Rectors apprehensive

ALCOHOL POLICY DISCUSSED

Several hall rectors yesterday expressed their concern over the University's new policy on alcoholic beverages and its potential effect on student life.

Flanner rector Fr. John Mulcahy observed that the "distasteful task" of enforcing the new student liquor guidelines will inevitably belong to the hall staff. "We're not going to go out of our way to find violations," he explained "but anything we see we will have to point out, and the students under twenty-one will help us do it."

Mulcahy, who also serves as director of Student Housing, foresees no problems between Flanner residents and the hall staff in complying with the university regulations. "We can reasonably tight ship last year," he noted.

Keanan Hall rector Fr. Richard Conyers agreed that "the hall staff is the enforcing agent and will have to observe the laws of the state.

Conyers noted that Keanan residents have been asked to be creative in their consideration of the new guidelines. "I do hope that this is not the most crucial issue in the hall during the school year," he said.

The campus proximity to the Michigan border is of deep concern to Stanford Hall rector Fr. John Lacey. He stated that the guidelines encourage an increase in driving to Michigan, where the legal drinking age is 19, and the possibility of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Nearly all of the rectors contacted agreed there is little choice in the matter. As Fr. Richard Zieg of Sine Hall explained, "We are restricted and constrained by the laws of the State of Indiana."

Dillon rector Fr. David Slavler stated that no large parties with alcohol will be allowed in his hall this year, but stressed his commitment to cooperating with students in an effort to lower Indiana's legal drinking age to 18.

Slavler called the new guidelines a " setback to the programs of hall spirit and education in the proper use of alcohol.

Farley rectress Sr. Jean Linz stated that she was pleased with the old guidelines and that the new guidelines will require an extensive adjustment. "We are used to doing things on our way and now it's all different," she said.

Helen Gallagher, rectress of Radix Hall, said that she was "frustrated" by the new ruling. Pointing out that many students come from states and homes where underage drinking is acceptable, she said "a period of adjustment to the strictness of the new rule must be expected."

Gallagher also expressed hope that the university will aim for consistent enforcement "so that the students will be completely aware of their own position."

Walsh Hall rector Joanne Szafran regards the court's decision as "a definite step backward for the state and thus for the University." She also expressed concern that the students are not fully aware of the serious implications of the law and that an effort should be made to inform them.

Fr. Tallarida, Zahm Hall rector, feels that it is unfortunate that a decision of the Indiana judicial system should impede the educational process that the Student Affairs office was trying to effect through their former guidelines on the use of alcohol.

Fr. Michele of Cavanaugh Hall stated that he intends to see that the state law is followed. He feels that "the students are mature enough to handle this situation" and anticipates few problems.

The Campus Security Department's role in enforcing the alcohol guidelines has not yet been determined. Monitors at the east and west gates disclosed that they did not know whether they were required to confiscate alcoholic beverages from students entering campus.

Campus Security Director Arthur Pearse stated that he was too busy to discuss the new guidelines at this time.

Other major Indiana universities not affected by court ruling

By Bill Brink
Senior Night Editor

Six major Indiana universities have not been affected by the recent court rulings on alcohol consumption. University officials at each of these schools said they have always complied with the Indiana's drinking age of 21 for students living on campus.

Results of a survey which covered Indiana, Indiana State, Purdue, Ball State, and Valparaiso Universities along with St. Joseph's College, indicated that the two recent Indiana court rulings concerning alcoholic had not altered their policy of prohibiting drinking on campus by minors.

It was these court decisions which were responsible for the establishment of new alcohol guidelines outlawing underage drinking on the Notre Dame campus.

All six deans noted that they have not only recognized but also felt responsible for upholding the Indiana law restricting alcohol to persons age 21 or over.

Both Indiana and Indiana State Universities stressed that as state schools they have an added obligation to comply with the law. None of the schools had any provisions for underage drinking on campus prior to the court rulings.

"We've quoted the laws and stated that it is non permissible," remarked Dean Schroer at Valparaiso University.

He admitted that in the Universities review of fraternity drinking regulations the recent court decision "became part of the discussion but did not motivate the discussion." He pointed out, however, that fraternity are considered off-campus and that any changes regarding their drinking status is not a change concerning the established drinking policy on campus.

The dean of students at each of the colleges agreed that their offices were ultimately responsible for enforcement of the alcohol regulations. They also joined in naming the campus security force and hall resident assistants as liable for enforcement.

