No joke--ND freshmen win Mardi Gras prizes

by Susan Divita

Winning the 1974 Chevrolet Impala was Tom Waldschum from Englewood, California, a freshman from Holy Cross Hall. He wasn't even in his room when Stephen Boy, Mardi Gras chairman, called up to inform him he'd won, and his roommate had to run around the hall trying to locate him and tell him the good news, according to Leyden. Tom says he'll be going with Boy on Friday to see the car at Gates Chevrolet in downtown South Bend. "I thought it was a joke," said Jay Leyden when he was told he won the $500 dollar second place Mardi Gras raffle drawing. Jay said he couldn't believe it was true, then all kinds of people started calling and congratulating him. Leyden, a freshman in Morrissey Hall, from Toledo, Ohio, says "Notre Dame will get the money right back in tuition." Leyden also won a bean-bag chair from the one ticket he bought. Boy says Mardi Gras can be called "a moderate success," but the final financial results won't be known until about a week, after bills are paid off and everything's been calculated.

Truck traffic heavier but strike continues despite Nixon plea

By United Press International

Independent truckers wheeled their rigs onto the nation's highways in increasing numbers Sunday but in some areas striking drivers defied President Nixon's plea to get all the trucks back on the road. Reports from authorities generally indicated heavier truck traffic for a Sunday stimulating hopes that crippling consumer and industrial shortages would taper off.

In Washington, Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar issued a statement saying, "Today's survey of truck traffic on the nation's highways indicates a continuation of the favorable trend of the last few days -- truck traffic in total continued to climb and reported incidents continue to fall."

Brinegar said the cooperation of "a vast majority of the nation's truckers" and safety measures ordered by governors "should now permit all truckers to return to the highways."

The independent truckers are protesting increased cost of diesel fuel and lower speed limits which are cutting into their income. The President, in a nationwide broadcast, had urged the drivers to get back to work "to provide food, fuel and other supplies too all Americans."

"Now is the time to get all the trucks back on the road," he said.

SMC Board nixes original measure Revised parietals due before Fall '74

by Patte Conney
St. Mary's Editor

The St. Mary's Board of Regents, on Saturday, February 9, defeated a previously tabled resolution on extended male visitation hours. However, the Board did agree that present visitation hours should be extended and offered an alternative solution.

The alternative solution consists of the creation of a committee to work out the alternative. On the committee will be three representatives of the Board of Regents (appointed by the Chairman of the Board), three representatives of the students, faculty, and administration all to be appointed by Dr. Edward L. Henry, President of St. Mary's College.

"The Regents felt that our male visitation proposal was too limited in so far as solving the problem of social life on campus is concerned," explained Mary Ellen Stumpf, student representative on the Board of Regents. "The Board apparently realized that extending visitation would not be enough to change the lack of a social life on campus. A change of lifestyle in the dorms is one of the major concerns of the new committee."

"I think that the Board showed a great deal of vision in broadening the scope of the committee's jurisdiction. They realize that changes in lifestyle do not merely mean male visitation but that something more is needed," noted Henry. "The committee will do more than review male visitation, they will be looking into experimental lifestyles, the improvements and expansion of physical facilities. The principal thrust, however, is to get an agreement on a visitation policy," he continued.

Both Henry and Stumpf emphasized that the decision to the committee is final. "It's up to the committee to decide what needs to be done. The final decision is theirs, not the Board of Regents, and it is important that everyone realize this," explained Stumpf. "Furthermore, the fact that the decision rests with the committee has a far greater implication than extended male visitation; it is a vote of confidence for Dr. Henry and the administrators," she continued.

Barb McKiernan, chairman of the Student Board of Governors, agreed, "I think the new resolution is really good. It shows great vote of confidence for the administration. I have confidence in Dr. Henry. Now the problem is in the hands of those who should have been handling it to begin with. The crux of the problem is getting something done quickly and in the best way possible," stated Ms. McKiernan.

In addition, "The new committee will probably come up with ideas for the dorms to be used as Living and Learning centers. Living and Learning, being a new mode of trying to integrate all the ways one lives and grows, thus breathing new life into the dorms," said Stumpf.

