Hayden then went on to talk of the media's tendency to write-off the movement as "doomed or dying". He said that this is a simplistic, crucial period for the movement because if we cannot get truth from them now, they will be able to "pull the wool over our eyes from now on."

Dellinger expressed concern that the basic concepts of the Declaration of Independence, especially those pertaining to trial by jury, were being "whittled away as humans become objects, and not people." He spoke extensively on the need for Judicial Reform, especially in regard to what he referred to as our "class system of justice."

"This really issues from our attempts to be fair," he said. "But it ultimately does produce inequality and a form of selective prosecution because we end up supporting the middle-class status quo.

Using this as a jumping-off point to discuss Watergate, Dellinger commented on the need "not to impinge a man, but to impinge on a system." When we get into reeling on the clubs in Washington, we're only going to end up getting deals like the one we saw between Ervin, Baker, and Nixon on allowing Sennett to approve the tape transcript.

Dellinger said that impeaching the President may ultimately be a "cop-out." He emphasized the need for the American people to probe deeply and learn about all of the facets of the system. "Only then," he said, "will we continue to develop our involvement in a system of true justice.

He pointed out that the investigations should not leave off at Watergate, but attempt to find the truth about the Cambodian invasion, Chile, and the ITT affair.

He stressed the importance of gaining proper perspective on Watergate, in the light of the direct White House involvement in Indochina, and with the corrupt Thieu regime.

Tom Hayden talked at length about the need to inform the American public about our continuing involvement in South Vietnam. "This is a total American responsibility," he claimed. "which derived from the cynical idea that the American Government has that we will not care what happens in Southeast Asia as long as we do not have men dying here, but believe that we only care for our own skin.

"For every reason in their world, there has got to be a Watergate. The blindness brought home by the expansion of Watergate tactics are just a reflection of the way that the Western imperialists solve their problems by keeping the facts from the people."

He predicted that what is likely to develop in the form of the President renewing our full military involvement in Vietnam. "And then he will go on television," Hayden said, "and say that this is necessary because demonstrators and newspapers would not let the great peace that was won there proceed as it should."

Hayden proceeded to emphasize the situation in Vietnam by outlining four facts about our present involvement there. He said that the United States, by order of the President, is giving the South Vietnamese Government $475 million in military aid, at least 5 times more than is being sent anywhere else.

He continued by describing the military situation in Vietnam. "They have the third largest Air Force in the world, the fourth largest army payroll, the highest proportion of people living in relative poverty, and the world's highest percentage of political prisoners."

"All of this in a land which has supposedly won its freedom," Hayden said.

Dellinger accused the President of not living up to the peace treaty. "We are still holding 300,000 Viet Cong prisoners in that country," he said.

Dellinger and Hayden both emphasized the necessity for the peace movement to continue. "We never will go back to the single focus of the sixties," Dellinger stated. "But now we want to contribute to the whole. We should all concentrate on one area, but never forget that we are a part of the whole movement."

(picture on page 5) (continued on page 5)
world briefs

ATHENS (UPI)—The new government Tuesday began to release persons arrested in the rebellion against ousted President Georgi Papadopoulos’ regime eight days before a military coup overthrew it. The move was seen as a conciliatory gesture toward students by the two-day-old military-backed government.

In Athens, where the government last week said 300 persons were being held in connection with the rebellion which began at the Athens Polytechnic school, authorities began releasing the prisoners in small groups.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon will provide “complete information” on his personal finances probably this week but has not decided if he will make his actual income tax returns public, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Tuesday.

Warren said the president has not determined “in what form or forum” he will make the financial disclosures, but that his White House has been at work compiling information for release.

Nixon admitted in a recent news conference that he deducted $500,000 for volumes of five-presidential papers he turned over to the National Archives.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House voted 311-88 Tuesday to place the country on daylight saving time year-round until the end of April, $1.00.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House voted 311-88 Tuesday to place the country on daylight saving time year-round until the end of April, $1.00.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense and Interior Departments said Tuesday they ordered next week, pointed out that there are inconsistencies in Burtchaell’s logic and reasoning behind the new calendar that should be questioned.

