Laundry loses shirts in blaze

by Joseph Abell
Managing Editor

Flames flared up in the Notre Dame laundry building shortly after dark Thursday night, destroying part of a wooden shelf and burning some clothing.

Contained within a clothing assembly area of the building, the fire was extinguished quickly by the Notre Dame Fire Department. Six units of the South Bend Fire Department also answered the call, made at 7:20 p.m., but the fire was tapped out before their arrival.

An unidentified security officer said that an employee of the laundry was driving past the building shortly after 7 p.m. when he spotted flames inside a window. He said he alerted the burned area and the laundry had closed almost three hours earlier.

Fireman Paul Bognar said that he entered the building and found "two clothes baskets and the shell" burning. He said that clothing, "mostly undershirts," was also burning in a metal set of shelves near the wooden ones.

The fire also blistered the paint on the metal shelves in addition to singeing some nearby jerseys and shirts.

Fire officials were puzzled at the cause of the blaze, as no electrical wiring or outlets were near the burned area and the laundry had closed almost three hours earlier.

Notre Dame Fire Chief Br. Borromeo Malley speculated that the fire could have smoldered on the wooden shelf for hours before bursting into flame. He refused to elaborate on what could have started the smoldering.

He set a damage-estimate at $1,500.

Bud Wynn, assistant manager of the laundry, assured students that laundry service will be only slightly slowed because of the fire. "It won't slow things up except the clothes in process in the area," he said, referring to clothing damaged by smoke and water in the fire's immediate area. These clothes, plus a number of sheets, will all have to be redressed, he said.

He anticipated few problems for students whose clothes were destroyed. "We have complete records of what was in each student's bundle," he said, indicating that the laundry would replace the destroyed articles through University insurance.

He said the laundry will be operating as usual Friday morning.

Conference recessed

The Middle East peace conference in Geneva proceeded, jointly by the United States and Soviet Union, had been recessed pending a settlement of the troop disengagement issue.

None of the announcements from Cairo, Jerusalem or Washington mentioned Moscow, which is co-chairman of the Geneva conference with the United States. Israeli and Egyptian diplomats indicated earlier there would be a simultaneous announcement in Moscow but none was forthcoming.

The fact Russia was not mentioned emphasized the personal nature of the Kissinger-Borromeo talks.

Kissinger is now expected to turn his efforts to bringing Syria into an agreement on the separation of its forces and participation in the Geneva talks.

Nixon has asked to "personally... see that all negotiations, any efforts that can lead to permanent peace... will have the full and complete support of the United States.

The agreement was believed to include an Israeli pullback to about 20 miles into the Sinai Peninsula on the eastern bank of the Suez Canal, freeing the trapped Egyptian Second Army, and a thinning of Egyptian forces on the east side of the waterway. A corridor of United Nations troops would be between them.

Kissinger busy

The agreement climax ed a week of intensive negotiations during which Kissinger shuttled almost daily between Egypt and Israel from his arrival in the Middle East last Friday. He met three times with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and other officials in the upper Nile resort city of Aswan and three times with Israeli leaders in Jerusalem.

"The disengagement agreement, the sources said, will be signed at noon (6 A.M. EDT) on Nov. 11. Nixon and Silliasvov, commander of the United Nations Emergency Force, will witness the signing.

A similar announcement was broadcast by Radio Cairo.

Israel and Egypt signed their cease-fire agreement in a khaki U.N. tent at the sandy Kleenex site Nov. 11. Silliasvov had mediated the talks between Israeli and Egyptian generals on the implementation of the cease-fire agreement.

The talks broke down after 10 rounds Nov. 29 when the two sides failed to agree on disengagement.

Kissinger and Israeli and Egyptian officials said the talks were simply a "prelude" to the more important issue of the Middle East peace talks.

Nixon: 'A first step'

Agreement set in Middle East

By United Press International

Israel and Egypt, with the "assistance" of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, have reached agreement on the separation of their armed forces on the Suez Canal front, it was announced in Washington, Cairo and Jerusalem Thursday.

The accord, details of which were not disclosed, will be signed at noon (6 A.M. EDT) Friday by the Israeli and Egyptian chiefs of staff at the U.N. checkpoint Kilometer 101 on the Suez highway. Finland's Maj. Gen. Ennio Silliasvov, commander of the U.N. Emergency Force, will witness the signing.

President Nixon, in making the announcement of the disengagement, "after 104 days of war... this is the first significant step toward a lasting peace in the Middle East," Nixon said.

Full text of Nixon's announcement on page 4

While no details of the agreement were released, the Israeli government did say Prime Minister Golda Meir will address the Kissesent parliament Tuesday at which time she will make a statement on the political situation.

Israeli sources have said the disengagement formula involves an Israeli pullback from the west bank of the Canal and its forces on the east side to 20 miles from the waterway.

Egyptian forces on the east bank, the 2nd Army in the north and the trapped 3rd Army to the south opposite the Great Bitter Lake, then would be blown up, the sources said.

The third step would be the deployment of U.N. forces in a strip between the two sides, the sources said.

Diplomatic sources in Aswan said the withdrawal must be completed within about six weeks.

They said Israel would retain control of the strategic Mitla and Giddi Passes in Sinai. The Egyptian sources said Israeli troops also would hold some positions west of the two passes.

They said the U.N. Emergency Force would be deployed in a buffer zone between the new Israeli lines and Egyptian positions, which at some positions are nearly 10 miles inside the Sinai.

The sources said the agreement was expected to provide for Egyptian and Israeli "security zones" on either side of the U.N.-held buffer zone. They said heavy and long-range armaments would be prohibited as a mutual safeguard in the security zones.

The disengagement agreement, the sources said, consists of two parts: general provisions and a timetable for implementation.
WASHINGTON (UPI)- Vice President Gerald R. Ford and a federal energy official predicted Thursday that the agreement to disengage Egyptian and Israeli forces could mean an end to the embargo on Arag oil exports to the United States.

But several members of the Congress doubted that the embargo could be lifted because of the agreement, announced Thursday by President Nixon and expected to be signed Friday in the Middle East.

WASHINGTON (UPI)–The White House announced Thursday President Nixon, who now can point to a major diplomatic breakthrough in the Middle East, will personally deliver his union address to Congress on Jan 29.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald I. Warren said the speech will be given before a joint session of the senate and house at 12:30 p.m. EDT.

WASHINGTON (UPI)–The government reported Thursday the U.S. economy slowed to near-recession levels in late 1973, disrupting President Nixon's hopes for a "soft landing" from a two-year economic boom.

Nine members sign
Petition calls for calendar reevaluation

by George Veldeh
Staff Reporter

Nine administration and faculty members signed an academic council petition calling for a reevaluation of the 1974 fall calendar. Most cited student reaction and incomplete debate as their reasons.

The petition, written by Academic Affairs Commissioner Chris Nedeau, was signed by nine non-student members of the Council, and presented to Provost Fr. James Burtchaell, and forwarded to University President FR. Theodore Heasburgh.

The Council then set a meeting for FRiday, January 24, to discuss the question of the calendar, which would begin classes August 28 with a nine-day break at the end of October.

Both Drs. Arthur Quigley, Electrical Engineering, and James Robinson, English, agreed that when the Council first passes the Calendar, the strong student protest was not anticipated, and that the students have legitimate questions which should be voiced.

James Frick, Vice President for Public Relations and University Development was impressed with the students' viewpoints expressed at the Dillon Hall HPC meeting last year, and feels as do most of the others, that not all sides have been heard.

Dr Don Linger, chairman of the Civil Engineering Department sees a formal hearing as necessary, because much of the calendar debate passed unresolved.

"There are too many loose ends and we must have all the people heard," Dr. William Liu, Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, also believes the Dillon Hall meeting, and feels "the issue was not aired out." Although he had no preference at this time about the calendar, he recognized that the students had more to say about the subject. Liu views the calendar debate as a conflict between the need for a longer mid-semester break from schoolwork and the pre-Labor Day start with its ensuing loss of a week's salary for many students. Liu feels a compromise must be reached, and thus, signed the petition.

Commenting on the petition, Academic Affairs Commissioner Chris Nedeau stated that although the Academic Council must remain non-political, it must still maintain its responsiveness to the students and their needs. "Now it is up to the students themselves to make their professors aware of their situation."

The Council called an executive committee meeting to set guidelines for the full meeting on January 24.

WASHINGTON <UPI>—Acting at the request of special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, the FBI Wednesday obtained federal court approval to dismiss the Senate Watergate oil export case against President Nixon.

The court noted the agreement was reached on the swift-moving events of the past week.

WASHINGTON <UPI>—President Nixon, who now can point to a major diplomatic breakthrough in the Middle East, will personally deliver his union address to Congress on Jan 29.

WASHINGTON <UPI>—The American Film Theatre presents HUGH GRiffith and GUY GREEN FILM DIRECTED by LESTY KEACH ROBERT STEPHENS • HUGH GRiffith and JOHN OSBORNE LITTE T—A FLM DIRECTED BY GUY GREEN

SPECIAL WEEKEND ROOM RATES FOR NOTRE DAME PARENTS OR VISITORS
$6.95 $8.95
Single occupancy Double occupancy

No Notre Dame identification required, just mention this ad. Effective any Fri., Sat. or Sun. Thru June 15th, 1974.

HICKORY INN HOTEL
5050 US. 31 North
South Bend, Indiana 46637
(219) 272-7555
3 miles North of the Tollroad
Cable T.V., Air Con., Phones.
Send this ad to your parents

---

The Observer is published daily during the college semesters except vacations by the students at the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $8 per semester ($8 per year) from The Observer Box 2, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 19, 1973

---

The Observer is published daily during the college semesters except vacations by the students at the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $8 per semester ($8 per year) from The Observer Box 2, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.
Agnew to sell Washington home

KENNEDON, Md. (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is trying to sell his suburban Washington home for at least $100,000 more than it cost him a year ago.

The difference is about equal to the government's cost of making security renovations of the house and grounds. A spokesman for the General Services Administration, which spent $125,000 for security precautions at the request of the Secret Service, said Thursday he thought the appreciation does not come from the security installations.

Agnew purchased the Georgi­an-style mansion near Bethesda, Md., for $190,000 in late 1972. One of the two real estate firms he has retained to sell it said Thursday his asking price was "in excess of $300,000." The Washington Post said it was $325,000.

Before Agnew moved into the house, the Secret Service installed a new brick and redwood fence, bullet proof glass, a new driveway and parking area, special lighting, a smoke detection system and an electronic security system.

While most of the $125,000 cost was due to labor or involved permanent renova­tions, a GSA spokesman said what was "retrievable and reusable" would be removed by the government.

"Certainly we can't take out a driveway but we can retrieve the electronic devices and some of the other hardware," he said. The spokesman said the value of what could be recovered was slight.

Whether the protection will continue is up to President Nixon, a spokesman for the Secret Service said.

Agnew has taken a job as a consultant to J-W Industries, a California firm headed by Frank Janinson, the husband of actress Eva Gabor.

---

Monetary committee proposed

BY MICHAEL ROSS

ROME (UPI) — A crisis committee of 20 finance minis­ ters, including U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, may be formed to manage monetary crises on a short­ term basis, sources in the International Monetary Fund (IMF) said Wednesday.

Under the current operation of the IMF, the 126-member board of governors sets mon­ eyary policy for the world's free market nations. But the threat of massive balance of payments deficits created by higher oil prices and the possibility of competitive devaluations by countries trying to improve their balance of trade makes this body unwieldy, the sources said.

Money technicains have been meeting here to draw up a reform of the international monetary system. Finance ministers of IMF member countries are to discuss the draft proposal this week.

Formation of the "crisis management group" could be announced as early as Friday, when the finance ministers issue a statement on their conclusions. But the sources said the special committee might not be announced until after July 31, when the IMF technocrats are to present their reform package to the fund's Group of 20 finance ministers and central bank governors, the sources said.

The committee, as proposed, could have the right to impose sanctions against countries manipulating exchange rates for their own benefit. Its main function would be to act in times of sudden monetary crisis, such as competitive currency devaluations or threats to the world's balance of payments posed by four-fold oil price increases over the past year.

It would also have powers over exchange rate margins, floating and valuations of special drawing rights, the sources said.

"The idea is to expedite decisions blocked down in the larger body to 126 members," said one source. The fund's technocrats will give the group a more flexible character and allow it to deal effectively with crises and the sources said.

A proposal favored by Italy and the developing nations calls for creation of a special fund from which members could borrow to help offset increases of payments deficits caused by the oil crisis, the sources said.

"This fund would not be a permanent feature of the IMF but an emergency fund to be called up when needed," the sources said.

Other countries, West Germany among them, favor exploration of longer-term solutions to the oil crisis as well as short-term financing.

---

Ex-student kills principal

CHICAGO (UPI)—A 14-year-old boy expelled from the Clara Barton Elementary School for disciplinary reasons returned to the South Side school with two guns Thursday, shot and killed the school principal and wounded two other persons, one critically.

Witnesses said the boy, iden­ tified as Steven Guy, walked into the first-floor office of Principal Rudolph Jezek and began firing two pistols. Edward Brady, security chief at Chicago Public Schools, said the youth entered the principal's office shouting, "I don't want to go to Mosely." a correctional school to which he had been transferred following his expulsion from Barton Wednesday. Brady said the youth then pulled out .44 and .38 caliber pistols from his pants pockets and fired at Jezek, striking him twice in the head. Jazek we pronounced dead on arrival at Little Companny of Mary Hospital.

Two persons were wounded as the youth fled the office. Gordon Sharp, an assistant principal, was hospitalized in guarded condition with a gunshot wound. Ezekial Thomas, a security guard, was shot in the chest and was hospitalized in critical condition.

An eighth-grade teacher, Peter Smith, 19, also was hospitalized with injuries suffered when he fell down a flight of stairs during the chase which followed the shootings. Smith was in good condition.

Brady told police Guy ran from the principal's office after shooting Jezek and fired a shot as he fled down the first floor corridor.

He said the boy then pulled out a knife and walked into the principal's office. "I don't want to go to Mosely," a correctional school to which he had been transferred following his expulsion from Barton Wednesday. Brady said the boy then pulled out two guns and fired at Jezek, striking him twice in the head. Jazek was pronounced dead on arrival at Little Company of Mary Hospital.

Brady said a total of nine shots were fired.

---

SMC Social Commission

Tevye & Golde

from Fiddler on the Roof

The Observer

Open House

COME TO THE OFFICE ANYTIME

ALL NEXT WEEK AFTER NINE p.m.

see how it works

hopefully join up

---

SMC Social Commission

Tevye & Golde

from Fiddler on the Roof

Jan. 25

8:15pm

$2.00 students

$3.50 public

O'LAUGHLIN AUDITORIUM

---

THE OBSERVER

Full Staff Meeting Tuesday, 4:00p.m.

2D LaFortune
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The text of President Nixon's remarks Thursday after the announcement on disengagement of military forces in the Middle East.

Ladies and gentlemen, I am sure that the American people, not only to all Americans, but to people all over the world, the White House announcement has to do with the Middle East and is being made simultaneously at 3 a.m. in Cairo and in Jerusalem as well as at 10 a.m. in Washington.

The announcement is as follows:

"In accordance with the decision of the Geneva conference, the government of Egypt and Israel, with the assistance of the government of the United Nations, have reached an agreement on the disengagement and separation of their military forces.

The agreement is scheduled to be signed by the leaders of Staff of Egypt and Israel at noon, Egypt-Israel time, Friday, Jan. 18 at 1:00 p.m. on the Cairo-Suez road.

The commander of the United Nations emergency force, Gen. Silas Vuo, has been asked by the Security Council to witness the signing."

A brief statement in regard to this announcement, I think is in order. Congratulations should go to President Sadat, to Prime Minister Meitl and their colleagues, for the very constructive spirit they have shown in reaching an agreement on the very difficult issues involved which made this announcement possible.

And also, we in the United States can be proud of the role that our government has played and particularly the role that has been played by Secretary Kissinger and his colleagues in working to bring the parties together so that an agreement could be reached which we have just read.

The other point that I would make is in regard to the significance of the agreement. In the past generation there have been as we know four wars in the Middle East followed by uneasy truces. This I would say is the first significant step towards a permanent peace in the Middle East.

I do not underestimate, making the statement that I have just made, the difficulties that lie ahead in settling the differences that must be settled before a permanent peace is reached, not only here but between the other countries involved.

But this is a very significant step reached only as a result of negotiations between the two parties and therefore has it seems a great deal of meaning to all of us here in this country and around the world who recognize the importance of having peace in this part of the world.

The other point that I would make is with regard to the role of the United States. Our role has been one of being assistance to both parties, to bring them together, to help the narrow differences, working for a fair and just settlement for all parties concerned where every nation in that area will be able to live in peace and also to be secure as far as its defense is concerned.

Looking to the situation in the world generally I think that we could probably say that the area of the world that potentially is the one in which the greatest powers can be brought into confrontation is the Middle East. That area more than any other is in that category, as recent events have indicated.

Now the announcement we have made today is only a first step, but it is a very significant step. It paves the way for more steps, which can lead to a permanent peace. And I personally shall see that all negotiations, that any efforts which could lead to that permanent peace, not only between Egypt and Israel, but between the other countries involved, have the full and complete support of the government of the United States.

Text of Nixon's Mideast statement

Bruin-Bust at Stepan

The Fighting Irish, already national champions in football, are now seeking a national championship in basketball. Their first thrust at the number 1 spot takes place tomorrow when the Irish take on the UCLA Bruins.

The Bruin-Bust begins tonight at 6:45 p.m. with a pep rally at Stepan Center. Co-captains John Shumate and Mike Digger Phelps will speak. That's tonight at 6:45 in Stepan, leaving plenty of time to get to the hockey game at 7:30.

SMC briefs

Security offers ride service

Saint Mary's girls stranded at Notre Dame need no longer walk or hitchhike back to their cars. Saint Mary's Security will pick up one or two Saint Mary's girls if they are picked up by the last shuttle back to Saint Mary's, Anthony Kovatch, Director of Saint Mary's Security explained. This service also applies to Saint Mary's girls who need to return to Saint Mary's for some other reason.

This service does not apply to groups of three or more girls. Kovatch feels groups can walk back to Saint Mary's. Kovatch added that if a Saint Mary's girl is in South Bend with neither a way back, nor cash fare, she should take a taxi. Her Dorm Director will then loan her the money to pay for the ride.

Kovatch advised the girls not to hitchhike from the city proper, especially at night.

Saint Mary's Security has added two full time officers and increased its budget to cover the additional salaries, Kovatch stated.

"New lighting is in the process of being added and needed to heighten the amount of the diligent work of the Saint Mary's Student Government," he said.

