An overall campus lighting improvement plan, which will be presented to the administration with the purpose of the lack of necessary funds. John Tallarida, director of the university housing office, said, "We plan to replace the lights in the North quad with new fixtures, similar to the ones around the library, and then place the original lights in strategic places around the campus."

Wilson initially hoped to change the lighting fixtures all over the campus with better lighting and greater intensity lamps but the plan is currently in "limbo" because of the lack of necessary funds. The lights will be concentrated in areas like Serra Hall and relaxing areas on the campus. Tallarida said, "I am hoping that the family would buy the light fixtures." A representative of the light fixture company said, "It is something that we can do."

On the survey are St. Joseph's Heights Hall, between the Hayes-Healy and Newland Science buildings and the road behind Serra Hall Architecture building. Wilson pointed out that the dimly lit between Sacred Heart Church and the administration building will be replaced. He also said, "I think that some of the flood lights could be done without."

Energy bill voted down in Senate

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate Budget Committee Thursday night refused to consider a $34.1 billion energy bill, setting up a "pay as you go" energy plan that would have let prices that free and controlled profits.

The Senate committee reached an agreement conclusion during a 13-hour work day.

Paul McCloskey, The Western of industrial power producers set up a $35 billion Wednesday as they had in any new world oil.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon proposed oil prices would drop.

Finance ministers of the 24 nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development signed a charter for the fund at a ceremony at La Joliette Chateau.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Waterfront prosecutors Wednesday produced 13 technical witnesses in an attempt to bolster testimony by their key witnesses Jack Jacobsen that he had John Connally processed to give up a $400,000 payoff to the Johnson Treasury secretary.

The prosecution was expected to complete its case Tuesday against Connally, who is charged with two counts of bribery in connection with payment to two oil producers in return for helping convince the Nixon administration to incur more oil imports.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday the dollar is gaining on international money markets as American recession builds to bottom out and in has dropped. He also predicted a drop in world oil prices.

"We have definite feelings of a gray sky," Simon told newsmen on a visit to the French capital to sign a charter for the 33 billion Western industrial world's war chest in a time of - and the French capital.

Final siege on Saigon planned

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese officials have ordered their forces into position for a siege and final assault on Saigon, although they would prefer a political solution.

This was the conclusion of military and political analysts yesterday. After two Communist divisions moved toward Saigon from opposite directions, capturing a distinct capital section, the Americans and their allies are outnumbered.

The Communists have four full divisions of combat troops, along with thousands of military and political analysts.

Saigon's military and political analysts would prefer a political victory. They will make a decision from the very top, probably from Hanoi, to attack Saigon militarily, "said one diplomatic source.

"Subway" alumni group is formed for all ND fans

by Joan Verrill
Staff Reporter

In an effort to recognize the thousands of non-graduate supernumeraries of Notre Dame, the university has created an official "Subway" alumni association. The aim of the program is to give normal recognition to the thousands of fans who have never seen the campus but still love the school and its spirit.

Executive director and creator of the association is Rev. Robert Houck, of the Public Relations and Development department.

Subway alumni are the originality the many non-alumni followers of the Fighting Irish who would converge on subway, on New York's Yankee Stadium for football games according to Houck. The term applies to any student who does not have an interest in Notre Dame.

Membership in the organization is $5 per year. Each includes an official car decal, a Subway Alumni certificate, and a subscription to a quarterly newsletter. Preference for football tickets at away games is also a possibility. Proceeds from the membership fees will be placed in a general fund used for student scholarships and grants.

Initial invocations, including a letter from former head coach Ara Parseghian, were mailed out recently. Membership is open to anyone who not an ND graduate, but is interested in helping the university.

Fr. Houck asks that: "Faculty and students contribute names of friends and relatives who would be happy to receive an invitation to become members." These names can be sent to Fr. Houck at Room 103 in the Administration Building.

Nets $50 profit
Lauer wins in Mock Stock Mart

by Marianne Morgan
Staff Reporter

Greg Lauer, a sophomore in Journalism, has won the $50 prize in the Mock Stock Market. The market ended after two weeks of buying and selling securities.

Lauer, an accounting major from Fort Wayne, Indiana, bought 471 shares of First Mortgage Investors on February 18 at 711/4, on March 14 he sold his stock at 75, setting a profit of $537.39. The net profit is computed by taking the gross profit less commission charges for buying and selling. In second place, according to O'Neil Peterson won $25 with his purchase of 6407 shares of Teleflex Corporation. The Management major allowed him to sell a stock to raise high points and then sold it, yielding a profit of $176.25.