If an alcohol abuse were spotted by the security force, "the could and would make an arrest," said Dr. Steven Akeres, Associate Dean of Students at Purdue.

Some of the schools have directors or supervisors living in the hall who are also responsible for seeing that drinking regulations are upheld. St. Joseph's College has priests living in the dormitories, but according to Dean Wieses, "they have no responsibility for such enforcement except by their own personal choice."

All the deans agreed that they cannot possibly deal with every alcohol violation, but that no social function or gathering that involves underage drinking can be sanctioned by their schools.

Indiana, Indiana State, and Ball State have "over-21-halls" or sections which are occupied by students 21 or older and where drinking is allowed in the rooms. Purdue and St. Joseph's (continued on page 4)
Fun upcoming at Carney '74

by Chris Rock

The orientation committee is sponsoring "Carney '74" Tuesday, September 3 on the South Quad. This year's carnival features a picnic, rock band, game booths, special speakers, and other fun and entertainment.

A picnic opens the carnival in front of the North and South dining halls. Music will be provided, as well as balloons and clowns. Many game booths will offer prizes to skillful participants. Organized by members of the orientation committee, the booth activities include a dart throw, frisbee toss, water balloon toss and softball throw. Prizes range from hamburger passes from local drive-ins and free hot fudge sundaes at Farrell's, to discount passes at Putt-Putt miniature golf course and free River Bend Plaza buttons.

SMC coffeehouse debuts tonight

The Saint Mary's Friday night coffee house opens tonight featuring a full evening of entertainment and refreshments. Located in the basement of the SMC dining hall, it will begin at 9 p.m. and end at 1 a.m. according to Kathy Carrigan, coffee house coordinator.

Food specials coordinated by Alice Illig, include Paul Bunyan chocolate chip cookies at ten cents a piece and submarine sandwiches. Joe Knochenkemper opens the evening at 9:00 followed by Sheila Rafferty at 10:00. David Shabeen will play at 11:00 and the show closes with Mindy Bright, Diane Bennett and Eileen Quinn at midnight.

Carrigan welcomes new performers. If interested call her at 4386.

McLaughlin criticizes alcohol directive

Pat Hanlin
Staff Reporter

Student Body President Pat McLaughlin criticized the directive on alcohol issued by the Dean of Students as being harsh, vague, and autocratic. In a letter dated Aug. 28 to Dean Macheca, McLaughlin stated that the university faces "an extremely sensitive situation, much more complex than that which can be handled in the simplicity of a directive."

McLaughlin in an interview yesterday reaffirmed his position, calling the maximum $25 fine "too harsh" and the implication that students might be suspended "excessive." He believes that such enforcement will seriously damage communications between students and the university. "An open endedness," McLaughlin has investigated the possibility of registering a large percent of the student body so they can vote on the drinking age issue in the primaries.

Another danger of the new directive according to the SBP is its open endedness. "It never really defines what a 'serious violation' is," McLaughlin said, "and this is exactly the problem we had with the parietals and sexual relations cases in the Dillen case. There is so much room for different enforcement among the halls that people can get hurt without knowing what they are getting into."

McLaughlin emphasized that he thought Macheca had completely good intentions and was not trying to hurt the students. "Most of the halls will enforce the rules intelligently and not try to interfere with student privacy, but there may be problems in one or two halls because of this vagueness." McLaughlin stated. The SLC should take up the situation and Macheca's directive at their first meeting Sept. 1 said McLaughlin. He criticized Macheca for issuing an sweeping a directive without consulting the SLC or the students first. "Macheca's authority to issue something so broad is not too clear, but certainly the SLC has the power to review it and they should exercise that power soon," he continued.

Another issue McLaughlin would like to see reconsidered is the effect of a recent Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission ruling prohibiting advertising in campus magazines, newspapers and programs. The athletic department has reluctantly agreed to remove such ads from the football programs at considerable expense. "There is a question of freedom of the press here that should be looked into here," McLaughlin explained. In his letter to Macheca, he asked if the university "must stop certain clubs from selling Budweiser mugs to raise money for their activities? Should we cancel our Muscular Dystrophy dance marathon since Colt 45 is our major sponsor?"

The student body president also asked Macheca if students over 21 were free to drink in accordance with the old rules. "That's my interpretation," McLaughlin said, "but the directive is not too clear on this point."

McLaughlin has investigated the possibility of registering a large percent of the student body so they can vote on the drinking age issue in the primaries.

However, Senator Birch Bayh advised McLaughlin that such a move might engender bad feelings locally. Prof. Roos has suggested holding off on a registration drive for the primary until students are settled in for the year and student government can check out the stands of the candidates. "The ones we have talked to," McLaughlin said, "all seemed favorable to a change in the law. It is the legislators from the southern part of the state who are opposed."

Prof. Roos will be meeting with local candidates in the next few weeks and a lobbying program may be started when the Legislature meets in January. McLaughlin explained that lobbying efforts in the past indicated that student government should not try to work with other schools until it has a definite plan to offer. "The other schools are less affected by this ruling since they are not so close to Michigan, and have never had liberal regulations because most of the student bodies come from Indiana," said McLaughlin.
Other drinking policies not altered

All of the schools also emphasized their respect for the personal privacy of the student, stating that they did not violate the rights of any individual in an effort to enforce the rule.

Some of the schools said they would comply with the state ruling of the legal drinking age were lowered, while several said that they would have to be discussed first.

NICKIE'S FIGHT CAUSES DAMAGE

by Dennis Kelly

A bar room brawl at Nickie's, 926 Eddy Street in South Bend, resulted in $900 damage and minor injury to two St. Mary's College Students.

Haig denies staff friction

WASHINGTON (UPI) - White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig said Thursday that he was "somewhat appalled" at recurring reports of friction between the remaining staff of former President Richard Nixon and President Ford's top assistants.

The situation, he said, is "precisely the opposite."

In an interview with United Press International, Haig said there has been a rekindling of a "cooperative spirit" between Nixon staffers and Ford staffers.

He expressed his "highest regard. . . for the group of men Ford has around him."

"What we're dealing with today is a great deal of mythology," he said. "I don't suffer from insecurity pangs."

The two women, Debra Khan and Mary Brockman, suffered minor bruises and scraps from flying debris but neither required hospital care.

South Bend police arrived at the scene about 2 a.m. and arrested 19-year-old Mike Madison of South Bend and 25-year-old Greg Williams of Milwaukee, both charged with disorderly conduct and public intoxication.

The incident began when Madison, Williams, another man and three female companions attempted to enter the tavern without showing proper age identification. When bartender David Barst tried to stop the youths, the trouble began.

Madison was released after signing a waiver, but Williams was held for trial in St. Joseph County Superior Court. He is free on $100 bond pending a September 5 court appearance.

Nickie's owner, Nick Bilello listed damage as broken chairs, windows, and pool cues.

N.D. & ST. MARY'S TAE KWON DO CLUB
Unless each student in this University grasps an immediate, serious, thoughtful awareness about drinking on this campus, what little social existence remains will perish.

Two recent Indiana Court decisions have forced a destruction of the responsible approach toward the use of alcohol developed in the past year through the efforts of the Office of Student Affairs and the Student Life Council. In a directive issued Wednesday Dean of Students John Macheca stated that the only recourse the University has to obey state law and, therefore, enforce it.

This directive is more a threat than a prohibitive measure. Macheca designated that the University would punish an underage student found consuming alcohol on campus with either a $50 fine, exile form the campus community or expulsion from the University altogether.

To enact these policies will neither improve the situation nor will it catalyze an improvement of solution. Rather, their enforcement will impede the growth and development of a mature and responsible attitude towards the use of alcohol.

A meeting between all student leaders acting as representatives of the student body, the Office of Student Affairs, the University Counsel and the University president must be immediately arranged. If conducted honestly and openly such a meeting would create a forum for an invaluable exchange of information, and provide an opportunity for an expression of trust and discussion of alternative considerations of the problems and its solution with any concerned member of the community.

Total cooperation with the Notre Dame community must be maintained if a solution to the drinking problem is to be achieved. The students, staff and administration must work together in faith and trust to affect a workable discipline.

If not, an explosion of attitudes and actions is inevitable.

American culture, which the state of Indiana seems to be alien toward, can and has accommodated the use of alcohol. The abuse of alcohol is a human failure. Abuse is not exclusively prevented by restriction and regulation, however. Last year's on-campus parties managed under responsible guidelines, were beginning to work. One needs only to witness the Friday party at Stepan Center and other hall parties in the LaFortune Rathskellar.