Food money

Dr. Edward L. Henry, president of Saint Mary's College, has announced that the College's budget and finance committee of the Board of Trustees recently voted to approve a $13,000 expenditure to upgrade the quality of Saint Mary's College food service.

Rising food costs had forced the food service operation to modify the dining menus during the first semester of the current school year.

With the new funding, students will once again have unlimited choices of entrees, other than specialty items, and steak will be served on a more regular basis. This becomes effective immediately.

Dr. Henry explained that the approval was secured so as not to burden the students with additional food costs.

The arrangement enables us to return to the standards that were enjoyed by our student body in the 1972-73 school year," stated Henry.

SMC Social Commission presents

Petie & Tillee

Saturday, January 19

O'Laughlin Auditorium

7:00 pm
9:00 pm

Admission $1.00

The Observer

Needs Typists!

* Must type at least 50wpm

starting salary $1.60/hr.

Call Howard at 1175

SET ASIDE THIS SEMESTER TO LIVE YOUR LIFE AT A DIFFERENT PACE.

RETREATS

Jan. 25, 26, 27
Jim Burchaell C.S.C.
Feb. 1, 2, 3
Phil Bowers, M. M.
Feb. 8, 9, 10
Dave Burrell, C.S.C.
Mar. 22, 23, 24
Apr. 26, 27, 28

Reservations taken in Campus Ministry Office, 103 Library.

Fee $5.00

($3.00 non-refundable deposit)
Energy shortage delays receipt of grades

by Virginia McGowan
Staff Reporter

Students receiving their grades indicated that the energy shortage was only one of several factors which would blame the energy crisis instead of inefficiency on the part of the Registrar's Office, said Errol Sullivan, Registrar.

"January 3 was the first time we had enough grades in from the professors to make the processing worthwhile," said Sullivan. "There was no magic date we had to send out the grades." Sullivan hypothesized that the delay was due to a combination of factors, "the time it took for the grades to come in from the faculty, processing to avoid discrepancies, and the post office. All the grades were sent out by January 6. If any grade was still due to the energy shortage which slowed the mail service," he said.

Sullivan, his two assistants and ten clerical workers began the manual processing of grades for 8500 students as soon as the faculty turned them in. The grades were read on the the computer by January 3 and returned on January 5. "They were in the mail the next day," said Sullivan. Sullivan also stressed that any academic probation or dismissal cases are determined only by the dean's office.

Commenting on the fact that some students were irrate at receiving their tuition bills before grades, Sullivan held that the Registrar's Office and the Office of Student Accounts "operate completely independent of each other. There's no reason to hold up either the billing or the grades because one of them is not ready."

Emeril Moore, Director of Student Accounts, said all bills were sent out by December 29 with the request that accounts be settled by January 5. His office allowed a little leeway by accepting payments until January 8, after which encumbrance cards were given out.

"If a student does not re-register there is no charge for the spring semester," Moore explained. "If he or she registers and withdraws within ten days, he forfeits $500. However, if grades will affect a student's decision to re-register, that student can send post cards to his professors beforehand."

"Every educational institution in the country sends out bills ahead of time," Moore continued. "If there is zero balance on an account, there is no bill sent. And refunds are made to academic.diminishing cases."

According to Moore, all undergrades payments received so far have already been processed by his six member staff. Graduate, students however, are requested to settle their accounts by February 1.

White House lawyers urge courts to avoid confrontations

The White House lawyers urged the court to stand by "the time honored constitutional tradition of staying out of confrontations between the legislature and the executive branches of government."

Some of the five tapes announced Thursday were out to a federal grand jury investigating the Watergate scandal. The intention of the committee's efforts to obtain the tapes was to establish a precedent that would permit it to gain possession of additional tapes and documents.

Nixon's lawyers noted this in their protest: that the committee, headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., had served three additional subpoenas--demands that he produce "hearsay" of tapes and documents.

"...It is clear that such a massive invasion of the White House constitutes a public service and that granting the committee's request would constitute an unconstitutional attempt to interfere with the confidentiality of private records of conversations between the President of the United States and his closest advisers relating to the official duties of the President."

The White House lawyers argued that Nixon had been cooperating with the committee's investigation on a voluntary basis and that "it should remain voluntary if our constitutional traditions are to remain intact."

It is for this reason, and this reason alone, that the President continues to resist the efforts of the Senate Select Committee to coerce disclosure of information the President deems contrary to the public interest.

INDIANAPOLIS SYMPHONY

Sunday, Jan. 20 O'Taughlin
3:00pm St. Mary's
11 students 17 public
Courtesy of The National Endowment for the Arts and Indiana Arts Commission

Stevie Wonder leads Grammy nominations selected

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)--Blind singer-composer Stevie Wonder led the list of nominees today for the music industry's Grammy awards with six nominations, two as a writer and four as a singer.

Blind since birth, Wonder's "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," which was nominated for song of the year, record of the year, best rhythm and blues performance and best rhythm and blues song. His rendition of "My Cherie Amour" was also nominated for best male pop vocal performance.

Wonder's "Innervisions" was in the running for album of the year. In several years, the winner of two Grammies in 1972, was nominated for this year, record of the year, album of the year, best pop album and best rhythm and blues performance, for "Kim's Soulful With His Song."

The National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences said presentations will be made March 2. There were 261 nominations in 46 categories. Final ballots were mailed to members this week.

Among the nominations announced Thursday were--Record of the Year: "Bad, Bad LeRoy Brown," by Jim Croce;

"Behind Closed Doors" by Charlie Rich; "Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack; "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder; and "You're So Vain" by Carly Simon.

-Album of the Year--"Behind Closed Doors" by Charlie Rich, "Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler, "Rock Me in the 80's" by Barry White, and "My Cherie Amour" by Paul Simon.

-Song of the Year--"Behind Closed Doors" by Charlie Rich, "Blind Faith" by Bette Midler, "The Divine Miss M" by Bette Midler, "The Devil's Friends" by Barry White and "My Cherie Amour" by Paul Simon.

-Song of the Year--"Behind Closed Doors" by Charlie Rich, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler, "The Divine Miss M" by Bette Midler, "The Devil's Friends" by Barry White and "My Cherie Amour" by Paul Simon.

-Record of the Year--"Behind Closed Doors" by Charlie Rich, "Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack; "Touch Me in the Morning" by Dianna Ross; and "You're So Vain" by Carly Simon.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Album--"Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Paul Simon, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Album--"Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Paul Simon, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Album--"Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Paul Simon, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Album--"Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Male Pop Vocal Performance--"You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Paul Simon, "I'm a Divine Misd M" by Bette Midler.

-Best Female Pop Vocal Performance--"Killing Me Softly With His Song" by Roberta Flack, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" by Stevie Wonder.

-Best Album--"Innervisions" by Stevie Wonder.
They call it the Birdsell Project—a small, light-green frame house on Birdsell Street on South Bend's lower west side. Together with a nearby brick home occupied by Sisters of St. Joseph, the house serves as headquarters for a new urban ministry to the Spanish-speaking.

Known variously as the Mexican Apostolate, Apostolado Chicago, or simply the Six, the people associated with the year-old project are part of an important link between Chicago workers and the possibility of escape from migrant labor. For many Spanish-speaking workers, it was a family that escape takes place in South Bend.

Fr. Robert Baker, diocesan vicar for the Spanish-speaking and resident assistant at St. Joseph Hall, is one of the Six. He describes South Bend as a "second step" in the problem of farm workers.

"The Migrant Stream comes up from Texas in five directions," he explained. "One of those goes to Michigan, which hires the most migrants after California. On the way, they pass through Indiana, and some stay."

Only some. Most cannot. City housing is expensive—to expensive for many families on scant farm wages. But the problem is long and complicated. The old problems of the farms were at least in the open. But often when a family can settle in the city, it has to be able to survive in a city. "Part of the problem," Baker noted, "is one of living in a strange community. What is often the problem is that people go to someone they know, and that person takes them to someone he knows, and so on within the community."

Finally they reach someone who knows what do do through either (the) church or some other group, or whatever authority is necessary."

In most cases, there is help. The Birdsell organization handles such problems as housing, utilities, medical care and transportation. The Midwest Council of La Raza, an advocacy group with offices on campus, and the more conservative League of United Latin-American Citizens (LULAC), deal with other services also geared toward settled migrants, Baker said.

Setting Out

Lucia Florez, whose family recently moved into South Bend from the Michigan farms, says her family has "settled little by little," largely with assistance from Birdsell.

"We moved in with my husband's family," she explained, to St. Susan Oleskay, a member of the Apostolate.

"Sister asked me what we needed, and I said 'everything,' because we didn't have anything. She helped us." Flordeliza Perez said.

Father Baker says the situation of the Florez family is not all that unusual. "It was because of such cases that the project was founded. We try to promote dignity and self-reliance, without ignoring the needs people have," he added. "Many people do need food and clothes, it's because they don't know their way around. Many people, for example, don't know where to go for a doctor."

Medical Problems

For some, finding a doctor is only the beginning of the problem. "There are some doctors that won't accept them," Father Baker said. "If a situation is too serious to be handled by a free clinic, hospital bills become a major concern."

Lee Guarnieri, a volunteer budget counselor who handles referrals from the Six, says many families settling out often live "from one (financial) problem to the next." Hospitals, he says, can provide a series of such problems. "It appears that a large part of the financial burden on these families in the past has been outstanding medical bills," he commented. "St. Joseph Hospital has offered to help, to offer some money and freedom through their Social Service Department. But St. Joe doesn't handle maternity cases."

Because of the customarily large number of many chico families, especially in farm backgrounds where children are needed to help in the fields, pregnancies are an important medical concern, he adds.

Memorial Hospital, a 12-story facility with two outpatient clinics, has an important social services department. St. Joseph, smaller than Memorial, has a pastoral care department and a social service staff of three, which some consider inadequate.

Memorial Hospital's only social worker is employed by its business offices.

Assistant Administrator Robert Scheibe explained Memorial's policy: "We are not in the social service business. There are agencies for that. Rather than to take the responsibility on ourselves, we try to identify the patient's needs and find a way to follow up the case."

"There's a difference of opinion on how involved you should be," he said. "We try to find the right social agency to stay at this hospital 7.5 days. You can't do too much in that period of time."

Memorial Social Worker Charlotte Meyers says her work here starts at 7 a.m. and often extends into the evening.

"I can use help," she said. "I've even considered volunteer help, but my office is too small for more than one person. But I'm holding my own."

Much of her help, unnamed, is provided by the Birddell. An organization known as Christ Child supplies baby-care kits to new mothers in needy families, but Memorial Hospital won't distribute them. Lee Guarnieri supplies many people with a blank check, and they still wouldn't be able to do much.

"The sets are packages of basic baby needs," Guarnieri explained. "They include diapers, blankets and so on. We've been able to give out more in the past couple of weeks."

Township Trustee

Patients who cannot pay bills are usually referred to the Portage Township Trustee's Office, the agency responsible for welfare administration. The Trustee is then expected to investigate cases requesting aid and to provide assistance where need is evident. Dispatcher Reg Shaddick, assistant trustee, says his office is "efficient and fair."

"When someone comes in who is poor, we try to provide what they need," Shaddick said. "We try to make an application, determine a need, and then decide how to proceed. All we require is an address. We have to know that the individual is residing in Portage Township. We try to be fair. Of course, there are cases where we could stand on someone's head, and they still wouldn't be able to get what they need."

Trustee Shaddick says he is The Birdsell Project
by Tony Proscio

Aware of the complaints, "This office has been crucified in the press," he claimed. "We are constantly being criticized. Some of it may be justified but most of it is not."

Housing
Another incident, Guarneri noted, involved a family recently moved to South Bend from Texas. Like many, they first lived with students at low rents in exchange for repairs. The plan has not yet been finalized, she said.

"We have a project called RENEW, Inc.," she commented, "that was started by Fr. Ken Malloy at Christ the King Parish. The idea is it is to take houses that need repaired and get people who needed jobs to fix the houses. Then they could be sold to families at cost, but during the renovation, they could help with repairs on the houses before they got into them, to build up a confidence and a sense of identification with the home."

One plan being considered by RENEW is the leasing of homes to students at low rents in exchange for repairs. The plan has not yet been finalized, she said.

Inexpensive public housing is available through the South Bend Housing Authority, but waiting lists are long.

Financial requirements are rigid. A family of nine is not eligible for housing if its adjusted income is less than $750 per year. Some projects also require families to pay for utilities. The lease for some require up to $125 admission fee.

On the other hand, one chicanos family that found public housing at only $50 per month says that their neighborhood is so dangerous that they are afraid to leave their home. They have to turn to the Birdsell arm on RENEW, Inc. for another house.

Education
"Something has to be done about education for Spanish-speaking students," said Sr. Susan. The drop-out rate is fantastic. About three-fourths of them never finish school. Some children are when they get out of eighth grade. They don't even bother to go to high school.

Fr. Baker sees need for some bilingual instruction in schools where the Spanish speaking enrollment is highest. Oliver Elementary and Harrison schools and Washington High School lead that list.

"Part of the problem," Baker explained, "is one of living in a culture as opposed to that of Texas-a lot of people have problems with the school situation because it's not bilingual here."

In Texas it has to be, here it doesn't. No kids who think in Spanish can't perform in English bilingual summer program here. Tutoring and summer programs are federally funded under the Title I program, he added.

Modesto also does out of the school system. Education Task Force provides own tutors, many of whom are Notre Dame students, in cases of particular need.

In addition, bilingual religious instruction, sponsored by the local diocese, was begun this year by the Birdsell Apotole. ND senior Bob Raccauzia is a volunteer teacher in the program.

"We're involved in very basic religion," Raccauzia explained, "things like 'Who is Jesus,' 'Love one another.' This is the church as a family-that type of thing. We also have a four-week program of instruction for adults-mainly parents of the children in other program. The purpose is to help parents talk to their children about the Church, about religion, and also for a broadening of their own understanding of Christianity."

The "Migrant Mentality"
Principally, the Birdsell philosophy is one of eliminating problem conditions more than just making them more bearable. It becomes, said one volunteer, a "two-edged sword" - a problem of injustice on the one hand and ignorance on the other.

Deacon Tom Lemus, one of the six, says he is "more worried about a general lack of communication" than over individual symptoms.

"When people consistently have problems with food stamps, or are cheated out of welfare, and can't get public housing or health care, they answer the question by getting mad at the public," he said. "How do you restore trust? We not only have the problem of finding help, but of getting people to believe in it once we've gotten them in."

Fr. Baker suggests the difficulty is one of a lifestyle derived from large family life that makes living in the city more difficult.

"The schools have taught the real problem is poverty as much as of adjusting out of the migrant mentality to settle down and live with the complexities of what it means to be up here and survive," Baker noted. "They are used to moving from house to house, city to city, job to job. They have come out of that.

The really heavy work ethic with many of these people. They work and they work hard. They work in factories. They work two shifts. Husband and wife work. They have no jobs for some people make good money. But a lot of people don't know how to handle the market by people who sell them cheaper, or don't take them too much rent. The bigger problem is survival skills and knowing how to use them."

Strike closes schools
NEW YORK (UPI)-A maintenance workers strike for higher wages forced the shutdown of more than a third of the public schools in the nation's largest city Thursday, and officials said half the system would close on Friday.

The schools walkout left 270,000 children without school at one time Thursday, and 950,000 when the 30,000 affect Friday, boosting the total of students out of school to 425,000.

If you have at least two years left at Notre Dame you should investigate the Army ROTC Program.

There are openings for enlisted veterans who have the additional opportunity to apply for a one year full tuition scholarship. Veterans may opt for either a 3 month or a 2 year active duty commitment after commissioning.

Non-veterans interested in joining an officer's commission should inquire about the Two-Year Program. Individuals in this program are eligible for two and one-year scholarships. If you desire further information, visit the Army ROTC office on campus or call 6264.

Want to do something worthwhile for yourself?

IMPEACHMENT

because I love my Country

Main Church
Sunday Masses

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Day</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Priest</th>
<th>Phone #</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5:15 p.m.</td>
<td>Sat.</td>
<td>Fr. Robert Griffin, C.S.C.</td>
<td>Fr. 626-1234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Sun.</td>
<td>Fr. Edward Malloy, C.S.C.</td>
<td>Fr. 626-1234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10:45 a.m.</td>
<td>Sun.</td>
<td>Fr. James Shaughnessy</td>
<td>Fr. 626-1234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:15 p.m.</td>
<td>Sun.</td>
<td>Fr. William Toohey, C.S.C.</td>
<td>Fr. 626-1234</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Don't let the price of a college education stop you.

The price of a college education is skyrocketing. Fortunately the Air Force had done something to catch up with it. For the first time, the 6500 Air Force ROTC Scholarships include the 2-year program, for both men and women.

If you qualify, the Air Force will pay for the remainder of your college education. Not only do ROTC 2-year college scholarships cover full tuition, but reimbursement for textbooks, lab and incidental fees, as well as a tax-free monthly allowance of $100.

To cash in on all this just apply, qualify, and enroll in the Air Force ROTC at Building 5 Contact Captain Shepherd, 283-6634

It's a great way to finish your college education in the money, and enjoy a future where the sky's no limit...as an officer in the Air Force.
Observer open house. The open house will run every night of next week after the students of the campus a chance to see how The Observer is put out, to meet the people who work on it and to share it's dynamite idea. And as evidenced some talk and views with us. There is no office to look around, in fact we hope you do come even if you have no intention of Exchange and the numbers of students office hunting for the service, everyone flattered beyond belief, but in the Exchange, students can at least get a fair shake.

EXECUTIVE EDITOR
Art Ferranti

ART DIRECTOR
Lee Gentile

COPYREADER
Marilyn Snider

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Jerry Lukus

NEWS: 283-1715
EDITORIALS: 283-8661
BUSINESS: 791-7477

EXECUTIVE EDITOR
Dan Barrett

ADVERTISING MANAGER
John Kloos

Y'all Come!

Sunday night the staff of The Observer will incorporate a new idea—the first Observer open house. The open house will run every night of next week after nine o'clock. The idea behind it is to give the students of the campus a chance to see how The Observer is put out, to meet the people who work on it and to share its dynamite idea. And as evidenced some talk and views with us. There is no office to look around, in fact we hope you do come even if you have no intention of Exchange and the numbers of students office hunting for the service, everyone flattered beyond belief, but in the Exchange, students can at least get a fair shake.

After Sunday night and running through Thursday night, we invite everyone to come and look, to talk and just, watch for a while exactly what we do to put out a daily newspaper for this campus. To find us, follow the signs up from the south stairwell entrance of La Fortune Student Center. Y'all come!

The staff

Book Bargain

The Student Union Book Exchange is a real bargain. Not only is it a bargain, but it's a dynamite idea. And as evidenced by the crowd of people gathered in the Exchange and the numbers of students who have wandered into the Observer office hunting for the service, everyone knows that's a bargain.

And doubly important, everyone here is no longer at the mercy of the guy who runs the Exchange. And does you a favor by offering a quarter or thirty cents for your one-year old unmarked volume.

A student service of this order has been a long time in coming as opposition to it has been strong in certain circles. But for now what has been talked of for so long has finally become reality.

Jerry Lukus

Miles To Go... Around This Corner... butch ward

It's becoming increasingly difficult as the years go on to welcome the New Year with anything but an exchanged kiss and a chuckle at the dripping panties of Times Square. What once was a time of inspiration and determination has become little more than an excuse to enjoy a night out and change a tired calendar's landscape.

For the New Year used to be a sign of hope. It's coming was reason to trust that around the very next corner was an event that would dispel the weary doubts of the old year. When Guy Lombardo began the countdown and ten seconds later we breathed a sigh of relief that the New Year really did pick up where the old one left off, there was reason to expect better.

But that's all changed now. At least, it's getting harder to be happy that the New Year really does pick up for old.

Whenever I return home for the month break I find myself suddenly thrown back into the world. Suddenly I'm reading newspapers, watching nightly news, and most importantly, watching the people who are trying to run a household react to the news in those papers and on those shows.

And where I come from, there aren't many smiles accompanying the announcements out of Washington these days.

It would be tragic enough if America was unreasonably immersed in bonafide fuel and food shortages that were forcing those spiraling prices. But is she really? Sometime during the last few years my innocence was over the explosion of the economy.

And why not skepticism? America has proven her ability during the past year to give a million dollars for the doomsday that continually returns refueled from her confrontation with trust. How long can people tolerate a man who expects an entire nation to swallow a story that his secretary of state stood right for eighteen minutes upon a recording device's control?

How long can people tolerate a man who claims to have lost tapes crucial to an investigation of his office? How long does it take for skepticism to filter through a people as they watch cabinet members and advisors pass through the White House as quickly as vacations pass at Notre Dame?

We continue to hear claims of innocence and non-involvement from the White House, yet the tapes keep turning up lost, the ones that turn up blank gaps, and those who question from within keep bearing piles outward bound, one-way, from Washington.

And now, America, we have no fuel.

And now, America, we are running out of bread.

And yet, a survey taken in Maryland during December showed that that state had its per cent more fuel in its reserves than at the same time in 1972. And did that factor selling more fuel this year than ever before. Newspapers in that same state have carried pictures of tankers standing idly still in the Chesapeake Bay. Not a few tankers. Not a few barrels of oil.

Some papers have carried accounts of consulations with tugboat operators, the men who watch oil pass into the Bay ports daily, as they tell of workloads equal to or greater than those of previous years.

But let us accept, and give the benefit of the doubt.

And now, we are told of a wheat shortage.

Reality is that what has been considered the most important for the writer of fantasy. America is running out of wheat.

It's coming has been strong in certain circles. But for now what has been talked of for so long has finally become reality.

Jerry Lukus

Jonesborough

Garry Trudeau

the observer

Night Editor: Joe Abel
Assistant Night Editor: Al Rutherford
Layout: Maria Gallagher, Gary Allietta, Bill Brink, Terry Keene, Ann McCurry, Bill Murphy
Day Editor: Terry Keene
Copyreader: Grace Hinkle, All his claims have simply raised more doubts. And America does not need a leader she cannot trust.

Happy New Year. And Impenn the President.
Mayhem, Muggers and Molly's
art ferranti

New Orleans. For those who experienced that city on that glorious weekend no more can be said. It was a three to four day celebration. It began with only a lingering memory being rejuvenated with the echoing of Ms. giving Paper Chase maria gallagher

Hugable Henry Kissinger smashed his legendary lips and leaning stumped grape leaf.

"More salad?" asked Anwar Sadat, in one of his rare good moods. Kissinger had just exchanged two playboy bunnies for two Israeli mood's. Kissinger had just exchanged two playboy bunnies for the days surrounding the Sugar Bowl. Accumulated will make known unto you their unique stories narrated to friends until at last that memory also fades into the oblivion of the past. For those who did not receive our matresses and pillows with it.

For me, the trip had its good and its bad moments—each instance a new one. As soon as I stopped off my plane and had arrived in thirty minutes, a cab drove in and took me to the St. Regis. I had never been to the St. Regis, so I was not going to make a significant difference to him that the other driver was black. Later (after the game, in fact), a black police officer castigated a white drunk for pounding on a car window.

An Albanian fan commented behind me on the cop 'uppityness.' I guess I the drunk needed a good chance to let off steam. Last night, someone accused me of seeing all the South as this blatantly racist, let me state that these occurrences were rare. On the other hand, I found that the trash men of Chicago were very considerate, and I never met anyone who was so thoughtful of others.

For instance, while waiting in line to enter Pat O'Brien's New Orleans Restaurant for dinner, we were refused a table. After Big Roundhat Albanian. Another Crimson Tide couple applauded for their flair for fun (

President Nixon stepped of the United Airlines commercial flight looking slightly perturbed and was immediately surrounded by reporters.

"Mr. President, what's the purpose of this trip to San Juan?"

"Because there's not a single + $ 1 roll of toilet paper in the White House!"

Touchdown, Notre Dame! And what do you know, fans, they've got lady holding rolls of toilet paper down there on the 40-yard line! How about that!)

"Daring, how very ingenious! Who ever would have thought of using toilet paper rolls as party favors! The people are getting a little too fancy!"

Actually, I just did so the guests wouldn't rip off our bathroom. Yes, they were expensive—cost more than the rest of the meal!

The managing editor slammed the figures down in front of him.

"What's so bad about that?" asked a naive editor aspirant.

"We break out backs to put out a good newspaper and what George appears to be too busy having beer parties in their halls to care about such things. But an administration attempt to reduce student parties was halted.

The 1972-73 school year was another transition period. The 1972-73 school year was another transition period. The most recent Dillon Hall affair brings us to the ultimate decision was rejected by the Board of Trustees, which was criticized by Fr. Burtchaell as "technical". The 1972-73 school year was another transition period. The most recent Dillon Hall affair brings us to the ultimate decision was rejected by the Board of Trustees, which was criticized by Fr. Burtchaell as "technical". The 1972-73 school year was another transition period. The most recent Dillon Hall affair brings us to the ultimate decision was rejected by the Board of Trustees, which was criticized by Fr. Burtchaell as "technical".
Warnings that an energy crisis was imminent have been with us for many months. "There is a worldwide shortage of crude oil," claimed many oil company television commercials, "and it will only get worse from here on." Those warnings are confirmed by events of recent months. In October the Arab oil embargo and the Western nations' response to it, have caused oil supplies to drop off sharply, and the energy crisis quickly became a reality. To head off the crisis the President suggested lower speed limits for cars, lower thermostat settings for homes, and the reduction of energy-intensive industries. Many schools and industries have cooperated in this effort, but the use of more coal becomes necessary. Thanks to a part of the University that few people even know exists—the Notre Dame and Western Railroad—the University is not only not forced to cut back, but is actually helping to meet the new energy needs.

The Notre Dame and Western Railroad is a small private line that is owned by the University of Notre Dame. The railroad's function is to supply the University's power plant with coal. "We need coal," stated Br. Borromeo Malley, director of the ND&W, "and we will be able to handle the increase without a loss of power to the University." Currently the power plant burns approximately 25 percent coal and 25 percent fuel oil. By the end of the year, the university expects to have increased its use of coal to 40 percent. The university would like to increase its coal consumption even more, but the shortage of fuel oil will most likely increase the use of coal.

The railroad's train function is to supply the University's power plant with the coal it needs to generate electrical power. The coal is transported from the coal yard to the power plant by the ND&W's one-hundred-mile-long line from South Bend, Indiana, to the Notre Dame campus. The line was built in 1936, and has been in operation ever since. The coal yard, which is the main line that the ND&W ties into, is loaded in hoppers cars, the coal is brought down the line and unloaded at the Notre Dame power plant. The coal is dumped from the hoppers into the cock at the rate of 100 tons per hour. "We empty 700 to 900 cars of coal in the dock per year," Br. Borromeo explained, "The coal is transported by rail to the boilers one boiler burning as much as 250 tons per day."

Sometimes delays set in and the shipments of coal are delayed by the University behind the schedule. When this occurs the ND&W must bring the coal from the storage pile located on the north side of campus. The coal is loaded into the line's one hopper car by machines, and sent directly into the storage pile to the coal dock. This process requires more work for the railroad than usual, but it is necessary to keep the power plant supplied with coal.

A long history

While the Notre Dame and Western Railroad plays a vital role in helping the University operate in the 1970's, it is by no means a new edition to Notre Dame. The ND&W's tracks, which originally crossed the north end of campus, were laid in 1902 by the Michigan Central RR. The Michigan Central was the owner of the tracks that cross the St. Mary's campus, later became a part of the New York Central system, which formed the Penn Central RR. The original tracks on campus ran into the old mining area, which was located behind St. Edward's Hall. There the coal was unloaded from the cars and into the boilers by hand. Just north of the old plant, where the Infirmary stands today, once stood the coal warehouse and a passenger station. The passenger depot was intended for short-distance traveling and from campus for vacations. Other early campus sites which the tracks served were the icehouse and the stockyard for the cattle raised on the old Notre Dame farm.