Senior Robert Hayes, an accounting major, took the third prize of $10 with his Holiday Inn stock, which rose to 31 before he sold it. His 1132 shares, initially bought at 191/2, were sold at 40, bringing $450.84. However, he was no monetary prize for fourth place. According to Joel Curtis, stock market chairman, a total of 340 accounts were opened of which 135 were by non-business students. Total trading during the market operation was 160 transactions, one hundred ninety-four accounts made money while 155 accounts lost money. A study of the gains and losses showed an average profit of $172.18.

The most heavily traded stock on the market was Pan American, with 49 accounts, followed by 34 accounts in IBM. Students interested in the results should check the accounts posted on the bulletin board in the Hurley building. Also, participants can pick up individual printouts of their accounts.

Mobil Oil to increase its shares in Arab company

NEW YORK (UPI) - Mobil Oil Inc., the smallest U.S. partner in the Arab-American oil company, will buy additional shares of Arabco from its American partners, it was announced Monday, according to an Associated Press report.

Araco, which is 60 per cent owned by Arabco, has the option to purchase 40 per cent of the Arabco oil company. Three U.S. oil companies said the transaction will increase Mobil's interest in Arabco to 35 per cent and the others to 23 per cent.

Mobil said it is acquiring additional interest in Arabco in view of the Saudi government's position that American oil companies may continue to play an important role in Saudi petroleum operations. Saudi Arabia continues to offer an attractive investment opportunity, the company said.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Araco produces about 8.5 million barrels of day from the Saudi fields. It is allowed by the government to produce as much as 14.5 million barrels a day, and future plans for expansion would bring the total to 11 million barrels.

In a separate development, Mobil signed an agreement with three partners, Dimeca, Pan-African and Amoco, to explore and develop oil and gas resources in the southeastern part of the region.

Study 'Development Strategies'

'Third World' conference begins on Friday

Noted academicians specializing in African and Latin American development will participate in a University of Notre Dame conference April 11-12. "Development Strategies in the Third World: Problems and Prospects" will be sponsored by the Institute for International Studies and Department of Government and International Studies.

The strategies of African governments will be outlined in an opening program at 1 p.m. Friday by Dr. Martin Fransman of the University of Sussex in England; Dr. Sheldon Gable, University of Indiana political scientist; and Dr. Alexei Chepmyly, associate professor of government at Notre Dame. Dr. Peter Walde of Notre Dame's economics and government departments, conference co-organizer with Dr. Michael Fransman, will moderate the program on South Africa, Senegal and Tanzania.

Latin-American strategies in Brazil, Cuba and Peru will be discussed at 3:45 p.m. by Dr. Philip Dauth, associate professor of sociology and anthropology at Notre Dame; Dr. David Links, Hunter College history professor; and Dr. Donald Chapman, Western Michigan University sociology chairman.

Saturday's program opening at 9 a.m. will include a talk, "Patterns of Dependency," by Dr. C.K. Wilbur, American University economics professor; "Alternative Developmental Strategies" by Dr. Immundt Wallerstein, sociologist at McGill University in Quebec; "Trade-offs within developmental strategies" by Paul Sigmond, Princeton professor of politics; and "U.S. Foreign Policy and Third World Development" by Dr. Richard Fagen of Stanford University. They will be introduced, respectively, by Dr. Leo Grusius, chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology; Dr. Lane Vandervelde, economics; Fr. Claude Pommerat, government, and Dr. John J. Kennedy, chairman of Notre Dame's Latin American Studies Program.

All sessions are open to the public.

Possibility of First Amendment infringement by CIA reported

NEW YORK (UP) - The New York City Bar Association Sunday warned that domestic CIA activities have a serious potential for infringement of First Amendment rights.

In a 46-page report the lawyers group called for legislation that would more clearly define the spy agency's role and give Congress a stronger command of its parse strings.

The report also cited Congress for not exercising its foreign policy-making responsibility.

"Special attention should be given in any new legislation to the protection of First Amendment rights of speech, association and privacy," said the report.

Chiang Kai-shek casket opened to public view

TAIPEI (UPI) - More than half a million mourners lined the streets Wednesday to watch a military truck carry the body of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to Memorial Hall where it will lie in state for one week.

A military color guard, in an indication of the high esteem in which the逝者 was held, "What a Friend We Have in Memory," was formed on the balcony of the hall.

The casket was opened to the press Thursday in honor of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic.

Chiang, leader of the Nationalists, hailed a century and last of the World War II allied leaders, died Saturday of a heart attack at age 87.

The generalissimo was dressed in a black jacket over a long, dark blue gown. On his chest were red ribbons of Nationalist China's highest awards: the Order of the Blue Sky and White Sun, and the Order of the Precious Tripod.

The coffin was inclined at a 45-degree angle for a clear view by mourners. Placing the casket were 88 white candles, Chiang's age under the Chinese method of reckoning.

A state funeral will be held April 16.

