Senior Club fate discussed

by Valerie Zurbitz
Staff Reporter

Dean of Students John Macheca, Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs Father Terry Lally and Dr. Robert Ackerman, Director of Student Affairs said Wednesday the purpose of the Senior Club was to provide a clean place for seniors to gather and socialize.

"Any member of the senior class should feel free to go there alone or with a guest who is a friend," said Ackerman.

For example, Ackerman said that students felt there was no place to sit and talk on campus. Upstairs in the club a section was provided for socializing.

It was pointed out that the nature of the place had changed from last year due mainly to student complaints. "Students came to us with their complaints and we responded to their concerns," said Lally.

"People with a higher notion of what a Senior Club should be decided not to open their doors to let it be used for something other than for what it was intended," said Ackerman.

On the dismissal of manager William "Bucky" Smith, Macheca commented that certain responsibilities were to be performed and if they weren't, the internal structure must be reconsidered. "It was a personnel thing and personnel changes shouldn't go to length in a newspaper," commented Macheca.

Macheca said that Student Affairs did something wrong in not considering that they had indicated they wanted done with their help as the decision had to be made. "It's important for seniors to know we're trying to do," he said.

Lally said the newly appointed co-managers, Jim Sweedyk and Jim Shanahan, would do a good job. "They understand what kind of club it should be," said Lally.

Ackerman added, "Ideally, the senior club should be for seniors only. No underclassmen should be admitted." He explained that it would be unfair if a freshman girl went because she was dating a senior boy. Other freshmen couldn't get in and eventually the club would have to open up to the entire student body.

Lally said that those using fake IDs were not开门, but that's the way we're operating," he commented.

Ray Capp, a committee member of the bar's renovation, said, "We didn't want another Nickle's or Crocker. We wanted a coffeehouse-type place where you can take a date or some friends.

Capp explained that the committee tried to fix the place up to look nice and convey the idea. They also wanted to put the crowds down.

"After it had been opened awhile, I visited the club and found it dirty and filthy. The painting was done, things were kicked in, the curtains weren't up and the shutters were off," Capp related.

He was also surprised when Smith was dismissed. "When we were doing renovating, we assumed our work had stopped and management would take over the cleaning and keeping up of the place," he said. "It wasn't being done."

Flanner or Grace may be women's dorms' next year

by Paul Young and Terry Keeney

University Housing Director Fr. John Mulcahy yesterday proposed converting either Flanner or Grace Halls into a women's dorm to accommodate an additional 200 to 300 women expected on campus next year. Under Mulcahy's plan Farley Hall would become a men's dorm again.

In a letter to resident hall rectors, Mulcahy said that this proposal was only one of several alternative solutions to the problem of housing a larger women's enrollment.

Final decision on the matter rests with University President Fr. Theodore Henshaw with the advice of the Officers of the University.

Brother Just Paccerny, vice president for Student Affairs and an officer of the University, emphasized that the conversion of Flanner or Grace is only one solution currently being considered.

"Fr. Mulcahy merely gave possible solutions and he was seeking ideas from hall staffs on this matter," said Paccerny. "In no way have we come to a final decision on this matter." Best option

The conversion of Flanner or Grace into a women's dorm is favored by Mulcahy as the best among three options he believes open to the University.

According to Mulcahy, the other two options are to force women to move off campus by including them in a housing lottery or to find alternate housing on campus for the additional women.

Mulcahy said that the lottery for women is a strong possibility, an option that can and will be implemented, since last spring.

He said that he was seeking ideas from hall staffs on this matter, "to come to a final decision on this matter.

Transfer men to Farley

One possible option is to build on university land some modular building like Campus View or Crestwood sponsored by the university," Paccerny said.

Flanner or Grace may be women's dorms next year

Hall, about 244 in number, would be transferred next year to one of the two towers. The returning residents from either Flanner or Grace numbering about 500 would be moved to Farley. The difference in numbers in the two halls would be resolved by seniors graduating and the non-admission of freshman into Farley for one year, Mulcahy said.

Mulcahy noted the advantages of choosing one of the towers as the sixth women's dormitory:

"The towers would make excellent women's dorms as they would require practically zero in renovation fees, excepting perhaps the addition of a laundry room," Mulcahy said.

He also cited the large number of beds available in Flanner or Grace as a factor in planning future women admissions.

Mulcahy noted that the decision to admit 300 freshman women next year is the source of the housing problems. According to Mulcahy, of 125 senior women graduating this year only 75 are living on campus. Thus the university must find about 300 beds for the new women students next year.

Five-year coeducation plan

According to Sr. John Miriam Jones, assistant to the provost, the goal of the five-year University coeducation policy is to have a female enrollment of 500 by 1974. Currently 1,138 women are enrolled as undergraduates.

Jones said that although there has never been a formal talk for a sixth women's dorm, university officials have been considering housing possibilities since last spring.

Jones argued that the conversion of another male dorm to a women's dorm is the least desired of many solutions which won't solve many problems and might create a few new problems. Jones favors the last solution.

Of the three options open to the university to house women next year (four women come off campus, converting another men's dorm, searching for alternate housing), Jones favors the last solution.

Jones believes that final decision on the question will be reached by January. "She said that the Office of the University will consider many options to solve the problem of residential availability including proposals to use mobile homes to house students.

"We're at a position now where we don't really have the money to build a new dorm and wish we did," Jones said.
WASHINGTON, UPI - The House Education and Labor Committee Wednesday unanimously approved an emergency $2 billion public service jobs bill to combat rising unemployment.