HPC Chairman Pat McLaughlin urged the hall presidents to encourage all students interested in the calendar to attend the special meeting of the Student Life Council scheduled for 4:30 p.m. this Thursday at the Center for Continuing Education. Provost James T. Burtchaell will be present to listen to student grievances and suggestions and to answer any questions regarding the new calendar.

Rick Kanser

For Example...

Case of Stroh’s $5.25

Fri. and Sat. in the Carry-Out

Urban Studies Evening

Wednesday, November 28

1:00pm thru 5:00 pm

Urban Studies Office - Rockne Memorial

1. Appointments for U. S. Majors

O'Shaughnessy - Room 103 - 6:30 Wed.

2. Information on Workstudy

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Present

Alfred Hitchcock’s

FREVZBY

Thurs-Fri Nov 29-30

Showings: 6,8,10,12 Admission $1.00

Proceeds Go To CORVILLA
Letters sent to congressmen

Burrell receives replies on impeachment

by Ken Bradford
Staff Reporter

Fr. David Burrell, chairman of the Notre Dame Theology Department, has received letters from two congressmen responding to his letters calling for the impeachment of the President.

Fr. Burrell’s letter stated, “It has become clear that the preservation of what integrity we have as a people and Congress has as an army of that people demands precisely that we dispense with Richard Nixon for the sake of the presidency.”

The letter was a reaction to the “unacceptable actions” of Nixon.

One resolution calling for the House Judiciary Committee to investigate the official conduct of the President was adopted last week and is expected to be enacted soon, according to a Brademas spokesman.

“Please be assured that in the coming months, I will have as my first priority Congressional action to re-establish the rule of law in our land for all citizens, including high public officials,” Brademas’ letter concluded.

Fr. Burrell, in response to the two letters, clarified that “when people say ‘Impeach the President’, they could mean they feel him to be guilty, but the thrust is to initiate impeachment proceedings.”

“Certainly one must agree with George McGovern, who did not need to argue the point: if anyone who has done or allowed to be done the sorts of things Nixon has is not subject to impeachment proceedings, who is?” Fr. Burrell said.

Course offered for students helping with retarded children

by Melissa A. Byrne
Staff Reporter

The Department of Psychology will re-offer a course next semester which allows students to earn academic credit for a combination of volunteer and classroom experience.

The three credit hour course will require students to do volunteer work with a retarded child at the Developmental Disabilities Center on the corner of Angela and Notre Dame Avenue.

This non-matricule course, Behavior Modification and the Retarded, will require one hour of classwork and four hours of supervised volunteer work per week.

“Many students are interested in doing volunteer work for the underprivileged groups,” said Eric Ward, program director at the Developmental Disabilities Center and ND graduate student in psychology. “This class offers them an opportunity to combine academic and personal goals.” Ward indicated the class material is quite challenging.

Class topics include a history of attitudes toward the retarded, causes and types of retardation; behavior modification and training of the retarded; teaching methods in the area of self-help and legal rights for the retarded. Other classes will be given by persons from the University and local community who have experience in mental retardation. Assigned readings related to training methods will be available in the ND Bookstore.

Sixteen Notre Dame students are now completing the course. Many of these students became interested in the class through work with the student volunteer group, Manasa.

“I got involved in Manasa last year and taking the course was a natural consequence of it,” said Clint Girouard, an electrical engineering major and current Manasa chairman.

Several students took the course because it offered them an opportunity to gain practical experience in the field of psychology. “I wanted more than theory,” said Robert Parrell, a junior psychology major, who included training methods in the course.

Lee Handwerker, another ND junior and psychology major, said the class offered training that enabled him to become a more effective volunteer.

The students’ volunteer work is supervised by Psychology Department faculty and staff members. This volunteer work has been very successful in several cases. Several students joined staff members to develop a training method to teach one child to walk.