The committee will begin to organize on Monday morning. Action on some matters could take place anywhere from a week to ten days. A revised policy concerning parietals will be implemented no later than fall of 1974. James L. Henry, President of St. Mary's College, on Saturday, February 9, stated "I am particularly overwhelmed that the Board was sincerely positive about this problem. Moreover, I was happy to see them show this sincerity by entrusting the decision to Dr. Henry and the new committee," commented Stumpf.

The hall meetings on Monday night are as follows: 9:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. in Regina, and 10:00 p.m. in Holy Cross; on Tuesday night from 8:00 p.m. McCandless and from 10:11 p.m. in LeMann.

Student rescued from lake Friday

by Jack D'Auria

A Notre Dame student fell through the ice of St. Mary's lake on Friday evening around noon. The Holy Cross Hall resident, who wishes to remain anonymous, was rescued by campus security.

The student was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where he spent about 15 minutes in the ER. He was released briefly and released.

The incident occurred as the student was walking on the lake between Holy Cross Hall and the Dining Hall. Eyewitnesses report that the student went about 15 minutes in the lake.

"We got a call at 12:10 p.m. that a student had fallen into the lake," said Security Director Arthur Pear. "The Notre Dame ferries responded to the call, and three firemen played a direct role in rescuing the student by extending a ladder into the water. ND Security also contacted South Bend for a rescue crew.

After being rescued, the student was able to walk to the ambulance and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. He noted that he was lucky in that his body temperature dropped only 3 degrees.

The student had crossed the ice successfully three times earlier that day. He went to class and then back to Holy Cross going over the ice. Then he went on the ice again on my way back to the dining hall, but my way back is when I went down," explained the student. "I tried to get up but one of my feet went through, followed almost immediately by my other foot and then the rest of me."

After falling through, the student started reading water, being too deep to allow him to stand and holding on to the ice with his elbows. Some people on the shore were about to come on the ice to help him, but the student had to call for help instead.

"I kept running as much as possible, kicking my legs and moving my fingers a lot. I've seen in the ocean off Boston in the fall, so I've had some cold water experience," said the student, "but I started to worry a little when I almost got some cramps and my legs started getting tired."

He was able to throw off his shoes which began weighing him down. His coat was too cumbersome to remove, though.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Major oil consuming nations Sunday said a ground rule of secrecy for Monday's oil crisis conference, a meeting concealed as "an American trap" by Arabs and opposed even by some invited nations and two international organizations discussed operating procedures for the two-day conference and decided to bar newsmen from all formal and informal sessions.

The meeting, called by Washington to examine the world oil situation, will bring together the heads of oil producing and consuming nations with the intention of reaching an agreement to halt the 1973-74 price rises.

Henry elected by NCEA

Dr. Edward L. Henry, St. Mary's College President, has been elected to membership on the Executive Committee of the College and University Department of the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA). Saint Mary's College, the nation's first legally chartered Catholic college for women, is a long-standing member of NCEA.

The NCEA was founded in 1944 and is the world's largest private educational enterprise. This organization represents Catholic educators to other national organizations, government officials, and the general public in presenting the views and interests of Catholic education on current issues.

Membership in NCEA includes colleges and universities, secondary and elementary schools, parochial religious educational centers, seminaries, diocesan and religious communities.

In addition to regional workshops and seminars, the NCEA sponsors an annual week-long convention for members to share views with prominent educators from all over the world. NCEA publishes eight regular periodicals throughout the year, and also provides consultative services to educators and institutions at all levels of Catholic education.

Sinatra appearance at ACC cancelled

by Art Ferranti Executive Editor

Frank Sinatra will not appear with Bob Reynolds February 25 announced ACC officials Friday.

John Poff, director of the ACC, said Sinatra would not be able to attend due to "a conflicting interest."

Hope and Reynolds will present their show two weeks from today with "one, possibly two" more guests to be announced. In addition, Irish football coach Ara Parseghian is slated to join the show's host, Joseph Sassano, assistant manager of the ACC.

The show will be live, possibly running three or more hours, said Sassano. It will be taped for a television show in the near future.

As for the tickets, all the advance sales ticket money being sent back to the purchaser with a letter that will allow them to buy new tickets at the prices of $7.50, $10, $15, and $25, a markdown from the original prices of $12.50, $17.50, and $25.