The money, to be pumped into city and state governments to provide needed public service jobs, in areas of severe unemployment, would be authorized for one year.

The measure also contains provisions to broaden unemployment compensation benefits in hard hit areas of the nation.

The bill was described by committee staffers as a "stop gap emergency one year effort to pump more money out right away for public service jobs."

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) - Striking miners have ratified a new contract with the coal industry and United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller will announce the end of the 23-day strike Thursday, UPI has learned.

The miners should return to work early next week, according to several high union sources who said a celebration was already under way at UMW headquarters in Washington Wednesday night.

A union source earlier told UPI that the contract ending the strike, which was one more blow to an already reeling American economy, had been approved.

CHICAGO (UPI) - A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted 10 former and present Illinois legislators and eight other persons on charges of conspiracy, bribery, extortion and mail fraud.

Seven of the legislators were charged with taking bribes ranging from $200 to $4,000 from the ready mix cement industry, then voting for a bill the industry wanted passed.

Three were charged with extorting $1,500 from the car rental industry in return for killing a bill the industry wanted passed. Both the alleged schemes took place in 1971 and 1972.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The House, invoking for the first time anti-impoundment powers Congress gave itself earlier this year, voted Wednesday to require that President Ford spend $50 million of the $657.6 million he sought to cut from his budget.

The House passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate for final action an Appropriations Committee recommendation that Ford be allowed to reduce his budget by at least $117 million. The figure did not include an estimated $16.2 million the House voted to allow Ford to cut from appropriations to finance college housing.

But House leaders said the action means the President will have to spend the other $430 million he had sought to cut from appropriations for the Rural Electrification Administration and the agricultural conservation program. More than $455.6 million of that amount had been appropriated for REA alone.

Freshman Council elects officers before break

Members of the Freshman Advisory Council elected a slate of officers at a social gathering held at the Flanner Towers before Thanksgiving Break. The council, consisting of one Freshman from each of the twenty residence halls, selected Jim Russell of Holy Cross Hall as Chairman, and George Lucas of Flanner Hall as Secretary.

The two officers are responsible for all Council transactions, meetings, and agenda items. Their term will last until the end of this academic year.

In three separate "budget rescission" messages through Nov. 13, Ford asked permission to cut funds Congress appropriated for specific programs of the Agriculture, Housing and Urban Development and Interior Departments and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Besides the college housing funds, the House Wednesday allowed the following cuts:

-$4.89 million for development of roads and trails by the Bureau of Land Management.

-$10.46 million for construction of roads and trails by the National Park Service.

-$53.6 million for roads and trails development by the Forest Service.

-$490 million earmarked for improvement of existing airports in the Appalachian region.

Have a BIG appetite?

AzaR's BIG Boy Restaurant
52860 U.S. 31 North

Try Our Country Fried Chicken (Specials on Tuesday and Thursday)

Phone 272-9720 for carry-out service

THE SMC THEATRE
1974-75
Our Ninth Season

Fellows

A premiere production of this comedy-strugle in the absurd written by NO-YU graduates, Judson and Peter Loux.

The Observer is published daily during the college semester except examination weeks by the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased at per copy, and may be purchased at the University bookstore. Single copies may be purchased at $.10 each. The Observer Box Q. Notre Dame, Indiana 46556. Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

THE DOOBIE BROTHERS
IN CONCERT
TUESDAY, DECEMBER 10
8:30 P.M.

NOTRE DAME AHELETIC AND CONVOCATION CENTER

TICKETS: $7.00, $6.50, $6.00
TICKETS FROM NOV. 23 WILL BE HONORED ON DEC. 10. GOOD TICKETS IN ALL PRICE RANGES WILL BE AVAILABLE AT THE DOOR NIGHT OF CONCERT.
ND Counseling Center to host Open House

by Bob Radziewicz

The Notre Dame Counseling Center will host an open house on Saturday, December 7, in their new Center according to Dr. Sheridan, director of the center.

“The purpose we’re holding this open house is to increase the awareness of the campus that our service exists and is readily available to everyone,” McCabe said.

More violence strikes Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — Four explosions hit Addis Ababa Monday and small arms fire echoed through the streets of the Ethiopian capital.

At least 12 people were hurt, police said.

“The military government blamed the violence on followers of recently executed public officials and aristocrats.”

Steve Shankel, an off-campus senior who is involved in setting up a CO-OP, designed to meet the needs of both the on and off-campus students, and we hope to offer more than just food," Shankel said. "We have divided the Counseling Center into three distinct programs," McCabe began. "First, there is the 'direct services' counseling, in which we offer educational and vocational planning sessions for students. This takes up about half our time," he noted.

ND food co-op to open shortly

by Catherine Brown

A food co-op designed to meet the needs of both the on and off-campus students of Notre Dame should be opened in two weeks.

Steve Shankel, an off-campus senior who is involved in setting up the co-op for Student Government, described the operation as in the planning stage.

"We have a building, and we have made contacts with the distributors. Everything is in the verge, but not quite ready," explained Shankel.

Student Government is presently appealing to the Office of Student Affairs for funds for the co-op budget. The appeal is due to the Student Government budget.

"In the long run, we hope the co-op will be self-supporting and making enough of a profit to pay the overhead and rent, but initial funding will come from the administration and Student Government," said Shankel.

The co-op’s location on South Bend Avenue across from View Apartments is only five minutes walking distance from campus, making it accessible to on-campus students as well. "We hope it will be used by on-campus and off-campus students, and we hope to offer more than just food," explained Shankel.