But the Bratall v. Terron decision by the Indiana Court of Appeals last April and then the Reeves decision in August, for all purposes, destroyed the guidelines which governed these parties. Essentially, the decisions have made the University directly liable for any damages or injuries incurred by an underage student under the influence of alcohol within a situation in which any official of the University is aware.

Notre Dame does have a responsibility to the state and as well. For now, the law stands. But in our own University community, let's have students and administrators meet and talk particularly with regard to enforcing the Dean's latest directive.

Possibilities still remain for student participation in state elections in November and a student lobby in the state legislature when it resumes in January. Until then, equitable judgement by the students and staff dictate enforcement.

Thanks to the blood donated by Notre Dame and St. Mary's students, an SMC power plant employee, injured at work last spring, is alive. Through student blood donations the ND-SMC Blood Council expects to save more lives this year.

According to chairman Robin Hendricks and John Famula the council has set up a new program whereby student volunteers will donate blood on a rotating hall system twice weekly throughout the year at the Central Blood Bank downtown. The blood mobiles which frequented the campus in the past will therefore no longer be used. "Notre Dame and St. Mary's are part of the South Bend community, we (students) can serve that community with a continuous supply of blood," explained Heisler.

Famula added that when the two schools resumed classes the need for blood and blood donors increased.

The council's new program is in response to the American Association of Blood Banks' encouragement that blood associations must be converted to 100 per cent volunteer donors by 1975. "There will be no paid donors. This will greatly reduce the risk of infection from blood transfusions," stated Famula, "but the need for volunteer donors is increased."

The Council will sponsor a recruitment from Sept. 15 through Nov. 22 in all dining halls and dorms.

The council needs drivers to provide transportation between the campuses and blood bank on Tuesdays and Thursdays, as well as volunteers from each hall for recruitment, publicity and organization, Heisler added.

"The council has been organized," she explained, "so that worker's time will be minimal. For example, each hall will only be asked to work on the blood drive once during the semester."

Anyone interested in volunteering is asked to sign up Monday, Sept. 3, during Activities Night in LaFortune, or to call John Famula (3898) or Robin Heisler (4432).

Truesdell named alumni assistant

by Tom O'Neill
Staff Reporter

The appointment of Timothy L. Truesdell as an assistant director of the University's Alumni Association has been announced by Dr. James W. Frick, vice-president for public relations and development.

Truesdell is a 1974 graduate of the University.

The June resignation of James Cooney, executive director of the NDAA since 1967, and the subsequent resignation of Mike Jordan, assistant director has called for new staff appointments.

As assistant director, Truesdell will specialize in writing for alumni publications and the production of audio-visual programs distributed to many of the 175 Notre Dame Alumni Clubs across the nation.

One audio-visual program, using film, slides, movies, the University Glee Club, faculty, and students, will be shown to visitors during football weekends.

A native of Niles, Michigan, Truesdell attended the University of Missouri's Journalism School for one year before transferring to ND as an American Studies major.

His writings have been printed in the Notre Dame Magazine, Public Relations Handbook, the Observer and student publications of the University of Missouri.

Truesdell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Truesdell, Niles. He is presently residing at 4330 Queens Row, South Bend.

Lucy emphasized that women as well as men are an important part of the Boy Scout volunteer program. "The scouts can work just as well with girls. They can work with the cub packs."

"The Explorer clubs are open to girls now," Hall added.

As leaders and liaison

Boy Scouts need student volunteers

The area council for the Boys Scouts of America needs Notre Dame and St. Mary's students to aid local scout troop programs in underprivileged areas.

Volunteers are needed as leaders for cub scout packs, as assistant leaders, and as liaison between the local scout troops and the area council. In the last several years Notre Dame and St. Mary's students have served in similar capacities.

Last year we had around 25 or 26," said Charlie Lucy, local scout coordinator.

"We'd like to have kids with scouting experience but we have a training program," he added. The student volunteers would work among poverty areas of the South Bend area. Both Lucy and Wayne Hall, another local scout coordinator, cited the need for minority volunteers.

"If we can set some Spanish-speaking students," said Hall, "that will really help us out in a couple of areas."

Griff as he is usually known, and his spaniel, Darby O'Gill are much loved members of Notre Dame.

There are certain restaurants in New York City that should be avoided if you are going to say goodbye to someone you love very much. If you eat dinner there, the meal at first may be merely pleasant, but as darkness falls over Central Park and the Hudson River, and the streets and signs of the borough become silhouetted with light, then the view becomes that of a night kingdom filled with magic; and diners learn the mood of poets of their day. For he was a playboy consorting with the pretentious in their claims) as he did when he was a playwright and actor, a sitting on the Bector's third floor. But as darkness falls over Manhattan is viewed from a forty-sixth floor.

So with Manhattan as poigniant to memory as the remembrance of a lastie that recently lost, one like myself returns to this campus where faith and priesthood are nourished. Now, this autumn, one's favorite restaurant in New York is one of several members of Notre Dame.

As a help and a ministry to growth and healing.

USC trip slated for seniors

by John DeCoursey
Staff Reporter

The Senior Class is sponsoring its annual Senior Trip to Los Angeles for the Notre Dame-Southern California Football Game.

"This is the biggest Senior trip ever planned," commented Greg Erickson, Senior class President and chairman of the Senior Trip. "We have 521 reservations so far, and this number is three times more than we expected."

Describing the purpose of the trip Erickson said, "This trip is intended especially for Seniors, Inflation blamed for tuition, room and board increases

By Bill Gonzenbach
Staff Reporter

Inflation has again necessitated an increase in tuition, room and board fees for the 1974-75 school year at Notre Dame. Fr. Theodore Hesburgh revealed this summer that there would be a $166 increase in tuition, room and board fees, which is due to increased prices for such items as fuel, food, the 1974-75 school year.

Fr. Wilson cited that in the past two years coal prices have increased from $14 to $20 a ton. Wilson also reported that the increase of $100 for student salaries in the work-study program. He added that scholarship aid was still dependent on alumni funds and that it would not increase in proportion to the tuition increase.

Compared with other private universities, tuition at Notre Dame is minimal, Wilson said. The Chronicle of Higher Education reported that Brown University, Yale University, and New York University would all have tuition increases of $250 for the 1974-75 school year.

130 rooms have been reserved. For the student's convenience, we have reserved 130 rental cars for five days, and students will only have to pay for gas. Next week we will send out forms to applicants to list the three other people they want to room with and to share their car."

Erickson pointed out that deposits will be accepted until September 6 at the Student Activities Office in La Fortune Center. The deposits are $50.00 and the whole cost of the trip is $250.00.

"This is $5.00 more than we originally planned," said Erickson. "The increase is due to the fuel surcharge of the airlines and the addition of the rental cars."

Final payment is due September 31. If the balance is not paid by that time, students will be removed from the list and replaced by those on the waiting list.

Detailing the refund situation, Erickson said, "If a person has paid his money and plane seats are 'not available', his money will be refunded. If however, plane seats are available and a person cancels out, the money will not be refunded. But I would like to point out that Seniors are assured of a place on the plane."

"I'd like to ask for everybody's cooperation in following the outlines of the trip and abiding by the deadlines," Erickson said. "A lot of work has been put into the planning of this trip, especially by the other class officers, Bob Spann, Joe Henderlong and Chris Fenn. We all feel that this will be a great way to get away from the books."

Sailors brave raft trip

by Dan Carmichael

Honolulu UPI - Without taking a step, six U.S. reserve pilots floated in a 16-foot raft for 56 days 2,000 miles across the Pacific thinking of one thing - eating. "Everything we said was related to food," said one of the adventurers, George Sigler, 29.

"Every night we dreamed of food. I always dreamed of pancakes covered with syrup," Sigler and his companion Charles Gore, 27, both of Alameda Calif., told San Francisco's Golden Gate in a life raft equipped with a small sail on July 4. The voyage was intended to prove that two men, without food or water but with simple survival gear, could find their way across the ocean.

"We met the challenge, and we hope that what we did will save the lives of future castaways," Gore said.

Although both men said they were big eaters, neither got hungry from stomach cramps although they thought constantly about food.

They got water from solar stills, navigated with a wrist watch and hoped to supplement their diet with fish.

Each lost 40 pounds during the voyage that began July 4 when they headed for Hawaii. The two were served Thursday morning with mounds of pancakes smothered in maple syrup. They also were given bacon and eggs, orange juice, coffee and milk.

On Wednesday night, when they arrived, Gore and Sigler had ravenous appetites. A Navy spokesman said the both ordered pancakes, bacon and eggs, orange juice and coffee.