Don Boudafr, ticket manager for the ACC, announced that all refunds were ready to be mailed Friday. The ACC is now accepting orders by mail only, no over-the-counter tickets as yet being sold. All checks should be made out to "The ACC-Bob Hope Show," said Boudafr.

Hope, 70, last appeared at the ACC November 14, 1973. The veteran comedian, whose quick timing and barbed one-liners have been acclaimed worldwide, returns to Notre Dame for what is entitled "The Bob Hope Benefit Special."

Prospective advance sales tickets are available at the Information Office.

Study female housing plans

by Chris O'Brien Staff Reporter

"Basically, we are trying to create a stay system with a stable population consisting of a significant number of women from each class," said Fr. Mulcahy, Director of Student Residence in regard to female housing for next year.

The principal question, according to Mulcahy, was how to determine which women would move to Lyons, in a manner that would be fair to all involved. "The results from questionnaires sent out to all the girls indicated to us that there is a substantial number of women who want to live in Lyons, so that no one would be forced to live there," said Mulcahy.

Women will receive a letter today which outlines the procedure of how room picks will be assigned. The girls have two choices; they can choose to stay in their present dorm, or they can choose to reside in Lyons. "At this time, girls can move to Lyons only. Later, they can pick into one of the other women's dorms if there is room available," said Mulcahy.

Those choosing Lyons will after when they return it. These signed forms will be assigned. Grad program on council

The Graduate Program in Business Administration at the University of Notre Dame has been elected to membership in the Graduate Business Admissions Council of Princeton, N.Y., according to Dean Thomas T. Murphy, Dr. John R. Malone, associate dean for graduate study has been named Notre Dame's representative on the Council. Representatives of 35 leading graduate business schools make up the membership of the Council, which publishes "Graduate Study in Management: A Guide for Prospective Students." The group meets twice yearly, once in Princeton and once during the meetings of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

ND debate teams take top honors at Kent State

Two Notre Dame debate teams took high honors at the Buckeye Invitational Debate Tournament at Kent State last weekend.

Junior Dave Hayes and Jeff Rajchel were recognized as the first and third best speakers in the tournament, respectively. Hayes and Rajchel, in repeating the same honors they received at last year's tournament, also reached the semifinal round.

The Notre Dame teams of Mike Anderson and Mike Anderson were ranked among the top eight of the 70 teams at the tournament. Trains from Pittsburgh, John Carroll, Purdue, Duquesne and Western Michigan were included in the 70 teams competing.

Notre Dame entered the Kent State tournament as the defending champions. Jack Keeney and John Burkowski, now assistant Nd debate coach, captured first place last year.

Dear Steven,

Of you know, your mother and I have made great sacrifices to send you through college. The very idea of you asking us if we can send you to Europe this summer is outrageous to the new! Your mother and I haven't had a vacation in the last 5 years. But knowing you, you'll get yourself to Europe, someway or other. Well to show you we do want you to enjoy yourself like the other kids, we sent you this STUDENT-RAILPASS coupon your mother clipped out. Because you're a student under 20, you can get unlimited second-class rail travel in 15 countries for up to 3 months for only 196. The trains are clean, modern, punctual, fast and comfortable. So once you get over there you can see Europe as cheaply as possible.

By the way get your STUDENT-RAILPASS here; you can't buy it in Europe. It's a great deal steet- tax free and one beautiful way to beat currency fluctuations.

Now there are two things I suggest you do. First, send in the coupon so you can buy the ticket. Second, start saving your money. Love, Dad

Each February, The Observer annually bemoans the approach of the Student Body President campaign and this year is no different. Today, the SBP election begins as all interested candidates can pick up their petitions in the Student Government office.

Before the campaigns even begin, a few groundrules from The Observer's point-of-view must be stated:

No member of the editorial board or reporting staff may wear or pass campaign buttons, stickers or other paraphernalia of the candidates.

No campaign announcements made after 10:00pm the day before publications will be covered in the next day's paper.

All announcements of candidacy for SBP or for the Student Life Council will be covered in the inside pages of the paper. Positions of stories in the paper will be determined by lottery.