Another child who threw toys away was trained to play with them correctly. Other children are being taught to swim in the Center’s pool, dress themselves, and eat correctly.

“The big problem is you just don’t have enough hours in a week to spend with them,” said Kevin Sherin, a senior pre-med major.

This course is being re-offered to all undergraduates for the spring semester through the Psychology Department. It had been listed during pre-registration as Pry 540-Behavior Change and the Retarded JTS-Wilhman.

Inform residence office before moving off-campus

by Jeanne Murphy
Staff Reporter

Are you thinking about moving off-campus in January?

Father John M. Mulcahy, Director of Student Residence, has asked all students intending to move off-campus next semester to inform the residence office of such a move before December 15. If notification is not given before this date, the student will lose his $50 deposit fee and will be billed for the second semester room and board.

Mulcahy mentioned that in the past, students who moved off-campus in January without notifying the residence office and ruined chances for other students to get a room in the dorms. Students should notify the Housing Office of such an opportunity to combine academic and personal goals.

Ward indicated the class material is quite challenging. Class topics include a history of attitudes toward the retarded, causes and types of retardation; behavior modification and training of the retarded; teaching methods in the area of self-help and legal rights for the retarded. Other classes will be given by persons from the University and local community who have experience in mental retardation. Assigned readings related to training methods will be available in the ND Bookstore.

Sixteen Notre Dame students are now completing the course. Many of these students became interested in the class through work with the student volunteer group, Manasa.

“I got involved in Manasa last year and taking the course was a natural consequence of it,” said Clint Girouard, an electrical engineering major and current Manasa chairman.

Several students took the course because it offered them an opportunity to gain practical experience in the field of psychology. “I wanted more than theory,” said Robert Parrell, a junior psychology major, who included training methods in the course.

Lee Handwerker, another ND junior and psychology major, said the class offered training that enabled him to become a more effective volunteer.

The students’ volunteer work is supervised by Psychology Department faculty and staff members. This volunteer work has been very successful in several cases. Several students joined staff members to develop a training method to teach one child to walk.

Another child who threw toys away was trained to play with them correctly. Other children are being taught to swim in the Center’s pool, dress themselves, and eat correctly.

“The big problem is you just don’t have enough hours in a week to spend with them,” said Kevin Sherin, a senior pre-med major.

This course is being re-offered to all undergraduates for the spring semester through the Psychology Department. It had been listed during pre-registration as Pry 540-Behavior Change and the Retarded JTS-Wilhman.

All Observer staff members wishing to hold an intern position for the Spring Semester should contact Jerry Lutkus immediately.
At 4:30 tomorrow, the SLC will meet in a very important meeting. Fr. James Burtchael will meet with SLU and all interested students to discuss the new academic calendar. Student response to this invitation hopefully will be overwhelming. If it is, our hopes can change the Provost's mind.

Burtchael has downplayed the results of a survey taken by the Hall President's Council saying that this kind of response is merely manufactured by the announcement of a new calendar. Hopefully, a massive outpouring of interested students can convince the Provost that the results were not merely the result of disgust produced by the calendar's release, but actual true opinions held by the students of Notre Dame.

Show up at the CCE Thursday and voice your opinion. Despite the apparent firmness of the Provost not to change the calendar, perhaps a massive show of strength can prove effective.

--- Jerry Lukas

The CCE Rally

With the unveiling of the Nixon administration's plans for fighting the fuel crisis, the question of priorities comes to a crisis of sacrifices on the part of American citizens. We face the possibility of rationed gas in our cars, limited speeds on our highways and lower temperatures in our homes.

Pragmatically speaking, that's pretty much to ask without some complaints. But for the most part, the complaints will be petty. Nearly everyone will consider himself important enough for the maximum fuel ration when that comes about, and will probably start to rattle like the proverbial empty barrel when he doesn't get his gallons. Despite these complaints, and pettier, most Americans will go along with the sacrifice. Granted, they won't have much choice in the matter, but when it comes down to it, the only thing they'll sacrifice will be convenience, a commodity eminently expendable.