Shankel’s interest in food co-ops stems from the successful operation of one at Kent State University, near his hometown of Canton, Ohio. The student co-op there was "supplying the students with inexpensive items and meeting a real need," commented Shankel.

This interest prompted Shankel to volunteer his services in setting up a co-op at Notre Dame, along with his partner, Jim Wygle, president of Campus and Off-campus Commissioner Stan Cardenas.

Shankel mentioned a survey of on and off-campus students, which should be in the mail in a few days, to determine if the co-op is wanted and the needs of the students it will serve.

Shankel attributed the co-op’s creation in part to "a lot of people in Business Administration who went out of their way to help us out," especially Professor Guelt, who lent me six of his students to help with surveying, researching, supplyering, etc."
Kissinger defends Soviet arms agreement

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger launched an energetic offensive Wednesday to promote President Ford's Vladivostok strategic arms agreement — and apparently won the sympathy of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. After the two-hour closed session, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., who is expected to succeed Sen. J. William Fulbright as chairman, said: "I think I can say there was a spirit of optimism — progress was made."

Kissinger, in comments to newsmen, conceded that the accord between President Ford and Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev would probably allow "some degree of an arms race continuing, but the urgency will be removed."

Kissinger stressed that the imposition of rigid ceilings on the total number of bombers and missiles the Soviet Union and the United States possess, as well as a ceiling on the missiles which can carry multiple warheads (MIRVs) would eliminate the superpower "nightmare" that its adversary had suddenly vastly increased its strategic arsenal.

"For the first time in 30 years of the nuclear age," Kissinger said, "fixed ceilings will exist and both sides will avoid the nightmare."

Kissinger, who was reporting on Vladivostok, the Middle East, Cyprus and his recent trip to Peking, acknowledged that he was surprised by the wave of congressional criticism over the Vladivostok accord. "I'm surprised," he said, adding that the agreement would be seen as "a very significant achievement (when) the figures are correctly analyzed."

The accord would limit the United States and Soviet Union to 2,400 missiles and bombers, of which 1,300 can be equipped with multiple warheads. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, told newsmen after the meeting that the accord was "very important" and offered "the first promise of getting the nuclear arms race under control."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., similarly called the accord "meaningful and hopeful."

---

Student Government sponsors off campus storage program

by Jim Donathan

Starve a thief for Christmas?

Student government hopes its semester break storage program for off-campus students will do just that.

Student Body President Patrick McLaughlin yesterday asked faculty and staff to contact student government at 203-7688 before Wednesday, December 11.

"The rash of burglaries in the off-campus community is unbelievable," said Frank Flanigan, student body vice-president. "Christmas time will be haven for thieves."

McLaughlin urged interested faculty and staff to contact student government at 203-7688 before Wednesday, December 11.

"With our starve a thief program, students can store anything they want with the understanding they are doing so at their own risk," said Flanigan. It appears that there will be ample space to accommodate all students' needs.

Some letters were not mailed until 4 p.m., student government had received several offers from faculty and staff by yesterday evening.

"A lot of students probably have agreed to store valuable items such as stereos and televisions somewhere during the break.

"With our starve a thief program, students can store anything they want with the understanding they are doing so at their own risk," added Flanigan.

Santa nabs purse snatcher in suburban shopping center

CINCINNATI (UPI) - "Stop or I'll shoot," yelled Santa Claus.

Armed only with his jingle bells, Santa caught a purse snatcher at a suburban shopping center Tuesday.

Santa, alias Arthur White, 35, was beginning his 11th season - the center's Santa and had just stood up to say goodbye to a child when he saw a teenager grab a woman's purse.

"We must have run for nearly a mile through the shopping center," he said. "I lost my hat, glasses and beard after about 30 yards."

"Stop or I'll shoot," yelled White, apparently from instinct because he works as a security guard during the off season.

The suspect was finally caught, but escaped again and scaled a high fence. The suspect was finally caught, but escaped again and scaled a high fence. He was helped by, naturally, his helpers - Paul Cain, 17.

Cain, who had been taking pictures of children as they talked with Santa, helped in capturing the suspected robber a second time and held him for police.

---

Bridge-Vu Theater presents

The New Kingston Trio

Beginning this weekend

Bridge-Vu Theater

U.S. 30 West, Valparaiso, Indiana

219 462-0563 46383

---

---

---

---

---
 report was written by Joseph E. Shickich, president of the ND Chapter and Mark J. Clark, treasurer.

The report divided the toys into two categories: those that failed to meet the standards of safety established by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), and those not judged dangerous according to FDA standards but considered dangerous by INPIRG.

Some of the toys found dangerous were: a Raggedy Ann Travel "Make Up Kit," a Princess Phone with Moving Dial, a Zoo and Animal, and "I'd Climb Walls For You" doll, a Star Trek Tracer Gun and a can of Silly String.

Discussing the purpose of the report Schickich said, "Our primary emphasis is to tell the consumers what toys are unsafe. "We want these toys," continued Schickich, "to be made out of materials that are safer. It wouldn't entail any great change in manufacturing."

Schickich suggested possible alterations for some of the toys mentioned in the survey. "These doll clothes," he said, "could be replaced with fireproof material." (The report stated the doll ignited when brought in contact with a match flame.)

"The glass in the mirrors could be replaced with a material similar to tin foil, and the glass piggy bank could have been made out of plastic," Clark added.

The survey was conducted by members of INPIRG, and the final

Drinkers favor government control but not liquor rationing

By ROBERT D. LURATI

NEW YORK (UPI) - A sobbing Fanne Foxe told Tuesday night she was going to Washington Wednesday to visit Rep. Wilbur Mills at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Miss Foxe, whose notoriety skyrocketed after a midnight ride with Mills that ended when she was thrown from the Capitol's "Tidal Basin Bombshell," to visit ailing Mills

"I feel awful," she said. "I don't want all this attention." now.

"We don't want to be restricted in their freedom to imbibe," Drinkers would like the government to do something about specific measures such as increasing taxes or making liquor, Californians objected.

"Fifty-seven per cent of adults sampled are against making drinking more expensive by increasing alcohol taxes," the study said. "Seven­five per cent are against rationing alcohol so that everybody could buy only a modest amount each month."

The study was carried out by Prof. Don Cahalan of the University of California at Berkeley for the state legislature, and was financed with measures relating to California's consumption of alcohol.

"More Californians drink, and they drink more heavily than in true for the U.S. as a whole," the report said.

Only 15 per cent of those surveyed said they had not drunk at all in the past year. One-third had gotten "tight" at least once, and 16 per cent admitted being under the influence at least once a month.

Cahalan said the prevailing opinion seemed to be that the government should do something to keep drunks out of automobiles, and undertake a campaign to educate young Californians on how to be "responsible" drinkers, rather than trying to stop them from indulging altogether.

The public does not place a high priority on doing something for the "bums and derelicts" on skid row, according to the study.

By Roger Norum

WASHINGTON - A sobbing Fanne Foxe told Tuesday night she was going to Washington Wednesday to visit Rep. Wilbur Mills at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Miss Foxe, whose real name is Annabel Battistella, said Mills, a Democrat from Arkansas, told her by telephone Monday night he was going to Bethesda Naval Hospital because "he didn't feel well." Mills entered the hospital Tuesday.

"He's ill," she said, "and I do care for him very much and I'm very upset about it."

"I want to see him," Miss Foxe said, who was billed as the "Argentine Firecracker" prior to the Washington incident, after which the billing was changed to "The Tidal Basin Bombshell." She said her husband was bringing her daughter to New York Wednesday in case the child could fly home to Argentina for the holidays.

"I can't go home to Washington until then but I want to see him Mills," she said.

Miss Foxe limped through two brief performances Tuesday as shouts of "Take it off!" changed to boos and catcalls when she stripped only her bra and stayed on stage for about 13 minutes.

"I wanted to go on and apologize but they expected more for their money than I could do and there were more people waiting outside, too," she said tearfully.

"Now I feel awful," she said. "I don't want all this attention. It was good up to a certain point but it's gone too far beyond the limit."

Crying, she said, "I just can't talk anymore."

Olga Labalnche, manager of Time Square theater where Miss Foxe was performing, said Miss Foxe was "very upset" when she heard Mills had entered the hospital.

BROTHERS BRAUER TWURST
S. Mary's Coffee House
Below Dining Room
PEPSI 35¢ PEPSI

*IF YOU BUY TWO**
* GET A 9 OZ. PEPSI FREE *
* WITH THIS AD *

Open Daily Until Midnight
Friday & Saturday Until 2:00 A.M.
Offer Valid Until Dec. 21, 1974.
Dear Editor:

The word "Mexico" conjures up various connotations in the North American mind. Most Americans picture a sunny desert filled with cacti and perpetually-dozing senores, with an occasional bandito waking up to pillage and laborer. However, one and a half times as many Americans live in the United States as in Mexico. Most Americans plunder the unsuspecting Mexican as representative of its weather as weather in the Chicago unheated rooms only to come to the realization that, once again, it is capitalism, while they fall back outside of Mexico meal, which is an essential part of more interesting aspects of their home to rest and escape the heat, believing and emotional people, Mexicans put in a twelve-hour day to make ends meet, which is an essential part of the Mexican lifestyle.

Maureen O'Brien

CIA on campus

Editor

I have been reasonably impressed through inquiries made at Campus Ministry that the CIA does not recruit at Notre Dame. I hope that this trend will continue at this university remains such that the CIA can be seen as "un-welcoming" here, as I am informed they now feel.

Recently, a mediocre creditable publication and my own personal experience convince me that the actual goals and strategies of the CIA include murder, mass murder, torture and subversion. This contradicts and undermines the basic values upon which our social, religious and political institutions are founded.

I am not against intelligence-gathering agencies as such if they are under some form of public accountability. Although the ethics of secrecy in our public and private institutions needs to be discussed much more than it has to date, it appears obvious to me that secrecy in the CIA is designed as much to conceal violations of universally accepted human and political rights as it is to facilitate the objectives of gathering data necessary to conduct an acceptable and effective foreign pursuit. The traditions of the CIA, it cannot be refuted, rivet the inside. For these and other reasons, I do not believe that this university should make its facilities available to CIA recruiters under its present form, any more than it would to criminals for recruiting or to prostitutes for soliciting.

Sincerely,
Claude Pomerleau, CSE Instructor in Government

Northern Ireland

Dear Editor,

In your article covering my talk on Northern Ireland (Nov. 18 Observer), I stated that I called for immediate and complete withdrawal which would be at least three years hence by possibly no more than five.

This three-five year period could be one in which a massive effort be taken by all parties concerned to find real solutions to real problems. Presently, all sides seem unwilling to forego their respective stands which ultimately reject the historic and societal oppression. Slowly, the Protestants are realizing they have been hoodwinked by the British and slowly Catholics have come to see the obvious that an Irish Republican cannot be a Catholic Republic.