All candidates will be assigned at least two reporters. All election coverage will be coordinated by Tom Drape.

The elections of the past two years have been chaotic and frenzied. There is something about this time of year that this campaign will be less of a problem than those of the recent past.

-Jerry Lukus

During the campaign, all candidates will receive coverage on the inside pages of The Observer contingent on their campaigning. Wrap-up stories involving all candidates will appear on the front page.

All candidates will be asked to answer a survey drawn up by The Observer's editorial board concerning issues which surround the campus. No candidate must answer the survey. The results of the questionnaire will be published during the campaign.

The Observer will endorse a candidate for SBP. The editorial board will meet with all for questioning Monday, February 24. Times and place will be set later.

The thought occurred to me last week: "You probably should be grateful the Observer didn't take you for your reactions to the Dillon-Mail Affair." But then, in what is a natural tendency when you think something like that, I started to wonder to myself what I might have said.

Probably would have commented a bit on the sad-to-sick coverage of the event got in the server. From Editorials to Letters to the Editor. Some of the stuff was bad enough to embarrass a high-school junior flunking out of composition class. One column in particular reminded me of a reviewer's remark about Jack Kerouac's novel, On the Road: "That's not writing; that's typing!"

More important, whatever else has been said about the Dillon case, it was unfortunate that, for many, it apparently reinforced a feeling they have that the only moral issue around here is sex. We've had a hang-up on sex in the Catholic church, Puritanical, Janissary influences have dramatically shaped our attitudes, although many of us are not aware of it, and many others refuse to acknowledge it.

I know some will accuse me of being "soft on sex"; yet, I will say it anyway: Sex isn't our problem—not our most important one, anyway. Our greatest problem is the more general breakdown in love in our human relationships. The reverse of sexuality is just one (albeit extremely important) aspect of this more pervasive problem.

One can hardly over-emphasize the importance of love. From the very beginning of our existence, love is indispensable for survival. To an infant, for example, emotional warmth is as crucial as vitamins and fresh air. We kid a lot about loving, but human beings can't live normal lives without it. Deficiency in love causes emotional retardation and even death. How many death certificates issued from old-age homes and one-room apartments could read:

"In the last month of his life, love was denied our dear father."

But love is necessary not just to avoid becoming a corpse; not just for survival, but for ultimate happiness...survival forever! Salvation means belonging to God; and belonging to God entails responding to his first loving us. Hence his love is lived and in every experience we have we are authentic.

Obviously, then, the big sin at Notre Dame (and maybe elsewhere) is the failure to try to get love (or to give love to one another) is the failure to love. Perhaps using the concept of "hospitality" will help clarify what I'm getting at. Hospitality means saying: "Welcome...welcome into my life...in your terms." Hospitality means offering an entrance into your time, concern, compassion, understanding—whatever is the honest need of the other.

Again and again, the students I speak to emphasize the importance of this notion, especially when they observe others who lack or lack of caring on this campus. We see illustrations of the point all the time. At the start of this present semester, every tiny transfer student was assigned to join another other who was occupying a suite in one of the women's dorms. The new girl was well-bred but not well-cared for; she was treated with coldness, made to feel an intruder in their comfy cloque.

This is the kind of sin that needs to be denounced from the homelike actions like the capable of doing more harm to persons than many other things around here that seem to capture all their novelty. I'm speaking about a failure of hospitality that becomes a kind of "assassination" (never mentioned, by the way, in the Student Manual); I mean the daily killing cutting we can do to one another... We can so easily kill the possibilities for love; we cut each other down, we cut each other off, we cut each other out.

It seems that every day we are unavoidably caught up in a-to-be-or-not-to-be sort of decision: Hospitality or Hostility. We're all involved in it; and it manifests itself in large and small ways. Some won't even welcome you when they hear "hello"; there are others who look us right in the head, then push us under, or who will not respond to your greeting with a "welcome," but stop instead.

Some of us say "welcome," but only with a blank stare. Some of us are not aware of it, and many others refuse to acknowledge it.

You feel like you're imposed, and you can almost hear his sign of relief when you leave him. In other words, who displays an attitude that says: "You're welcome to sit in on my lectures and take notes, but don't bother me outside of class; don't expect me to be interested in your life." Or the student who doesn't welcome you to the real person he is; instead you find you've been welcomed everywhere to facade, to00000.
Allen Ginsberg once commented on the energy of Robert Creeley and his intense desire to know people. When he gets into town, said Ginsberg, nobody sleeps until he is gone. "I can't let anybody sleep," says Creeley, "because I don't want to miss anything. I love the intensity of people that I can't let anything stop until it's literally exhausting."

In much the same manner, Creeley's intense poetry compresses vast meanings into neat, terse phrases, literally exhausting a word for all it's worth. There are no extra words in Creeley's poetry. Every syllable labours towards concise significance. With every bit of the economy and precision of fellow New Englanders like Emily Dickinson, Creeley leads his readers directly to the point. In a poem entitled "The Business" he says:

To be in love is like going out
To see what kind of day it is.

Relationships between people have been the subject matter of a good deal of Creeley's verses. He is proud of his collection For Love (poems 1959-1969). a series of poems that lets us see a man developing a capacity to love over a ten year span. From this collection comes what is, in some ways, Creeley's most famous poem. Subsequently perverted into the title of that unsuccessful movie, Drive, He Said, "I Know a Man" is another poem about people.

As I tried to try friend, because I am always talking... John, 1 would see between movies at a theater not in my town. The film has been highly acclaimed by the press and highly touted in the material I have received. The catch here is that is 2-3 opposite The Great Escape. The feature itself. which is ranked 12th in the country. Pat nudged the puck into the net at 13:10.

In between, Curry scored a goal of his own with feeds from Jim Augustine and Ian Williams at 15:15. The assist for Williams was his 200th career point, joining him with two other Notre Damers, Eddie Bumbacco and John Noble, in college hockey’s elite grouping of scorers.

In the third period, Tom Ross cut the score to 6-3 for State, but the Irish added the last two goals of the 6-3 final. Curry and Walsh fed Clark Hamilton for a goal at 9:35, and Eddie Bumbacco’s nice effort at 14:47 ended up behind Carr.

Mark Kruthoff, who did play excellently all weekend despite the loss, actually kept the Irish in the game Friday with several key saves when the score was 3-2. He made 5 saves all weekend, eight less than Carr, a proven netminder.

It was indeed a sweet victory on Friday night, but perhaps too sweet to be true again, the sweetness turned sour with Saturday’s defeat. This time, however, the defeat was even more sour than others before it. For the Irish, the weekend was a letdown. Earlier this season, there were opportunities to bounce back after losses. But now those opportunities are becoming scarcer for Notre Dame. Although there is still time to make the playoffs, maybe even the top four, it will continue ticking away. After this weekend’s series at Minnesota, there will be only 246 minutes of hockey left for the Irish.

Ask Lefty Smith, or better yet, ask Duke's basketball coach, Neill McGeachy. A milestone is always round when the Blue Devils have accomplished something.

For the past two weeks the Blue Devils have needed but one victory to beat Penn State and become the final conference leader. But in the last 10 games, they've had to beat the bottom of the ACC. And the Blue Devils' win streak finally ended Saturday afternoon before yet another ACC opponent (18-11) scored.

The Irish outlasted the Blue Devils, 67-63, and that win occurred against the nation's third-ranked team, the Blue Devils. The game was a battle between two teams that have had years of high school basketball in common. McGeachy had played his years of high school basketball in Durham, N.C., and the Atlantic Coast Conference is McGeachy's birthplace.

As Spartans gain series split

Inconsistency again hurts icer as Spartans gain series split

Will the real Notre Dame hockey team please rise to the occasion? That's the question which has perplexed the Irish fan throughout the current season. In a game against Michigan State, the Irish had the better of the Spartans in the first period, and the Irish were outscored by the Spartans in the second period. In the final minute of the second period, the Irish failed to score, and the Spartans took the lead with a big goal.

Friday night, Notre Dame did play its own game. The Irish seemed to content to let the Spartans control the game, and the Irish were outscored by the Spartans in the first period. In the second period, the Irish were outscored by the Spartans in the second period. The Irish were outscored by the Spartans in the first period.