But convenience means a lot to Americans, and if that will be their sacrifice, the last thing they'll stand for is seeing someone else getting the convenience they don't have. And finally, the danger the Nixon administration faces now.

It is copyrighted story Tuesday in The Dallas Morning News, The News' energy editor John Cranfill reported that the Defense Department is taking fuel from the American civilian and adding it to the need created by the recent Arab embargo. Twenty-two oil companies in the United States which recently ordered send enough petroleum products to the Defense Department to fulfill December needs, Cranfill's story said, quoting an unidentified Defense Department source.

The authority for this order apparently comes from a 1950 act that President Nixon quietly reactivated November 1.

The act, called the Defense Production Act, was originally intended to insure military supplies during the Korean War. It seems incredibly convenient that the president can activate such an act ensuring his military strength around the world before he has to tell Americans that they have to tighten their belts. And it seems that our current defense policy as Americans will have to sacrifice their convenience, the military will not.

The Nixon administration talks of banning Christmas decorations that use up power, lowering thermostats six degrees, turning off lights and travelling less. But talk of cutting military budgets, conserving military fuel and lowering military thermostats is scarce.

Implied by this policy is the necessity of priorities. The convenience of the administration's priorities are plentiful.

So what it boils down to convenience and priority. The convenience of the American citizen is placed at a low priority: there isn't enough fuel to go around, so the citizen does without. The convenience of the military, on the other hand, seems to rank higher on administration priority sheets: there's not enough to go around, so it is taken from another source.

This system of priorities is far from laudable, especially considering the stance of the Nixon administration in the eyes of the American public. Either a justification of such a move or that the Defense Department or a complete reordering of priorities is sadly needed here, if for no other reason than the convenience of the administration's credibility. "Join the army and stay warm" is not as funny as it sounds.

--- Joseph Abell

Butch ward

Remember

It was extremely moving to watch the evening news this past Thanksgiving night. To watch the towed-children and sombre ladies and the poignant gentleman stand before the flickering flame. It was extremely moving.

To remember.

To drive back past what seems an instant, a decade to a cloudy day in a sixth-grade classroom when a normally icy principal's voice announced the deaths of the two children who had been shot. And moments later, that our President had died.

To remember.

To allow one's heart to shed the years of hardening that frustration and war and poverty and sickening political behavior has helped to mold, and to remember that since feeling of guilt, or remorse, or hatred because that pervaded that sixth grade classroom.

And which pervaded that three story row house we called home. And where 300 families sent their children to school and spent an entire day singing, praying and telling America that the time for equality had arrived and would no longer be delayed.

Remember the sweat-covered face of that revered Southern minister as his voice sang of the dream and the vision and the hopelessness of such a move on the part of Nixon. We remember the happy voices of those close to the microphone as their joy echoed his words and made them strong.

And remember America as it cursed the black invasion and the weary generation of the Civil Rights Act, which had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that he had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.

And then remember again.

Remember the night when the feeling returned. When that television program millions of Americans were watching was interrupted and the horror of a hotel balcony in Nashville, Tennessee became America's second nightmare in less than a decade.

And remember that feeling. That feeling of remorse, of guilt, of belligerent resolutions. That feeling of joining the army and staying warm.

But remember also the televisions as they burned throughout the day, and cursing America as it watched the black invasion with anxious eyes, and calling themselves white, and the blues of discrimination.

And we remember the feeling of utter helplessness. We knew there had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.

And then remember again.

Remember the night when the feeling returned. When that television program millions of Americans were watching was interrupted and the horror of a hotel balcony in Nashville, Tennessee became America's second nightmare in less than a decade.

And remember that feeling. That feeling of remorse, of guilt, of belligerent resolutions. That feeling of joining the army and staying warm.

But remember also the televisions as they burned throughout the day, and cursing America as it watched the black invasion with anxious eyes, and calling themselves white, and the blues of discrimination.

And we remember the feeling of utter helplessness. We knew there had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.