In 1935 the power plant was moved to its present location, and a great deal of the old track was removed. As Notre Dame's need for more electrical power grew, it became necessary to acquire equipment to operate on the University's tracks, rather than provide electric service. The first equipment to bear the name of the ND&W was a locomotive bought in 1946. A hopper car was purchased by the University in 1948, and with this addition delays in receiving coal were no longer a critical problem. The line once again expanded in 1950 with this purchase of a 600 horsepower dual diesel built by the Porter Manufacturing Co. capable of pulling 17 loaded cars. ND&W No. 5332 is a 600 horsepower dual diesel built by the Porter Manufacturing Co. capable of pulling 17 loaded cars.

The first equipment to bear the name of the ND&W was a locomotive bought in 1946. A hopper car was purchased by the University in 1948, and with this addition delays in receiving coal were no longer a critical problem. The line once again expanded in 1950 with this purchase of a 600 horsepower dual diesel built by the Porter Manufacturing Co. capable of pulling 17 loaded cars. ND&W No. 5332 is a 600 horsepower dual diesel built by the Porter Manufacturing Co. capable of pulling 17 loaded cars. Since the United States is an ally of Israel, America's oil supply dropped off sharply, and the energy crisis quickly became a reality. To head off the crisis the President suggested lower speed limits for cars, lower thermostat settings for homes, and the reduction of energy-intensive industries. Many schools and industries have cooperated in this effort, but the use of more coal becomes necessary. Thanks to a part of the University that few people even know exists—the Notre Dame and Western Railroad—the University is not only not forced to cut back, but is actually helping to meet the new energy needs.

The railroad's engineer, John Gooley, has worked on the line for 27 years.

The Notre Dame and Western Railroad plays a vital role in helping the University operate in the 1970's. Passenger trains were no longer the fastest or the most enjoyable means of transportation. An 18 car Army special, carrying the Army football team and cadets, was the last special train on the ND&W tracks. With the completion of the Indiana Toll Road the Notre Dame football specials were gone forever. Although the idea of a university owning a railroad may seem unique, many other self-sufficient communities also own railroads comparable to the ND&W. Purdue University has a railroad which operates on the same trackage as Notre Dame's. St. Mary's College also owns facilities capable of moving cars to and from their power plant. Just as the ND&W has served Notre Dame for many years so has the crew that operates the line. Br. Borromeo has directed Notre Dame's railroad since 1956. The railroad's engineer, John Gooley, has worked on the line for 27 years, NS Chris Chrisovergos, Gooley's assistant, has served on the ND&W since 1965.

The future of the Notre Dame and Western Railroad contains no large plans for expansion. In the years to come the addition of a few more switches to facilitate the movement of cars is projected. For the present the line has the vital task of continuing to supply coal to the Notre Dame power plant. While many schools and industries feel the effects of the energy crisis, the ND&W and the University of Notre Dame through the cold winter days ahead.
Letters To A Lonely God

Eleanor the great

reverend robert griffin

Of all the women living in Dorothy Day's Catholic Worker House on the Bowery this Christmas, Eleanor alone had the house on the Bowery this Christmas, Eleanor alone had the Bowery with her huge breasts and buttocks wrapped in an overcoat; yet she moved with the dignity of an ocean liner putting out to sea. She always wore a scarf draped over her head and held in place by a knitted cap; the effect was like that of the head of a pre-Vatican II nun. Eleanor did not talk like a nun, and meanness, mirth and suffering, her handsome face was always mouse-like man who was sitting quietly by himself in the corner: "Mister, you keep your hands to yourself." "I didn't do nothing," he said. "You just keep your god-dammed hands off me," she said. "But I didn't do nothing," he said. You just watch who you're pawing," she said. "For Christ's sake," he screamed, "I never even touched you." By this time, Eleanor was in full flight of escape to the bathroom, where, presumptuously, her virtue could be preserved intact against hands of the flippants. From the redness of her face, it was obvious to all of us that she was no Maria-Goretti-like mood as far as extending her forgiveness to her attacker, real or imagined. After a great number of minutes, Eleanor emerged from the bathroom. On the front of her coat was pinned the cloth scapulars symbolizing a consecration to the Virgin of Mount Carmel. A woman said: "Eleanor, why are you wearing a mask on your head?" "Because," Eleanor said, "sometimes I put it on, and it makes me laugh. Otherwise, when I look in the mirror, I have to cry." cheese cake

That is how I met Eleanor the Great, the warmest of all the people at the Catholic Worker, touched my feelings the most. With a quick turn of the phrase, she could make me laugh like a fool; unfortunately, I can't remember any of her cleverness. I can only remember the tender moments like the day she told me of, when she had gone into a restaurant and ordered cheese cake and coffee; then found she didn't have enough money to pay for her little treat. She cursed the waiter, and he cursed her. I am not sure which. Eleanor enjoyed more, the cheese cake or the cursing. But who am I that I should feel like weeping at the simple pleasures of the poor? believing in nothing

You are probably beginning to think of Eleanor as a crazy old broad whom a priest happened to meet in a New York mission. But Eleanor was not crazy. The truth is that she was angry, because anger is what you feel when you're helpless, and there are no choices left for you, and there is nothing for you to believe in. ("I don't believe in nothing but death," Eleanor said.) If Eleanor quarreled with people, it was because she didn't know how to say that she loved them.

first piper

On one of my last evenings at the Worker, a group of us derelicts were gathered around a kitchen table where a boy sat, playing his guitar and singing. Except for the fact that we were Bowery people, shabby and gray with age, the mood of the group was light and the beloved's name was music. But I know that for Eleanor would make sounds like a bird whose wings have beaten too long against an empty sky.

secret pipes

I don't know if all those other people at the Catholic Worker had a secret pipe to play, I don't know if they were private practitioners of music. But I know that for Eleanor, even on days when there is no money for cheese cake, even at times when there are no masks to hide behind, there are melodies that can heal the anger, there is music to calm the rage. At least, I hope that it is so. 반드حصلان دمومة.
Three musicians shine, and the Third Impression piece is the brightest part of that shine. Emerson especially dominates with a lighter and more frenetic sounding moog and organ than before.

Unfortunately, the rest of the album� perhaps any claim of a near-perfect Two Lemons especially distract the listener, a distinction that becomes more salient as he realizes he had to blow through them to get to the first part of "Karn Evil 9."

"Still... You Turn Me On!" is Lake's by-now familiar approach to turning a piece of musical material into a complete whole. Envisioning the kinds of musical themes and forms, including classical, rock, jazz, rock and roll and even a bit of building tension and fervor are a perfect backdrop for the theme of absurdity. Needless to say, all three musicians shine, and the Third Impression piece is the brightest part of that shine. Emerson especially dominates with a lighter and more frenetic sounding moog and organ than before.

Unfortunately, the rest of the album� perhaps any claim of a near-perfect Two Lemons especially distract the listener, a distinction that becomes more salient as he realizes he had to blow through them to get to the first part of "Karn Evil 9.

"Still... You Turn Me On!" is Lake's by-now familiar approach to turning a piece of musical material into a complete whole. Envisioning the kinds of musical themes and forms, including classical, rock, jazz, rock and roll and even a bit of building tension and fervor are a perfect backdrop for the theme of absurdity. Needless to say, all three musicians shine, and the Third Impression piece is the brightest part of that shine. Emerson especially dominates with a lighter and more frenetic sounding moog and organ than before.

Unfortunately, the rest of the album� perhaps any claim of a near-perfect Two Lemons especially distract the listener, a distinction that becomes more salient as he realizes he had to blow through them to get to the first part of "Karn Evil 9.

"Still... You Turn Me On!" is Lake's by-now familiar approach to turning a piece of musical material into a complete whole. Envisioning the kinds of musical themes and forms, including classical, rock, jazz, rock and roll and even a bit of building tension and fervor are a perfect backdrop for the theme of absurdity. Needless to say, all three musicians shine, and the Third Impression piece is the brightest part of that shine. Emerson especially dominates with a lighter and more frenetic sounding moog and organ than before.

Unfortunately, the rest of the album� perhaps any claim of a near-perfect Two Lemons especially distract the listener, a distinction that becomes more salient as he realizes he had to blow through them to get to the first part of "Karn Evil 9.

"Still... You Turn Me On!" is Lake's by-now familiar approach to turning a piece of musical material into a complete whole. Envisioning the kinds of musical themes and forms, including classical, rock, jazz, rock and roll and even a bit of building tension and fervor are a perfect backdrop for the theme of absurdity. Needless to say, all three musicians shine, and the Third Impression piece is the brightest part of that shine. Emerson especially dominates with a lighter and more frenetic sounding moog and organ than before.
Indianapolis Symphony to appear at St. Mary's

The Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Izler Solomon, will appear in concert Sunday, January 20, at 3:30 p.m. in St. Mary's O'Loughlin Auditorium. Tickets for the performance are $1.75 for adults, $1.00 for students, and are available from the office of programming at Saint Mary's.

Founded by Ferdinand Schaefer during the summer of 1930, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra is comprised of 90 professional musicians ranging in age from 20 to 70. Dr. Solomon has been music director and conductor of the orchestra since 1960. Under his guidance, Indianapolis has achieved a leading position among the major symphony orchestras of the nation.

American-born and trained, Dr. Solomon began his musical career as a concert violinist. He won the national Young Artists' Contest in 1951, and accepted the position of concertmaster of the newly-formed Lansing Symphony Orchestra shortly thereafter. When the conductor was forced to resign due to ill health, Solomon assumed the responsibilities of full leadership, thus beginning his career as a conductor. He was to head the Illinois Symphony, the Somen's Symphony of Chicago, and orchestra in Columbus (Ohio), New Orleans, and Buffalo before making an appearance as guest conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony in a result of his present appointment.