"We're hungry," he said.

The worst and most dangerous moment of the trip came only two days after they set sail when a giant wave capsized the raft off Monterey, Calif. They spent more than two hours in the water struggling to get back in the raft. Most of their equipment was washed away.

For the first 46 days they existed on three pieces of candy and one vitamin C pill a day.

Then, from then until the day before they were rescued they lived solely on water made from a solar still.

Their first fish catch, on Tuesday, consisted of five dolphins.

The two men were rescued by the Coast Guard Wednesday after spending 56 days in the rough Pacific Ocean. The men had planned to drift to the Hawaiian island of Kauai before ending their dangerous venture, but the Navy asked to Coast Guard to pick them up 128 miles northwest of Hawaii.

Part of their mission was an official Navy research project, and the Navy was concerned about their health.

President Ford works on labor, economic problems

WASHINGTON UPI - President Ford Thursday put his chief economic coordinator in charge of the governments new anti-inflation council and filled the panel's seven other seats with key administration officials.

In his continuing dialogue with organized labor, Ford also spent 50 minutes discussing economic problems with Leonard Woodcock, President of the United Auto Workers.

A prominent Democrat, Woodcock said Ford would make a "compassionate" president but he sharply criticized two current cabinet members - Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and Labor Secretary Peter Brennan.

In a White House day that once again focused on economic affairs, Press Secretary M.F. terHorst said Ford would not ask Congress again focused on economic affairs.

"We're not asking Congress for anything," he said.

As he spoke, Ford cautioned Americans not to expect "instant Miracles" in the fight to cut into the rising cost of living. "This is an uphill struggle," he said. "We're all in it together. We must work together, but we must be ready for sacrifices, and we must be prepared to stick it out over the long haul.

Ford named White House counselor Kenneth Rush as chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which was created under legislation Ford signed last Saturday.

The eighth member is a milder version of the defunct Cost of Living Council and will monitor and expose wage, price and profit increases as it considers inflationary.

The council are Butz, Brennan, Commerce Secretary M. C. Simon, Agriculture Secretary Frederick B. Dent, Budget Director Roy Ash, White House Consumer Affairs Adviser Virginia Knauer and presidential counselor Anne Armstrong.

Woodcock sympathized with Butz, Brennan and Labor Secretary Peter Brennan.

"We said was related to food."

Reserve pilots floated in a 16 foot...
ND defense shines - offense sputters

by Greg Corgan
Sports Editor

The last full-scale scrimmage of the fall pre-season ended Wednesday afternoon at least injury-free and with whopping 53 points on the scoreboard.

The offense managed 46 of those points while the defense had seven of their own as a result of a Tony Novak interception. The junior linebacker picked off a Tom Clements pass and returned it 45 yards for a touchdown.

Most of the action during the two-hour workout took place between the number one and two units. The first unit got things going after Al Wojcik recovered Ross Christensen's fumble of a Tony Kuzmlcz punt.

Kangaroo Tom Clements led scoring drives of 22 and 30 yards and engineered drives of 45 and 36 yards which resulted in field goals.

Backup signal caller Frank Allocco also directed first team scoring drives of 55 and 70 yards. "The offense was a little sluggish," offered Ara, "but that has a lot to do with the fact that we weren't concerned with using too much option stuff. We went mostly with all play, and I said before we were concerned with certain particular areas. But still, I was disappointed with the number of turnovers during the workout.

Nonetheless there were some impressive running performances. Halfback Al Samuel had 43 yards in nine carries while fullback Wayne Bullock had 49 yards in seven attempts. Clements also had 31 yards in three carries including a 12-yard run.

The first team backfield consisted of Clements, Bullock, Samuel and Ron Goodman. Later on in the afternoon Art Best saw some action with the first team and even scored a touchdown, but for the time being, Best is still with the second unit.

"Art has improved some," noted Parseghian, "and he's coming along, but he's not made a move to the first team yet.

Two people who have are junior Randy Payne and freshman Randy Harrison in the defensive secondary. Harrison has moved up to replace Bob Zaut who was injured last Saturday and Payne has temporarily moved ahead of Tom Loepenki at right corner.

"Lopinski and Payne are still pretty even in the battle for the right halfback position," said Ara. "Randy had a good scrimmage Saturday afternoon, has been doing a good job all fall especially, and we like to reward good performance with advancement. Right now we're giving Randy a shot at the position."