And then remember again.

Remember the night when the feeling returned. When that television program millions of Americans were watching was interrupted and the horror of a hotel balcony in Nashville, Tennessee became America's second nightmare in less than a decade.

And remember that feeling. That feeling of remorse, of guilt, of belligerent resolutions. That feeling of joining the army and staying warm.

But remember also the televisions as they burned throughout the day, and cursing America as it watched the black invasion with anxious eyes, and calling themselves white, and the blues of discrimination.

And we remember the feeling of utter helplessness. We knew there had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.

And then remember again.

Remember the night when the feeling returned. When that television program millions of Americans were watching was interrupted and the horror of a hotel balcony in Nashville, Tennessee became America's second nightmare in less than a decade.

And remember that feeling. That feeling of remorse, of guilt, of belligerent resolutions. That feeling of joining the army and staying warm.

But remember also the televisions as they burned throughout the day, and cursing America as it watched the black invasion with anxious eyes, and calling themselves white, and the blues of discrimination.

And we remember the feeling of utter helplessness. We knew there had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.

And then remember again.

Remember the night when the feeling returned. When that television program millions of Americans were watching was interrupted and the horror of a hotel balcony in Nashville, Tennessee became America's second nightmare in less than a decade.

And remember that feeling. That feeling of remorse, of guilt, of belligerent resolutions. That feeling of joining the army and staying warm.

But remember also the televisions as they burned throughout the day, and cursing America as it watched the black invasion with anxious eyes, and calling themselves white, and the blues of discrimination.

And we remember the feeling of utter helplessness. We knew there had been no violence because that southern minister had helped his people take a stand for this right that had never before said, that they wanted to be recognized and respected.
Over 40,000 sold
CILA card sale successful

by Ann McCarr
Staff Reporter

All of the over 40,000 Christmas cards sold in this year's Cila drive have now been distributed, reports Card Sales Chairman Marty Dineen. "Any of the orders which have been filled incorrectly can be easily corrected by a quick trip or phone call to the Campus Ministry Office," said Dineen (also available at 283-4233). There are approximately 200 dozen cards still available, selling for $1.50 a dozen, which can not be bought from the Campus Ministry Office.

The profits from these sales are used to support CILA projects. These projects include tutoring in Mississippi, care for the elderly in Mexico, as well as aid to the Indian Reservation in South Dakota and the poor in the West Indies. Small funds may enable CILA to open new projects in Panama, Appalachia, and New Orleans. CILA is currently effecting a new tutoring program in South Bend. Over 200 people participated in this year's sale of the cards, which proved twice as successful as last year, reports Dineen.

"We'd especially like to thank all the students and faculty who bought and sold the cards as well as the Campus Press, The Observer, and the Student Government for all their help," Dineen said. "Through their cooperation CILA will be able to help even more people than before, spreading the true Christmas spirit."

Role of individual important

(continued from page 1)

by Al Redfender
Staff Writer

This year's Army Party, the "Finals" Fling, will be held Saturday, December 6, from 8:30 p.m. to midnight at the Bend National Guard Armory. Cost of tickets is $3.50 per person. Free bus service will be provided to and from the party. Buses will leave the circle every 15 minutes starting at 8:30 p.m. Also starting at 8:30 p.m. and every five minutes thereafter, buses will return students to the circle.

The Mark Bloom Band and Windjammer will provide the party with continuous music. Forty-five kegs of beer and fifty pounds of peanuts (for you peanuts lovers) will be provided. Members of the Social Commission worked on the party and were supervised by co-chairpersons Mary Siegel and Art Margiotta. Siegel, emphasizing the use of the buses, commented, "We are providing the buses for the safety of the students. Hopefully, they will use the buses instead of driving."

Tickets will be on sale every night at the dining halls.

ND benefactor Gerity dies

by Ann McCarr
Staff Reporter

James Gerity, Jr., 69, a benefactor of Notre Dame, died Monday in Toledo, Ohio, as a result of cancer.