Solomon is the recipient of numerous awards, including the National Music Council's Award of Honor, an award from the National Association of American Conductors and Composers, and the Alice M. Dinso Award "for distinguished services to American music."

He has also received honorary doctorates from six colleges and universities—Pacific University, Indiana Central College, American (Indiana) College, Franklin (Indiana) College, Butler University and Indiana University. Popular as a guest conductor, Dr. Solomon has appeared in Canada, Mexico, Israel, and Germany, as well as with most of the major American orchestras.

The January 20 concert at Saint Mary's is one of more than 150 played each year by the orchestra, and is presented in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Indiana Arts Commission.

NICE programs include academic credit bank.

SMC library exchange

The Northern Indiana Consortium for Education announces today two new programs affecting all five member institutions, including St. Mary's. These programs include an academic credit bank and a library exchange.

The academic credit bank has been conceived to permit students from any NICE institution to enroll, on a space-available basis, in courses offered at another NICE institution at no additional cost to either student or institution. Further, the academic credit bank makes provision for the loan or exchange of faculty of a part-time basis among the consortium institutions at a mutually agreeable rate to the institutions or students. Students must be enrolled in 12 credit hours at their home institution before they are eligible to enroll in another institution. Finances are all to be handled at the home institution. Each institution will pay its own faculty, and the students will register and pay their regular tuition at the home institution.

The registrars of the five NICE members will work out the methodology of enrollment, credit, recording, and grade reporting, subject to the approval of the chief academic officers. The academic credit banks is to be effective for the spring and fall of the 1974 terms, and will be evaluated during the operation by the participating institutions and the consortium. At this time, the academic credit bank will normally apply to the regular academic year only (excluding special winter sessions, intersession, and summer sessions). Faculty loans to balance the credit bank may occur during all sessions, however.

Library facilities of the five institutions are open to all students and faculty of the five participating schools, without cost to the borrower of his/her institution. The five libraries have met and totally support the library exchange program, and have expressed full cooperation in sharing lists of periodicals, reference works, and special collections of each library with all the member institutions. Further, the five libraries have mutually agreed to the development of areas of specialization to specific libraries who will develop these collections and make them available to students and faculty members of all the members in institutions.

Those present for the announcement included Dr. Edward L. Henry, president, Saint Mary's College; Dr. Ray Pannebecker, president, Bethel College; Brother John Driscoll, CSC, president, Holy Cross Junior College; Dr. Lester Wolfson, chancellor Indiana University; Mr. Arnold South Reed, and Mr. Richard Wydend, dean, IVY Tech. In addition, members of the steering committee, representing the five member institutions, attended the special meeting.

Irish Flags

4" x 6" $5.99

Pier 1 Imports

100 Center Complex, Mishawaka

"A Long-Expected Party"

Tolkien Costume Ball

THURSDAY, JAN 31, 9-12

La Fortune Ballroom

singles $2.00

couples $3.75

tickets on sale

MON, TUES, WED

in the dining halls

"Anyway, I mean to enjoy myself on Thursday" Bilbo Baggins, p. 49
Navy denies allegations of nuclear sub miscues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy Wednesday denied charges that mistaken emergency signals from Polaris submarines nearly set off nuclear war twice in 1971.

The Navy said the mistaken signals did indicate the submarines had sunk, but not by enemy action.

The charges were levelled Tuesday by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a frequent Pentagon critic, and were based on a defense contractor's affidavit made to the House Armed Services Committee.

Navy spokesman stressed that the signals set off "massive military alerts" until the mistake was discovered, and the Navy then covered up the incidents to protect the contractor that built the buoys.

Collins Radio Co. of Dallas.

But the Navy said in a statement that while the two buoys were indeed launched by mistake, "the message released...was that the submarine in question had sunk. No enemy action was indicated."

In addition, the statement said, the subs themselves were able to notify the Navy quickly that the signals were a mistake, and as a result no search and rescue operations were mounted.

The Navy said the signals did not endanger the lives or safety of the submarines.

The Navy also said the buoys continue in use aboard the subs and the problem has not recurred.

To fund energy research

(continued from page 12)

decisions detrimental to long range interests of the human species" in a panic situation such as the energy crisis.

Although the specific problems remain undetermined, Sayre and Schlimoeller have stipulated objectives and a work plan.

The researchers, aiming first to analyze conflicts between economic, ecological and ethical values applied in power industry decisions, will develop normative guidelines designed to alleviate or resolve these tensions and finally investigate with the companies involved means of assimilating the guidelines into the decision process.

Work will be carried out by two groups in three one-year stages.

Schlimoeller heads the Corporate decision section currently including Assistant Economics Professor Kenneth Janeslon and Biology Professor Robert P. Mcintosh, editor of the American Midland Naturalist. Sayre directs the Value Theories section presently consisting of Assistant Philosophy Professor Kenneth E. Goopdaster and Associate Philosophy Professor Vaughn R. McKim.

Presently in the first or descriptive stage, the corporate decisions section is finalizing the specific problem areas and gathering information. Information is collected by interviewing company employees, evaluating types of decision makers, standardized tests and reviewing published articles and legal documents.

The second year, normative stage, conducted by the research teams, will systematize what economic, ecological and ethical values are applied in the decision process. Given some of the increasingly undesirable side effects such as foul air, thermal pollution and nuclear wastes, they will examine what values ought to be applied in these decision processes.

Lastly, both researchers and companies will attempt to develop means of practically applying the theories.

Questions raised during the probe include "What ends will or should new technology serve?" What values should guide society's adjustments?" and "What is a good man, what is a good life for man, and what is a good community?"

The researchers' NSF proposal states that lack of perspectives, not greed, promotes decisions which are not in the best long range interest of our society. The document maintains that a power company executive may be as concerned as anyone else that our environment remain viable. Furthermore, he is aware that his company's economic activities affect the environment, but is often unable to assess these effects and thus takes comfort in feeling that these effects are negligible.

Schlimoeller and Sayre aim to "help them learn to take these environmental and social factors into systematic account."

Sayre claims that "in the long run, by non-political means, we may be able to enter directly into the decision-making process in a way that's beneficial to the society" especially during this energy crisis.

NY schools closed

(continued from page 7)

international Union Of operating Engineers Local 94.

While negotiations continued on wages, working conditions, fringe benefits and equal pay for women, no progress was reported.

A board of Education spokesman stressed that the teachers must report to their schools.
No. 1 Tech seeks revenge vs ND

by John Finneran

Contrary to belief, UCLA will not be the only number one team visiting Notre Dame this weekend. John Carroll's Michigan Tech Huskies will be in town for a two game set with the Irish this weekend despite the Huskies' current game standing in the WCHA. Michigan Tech has established itself as one of the number-one nationally in the latest hockey coach's poll.

Tech certainly deserve its standing and ranking. The Huskies have an extremely potent offense (123 goals scored) and a very stingy defense (63 goals allowed) in 30 games. These totals, more than anything else, substantiate the Huskies as the number one team in the WCHA.

"Tech just is probably the best team in the WCHA," Notre Dame's coach Lefty Smith said. "We faced more than any other team in the WCHA. Tech is quick and will present us with problems because of this speed and foreseeing ability."

Assistant coach Tom McNeilly agreed with Smith. "Tech forces a team to handle the puck in a hurry, and if you do something in a less than deliberate manner, you may do yourself in. If you really don't want to do. A team must respond well if it wants to be successful against the Huskies."

Wisconsin found that out in a two weekend Michigan Tech used its forechecking and speed last weekend coming away from the Badgers' home ice with two shutout victories. And the Huskies should have extra incentive for this weekend's encore, because the series - the Tri-L-1, because Notre Dame spoiled the Tri-L's opening series with an 8-4 and 2-2 tie. "I thought we outplayed Notre Dame and played well the start of the series," MacInnes said. "Notre Dame was a smarter hockey team and picked us apart.

Tech's forechecking kept Notre Dame off balance most of both evenings, but the Huskies just couldn't find the back of the net. "We had the responsibility of this strong forechecking effort on our backs," said Bob D'Alvise, Ellie Vorlick and John Jachuck, the wings must do the dirty work. "Our forwards are forechecking extremely well tonight. "And their backchecking is better than ever before."

 epic 5-11 sophomore, was voted the outstanding freshman in the league last season, and off his performance thus far this year, he has not proven otherwise. His 20 goals and 27 assists for 47 points is four more than junior D'Alvise (19 goals and 24 assists). Vorlick and Jachuck are more conscious, but they are still dangerous in their own right, each having scored three times.

Two left wingers, seniors Graham Wise and Lorne Stamler, are third and fourth in scoring with 31 and 29 points. Stamler and Jake team up with the wing Bill Stene (17 pts.) for the first line with Wise and D'Alvise have Scott Jessie on their right side.

Capatin Jim Nahrgang leads the Huskies defense. Nahrgang is an excellent offensive defenseman who also leads the Huskies in penalty minutes with 36. He is paired with junior Bob Lortin.

The second blue line tandem consists of rugged Bruce Abbey (6-1, 185 lbs.) and freshman Paul Jensen, one of two Minneapolis Jaspers. The other, Steve, also a freshman, skates third line right wing and has scored 11 goals.

The two are not related. Senior Rick Quance has seen the most of the action this season in goal for the Huskies. He has posted the team's only shutout (a 7-4 whitewash of Michigan) so far this year.

Interhall notices

The Interhall office has announced three tournaments for interested students in paddleshell, volleyball and handball doubles. The deadline for all three tournaments is January 24.

The paddleshell tournament, for men, is open. Players signing up will be notified of their draw in the best of three games. There is no classification of players.

Interested male students representing the same hall may sign up for the volleyball tournament. Rosters consisted of seven men, containing the address and phone number of the team, must be submitted to the Interhall office.

In doubles handball, there will be three classes - open (advanced players), intermediate (average ability and background) and novice.

Entries for all three tournaments must be received by January 6 or coming to the ACC office (C4). Again, each deadline is January 24.

The Interhall office also announced that Bengal Boat practice is now underway from 3:10 to 6:00. Monday through Friday, in the Boxine Room of the A.C.C. has an excellent 3.14 goals-against average in 14 games. His backup will be sophomore Bo Miloh, who is replacing Jim Warden. Warden fractured a finger before last week's Wisconsin series.

The Irish, despite their break-even semester break (44 overall), still have an excellent chance to finish in the top four of the league. The Irish, 6-6-1 in the league for 13 points, are only four points out of second place. With a little luck these records could have been improved.

Last weekend, the Irish did everything right except score. Several times Friday night, Notre Dame had a chance to tie their 5-4 third period lead with an insurance marker, but each time they were foiled.

Still, Smith has not panicked. He will continue with converted fullback (Bill) and 265 lbs. centering Ian Williams (22) and Eddie Burnecap (27). The second line of center Pat Conroy (23) between Larry Israelson (23) and leading scorer Dave Lorenz (13 goals and 19 assists) also remains intact.

Senior Mike Tarditi will likely center the third line because of an injury to freshman Brian Walsh. Clark Hamilton and Alex Pirus, who also lead the Irish in penalty minutes, will man the 5-4 center's wings. Pat Novitzki will see plenty of penalty killing action.

On defense, freshman Paul Corry, who completed the season last weekend making up the first unit while Rick Schafer and Jack Brown chessie and Les Lawrence and Roger Bourque are the other pairings.

Smith will go with senior Mark Kronholm in goal. Although Kronholm's 4.15 average is not impressive at first glance, Notre Dame hockey fans should remember it was not much better last season when mark was the backbone in Notre Dame's spectacular second-place finish.

A similar finish this season might be a little too much to ask of the Irish. However, anything can happen and, already, many things have in the WCHA. Who would have thought Wisconsin would be leading the league.

If Notre Dame hopes to duplicate its last season's finish of 4-1 and 26 points this year, the Irish will have to start this weekend with a sweep of Michigan Tech. Regardless, the two teams will be competing against the number-one Huskies and the number-one Indians.

Both games faced at 7:30 p.m. There might be some tickets left. The games can be heard over WMU radio in South Bend.

Tri-captain Ian Williams and his Notre Dame teammates will seek a two-game sweep against top-ranked Michigan Tech this weekend.

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR SALE

Women's UCLA tix, please call J. H.: Thanks for the gift. Come and share them. The Murphy's Marauders. $1.75 per hr. $1.75 per hr. for $1, 3.00 available.

Beginning and intermediate guitar lessons, $1.75 per hr.

Really need 2 GA UCLA tix. Please. Call Elysein 849.848.

WANTED

Experienced typist would like to type to do at home 261.3351.

Used electronic typewriter. Call 491.

Need 2 GA UCLA tix. Please call 234-2098.

* A Ticket UCLA 860. 7-3092. Need UCLA pic, please. Call Pete 234-3995.

LAST AND FOUND

Lost gold wire rim glasses for UCLA basketball game.

The notre dame student union presents

ONI MICHTEL

with Tom Scott and the L. A. Express

TODAY'S SPECIAL SHOW

at 8pm in the ACC

TICKETS ARE $5.50, 4.50 AND 3.00 AVAILABLE AT THE ACC TICKET OFFICE (Gate 10) AND IN THE DINING HALLS DURING THE EVENING MEAL.

MANY GOOD SEATS STILL AVAILABLE

"Her concerts are rare but worth waiting for."

The New York Times

by Rich Alden

Mike Fanning, who won 25 matches as a freshman heavyweight, returns to the mat after a two-year absence as the Irish wrestling team hosts a pair of highly-ranked opponents this weekend. Friday night at 7:30 p.m., D. D. Norwood, the Irish in the Irish, and Marshall will meet Notre Dame before the UCLA game on Saturday morning. Both matches are in the Center's Auxiliary Gymnasium and admission is free.

The Irish, who completed the pre-break portion of the season with a 6-1 record, will have new faces in the starting lineup. Fanning, who just joined the team after completion of the regular season, will usually start at heavyweight as Al Rocke drops down to 220 lbs. Al Rocke also earned starting slots. Dick Schriez will start at 177 in place of the injured Chip Hahs, out of South Bend, and will go at 130.
I'm out tomorrow, but it's very likely I'll be...

Digger Phelps' task--both as a basketball coach and as a precocious-conscious attorney--will be every bit as difficult as the task confronted by coach Johnny Dee three years ago. Maybe even more so.

For the Bruins of coach John Wooden have steam-rolled 88 consecutive opponents since they received that unfavorable verdict in the A.C.C. and with each passing season the UCLAans grow more and more disrespectful toward the present established by Austin Carr, Collis Jones, and Co. And tomorrow, just as all the Irish hope to have the Carr Decision upheld, the Bruins hope to have it overturned.

And Johnny Wooden's 1973 club (currently 13-4 and top-ranked in TV opinion polls) is thoroughly in the art of court persuasion to make their appeal stick once and for all.

Even the cloudy status of All-American Bill Walton has failed to dim UCLA's chances for a third consecutive unbeaten season. The 4-1 senior wrenched his back two weeks ago in the Bruins' triumph over Washington State, but did accompany the team on its current midwestern swing, and will play if his coach gives him a green light.

"To thinking in terms of conference play," said Wooden, "I want him at full strength for Rich Washington and 71-1 sophomore Ralph Durlinger have established UCLA machinery almost alone without missing a beat."

"We are starting to jell as a team," says Johnny Cartwright, UCLA's 5-11 floor leader. "We are starting to jell as a team."

Woolen, who has guided UCLA to nine NCAA championships in the last ten years, would certainly prefer that his big red-head action against the Irish. And so, for that matter, would the Irish.

"I sincerely hope Walton is able to play against us," said Phelps. "He is an outstanding athlete on an outstanding team. Of course injuries are part of the game, but when you have the number one and two teams in the nation going against each other it's just better for everyone concerned to have them at full capacity."

"But we are not," he emphasized, "playing Bill Walton. We're playing UCLA."

And "playing UCLA" means playing a team which has outscored its 1973 opponents by nearly 30 per game (84-54.40), and which has outrebounded those same opponents by an average of ten per game.

It also means playing against the likes of senior forward Keith Wilkes (6-7, 180, 18.4ppg), senior sweeper Gary Novak (6-5, 225, 17.5, 8.8), junior forward Dave Meyers (6-7, 26.19, 10.4ppg) and a cluster of talented reserves.

So deep is the Bruin bench that when injuries of foul trouble (as against N.C. State) have sidelined players like 6-8 freshman Rich Washington and 71-1 sophomore Ralph Durlinger have established UCLA machinery almost alone without missing a beat."

"We are starting to jell as a team," says Johnny Cartwright, UCLA's 5-11 floor leader. "We are starting to jell as a team."

Woolen, who has guided UCLA to nine NCAA championships in the last ten years, would certainly prefer that his big red-head action against the Irish. And so, for that matter, would the Irish.

"I sincerely hope Walton is able to play against us," said Phelps. "He is an outstanding athlete on an outstanding team. Of course injuries are part of the game, but when you have the number one and two teams in the nation going against each other it's just better for everyone concerned to have them at full capacity."

"But we are not," he emphasized, "playing Bill Walton. We're playing UCLA."

And "playing UCLA" means playing a team which has outscored its 1973 opponents by nearly 30 per game (84-54.40), and which has outrebounded those same opponents by an average of ten per game.

It also means playing against the likes of senior forward Keith Wilkes (6-7, 180, 18.4ppg), senior sweeper Gary Novak (6-5, 225, 17.5, 8.8), junior forward Dave Meyers (6-7, 26.19, 10.4ppg) and a cluster of talented reserves.

So deep is the Bruin bench that when injuries of foul trouble (as against N.C. State) have sidelined players like 6-8 freshman Rich Washington and 71-1 sophomore Ralph Durlinger have established UCLA machinery almost alone without missing a beat."

"We are starting to jell as a team," says Johnny Cartwright, UCLA's 5-11 floor leader. "We are starting to jell as a team.

Woolen, who has guided UCLA to nine NCAA championships in the last ten years, would certainly prefer that his big red-head action against the Irish. And so, for that matter, would the Irish.

"I sincerely hope Walton is able to play against us," said Phelps. "He is an outstanding athlete on an outstanding team. Of course injuries are part of the game, but when you have the number one and two teams in the nation going against each other it's just better for everyone concerned to have them at full capacity."

"But we are not," he emphasized, "playing Bill Walton. We're playing UCLA."

And "playing UCLA" means playing a team which has outscored its 1973 opponents by nearly 30 per game (84-54.40), and which has outrebounded those same opponents by an average of ten per game.

It also means playing against the likes of senior forward Keith Wilkes (6-7, 180, 18.4ppg), senior sweeper Gary Novak (6-5, 225, 17.5, 8.8), junior forward Dave Meyers (6-7, 26.19, 10.4ppg) and a cluster of talented reserves.

So deep is the Bruin bench that when injuries of foul trouble (

The Bruins are back!"