Assault cases examined

by Val Zurblis
Staff Reporter

On November 27, 1974 a woman identifying herself as a Notre Dame student sought treatment for rape at Women's Hospital. The incident allegedly occurred in the 11 p.m. student parking lot just off campus. The student said she was marking her 3rd year 1974 when she was approached by a man in a truck. Dean of Students John Lyons asked the student if she was identifying anything the woman gave was bound to be false. An ensuing investigation revealed that the woman was a Notre Dame student.

An assault near the Administration building was reported. A female student asked the victim to keep it quiet officially to avoid panic among the student body.

Assault

In January a male broke into a home occupied by three students just prior to all of them. The students-two from Notre Dame and one from USIH-said he had been exposing himself at their windows all last semester. They notified the police that he couldn't do anything except patrol the area unless the man decided to enter the 11th to break in the area to which the police filed a full report.

After the attempted assault, one of the students saw the suspect on campus and reported it to Maechwe. Director of Safety Arthur Fears said the girl in the police. Maechwe asked the students to make an identification in person of the man but after consultation with the police they were advised against it because it would hurt their case. Fears said.

The same student saw the suspect in a car and copied the license plate number down and took it to Maechwe. Then all the girl possible identification of the suspect from the recent university student identification card pictures.

Maechwe said there was nothing he could do except keep the man off campus. He told them not to think this was an unusual case.

The girls obtained the man's name from Maechwe and went in the police with it. The police got no cooperation from Maechwe. He would not give the police the pictures from which the girls had identified the suspect, one of the girls said.

The girls kept complaining to Maechwe. One student told the impression that Maechwe was "worried about his own position." She said he did nothing except talk to the suspect once; he did not talk to the suspect's parents. "We've gotten nothing but pressure from Maechwe," she said.

The suspect was eventually arrested and is now out on bond. He has asked to see the police and he has previously attended a police station.

Late Wednesday March 19 a woman was assaulted while returning to Notre Dame. A pickup truck crashed and the driver offered her "a ride to campus." She entered but the driver didn't take her to campus and drove to a roadside in Douglas. He said he knew the horse and he had stopped in the road. The student asked him whether he was going to do so. She asked him to let her go and he drove her back to the campus. She reported the incident to the Notre Dame and the county police and was shown some pictures of suspects.

Maechwe expressed his concern with the assault. He stated that "we do not speak to people in student affairs in violent crime in the same manner and with regards to Notre Dame, we have a few more years to the police. She recollected the incident in the county police, Maechwe was shown some pictures of suspects.

Maechwe expressed his concern with the assaults. He stated that "there is little in student affairs in violent crime in the same manner and with regards to Notre Dame, we have a few more years to the police. She recollected the incident in the county police, Maechwe is not sure it is the case. She believes that the police don't have it and if they do nothing about it.

Twenty cases of exposure

There were twenty cases of indentiPcable exposure reported to Maechwe this year since August. In the one case handled by Maechwe, the dean of students let the attending student provide a statement under the supervision of the Psychological Services Center. The student exposed himself and was a "subject of his own psychological reason." The student exposed himself and was a "subject of his own psychological reason." The student exposed himself and was a "subject of his own psychological reason." The student exposure reported on November 17, 1974 a man in a white shirt was walking in a campus in the early morning hours. Five males called her name they approached her and began pumping and kicking her. The woman screamed and was kicked in the chest. The incident was reported in Campus Security three days after the incident also occurred in the women's locker room at the public pool. A woman was in the shower when two males walked in. They left, apparently unharmed, and shortly a third male entered. He talked to her and left and one of the first men returned. "Alcalk," she observed she was still there and eventually left.

On another occasion a pedestrian walked in the same area shown. She complained to the police about the authorities and was shown to the campus. The woman complained to the director of safety. Fears said it was too expensive and that he couldn't afford it. Fears said it was too expensive and that he couldn't afford it. Fears said it was too expensive and that he couldn't afford it. Fears said it was too expensive and that he couldn't afford it.

Maechwe commented on March 6 that he was investigating an assault of a freshman woman the prior weekend between the administration building and Sacred Heart Church. Two men with cutting weapons attacked her as she was walking to class. She escaped but suffered strained jaw ligaments and torn muscles in the stomach area from being hit by the bat. While returning from the assault she fell down from dizziness because of blinks to the face. She student passed her and sold a group of two or three students who ignored her upset to help her back to her room.

While the actual occurrence of rape and assaults on the Lone Dome campus have been few and far between, a need to increase awareness to what to do should the situation arise. Also important in this is the actual case handled by the university.

For this reason, Pears, the most important factor in any incident of rape or assault is that some people feel very uncomfortable in situations where sex is involved. A study conducted by the university showed that many students feel uncomfortable in a sexual situation where they are not sure they are wanted. Therefore, the incident should be reported immediately.

Reporting any assault to the Lone Dome Security Department is the best way to handle the situation, as they are equipped to handle the situation appropriately.