Services will be Thursday. Theobald Hesburgh will deliver the eulogy. Others from Notre Dame who will attend the services are Dean Thomas T. Murphy of the college's advisory council since 1964, as well as chairman of the advisory council during the 1989-90 academic year.

An honorary doctor of laws degree was awarded to him during commencement of exercises last May.

He was the president and owner of Gerity Cablevision in Bay City, Mich., and owner and president of the Gerity Broadcasting Co., with stations in Adrian and Bay City, Mich.

Theo. 324 closed

Theology 334, Sex and Marriage, taught by Fr. Hoffman is now closed. There are no more openings in either class.

CE books here

Copies of the Spring 1974 Semester edition of the Course Evaluation Book will be available today at the offices of the Course Deans, the Off-Campus Office in LaFortune and in the classroom buildings.

the observer

Night Editor: Al Rutherford
Asst., Night Editor: Tom Devine
Layout: Bill Brink
Day Editor: Jerry Rosini
Copy Editor: Greg Agello
Contacting: Joe Abell
Typist: C. Fourre, T. Modgilin, J. Flannigan
Pictures: Jerome
Night Controller: T. J. Clinton
Supervisor photographer: Bill Rahner

Theobald Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, died Monday in Toledo, Ohio, as a result of cancer.
Nixon to provide complete income tax information

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will provide "complete income tax information" on all White House personnel this week but has not decided if he will make his actual income tax returns public, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald P. Warren said Tuesday.

Warren said the President has not determined "in what form or forum" he will make the financial disclosures, but that the White House has been at work compiling information for release.

"I'm not prepared to say whether it will include tax forms," Warren said. "We have people working hard at compiling information which the President will provide in a form or forum to be determined."

"It's obvious the President desires complete information be available," Warren said. "I doubt that anyone else or accountants were working on the report." Nixon told several senators at a White House meeting Monday night that he planned to release his actual income tax returns in a few days, but Warren backed off from any commitment or deadline.

"We'll be releasing information," Warren said. "He wants to clear this up and other matters like the reporting of erroneous charges and other allegations. The information will be available in some way."

Nixon admitted in a recent news conference that he paid only "nominal" taxes in 1970 and 1971 because he deducted $500,000 for volumes of vice presidential papers he turned over to the National Archives.

Oil allocations will affect homeowners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government issued new heating oil allocations Tuesday to force individual users to reduce thermostats 6 degrees in homes and businesses by 6 to 10 degrees.

The regulations, published in the Federal Register, will require that the end user of no. 2 distillate fuel — the American consumer — cut indoor temperatures or face the prospect of running out of fuel during the coldest months.

The administration originally had hoped to solve heating oil shortages by allocation at the wholesale level only, but the new regulations put the primary responsibility on the final user.

The regulations are designed to force consumers to lower thermostats 6 degrees in homes and 10 degrees in businesses — the amount recommended by Nixon in a nationwide speech Sunday — or to reduce consumption of other scarce fuels by an equivalent amount.

"Customers will get an initial "fill-up" if enough heating oil is available but after that supplies will be cut by 10 to 30 percent necessary to force the lower temperatures."

Any heating left would be saved for non-priority use, including hardship running out of fuel during the coldest months.

The regulation not go into effect until Congress passes President Nixon's energy conservation legislation, expected to be law by mid-December.

The administration said the limits on heating oil use are necessary to spread anticipated shortages "equitably through out the nation."

Senate votes to provide money for congressional campaigns

By MIKE FEINSILBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 52 to 40 Tuesday to provide money for congressional campaigns after the 1974 election.

The revolutionary proposal was attached to a bill that would raise the legal ceiling on campaign contributions. The vote was 88 to 3 Tuesday to confirm Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan to be the new Secretary of Defense.

Voting against the nomination were Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and William D. Hathaway, D-Maine.

