mingle with others. He hopes the "party bus" can stimulate more interaction.

"The purpose of the party bus is to create a feeling of warmth on the bus with a party atmosphere," explained Manigault. "Many people lose their inhibitions and see others as people, instead of as statues."

Tom Clements--consistently cool

by John Filner

Notre Dame's offense has drawn much criticism this fall for making similar mistakes. One of many key breakdowns and turnovers. Football teams would have lost their first four games by making similar mistakes. One of the reasons Notre Dame has won its first four is Tom Clements, the 185 lb. junior quarterback from McKee's Rock, Pa. Clements is quite aware of the criticism, but he has a sufficient answer for it. "People fail to realize that we are a young team now after those two tough wins against Purdue and Michigan State."

"It took a while for the new people to coordinate with them. They are just coming around right now after those two tough wins against Purdue and Michigan State."

Still, Clements thinks the youth has helped the Irish. "I think everyone tries to do his best. We all try to help one another. We're enthusiastic for each other."

And the Irish's fans are enthusiastic about Clements. For his running ability, Clements is also a dangerous roll-out passer. Northwestern coach Johnny Pont is attuned to this.

"Johnny is always looking for a pass rush on Clements," Pont said.

Playing only the half against the Wildcats, Clements threw for 152 yards on nine of 12 completions, including one for a touchdown. "It's certain to hike the defense," Clements said.

Junior QB Tom Clements takes aim on Army's defensive secondary. Clements and the Irish "O" performed solidly in last week's win over Rice.

Still, Clements thinks the youth has helped the Irish. "I think everyone tries to do his best. We all try to help one another. We're enthusiastic for each other."

And the Irish's fans are enthusiastic about Clements. For his running ability, Clements is also a dangerous roll-out passer. Northwestern coach Johnny Pont is attuned to this.

"Johnny is always looking for a pass rush on Clements," Pont said.

Playing only the half against the Wildcats, Clements threw for 152 yards on nine of 12 completions, including one for a touchdown. "It's certain to hike the defense," Clements said.

Junior QB Tom Clements takes aim on Army's defensive secondary. Clements and the Irish "O" performed solidly in last week's win over Rice.

"The defensive adjustments we made that Callie used to make our line backers now," he said. "It's a lot easier to the right side."

It's often said that there's little better place to watch a college football game than The Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Florida, which is the home of the National Championship Game.

West Point and upstate New York at the peak of the autumn, the nation's finest football teams descend on the Duck Islands to compete for the United States Military Academy's annual Thanksgiving Day game.

And so on Saturday afternoon, as the sun was setting, the Notre Dame football team faced the Army in the annual game. The Fighting Irish, who have won the last three years' Classic, were looking to continue their three-year hiatus from the Irish schedule. But now they're back, and the Army's Head Coach, Vic Dorr, knew it was going to be a close game.

"It should be a good one," he said. "Our defense is as good as any team in the nation, and our offense is just as strong. We're looking for a big win." And the Irish players were equally confident.

"We're ready," said captain Paul Maurer. "This is our chance to prove ourselves to the nation."

But the game was not without its challenges. A strong wind, gusting at 25 miles per hour, made the kicking game difficult. The temperature was around 40 degrees, and the field was slippery.

Despite these challenges, Notre Dame took the field full of confidence. The team was ready.

"We're ready," said Maurer again. "We're ready to play our best game ever."

And that's exactly what they did. The Irish came out strong, scoring on their first drive and never letting up. By halftime, they had a 21-0 lead.

But Army didn't go down without a fight. They scored a touchdown in the third quarter and threatened to make it a close game. But Notre Dame's defense held strong, and the Irish won by a final score of 28-7.

It was a hard-fought battle, but Notre Dame came out on top. And the Irish defense, led by captain Maurer, was the star of the game. They shut down Army's running game and forced four turnovers.

The Irish defense had fared well on the road this year, allowing just one TD in eight periods of play. Here, Luther Bradley throttles a Purdue threat with an airborne interception.

Notre Dame 28, Rice 0. That's the kind of game I like to see Notre Dame play. It was like old times for the Irish offense, who had over 100 snaps and scored five touchdowns. Notre Dame had its way against the Owls, 28-0.

Defensively, we shutout the Owls and held them to about 150 yards. This was a great victory for Notre Dame, for the South wanted a part of us. We met their challenge, however, and stuck it in their ears.

About injuries, Ara stated at a team meeting, "We have a group of teams that we should be able to outscore every week. Life is full of disappointments and one has to live with them with a smile."