The first thing that is done when a report is involved in the case is to determine the nature of the incident. Then, a written report is made to be taken by the investigator during the course of the interview. The victim is asked whether she wishes that the incident be given any publicity to both the campus and local media, as well as whether she desires any type of treatment or counseling at the university psychological services program.

In the event that the victim wishes that no publicity be given, then the report is sent to the Dean of Students.

The role of John Macbide, dean of students, in a rape or assault is to determine the best authority to notify. Some people feel very uncomfortable in situations where sex is involved. Therefore, the incident should be reported immediately.

Reporting any assault to the Lone Dome Security Department is the best way to handle the situation, as they are equipped to handle the situation appropriately.

In conclusion, the situation has been handled by the university without any further incidents.

The most important thing to remember is that if you feel uncomfortable in a sexual situation, you should report it immediately.

Christian And Gay Discussion

Dear Editor

As members of the Notre Dame community associated with journalism, gay and lesbian interests, and those who simply have concerns with the colleges’ homophobia, the truth has emerged from this campus. A seductive game of   "shame" continues to be played by the administration, and we have worked to paint a phony picture of a college whose student body is to be classified as 'normal'. What is actually happening is that we are being ridged with the half-truths that are the product of the shame game. These half-truths are not only deceptive, but they are also damaging because they spread false information, which can be very difficult to correct. We have not, as a community, the right to engage in this type of behavior.

Summer unemployment to reach 9 per cent

Simon predicts recession recovery by 1976

By RICHARD HUGHES

The U.S. economy will be returning to normal before the end of the year, Treasury Secretary William Simon said in Paris Wednesday.

But he again repeated his forecast that unemployment, now running at 9 per cent, would eventually reach 9 per cent.

Despite this, he said, "We see developments in the economy that are very encouraging." He said "the grey sky" of the economy is going to start growing again in the last quarter and keep gaining strength as it goes into 1976.

"Inflation is coming down, helping the dollar to gain further strength. And expectations are both government and private forecasts — that we will bring the inflation rate down in about 5 per cent annually.

Simon was in Paris to sign a $25 billion "safety net" aid to aid industrialized nations that run short of cash because of expensive oil imports.

In the sagging value of American currency in Europe, Simon said, the dollar is "improving on money market-shortly after Nesson's news conference, Ford conferred with a group of congressional leaders, including Anderson.

"We were assured that there are no private, off-the-record assurances on the part of this government to the government of South Vietnam regarding the 1973 Paris accords," Anderson told reporters.

In response to questions, Anderson said Ford had assured the group there are "no private assurances" with Saigon and "no hidden chapters yet to be revealed." He said Ford assured the congressmen specifically that there was no commitment for U.S. military intervention under any circumstances.

"There are no secrets, yet undisclosed agreements between this government and the government of South Vietnam that would in any way require or obligate us to make a military response to the invasion by North Vietnam," Anderson said.

Nesson said the "confidential exchanges" between Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu -- who was calling at signing the accords -- is now being reflected confidentially promised Saigon the United States government to continue aid to the government of South Vietnam.

Nesson said Ford had assured the congressmen confidentially promised Saigon the United States would maintain Nixon publicly stated many times the same assurances he gave Thieu.

"The publicly stated policy and intention of the United States government to continue to provide adequate economic and military assistance and to react vigorously to major violations of the Paris agreements reflected confidential exchanges between the Nixon administration and President Thieu at the time," Nesson said.

He declined to say whether Nixon's original concept of vigorous reaction might have included renewed U.S. military intervention or bombing.

He said, however, the August, 1973, congressional ban on further U.S. military involvement in Laos "of course ruled out the possibility of any American military reaction to vote clearly and explicitly."

As to the current effect of the Saigon promises, Nesson said President Ford has "neither the inclusion nor the authority" to intervene militarily.

He said the National Security Council briefed the latter administration after all Nixon's private assurances to Thieu a day or two after he had assumed office in August.

Nixon said in his book he had read Nixon's confidential communications on the matter and found that "the words were different but the end result was the same as in public statements."

In support of this position, the White House released a version of Nixon's statements dating from the signing of the Paris accords signed in January, 1973, in which Nixon said violations of the accords by the Commundos "would call for appropriate government reactions."

In a May, 1972, foreign policy report, Nixon said: "We have told Hanoi frankly and publicly that we will not tolerate violations of the agreement."

Controversy over the nature of the agreements stems in part from the Jan. 21 letter to the people of State Henry A. Kissinger has said he had the Paris accords involved no secret agreements. Kissing­ er also says the United States had a "moral obligation" to maintain "no legal commitment" to continue aid to South Vietnam.

Pittsburgh Pirates: The Pirates have more power than a nuclear plant, again, and that's a good thing. They've got power to burn.

Willie Stargell, All other, