Campaigns begin for SLC, SBP & VP

by David Kaminski
Staff Reporter

Eight pairs of candidates for Student Body President and Vice President, along with 15 candidates running in six districts for the Student Life Council began campaigning yesterday at 5 p.m. The campaign will end Tuesday, Feb. 26, at 11 p.m.

Running for Student Body President and Vice President respectively are: Ray Capp and Greg Erickson, Mike Galahen and Frank O'Connor, Pat McLaughlin and Frank Flanigan, Ed Rahill and Blake Wordial, Steve Shankar and Bill McErlean, Steve Villarosa and Bill Zimsky, Andy Wininazczyk, Jr., and John Famula.

Running for representatives to the SLC are:
District 1, off campus: Martin O'Shea and Doug Stevenson.
District 2, Farley, Broen-Phillips, Cavanaugh and St. Edward's: Phyllis Mosley and Darline Palma.
District 4, Grace and Flanner: Joe Fiorella, Denis Sullivan, and Chuck Wilson.
District 5, Surin, Walsh, Alumni, Badin and Dillon: Thomas Clark and John Ele. Farrell, Jr.
District 6, Fisher, Fanghorn Lyons, Morrissey, Old College and Howard: Bob Tully and Art Derse.

This year's election rules provide for the possibility of three elections before students choose their next SBP.

The first vote on Wednesday, February 27, the tickets with the greatest number of votes constituting 50 percent plus one of all votes cast will run in the second election scheduled for Friday, March 1. Conversely, more than two tickets would be running in the second election.

If in the second election, no one ticket gains at least 50 percent plus one of the votes cast, the two tickets winning the highest number of votes will run in the final election on Monday, March 4.

The candidate winning the majority of votes cast in each of the six SLC districts on Wednesday, February 27, will be elected with the exceptions of Districts 3 and 4, where more than two candidates are running. If one candidate from either district doesn't gain 50 percent plus one of the votes cast, then another election will be held in that district on the following Friday, March 1. Seniors will also elect the 1974 Senior Class Fellow during the balloting on Wednesday, February 27.

The Election Committee extended the deadline due to a misunderstanding of the rules where students who were not seniors were signing some of the petitions.

Link to JFK murder?

by Janet Deneke
Staff Reporter

Rusty Rhodes, Executive Director of the Committee to Investigate Political Assassinations, speaking before a capacity crowd Thursday evening at O'Laughlin Auditorium, discussed the possibility of the JFK assassination being linked with that of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

The John Kennedy murder weapon was allegedly a 1938 Italian rifle with twenty-year-old ammunition. There was absolutely no evidence that Oswald had ownership of this rifle except for two photographs that the FBI found at Oswald's house on November 25.

These two photos showed Oswald holding the rifle and waving a copy of The Socialist Worker. Rhodes said the photos were falsified; the head of Oswald was pasted onto another man's body.

Fingerprints not on gun

The Warren Commission pointed out that even though Oswald's fingerprints were not on the murder weapon, they were all over the boxes near the window on the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository. Rhodes claimed that the Commission neglected to add that Oswald worked at the Depository and his job was to stack boxes in the warehouse, which was located on the sixth floor.

Slides taken of the Book Depository revealed boxes behind the sixth story window. No human figure is visible. However, Rhodes claimed, the slides which were taken during the actual moments of assassination are locked up in the National Archives until the year 2039.

Ralph Miltiere, head of the Assassination Research Foundation, said, and according to Rhodes testimony, "tonight we shall drink champagne because Kennedy will not be alive." Although these pieces of evidence were sent to the FBI, they deny having received them.

On November 20, Rose Sheraney, was screaming that a group of men were plotting to kill JFK on November 22. She was locked up. Rhodes said that after the assassination, the Dallas police force questioned her and demanded to know who she worked for. Sheraney was a stripper at Jack Ruby's nightclub and she told police that Oswald and Ruby knew each other very well.

Presidency reveal secrets?

On June 3, 1968, Robert Kennedy admitted to students at the San Fernando Valley State College that, "I now fully realize that only the powers of the Presidency will reveal the secrets of my brother's death." Two days later, after winning the California state primary, he was felled by an assassin.

Sirhan Sirhan fired eight times in RFK's assassination and seven of those eight bullets were recovered and booked. However, three other bullet holes were found that were not from his gun. Moreover, seven eyewitnesses claimed to have seen a second gun, Rhodes said. One witness explicitly saw a man behind the senator, crouched down, firing up into his head.

A very complete autopsy report was released ten days later and it stated that the bullet entered Kennedy's right mastoid behind the right ear.

Rhodes to lecture again on campus

Because of overflow crowds the past two nights at his lectures, Rusty Rhodes will be speaking on the Notre Dame Campus again tonight.

Academic Commissioner Andy Bury said late last night that over 600 people were turned away from Bury's two lectures at O'Hare and Thursday's talks. Because of the large turnout, Rhodes consented to an extra evening's lecture.

However, as of last night, Bury was not able to obtain a site for Rhodes' talk. He asked all those wishing to attend tonight to listen to dining hall and WSND announcements for the location.

Sit-ins disrupt classes

garry Allieeta
Staff Reporter

Two weeks of sit-ins and student demonstrations marred the beginning of the spring semester at Villanova University. The school has been the scene of frequent sit-ins and protests since Feb. 7, when an open meeting of student leaders turned into a major demonstration.

Dr. "H-M" Etienne, Student Body President, received a request Thursday from the student Ad Hoc Committee at Villanova requesting financial aid and public support. Etienne said that he personally supported the committee's position and he felt that most of the student body would, too.

The demonstrations at Villanova are in response to what students felt were violations of certain human rights. According to John Hopkins, editor of The Villanova, the demonstrations are not related to the occupation of the Administration Building, which is also a major class location. The take-over was an attempt to disrupt regular classes, drawing attention to student demands.

However, noted Hopkins, the sit-ins have lost their effectiveness because the student body appeared to have little hope.

The trouble actually began in December, before Christmas break, when Hopkins said students' offices were burglarized and several items, such as typewriters and stereo equipment were taken. Over the break, the administration searched a number of student rooms and found many of the stolen goods.

Four students, the residents of the rooms, were taken into custody and a search warrant was obtained. The students began to give out names of people they claimed were drug sellers. One of the students named was Student Body President John San Giorgio. "On the strength of affidavits against him," noted Hopkins, "the (San Giorgio) was suspended." San Giorgio is a second semester senior pre-med student. He and 15 other students similarly accused were not allowed to attend classes from January 16, the date they were charged, until Thursday, Feb. 1, the day their cases were handled.

An Ad Hoc Committee, consisting of the heads of various student organizations, formed to present the student views and requests to University President Fr. Edward McCarthy. The committee is also seeking support from 30 other schools around the country.

Hopkins added: "At the National Students Associate meeting in Washington this week, the NSA voted their support in an effort to gain student rights." He noted the Villanova faculty seems to be behind the student movement.

At Villanova. "archaic"

Etienne offered a comparison between Notre Dame and Villanova. "I talked to several administrators. No one will concede that Notre Dame is perfect, but in comparison, Villanova is archaic." He said the situation there has had no judicial boards, no visitations, no due process for student violators.

Etienne commented that although he supported Villanova's cause, he did not go along with the occupation of the Administration Building. The action may have produced the desired effect, though, he said.

However, Etienne said that several of the student demands appeared to have little hope. Some of the major demands included readmission of suspended students pending resolution of their cases, faculty pay raises, greater student participation in government, and that the student body be made more public.

Oberhardt and Collins launch campaign

by Jim Edery
Staff Reporter

Bill Oberhardt and Cal Collins, two juniors from Sorin Hall, announced their candidacies for student body president and vice president, respectively, yesterday afternoon, charging that "the Student Affairs Office has been pushing the students too far with the doctrine of parentis and something must be done about it now."

The 2 candidates cited several instances in which they felt that the University had "overstepped its bounds and acted improperly toward the students." They protested the right of the University to search student rooms and promised to investigate the legal implications of such action.

"The University seems fit to take away our right to privacy through the "midnight raid" clause of the room contract. We plan to legally challenge the University on this point, as was done successfully at Boston College," explained Oberhardt.

"In loco parentis is not a valid policy unless the parents of students actually sign their consent to have the University act on their behalf," claimed Collins. "I don't believe that the majority of parents would give their permission if they realized all that it entails.

The candidates claim that at least 6 of their friends have been "treated unjustly" by the University, having been either forced out of their halls or out of school altogether for "minor incidents.

"We ourselves have dealt several times with the bureaucracy of the Student Affairs Office. We have been lied to by administrators and misled by the judicial structure. We know there must be many other students all over campus who have suffered similar injustice, and we want to try to put an end to it," Oberhardt said.

"Quite frankly," he continued, "we are tired of the University using Student Government as 'pawns' for the students."

Oberhardt cited the LaFortune renovation project and the new calendar issue for an example of such treatment. "We promise to shake things up," he asserted.

Oberhardt and Collins also promised to move to help the prospective off-campus students. "Since so help is forthcoming from Student Affairs, we will have a committee make a list of all off-campus housing, complete with prices and an explanation of the housing. We also promise to pressure landlords whose unfair practices hurt the off-campus student," Collins said.

Shankel and McErlean speak out on need for student representation

by Mike Donovan
Staff Reporter

Steve Shankel and Bill McErlean, juniors from Grace Hall, announced their candidacies for Student Government last night in the Grace Pit.

Shankel, a pre-med major from Canton, Ohio, said he is familiar with Student Government and promised to investigate its shortcomings, but he has seen that effective changes can be made. "Student Government, he continued, has remained too long as a cabinet of students who must emerge as the strong cohesive unit."

He added that since Notre Dame is home to many athletic institutions in the country it should have a holistic treatment and an innovator in areas of student concern.

Gahagan and O'Connell campaign as "Irish Liberation Front" ticket

by Gary Allietta

Mike Gahagan and Frank O'Connell, juniors from Keenan Hall, yesterday announced their candidacy for the student body executive positions in the Keenan chapel.

SBP hopeful Gahagan delivered a provocative statement outlining the aims of "The Irish Liberation Front Frontrunners.

Our candidacy has been motivated by the hope that we will be gahagani in our instrument for student initiative," Gahagan asserted. The platform calls for more student involvement and less administrative participation in student affairs.

"The voice of the students has come down with a case of apathy-induced amnesia. The result has been usurpation of the students role by an opportunistic administration," declared Gahagan.

The candidate also referred to what a friend, Chuck Nau, once told him about Fr. Burkhsell saying that Bob Kerpl was a good SBP because he studied so much.

"In Burkhsell's eyes, then, we'll be the farthest thing from good," noted Gahagan.

The three points of the platform call for in part: 1. An end to the "chronic tokenism of student involvement." 2. A 10 per cent student representation on all councils.

"Why call it a Student Life Council if there are more non-students on it?" asked Gahagan in his platform statement.

3. LaFortune Student Center renovation. "The red tape, imposed by the non-student agencies must be circumvented now!" they argued.

In an informal discussion after the announcement, both candidates agreed that they were "looking more for an input of time rather than ideas," from fellow students.

O'Connell said that "we want to work with the Administration. We can't do it if we're outnumbered. Students don't realize how misrepresented we really are."
In Farley Hall
Capp-Ericksen announce ticket

by Fred Graver
Staff Reporter

Ray Capp and Greg Ericksen announced their candidacy last night in the chapel of Farley Hall. Stressing the issues of off-campus housing and better co-operation between the separate departments of students' wishes and the acts on them, not react to something else. Speaking on the housing issue, Capp promised to develop a more effective off-campus bureau in cooperation with Fr. James Shilts. The bureau would have its own office in LaFarr Hall and would divide its workings into six off-campus districts that would, in turn, be served by Bureau directors. The Housing Office would have in it a large map to indicate available houses, and a file would be organized with comments about each house from former residents.

Capp and Ericksen also proposed an attempt at reviving the off-campus shuttle. They said that with a September start and a plan for advertising on the buses, a shuttle would be more feasible.

Another point in their Housing plan is the institution of a wholesale beef market, which could save students as much as thirty cents a pound on meat. Capp and Ericksen have already contacted a food locker in South Bend, and the owners expressed interest in working on the program.

Capp said that he would push to have the administration send a letter to all incoming freshmen informing them that they could not be assured of a room on campus their sophomore year.

Capp and Ericksen said that they would like to further develop the Summer job placement bureau, giving it a place in the Student Government with its own director. The revised bureau would deal directly with individual alumni.

Capp and Ericksen proposed a number of improvements for relations between Student government, the Hall Presidents Council, and the Student Life Council.

Capp proposed strengthening the Judicial boards in the halls, and expressed his opposition to parietals.

Capp announced that he had conferred with Dr. Philip FACENDA, VP of Student Affairs, as to the possibility of installing portable basketball and volleyball courts in Stepan Center during the winter months. The Proposal has already been approved by the Student Affairs Central Staff, and is awaiting the decision of other members of the administration.

Ray Capp has had several years experience in Student Government. Greg Ericksen is President of the Junior Class, and is Chairman of the Junior Parent's Weekend committee.

McLaughlin, Flanagan Declare candidacy

by Tom Krczoe
Staff Reporter

Despite the poor weather Thursday night, a large crowd gathered in the Plumber Hall pit to hear Pat McLaughlin and Frank Flanagan declare their candidacy for student body president and vice-president. In the presentation that lasted fifteen minutes, the running mates opened their speech by stating, "It's time we shifted our focus from the social and service aspects. It's time we realize that silence and apathy do not deserve a role. And it's also time to conclude that emotions and bitterness don't convince anybody," he added.

McLaughlin then stressed that the student body must separate itself into factions, but must in itself pull together and "set our goals ahead of us." He continued, "Let's stop complaining about administrative decisions and start doing something about them. Let's start realizing that we can't play professional games with amateur tactics. Let's stop raising our voices and start raising hands."

McLaughlin then began to stress the importance of the halls as the social center of the students' life, since at Notre Dame there is no other place for the students to go. He also stressed the importance of the Hall Presidents' Council as "the most open and most informal forum on the campus."

McLaughlin then turned the talk to the off-campus students. "Let's revive the publication of prices of the different retail food stores of the area to demonstrate which are the best," he said that he would push to have the administration send a letter to all incoming freshmen informing them that they could not be assured of a room on campus their sophomore year.

Capp and Ericksen said that they would like to further develop the Summer job placement bureau, giving it a place in the Student Government with its own director. The revised bureau would deal directly with individual alumni.

Villarosa, Zimsky Explain campaign position

by Tom Russo
Staff Reporter

Steve Villarosa and Bill Zimsky announced their respective campaigns for Student Body President and Vice-President Thursday night in the O'Shaughnessy Art Gallery lobby in the presence of a small group of supporters.

"The focus of our campaign is the realization of the potential that exists within the mass of the Student Body," they asserted in their three-page platform. Essentially, Villarosa stated, his program calls for a dual thrust at improving the students' lot in their social life and in its legislative position within the University.

"My main beef is with the students. No one has tapped the potential of the students for action and self-determination," Villarosa explained. Their platform states, "The failure of past Student Governments to tap..." (continued on page 9)

The time has arrived for us to choose the type of student leadership we want here at Notre Dame. For the next five days we will have the opportunity to evaluate the candidates and decide upon that choice.

And by that choice, we may well be evaluating our life here at Notre Dame during the past year.

For the last two years we have rid ourselves of political politics, at least in the conventional form. Our leaders have been soft-spoken and basically service oriented. They have served a valuable purpose—they have brought the importance of a leader back into focus.

We need someone to carry on the service work of these past leaders. Their programs showed promise, and only time stood in the way of their carrying them to their completion. Their work must be continued.

But during the same two-year period, the student body has had to divide its attention between three leadership-oriented groups: the SLC, the HPC and Student Government. Anyone affiliated with group dynamics will point out the difficulties inherent in such a situation. It makes it truly difficult for the group to put any sense of trust in one spokesman.

And we desperately need a spokesman.

We need a spokesman to question the validity of administrative programs, administrative rules, and administrative credibility. We need a spokesman to assert our place in this institution. We need a spokesman to garner whatever quantity of respect we are capable of eliciting from those that run this place.

And perhaps we don't have to eliminate two of the three bodies in order to draw a focus on one spokesman. That's the easy way. The more difficult way, and the more valuable by far, is for one individual to step above the run-of-the-mill candidates and become that spokesman.

Perhaps that candidate doesn't exist this year, and let's not overlook him if he does. Let's force him to surface. In the next five days, let's fill the sights of campaign presentations, search like never before and make him rise above. If he does not exist, we will be no poorer for the effort.

But if that man is here, let's find him.

Let's not face another year of ambiguity. Our just place in this university may well be slipping subtly from our grasp.

—Butch Ward

Open The Archives

The presentation that Rusty Rhodes gave in Washington Hall Wednesday night was absolutely devastating. Completely documented, seemingly airtight, Rhodes weaves a case to disprove the Warren Commission report.

Whether you believe his conclusions or not (and it's difficult not to), the questions that Rhodes brings to mind and the doubts that he casts across the Warren Report are enough to demand that the issue of our President's assassination be reopened.

Previously, the material evidence of the assassination is locked in the National Archives until 2039 (75 years after the event). Yet these persisting doubts are reason enough to open the archives and allow the evidence to be looked at again.

The investigation into Watergate has already taken more time than the investigation into the murder of an American president. The case must be reopened and restudied and it must be done now. Not in 2039.

—Jerry Lutkus
As I have mentioned before, I think my Protestant father would have been as much surprised to hear the news that I was keeping a teenager as my mother was. She held me in her arms as she cried quietly, but we were both soon persuaded that I had made the right choice.

Forty years ago, I was kept in a Catholic. As a child, I had been taught that the stories of the Old Testament were just that—stories, not historical events. My mother, on the other hand, had been raised in the Church of England and knew more about Christ's life and teachings than I did.

The Marx Brothers' style evolved as they grew older and more experienced. Their major breakthrough came with the release of their first film, "The Cocoanuts," in 1929. The film marked a turning point in their careers, and it was acclaimed by critics and audiences alike.

Almost fifty years ago the Marx Brothers were starring in their final Broadway hit, "The Cocoanuts." This weekend the film from that same play in addition to five others are appearing on the Notre Dame campus.

"The Cocoanuts" is a farce about a group of Ivy League intellectuals who are trying to organize a union to protect their jobs. The play features many of the Marx Brothers' best-known characters, including the absent-minded professor, the beneficent Jewish banker, and the bumbling Captain Duval.

this resource has left the student body in a state of submissive-ness towards the whims of Administration policy."

Concerning the often criticized social situation, Villarosa and Zimsky feel that the ultimate fault lies on the students. The social and cultural programs assembled by the Student Union and its branches have been of high quality and sound organization. How many students go to the lists gallery, or even know about the upcoming Marx Brothers Film Festival? There’s definitely a feeling of social paranoia on campus."

They strongly feel that the parietal regulations are a major factor in this atmosphere and will work to bring a decision by Fr. Hesburgh or go further if necessary to abolish them. "The Administration views the students as dogs in heat to be kept at tail’s length."

Furthermore, the two candidates propose that the students unite to obtain the power to remove the Dean of Students from office since they feel that the position "demands a person whom the students can trust to deal with them in a just manner, and whose disciplinary measures are positive and not destructive. Such is not the case with Dean Macheca."

Villarosa plans to use the campus media to explain the power structure of the University. He also wants to enlighten the students to the advantages of off-campus living by working closely with the Off-Campus Housing Office. "Food co-ops are just an example of the many things which can be done, but up to now have been only talked about."

Villarosa presently lives off-campus on Woodward Ave. Zimsky is a resident of Dillon Hall."

"If the students elect a joke candidate at this point it shows that they just don’t really give a damn. It would be a poor reflection on the attitudes of the student body," commented Villarosa.

Cancels concert

The May 2 appearance of Loggins and Messina at the Athletic and Convocation Center was cancelled Thursday by the group’s agent, according to Concert Coordinator Richard Donovan.

Columbia Records pressured the act into cancelling their spring tour in order to record a new album. Contracts had been issued by the agency, but nothing had been signed," said Donovan.

He confirmed the appearance of the Beach Boys for April 30. The group’s third Notre Dame concert will highlight the Saturday eight of An Tostal. Ticket information will be released later.

Student Union to provide lists of scheduled entertainment

by Bob Quaakshob

The Student Union Services Commission begins a new information program today with the distribution of "weekly schedule information sheets."

The sheets provide a centralized source of information about concerts, plays, lectures, musical performances, art shows, and movies occurring not only on the ND-SMC campus but in the South Bend community as well. Expected to be the most comprehensive information listing available, the sheet will list dates, times, locations, and, in many cases, admission prices of the activities recorded.

Rick Gering, director of the Student Union Information Line, explained that the weekly information list is directed primarily at the off-campus students whose whereabouts are somewhat detached from the sources of information and "grapevines" readily available to on-campus students.

Nevertheless, he also believes the listings could be extremely valuable to on-campus students as well. For this reason, Gering suggested that each hall purchase several copies of the listings each week and post them in visible places within the halls for convenience of hall members.

The lists will be available each Friday and will cover activities from the following Monday through Sunday. They should vary in length from two to five pages, depending on the volume of activity each week.

For a fee of $1.00, students can pick up the listings themselves for the entire semester at the Student Union Information Line (4th Floor LaFortune) on Fridays. Or, for $2.50, the Services Commission will mail the listing direct to the student’s place of residence.

Newspaper editor held ransom

ATLANTA (UPI) — The tape-recorded voice of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy said Thursday night he had been kidnapped for $700,000 ransom by the right-wing "American Revolutionary Army.

The kidnappers, Murphy said, expected his newspaper to buy the demand.

The ARA—hereafter unheard of, said the voice, but Murphy believes "the American news media has been too leftist and of, according to authorities, Feb. 24, at the studios on Moreau's Television Laboratory will give Television Production interns, will be for a contempt of court citation to be issued in the case. Murphy said he would be the one to open the bag and count the money.

Army files assault charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charges including assault with intent to commit murder have been filed against Army Pvt. Robert K. Preston, who ended a "rambling tape." Robert K. Preston, who ended a "rambling tape.

The kidnapers, Murphy said "I wish you would first tell Virginia and the children that I am all right, that I have been treated with courtesy and that I have not been abused.

Murphy said the ARA "want a ransom of $700,000. They understand that I don't have that kind of wealth, so it would be for the Cox Corporation to pay it.

They want the money in new fives, tens, twenties and fifties, not consecutively numbered. They tell me that they would like for it to be packaged in plastic bags." Murphy said he would be the one to open the bag and count the money.

"Jim, I don't know what the process of transfer is to be. Somebody in the Atlanta metropolitan area will be called. I am all right, that I have been treated with courtesy and that I have not been abused.

Murphy said "I have been kidnapped by the American Revolutionary Army. I wish you would first tell Virginia and the children that I am all right, that I have been treated with courtesy and that I have not been abused." William Fields, executive editor of the 661st Transportation Company to which Preston is assigned at Ft. Meade, filed the charges Wednesday, the Fort Meade spokesman said. The charges comprise theft of the helicopter, damaging military property (the helicopter), breach of peace (by wrongfully entering the White House grounds), and three counts of assault with intent to commit murder.

The assault charges relate to the three police helicopter crewmen when Preston allegedly charged with the helicopter in mid-flight during his weekend escapade. The officers were Anne Arundel, Maryland State trooper Steven L. McCar-ter.

Preston remains under psychiatric observation at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. The Ft. Meade spokesman said officials had asked that a board at the hospital determine if Preston is competent to stand trial. No legal action beyond the filing of charges will take place until the psychiatric evaluation is completed, the spokesman said.

Army officials said the Army legal hierarchy would not normally file charges until after the hospital check had been finished. However military law permits any member of the services to file charges against any other member, regardless of relative rank, at any time.

Preston stole an unarmed Army helicopter from Ft. Meade after midnight Sunday, buzzed cars on Maryland highways during the flight into Washington, and then crash landed on the White House lawn as Secret Service agents fired buckshot at the thin skinned craft. Preston, 20, of Panama City, Fla., was arrested by a Secret Service agent as he was about to open the helicopter pilot training when he was unable to pass tests covering instrument flight.

Maryland official calls for Simon's resignation

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Calling Maryland's gasoline shortage its "greatest crisis" since the Civil War, state Attorney General Norman E. Polovoy Thursday demanded the resignation of federal energy chief William E. Simon.

Polovoy, the state's second Television lab to tape free time for broadcasting

The Notre Dame-St. Mary's Television Laboratory will give students the opportunity to "do their thing" on television Sunday, Feb. 24, at the Studios of Red Moore's third floor.

The Laboratory, consisting of Television Production interns, will use equipment owned by the Special Television Committee at St. Mary's College to tape five minutes of free access to the television airways.

The result will broadcast on Valley Cablevision or station WNIT. Though interested students can use the on-camera time for any purpose, the Laboratory cannot guarantee that all will be broadcast.

Debbie Tirsaw, who will be in charge of the production, can be reached at 651 for more information. Interested students must call for an appointment at 631-243-7946.

Groceries for needy

Food centers to open

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The doors will swing open at four San Francisco Bay Area centers Monday, March 6 to pick up food in Randolph A. Hearst's grocery program for needy families.

A. Ludlow Kramer, tapped by the newspaper executive to direct the "People in Need" program, today reported to the Hearst mansion in nearby Hillsborough Thursday that the sites would have enough food to supply 20,000 persons.

"There will be no criteria for applicants, he said, and they will get "whatever they need." The food will be distributed in the Hunters Point section here, East Oakland, East Palo Alto, and Richmond.

Kramer said, "We have spent $15,000 in the purchase of food for tomorrow. We have received $15,000 worth of free food."

The distribution centers will then be opened on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Operating hours will be next week.

A telephone bomb threat forced police to evacuate the PIN headquarters in the Hearst Building on East 6th Street in downtown San Francisco Thursday. Only a handful of workers remained at the building while tenants were ushered from the building by police. Bomb squad officers searched the building but found no bomb.

"We were flabbergasted," Kramer pointed out, this "does not apply to whether he (Hearst) will meet the demands his kidnapped daughter."

More than 3,000 volunteers—using three airplanes, more than 30 trucks and 500,000 pounds of warehouse space the day Thursday scrambled to implement the $2 "People In Need" program by Randolph A. Hearst to meet the demands of his daughter's kidnappers. Called PIN, the plan aims to begin distribution of free food to over 20,000 people.

The hurried activity in the offices of the Hearst Corporations-conscious of the fact Hearst's kidnappers notified her father that his offer must be upped by $6 million to a total of $6 million.

A spokesman for People In Need said the original program had already accumulated more than $100,000 worth of foodstuffs of every description, ready for delivery by the Friday deadline.

Contributions included 5,000 quarts of fresh milk, 4,500 loaves of bread and a truckload of cheese.

Organization of PIN began Wednesday under the direction of A. Ludlow Kramer, tapped by Hearst in his position as secretary of state in the California governorship.

Within two weeks PIN hopes to be a statewide program, distributing enough food to feed 100,000 persons a month for a year.

"We've had 17 lines ringing off the hook since it o'clock this morning," Kramer, who helped set up the program, said. "The response has been overwhelming. We've had to turn people away.

"Teachers take notes on each telephone call. Offers are sorted and collected in boxes labeled snacks and drivers, babysitting, food, warehouse space, out of town, special contribution sets and skills.

"We are taking food donation offers from anyone who would like to donate a store, any individual who would like to do it," said Kramer. "We are receiving no proof of poverty or hunger, said Mrs. Kramer. The food will be distributed in the Washington program on a first-in, first-out basis.

A bank account was opened for cash donations, including for tomorrow. We have received $100,000 worth of free food."

"People will get whatever they need." The food will be distributed in the Hunters Point section here, East Oakland, East Palo Alto, and Richmond.

"We will be in excess of the monthly amounts," he said, the donations proceed at the current rate.

"We are taking food donation offers from anyone who would like to donate a store, any individual who would like to do it," said Kramer. "People are being swept under the table by police. ND icers face or-die weekend
Series with U of M, senior departures highlight home-ice set

by John Finneran

Imagine Kevin Norsbusch playing hockey: a football player on an ice surface. Sound a little bit funny? Well, don't laugh. Michigan's Wolverines, who meet the Irish tonight and tomorrow, are a top-tier in the nation team perhaps likes this size up front because his goalie, Robbie Moore, doesn't have much. Moore, a sophomore who Irish fans should remember by his antics last year, is only 5-6 and 155 pounds. This is not to say Robbie isn't a capable goaltender. His 4.2 goals again in the WCHA proves that he is.

The Wolverines currently stand 12-1-1 for sixth in the league, just four points ahead of the Irish and CC, eight placers with 9-1-4 records. For Notre Dame, the series is a big one, a must, if they hope to be playing past the March 2 season finale at Wisconsin. Notre Dame's lines, defensemen and goalie should remain almost intact for the series. The Wolverines-Dine-Bye Novitzki line, which was put together at Minnesota, will be continued in both games. McCardle will both carry the two-game series.

Senior defensemen Rick Schafer uncorks a slap shot from the blue line. Schafer and eight other fourth-year seniors will be in their final home series this weekend, a do-or-die set against the Michigan Wolverines.

The Graduates

For nine Notre Dame hockey players, seniors all, the UM series means something special. For them, it is their last chance to play against an opponent in the ACC. That first year, '79-'81 started with a pair of losses at Michigan Tech, and although the current seniors won't end until next weekend at Wisconsin, these Irish seniors want to leave the ACC in another way than they ended in 1970, 10-5 losers to Michigan State.

Goalie Mark Kronholz, who will be the Irish goalie both nights against Michigan (11-12-1 for 23 points in the league) will leave ND with a school record four shutouts. His last, ironically, came against Michigan this past Dec. 2. That's quite a feat for this sincere young man hoping to be a Baptist minister.

Bill Nyrop, along with Ed Bumbacco, holds the distinction of being a ND All-American.

Nyrop, a 6-2, 205 lb. native of Edina, Minn., has been called intense, a real competitor, and perhaps some of the mistakes he made on the ice in four years were the result of this competitiveness. Bumbacco has had quite a puzzling season, but last year wasn't. If anything, it was masterful. New league and school scoring records of 90 points (43 goals and 47 assists). Eddie was unstoppable.

This year has been different. Early every team seemed to have his number. Now, probably, they seem to have quit worrying about him. Still, the talent is there, waiting perhaps for this last weekend.

The next 3 players—Mike Tardani, Larry Israelson and Don Smith—clearly make themselves varsity players through their own hard-work and determination.

Tardani, who has seen mostly penalty-killing action during the past two seasons, made an impression his sophomore season with his gung-ho attitude. In between that and his junior campaign, Mike broke an ankle.

The Irish will be on the lookout for the upset-minded Mountaineers although they have not had much trouble handling them in the past. Notre Dame's series record with WVU is 4-1, having lost only in the disastrous '81-82 season 97-07.

Coach Digger Phelps will be bringing his team into the game this season, though, with a 21-1 record and just off satisfing wins over South Carolina and Western Michigan.

"Beating South Carolina down there has to be one of our best wins of the season," Digger contends. "We're used to playing this type of game on the road, but we've been through some pretty tough ones away from home. But all of these experiences should help us in post-season competition." It is a paragon of the present and the future, and as WVU coach Eldon Miller said, "Our game's is the night's game, "Shu is one of the finest ball-players in the country and a very physical person. I voted him an All-American."

Adrian Distally (11.2 pp) and "Goose" Novak (6.5 ppm) will be up front while Gary Brokaw (7.1 ppm) and Dwight Clay (7.8 ppm) will man the goalie positions.

Schafer epitomizes the unselfish attitude well. In his four years, he has played defense, center and wing. Sheat might not look too fast, but last season, when he played forward, there wasn't anyone who was quicker backchecking than Ric.

Williams has been a mysterious individual. Certainly, no one has been the center of more controversy than Willy. However, when you take a look at his play, there is no one who is better at his job than Ric and no one who wants to win more. A weekend sweep against Michigan will elect, perhaps, only a smile, but deep down, Ian Williams will always say, "I just want to win."

Williams isn't the only senior who wants victory. His is a hope that eight other Irish seniors share. "And, as these nine individuals get ready to play their last home series, memories fly through this writer's mind. After all, memories play a big part in the Notre Dame tradition.

Cagers at home vs. W.Va.

When you're 9-12 with four games left to play, few winning incentives have your team. For the Mountaineers, however, who meet West Virginia this year, the role would not be unassuming. The Mountaineers open against Notre Dame tonight and Saturday, and tomorrow he Pitt Panthers will come to Morgantown way free to play.

"I'm a much-improved team," Coach Lefty Smith said. "They have four wins straight against Michigan Tech and Colorado College. "We have our backs to the wall."

"Michigan has people like Dufek who like to knock the opposition around enough to make it an entertaining series because we like to think we can be physically too."