The first team defense fared signs of last year's prowess. They allowed the second team defensive unit no points and less than 100 yards in total offense.

The secondary of Reggie Banks, John Dubenetzky, Payne and Harrison accounted for one interception, that one by Barnett, while Drew Mahale made sure the linebacking crew kept even picking the first unit as yet.

The defensive line of Steve Niehaus, Jim Stock, Kevin Nobsbusch, and Mike Fanning remained intact and allowed the number two Irish practically nothing on the ground.

Overall, Parseghian was pleased with the defensive play. "The defense definitely improved over the last scrimmage. They forced some turnovers, and overall did a good job. Steve Niehaus is coming along in the end position. We've moved him inside so that he's almost playing a wide tackle spot. The only thing about Steve is that we'd like him to trim down some. He's playing with a little too much weight."

The first and second teams saw the most playing time, the third and fourth displayed what they could during the third quarter. Moriarty directed a 60-yard scoring drive midway through the period.

The Irish have but eleven days until season opener with Georgia Tech and will scrimmage once more on Saturday. This will pit the first and second teams against the third and fourth units.

Basketball coach Digger Phelps (above) will temporarily forget foul shots for foul balls Sunday, as he and teammate Roger Valdiserri try their hands at softball. Phelps, attempting to prove his recruiting prospects, faces a team of players led by center, "Duck" Williams, Dave Bolton, and Randy Haeffner, along with his assistant coaches Frank McNamara and Dick DiBlasio.

Sports Information personnel Bob Best, and assistant ticket manager Mike Busick round out the squad.

Opposing Phelps, and eager for their one chance of the season to bat around are the ten up-perclassmen from last year's 26-3 squad, led by newly elected co-captains Dwight Clay and Peter Crocker, the team will also include the leading returning scorer Adrian Donnely and sometime starters Bill Paterno and Roy Martin. Completing the veterans' squad will be senior Tom Varga, juniors Roger Anderson and Byron Schuckman, and sophomore Bill Drew, Toby Knight, and Dave Kupecz.

The game will be held at Cartier Field Sunday at 3 p.m. All are invited to come see the Irish starters in their 75 debut.

For Irish Golf Coach Noel O'Sullivan, summer vacillation couldn't end any sooner for his players to return to Notre Dame's upcoming fall season. "I am so optimistic about our chances this year, that I think we're going to set the tone for the season competing in the NCAA's" said O'Sullivan. "I have five of my starters returning, and each one has the potential to lead us to the NCAA's and to aseasonally secure our chances."

The veteran players returning for Coach O'Sullivan include Jeff Burda, last year's co-captain, seniors Mike Kistner and Ed Whelan, and juniors Paul Kropowski and Jim Calvehoyse. These players led Notre Dame's resurgence in golf and set a few school records in doing it, including setting the five-man low team score in O'Sullivan's first year as head coach.

Burda, a junior from Aptos, California, is a three-year starter for the team. His consistent play and determination has made him a powerful force for the Irish. Mike Kistner and Ed Whelan provided Coach O'Sullivan with strong play last year, and he's been eagerly awaiting to continue their fine performances.

Kropowski and Calvehoyse give O'Sullivan a solid nucleus to build on for the future. Their play last spring inspired the team and gave both added confidence.

The fall outlook for the Irish linkmen appears to be a rather rigorous one with home and away matches versus Purdue in September and other ones in the planning stages. The Irish will also host the Notre Dame Invitational, with a field of eight universities already entered. "The future of golf under O'Sullivan, borrowing George Allen's quote, "We are ready to play, and we will do a good job." With a coach the caliber of Noel O'Sullivan, you know that the Irish golfers will be making big news in the upcoming year.

Northwestern trip planned by juniors, bus and tickets

The junior class will be sponsoring a trip to the Northwestern football game on Saturday September 21. Transportation to the Evanston campus will be on Greyhound buses, which will leave from Keating Hall at 10:45.

Tickets for this game will be $10.00 and will include both the bus fare and the game admission.

President Augie Grace commented that class wanted to provide an alternative to the more expensive senior class trip to U.S. Congress. However, there are only 75 openings available for the bus trip, so it is advised that any interested student, regardless of his class, call one of the junior class officers as soon as possible.

For reservations call Augie Grace (3212) or Sue Caramaz (3212) or Betsy Kall (6047).