The historic vote, first to be taken under the 25th Amendment for presidential succession, came one day less than seven weeks after Spiro T. Agnew resigned pleading no contest to a single count of income tax evasion.
Search on for strangler’s killer

WALPOLE, Mass. (UPI) — Albert DeSalvo would have been tried for one of the Boston stranglings if he hadn’t been arrested Tuesday.

Lawyer Pat J. Piscitelli of Brockton said DeSalvo would have been tried in Middlesex Superior Court next spring for the slaying of Beverly Samans, 23, of Cambridge. Her murder was one of 13 generally attributed to the Boston Strangler between June, 1962 and January, 1964.

Meanwhile, the search for DeSalvo’s killer continued Tuesday at the prison. Inmates have been locked in their cells and strip-searched, according to a spokesman for the corrections department.

DeSalvo, 42, was stabbed 16 times by an inmate using a surgical instrument. He had been dead about 10 hours when his body was found Monday morning.

In an interview with the Brockton Enterprise, Piscitelli said, “Albert was prepared to admit to killing others, but he had no evidence for the Samans killing, but testimony would have been that he killed.”

Nothing came of the proposal, he said.

“I am and have been of the opinion that he (DeSalvo) was not responsible for any of those cases,” Droney said.

Said Piscitelli, “I had an agreement with Drony and Assistant District Attorney Richard Gargiulo that Albert would be tried if the lie detector tests showed he was telling the truth about committing the crimes. Personally, I believe he would have passed those tests. There’s no doubt in my mind that Albert was the strangler.”

All Albert wanted was to be treated at an institution where he could be helped,” Piscitelli said. “We hoped he would be found innocent by reason of insanity of the murder of Beverly Samans and that he would then get that treatment.”

IRA blockades roads with bomb-laden barricades

By FRANK JOHNSTON

IRA Republican Army (IRA) gunmen hijacked dozens of buses, trucks and cars Tuesday night and turned them into potential bomb-laden barriers blocking roads of more than 30 main roads across Northern Ireland.

Bombs in two hijacked vehicles exploded at Coagh, 40 miles northwest of Belfast, and Downpatrick, 25 miles southeast of the capital. Neither blast caused casualties, an army spokesman said.

Roadblocks of hijacked vehicles sealed off Lurgan, 20 miles southwest of Belfast, almost isolated Strabane on the Irish border.

South Viet forces continue fighting in Phnom Penh

By ARTHUR HIGbee

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government forces trying to reopen Phnom Penh’s land link to its only deepwater seaport are under a rebel mortar barrage Tuesday 25 miles from the capital, field reporters said.

Two pilots and two soldiers were wounded in two mortar attacks in two rounds of 82mm mortar fire along both sides of Kompong Speu, military sources said.

The insurgents were apparently attempting to outflank government troops trying to reopen Highway 4, the road from Phnom Penh to the port of Kompong Speu.

The highway has been cut since Nov. 11 near Mohasaieng, 11 miles farther southwest from Kompong Speu.

In South Vietnam, Communist gunners stepped up their shelling of the defense lines around Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, Tuesday and fired mortars at the district capital of Kien Hien, 40 miles northwest of Saigon, government spokesman said.

Viet Cong peace negotiators boycotted a scheduled meeting with South Vietnamese officers to protest govern ment bombing of Communist-held territory 70 miles north of Saigon yesterday.

In another Cambodian battlefield action, Communist forces fired two Soviet-built rockets at Phnom Penh’s Phochentong airport, last week.

Poestchent and the Mekong River are the only two supply routes to Phnom Penh still open.

University of Notre Dame Glee Club in concert

Wednesday, Nov. 28, 1973

Sacred Heart Church

Admission: Free

Early seating advised

CLASSIFIED ADS

RIDER WANTED

Need ride to Bloomington this weekend. Share a P.M. Hot. 497-5000.

FOR RENT

4 BR house, recreation room, fireplace, well maintained. $1500. Complete furniture. For grad students only. Jan semester or immediate occu pation. 211 Brusseau 284-2461.

Rooms $40. Ride. 335-1329.

PERSONALS

Dear Virginia V.,

I found what you wanted. Love, Oscar.