With the conflict raging on senselessly, I do see signs of possible evolution. By the first time in the history of Northern Ireland, contending factions are seeking peace for the first time, because of accommodation. The realization that the situation cannot be resolved without the consent of the working class Protestants and Catholics is a step towards a resolution.

Yours Sincerely,
David Thompson

Montezuma’s revenge

Dreams part two

Ray Ramirez

Dear Editor:

Do you remember the good old days when Freud simplified the analysis of dreams by distilling everything into one word—sex? If you dream of boozing, it was sexual; if you dreamed of food, it was sexual; in fact, almost everything stood for some sexual problem you had encountered. The two big sexual images though, were flying and water. If you dreamed of flying you obviously had some sexual problem that needed dealing with, and if you dreamt of water you showed a definite pre-occupation with sex (unless you went to bed thirsty). In short, dream analysis used to be merely a matter of figuring out which sexual problems the deviant at hand was suffering from and looking for a solution. Nowadays it is not so simple. Psychologists, while definitely very much aware of sex, are turning towards a more individualistic look at dreams and dreamers. With this in mind, and with the help of the latest knowledge in science we can, I hope, present a snapshot of some common dreams and their accepted analyses. Clip out this article and keep it by your bed for handy reference.

Dream: You walk into a delicatessen, order a giant, pin-striped ribeye of beef which proceeds to devour you in a matter of seconds, whereupon you excurse yourself and leave.

Analysis: You commonly agree that dreams such as these have a physiological basis, namely that you went to bed hungry. As for the pin-striped sandwich, check that you have not eaten your matress or your alarm-clock. In either case there will be absence of tucking.

Dream: You have a dream of weightless, soaring flight which abruptly ends in a painful crash. Amazingly enough, when you awake you actually feel a certain amount of pain.

Analysis: Perhaps you should close your window more often at night. You probably have fallen out again.

Dream: In this dream you are simply running and running, never stopping, never falling.

Analysis: Another physiological dream— you either have a bad case of scoliosis or you have been eating too much dining hall food.

Dream: You dream that you are a ruben sandwich, nervously waiting on the deli-counter shelf.

Analysis: I don’t know how you do it, but you have managed to slip between your mattress and box-spring.

Dream: You are Jack the Ripper. However, instead of attacking young women, you only attack students, stabilising them in the back with no emotion as you head towards a huge bank vault.

Analysis: A common undergraduate’s dream, limited only to pre-med students.

Dream: Hundreds of gorgeous naked girls are whipping you with hair dryers. You’ve been eating too much dining hall food.

Analysis: Gosh, you are ever sick . . . and dangerous too.

Dream: In this dream you are drifting among fluffy white clouds listening to angelic music and thinking only peaceful thoughts.

Analysis: Not that I mean to concern you any, but you have probably died in your sleep.

Dream: You are trapped behind enemy lines during World War I just as a mustard gas attack begins. Your eyes begin to water, you close your eyes. In full hellish agony you wake up.

Analysis: Your roommate has left his sweats on the radiator again.

Dream: A real nightmare. You are a writer and you have become so desperate for material that you decide to write an article on dreams, knowing full well that it’s been done hundreds of times before. The only difference for you is that you have a future designing basketball uniforms for Notre Dame.

Analysis: Show a complete lack of taste and tact. Perhaps you have a future designing basketball uniforms for Notre Dame.

Has it been brought to the attention of University officials that one of the Southern Dining Halls, has six toes on one foot? Perhaps it is symbolic. Perhaps not.

by Garry Trudeau

The observer

Night Editor — Mike Stricktho
Ass’t Night Editor — Mike Stricktho
Layout — Marcus Fanning
Copy Reader — Bob Quakenbush
Day Editor — Greg Corgan
Editorials — Fred Greiner, Dan Sanchez
Features — J.R. Baker
Sports — Pete Cashen, Greg Corgan
Typists — Mary Tobin, Camille Arriera, Don Roos, Hank Van Dyke
Compositor Graphic Artist — Marey Blinder
Picture Sdroer — Albert D’Atonio
Late Typist — Dave Rust
Night Controller — Tom Whelan

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

1. I DON’T THINK BLOWING AWAY THE MAN COMES BY TO COLLECT ON MY PROGRAM, BUT IF YOU ALL WERE GOING TO TELL HIM WHAT YOU MIGHT WANT... 2. I DON’T THINK BLOWING AWAY THE MAN COMES BY TO COLLECT ON MY PROGRAM, BUT IF YOU ALL WERE GOING TO TELL HIM WHAT YOU MIGHT WANT... 3. I DON’T THINK BLOWING AWAY THE MAN COMES BY TO COLLECT ON MY PROGRAM, BUT IF YOU ALL WERE GOING TO TELL HIM WHAT YOU MIGHT WANT...
Leonardo da Vinci - Believe It or Not the column designed to bring to you all the latest, most up-to-date discoveries of the world in the world.

Our latest article of discovery has been in the enigmatic field of architecture. Whether you all will be able to swallow this one out is debatable. Even here at the Post, many of our writers have given up on the idea of a real da Vinci's coffin. At least we have a claim to have one of the most famous people in the history of the world in the world before the turn of the sixteenth century. The story goes that da Vinci was supposed to have died, but reports from Florence and Milan, it seems, indicate that he was alive and well. The story goes that da Vinci was supposed to have died, but reports from Florence and Milan, it seems, indicate that he was alive and well.

Leonardo da Vinci was not a human being. It appears that he was more than that. Evidence supporting this lies with the fact that da Vinci's true family lineage is totally obscure. As well, very strange rumors report that he was a member of a secret school of anthropology where he has been standing behind a one-way mirror. The evidence supporting this lies with the fact that da Vinci's true family lineage is totally obscure.

It seems that there is a certain Mr. Notar Draswe who claims that da Vinci was born in 1518-1519. This story, Mr. Notar Draswe says, is part of a 75-man team which has been gathering information down through history. This is the story of Mr. Notar Draswe who claims that da Vinci was born in 1518-1519. He claims that this story is part of a 75-man team which has been gathering information down through history.

Evidence supporting this lies with the fact that da Vinci's true family lineage is totally obscure. As well, very strange rumors report that he was a member of a secret school of anthropology where he has been standing behind a one-way mirror. The experience of Dr. Drawe'o has been to see that the coast is clear, and then translate them. From their point of view, standing behind a one-way mirror. The experience of Dr. Drawe'o has been to see that the coast is clear, and then translate them.

This is the translation which rests in state at that location could not be done. When Dr. Drawe'o was asked to translate them, they refused to answer at this point. They simply went on to see that the coast is clear, and then translate them.

Better yet however, is the fact that this statement was made by a man who told us that when the larder is empty, and that speaker's Italian was no doubt presumably speaking Italian, not English; order to suggest, illogically, that they were speaking elegant Italian-if not, indeed, quoting an Italian man or woman speaking Italian.

This premise is to draw from our world all of the insights are sometimes very hard to find on this side of the glass.

Dr. Drawe'o refused to answer at this point. They simply went on to see that the coast is clear, and then translate them. They do not know, Madame Pepe. When exactly that achievement occurred in 1519.

"Butz remark is just one of a series of advertisements for American insensitivity toward human suffering. This is the story of Mr. Notar Draswe who claims that da Vinci was born in 1518-1519. He claims that this story is part of a 75-man team which has been gathering information down through history.

The phone rings. "Moscow calling. Your party is on the phone."

"Comrade D'Estaing," the speaker in Butz's story was an insult to the starving people of the world. To the 75 members of this 75-man government, it was all that they could do to get a word in edgewise. The 75 members of this 75-man government, it was all that they could do to get a word in edgewise.

"This is an emergency. France has seized one of our destroyers near Tahiti, and unless you give it back to us immediately we will consider it an act of war."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Brezhnev, I can't distress the president for just destroying. Why don't you write us a note?"

"I'm lucky, the 'Last Tango in Paris!'" the young playwright of 'fellows'

by andy peavler

As the fall term zooms to a frenzied finale, students and faculty will have one last chance this semester to view beginning theatre in general. Not all playwrights or directors are to be produced on the stage. The play selected from this screening will then be performed at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. The nomination of "Fellows" marks the first time Notre Dame has been fostered for an honor bestowed annually by the English department for the best original play of the year. The play, which has been selected for the American College Theatre Festival. Should it win from this region in January, it will proceed to the College Theatre Festival.

The descent of day and the flight of night mark the voyage of time that sails around, going out, coming. the boat standing still. Dusk and dawn are drawn high upon the sky, and counting up the dance of sons, we wait for revolution and parting, for a world that comes from cracks in the mind with no sound. People with glasses climb the hill, reaching for the sky, swimming in the sea. Dawn, noon, and dusk, all the same quick become in the long light of time across the stars.

Here we are: on earth, a woman frea, a child starved; here, there is light. The clickity-clack of time on drums until in darkness neither after, nor before is revealed in the rush. Humans mass in valleys between the thrones of kings and things that make the mountains shake.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

Professor Kertesz is a soft-spoken man,ordialal his characteristic personality I suppose one would expect of a former career diplomat. Yet Kertesz's easy grace is not simply a tool of his trade. He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

Professor Kertesz is a soft-spoken man, cordialal his characteristic personality I suppose one would expect of a former career diplomat. Yet Kertesz's easy grace is not simply a tool of his trade. He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

Professor Kertesz is a soft-spoken man, cordialal his characteristic personality I suppose one would expect of a former career diplomat. Yet Kertesz's easy grace is not simply a tool of his trade. He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.

He was born shortly after the turn of the century in a small town of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. He grew up in the provincial city of Rimavskas Sobota and part of Czechoslovakia. Many years later and several thousands of miles from his birthplace, he now works on the 12th floor of Notre Dame's Law School. His name is Stephen D. Kertesz and he is the director of Notre Dame's Institute for International Studies.
RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Saudi Arabia is confident it can buy arms from the United States "with no strings attached" and has arranged to buy $300 million worth of munitions from France as well, according to the Saudi defense ministry.

Mary's students are planning to fast for a meal. They are from hunger-stricken countries, the world's starving, several hundred have invested. Instead we will donate $800 to the United States for munitions.

He also confirmed that Saudi Arabia plans to take full control of its vast oil resources in the near future by acquiring 100 per cent ownership of the Arabian American Oil Co. better known as Aramco, which at present is partly American-owned.

"Our direction now is toward 100 per cent ownership, but the time needed for this may be a few months," the prince said.

The American partners in Aramco are Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil of California and Mobil Oil. Saudi Arabia won 25 per cent participation in the company in December, 1972, and 60 per cent last June.

According to oil experts, the American companies would continue to provide technicians until Saudi Arabia can train more of its own. The American companies also would get a guaranteed supply of Saudi crude at favorable prices.

As an additional gesture, the Saudis might agree to boost their production from the current 4.5 million barrels per day to 11 million barrels, oil experts said.

St. Mary's fasts for hunger

by Mary Janca
St. Mary's Editor

In an effort to raise money for the world's starving, several St. Mary's students are planning to fast for a meal.

Although the fast will begin Monday, the students who participate will attend a conciliated meal at the Church of Loretto. Although all 2000 will participate, they will not have yet been determined, they will include four food service workers, who fasted in hunger-striken countries, Dongarra stated.

Non-profit organization, which operates the food service, will donate 50 cents for each student who fasts on Tuesday.

St. Mary's seeks to relieve hunger. By Tuesday night, and the salaries and staff of the food service's staff, SAGA is unable to donate more, said Dongarra, who is also a member of SMC's Campus Ministry.

No agency has yet been selected to receive the funds raised as a result of the fast, he continued.

Referring to an article in Tuesday's observer which noted that organizers of the fast and the dinner held at Notre Dame prior to Thanksgiving, may have lost their money because several students who agreed to participate failed to do so, Dongarra stated that there is no chance of losing money. We have nothing invested. Instead we will fast each day that a student who decides to come and the money will be taken Thursday from the student's account, he said.

Any student wishing to participate needs to register and should contact Dongarra at 5389, or Mary Beth Immler at 4911.

Turkish forces allow 400 Greek refugees to return to Cyprus

Nicosia (UPI) — Turkish occupation forces Wednesday allowed the first of nearly 400 Greek Cypriot refugees to leave a Kyrenia hotel for the first time since their confinement last summer, a U.N. spokesman said.

The move came amid heightened tensions on the war-occupied island because of the expected arrival from Athens Friday of Archbishop Makarios, over­ thrown as president in the July 15 coup that triggered the Turkish invasion of Cyprus.

The release of the refugees came as Acting President Glafkos Clerides and the Turkish Cypriot vice president, Rauf Denktash, held a final meeting prior to Makarios' scheduled arrival.

Fifty persons, most of them elderly or ill, left the Dome Hotel in Kyrenia under U.N. escort and were taken to Greek Cypriot areas in the south, the spokesman said.

The hotel is at the western end of the picturesque harbor of the former Greek Cypriot town of Nicosia. Turkish troops landed on beaches flashing the town in late July.

The U.N. spokesman said 300 persons have been confined in the hotel since the war. "This was the first group permitted to leave the hotel since the war," the spokesman said. "The whole group probably will be moved out by the weekend."

He said 50 Turkish Cypriots will be taken Thursday from the Greek Cypriot area near Paphos, at the southwestern tip of the island and the site of Makarios' home, to Turkish-held areas in the north.

Turkish forces have occupied nearly 40 per cent of the island, once a tourist mecca. The tourists, who were the island's one source of hard currency, have stayed away since the war.

Clerides and Denktash met for three and a half hours with U.N. and International Red Cross officials and then met privately for another 20 minutes, the spokesman said. They did not set a date for another meeting but the spokesman said one will be held. The two leaders, boyhood friends, have been meeting weekly on humanitarian issues affecting the island, including the release of prisoners of war and the plight of tens of thousands of persons made homeless by the war.

Michigan names the honey bee their state insect

Lansing, Mich. (UPI) — The Michigan Senate Wednesday rejected a House-passed bill designating the honey bee as the state insect, and the action touched off a round of beekeepers.

"I don't see how we can justify, at a time when we're trying to get the bugs out of government, putting the bees in," said Sen. Jack Paxson, D-Detroit, after the bill was defeated by a 19-7 vote.

Half a dozen senators took to the microphones to argue the merits of the honey bee.

"I thought the question was, 'What bee, not to bee,'" said Sen. James Fleming, R-Jackson.

The American partners in Aramco are Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil of California and Mobil Oil. Saudi Arabia won 25 per cent participation in the company in December, 1972, and 60 per cent last June.

According to oil experts, the American companies would continue to provide technicians until Saudi Arabia can train more of its own. The American companies also would get a guaranteed supply of Saudi crude at favorable prices.

As an additional gesture, the Saudis might agree to boost their production from the current 4.5 million barrels per day to 11 million barrels, oil experts said.
Scientists announce plans for Pioneer 11

by Robert Strand

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) - Space agency scientists decided Wednesday to angle the Pioneer 11 spacecraft inside the innermost ring of Saturn, less than 15,000 miles from the mysterious planet's surface.

Saturn's unique three rings, which are 81,000 miles wide, are only one mile thick - but they may be composed of flying rocks the size of the Empire State Building.

John H. Wolfe, chief project scientist, said the entire region around Saturn may contain flying rocks. At its high speed, Pioneer could be destroyed by a collision with a foot of dust.

Pioneer would flash through the plane of the rings in a fraction of a second, too fast at that point to take pictures. The distance from the planet to the innermost ring is 15,000 miles. Since Pioneer's encounter with Saturn in September, 1979, when Pioneer makes the first visit to Saturn.

The scientists decided to speed up the spacecraft by a few days so as to increase the angle between the three objects and avoid radio interference by the sun's corona.

Wolfe said the spacecraft will be on a course which eventually will take it out of the solar system, to Uranus - the next planet in the solarsystem, 1980, when the spacecraft will be nearly in a straight line with the sun and Saturn.

Instead of going to Uranus, the spacecraft will be on a course which eventually will take it out of the solar system, said Wolfe.

The course chosen ruled out a possibility that Pioneer would be routed after Saturn to the planet Uranus. To do so, Pioneer must pass through the rings when behind Saturn and out of radio communication, and Wolfe said, "We think that's a no-no."

ND-SMC Theater to present children's production of 'Beauty and the Beast'

by Norman F. Bower

The children's classic "Beauty and the Beast" is being offered on the weekend by the Theatre for the Young of the ND-SMC Theatre. The afternoon presentations in Saint Mary's O'Loughlin Auditorium will begin at 2:30 on December 18 and 19.

Dr. Richard Bergman of the schools' cooperative Speech and Drama Department will direct the ensemble production which Bergman noted might be best appreciated by those 4 to 12 years old, but enjoyed by everyone.

The 75 cent, unreserved tickets for all four showings will be on sale at the theatre box office one hour before the presentations. Tickets may be reserved by phone, at 477-2538.

According to Dr. Reginald Bain, chairman of the Speech and Drama Department, the Theatre for the Young has been rejuvenated during the past three years during which it has done two shows each year.

Past presentations have included the favorites "Winnie the Pooh," "Alice in Wonderland," "Robin Hood," and the Englishman Brian Way's participatory play "The Hat.

Formerly a traditional department feature, theatre for children is not as formalized in the department as the regular subscription program with its four offerings. According to Bain, "The Theatre for the Young is part of our total drama program." He added that even though the Theatre for the Young is in a department specialty, it has benefited the students and the community.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC forces cracks down on Dreads

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) - The tiny security forces of this eastern Caribbean island began arresting the Dreads today and shaving the long braids that mark them as members of the man police force and the man army launched an island-wide sweep to clean out the Dread guerrilla camp.

A police spokesman said that eight or nine Dreads were arrested in two areas and that their heads shaved before they were jailed.

The elimination of the organization, blamed for attacks on visiting and resident whites, will probable take until the end of next week, the spokesman said.
With this last-second one-hander, Dwight Clay made it 22 for himself, and 100 for Notre Dame.

Foils again for ND fencers

by Bill Delaney

Welcoming back a talented number of seniors for a nucleus is enviable for any coach, but Notre Dame Fencing Coach Mike DeCicco has the unusual pleasure of having at least three returnees in the three individual weapons this season.

"This year without a doubt has to be the biggest group of fences with previous experience that I've had the opportunity to work with," said DeCicco. "We're tremendously strong in epee and foil, and if our sabre comes around, I think we will be very hard to stop us."

Among those veterans returning for Irish are sophomore Tom Bliss, sophomore Sam DiFiglio in epee, and sophomore Terry McConville in foil, and sophomore Sam DiFiglio in sabre. "In my opinion, Ed Fellows and Tim Glinn are two to be reckoned with," said DeCicco. "They virtually doubled All-American status last spring, and Glass has made the Olympic Trial Team for the upcoming games."

With John Strauss, junior Brad Conners and Tom Honzler backing these two up, the picture for epee looks very bright. The sabre contest appears to be wide-open, with only Sam DiFiglio the only certain starter. "We're complete in sabre, but not much more," commented DeCicco. "Youngsters like John Woods, Mike Kaza and John Vozello have continued to impress us this fall, and we've added John Krikel to our lineup.

In foil, intense competition has created a situation where DeCicco has five fencers at the top of the list. "We're trying to develop our personnel, because we need to be pressed to do the job we think we can do," said DeCicco.

In all, DeCicco and his Irish fencers have been learning the ins and outs of the game, and they are slowly getting the edge on their opponents. "This is a good time of the year to be in top shape, so I'm looking forward to the season opening at Illinois State."

Harrier Hurt hurts hip

by Pat Holleran

The running of the NCAA Cross Country Championships at Indiana a week ago Monday proved to be a successful event for the University of Oregon and runners from other countries, but not so successful for Notre Dame's two representatives, Joe Yates and Jim Hurt.

The Ducks successfully defended the title they gained a year ago, placing their top three runners in the 4-5-6 positions to cement a solid second-place finish. The continual improvement, however minute it may be, may be the difference in title contention this year.

The Irish fencers begin their season this weekend at the Illinois State pool. The Irish have a strong returning core, including three freshmen, Dave Drury, Adam Paterno have Both Hurt and Yates had problems, however. Hurt, who had been nursing a sore hip since the District meet, was forced to drop out with that injury after about 20 and one half miles. Yate's downfall was the stomach cramp which had been bothering him and off since the Notre Dame Invitational.

The top 100, with what Coach Piane termed "an excellent chance to win the top 100," showed the painful cramp, slowed, and ultimately finished fifth in the pack.

Yates voiced the opinion, however, that despite the cramp, he could really diminish the exciting season both runners had this fall, 1971.

With this last-second one-hander, Dwight Clay made it 22 for himself, and 100 for Notre Dame.

Swimmers open Friday in Notre Dame Invitational

by Errol Terrones

The 1974-75 Notre Dame swimming season begins this weekend at home with the traditional Notre Dame Invitational Relay. The teams competing in this event along with Notre Dame will be Bradley, Drury College, Oakland, Wayne State and Valparaiso. Last year, the Irish finished second in this meet, losing to Drury by 31 points. Oakland finished third, followed by Wayne State, Valparaiso and Bradley.

This year Notre Dame is led by three-time MVP Jim Rane in freestyle, along with returning All-American letterman Ed Graham, Drew Wallace, Jim Moughan and freshman Ed Fitzsimmons. The Irish will have record-holder Bob Thompson in backstroke competition and, along with Lane, should be the pacemaker of the squad.

The swimming applications will take place on December 2 at 7:00 PM at the Rockne Memorial Pool. Admission is free and open to the public.