When Irish hearts are happy—oh, Spain's whole world's bright and gay!

Happy 30th, Erin!

Congratulations Colonel. We now you snag even more. Love, the GB boys.

Anyone to hand out bal and tickets at holidays or end semester to Sanford, All C.T. Thurs. Apr. 497.

Need 1 or 2 jobs for Thurs, Nov. 29. Who concert in Chicago. Call 497.

Wanted! 1 tickets for WHO concert. Maggie 1316.
Midatch blitz sends Irish past Chicago State
by Rich Odivo

Boon! Boon! Boon! That was the sound at Lou D’Paquale. John Dow, 150-pound Chicago State scorer, scored successive pins to open a close match and send Notre Dame sprawling. It was coach Fred Pechek’s first win over Notre Dame in 45-9, before an overflow crowd in the Convo Auxiliary Gym.

Fresman Skip Mondragon got the Irish off to a good start when his 54-second first period tack down was followed by his 4:50 second period pin. Sophomore Bob Schirmer at 118. The Cougars took four of the top five weight classes.

Pechek scored his second pin of the year, dropping 187-pound Alphonse with 2:30 to go in the first period.

Notre Dame regained the lead when Steve Mortman and Dave Boyer pinned their foes in the third period to put the Irish ahead 15-4. Bob Blane of Chicago State outlasted Notre Dame’s Fritz Bruning, 5-3, at 150, to close the first period, but then the Fighting Irish started.

DiPaquale pinned Chicago State freshman Rich Dardis at 167. Tim Wolfe followed, flattening Alex Rich in a lightning-fast 33 seconds. Halgant also got the pin, this time over Tom Gauger in 2:33.

The Irish then crushed Notre Dame 33-28 in the middle weight class.

Freshman John Zinkmantz picked up his first win by disqualifying Chicago State’s Bob Schirmer at 118. The Cougars took four of the top five weight classes.

Notre Dame’s Bob Smith, who scored his second pin of the season, dropped 174-pounder Mike Wuest to a 1-0 decision.

Pechek scored his second pin of the year, dropping 187-pound Alphonse with 2:30 to go in the first period.

Notre Dame regained the lead when Steve Mortman and Dave Boyer pinned their foes in the third period to put the Irish ahead 15-4. Bob Blane of Chicago State outlasted Notre Dame’s Fritz Bruning, 5-3, at 150, to close the first period, but then the Fighting Irish started.

DiPaquale pinned Chicago State freshman Rich Dardis at 167. Tim Wolfe followed, flattening Alex Rich in a lightning-fast 33 seconds. Halgant also got the pin, this time over Tom Gauger in 2:33.

The Irish then crushed Notre Dame 33-28 in the middle weight class.

Freshman John Zinkmantz picked up his first win by disqualifying Chicago State’s Bob Schirmer at 118. The Cougars took four of the top five weight classes.

Notre Dame’s Bob Smith, who scored his second pin of the year, dropped 174-pounder Mike Wuest to a 1-0 decision.

Pechek scored his second pin of the year, dropping 187-pound Alphonse with 2:30 to go in the first period.

Notre Dame regained the lead when Steve Mortman and Dave Boyer pinned their foes in the third period to put the Irish ahead 15-4. Bob Blane of Chicago State outlasted Notre Dame’s Fritz Bruning, 5-3, at 150, to close the first period, but then the Fighting Irish started.

DiPaquale pinned Chicago State freshman Rich Dardis at 167. Tim Wolfe followed, flattening Alex Rich in a lightning-fast 33 seconds. Halgant also got the pin, this time over Tom Gauger in 2:33.

The Irish then crushed Notre Dame 33-28 in the middle weight class.

Freshman John Zinkmantz picked up his first win by disqualifying Chicago State’s Bob Schirmer at 118. The Cougars took four of the top five weight classes.

Notre Dame’s Bob Smith, who scored his second pin of the year, dropped 174-pounder Mike Wuest to a 1-0 decision.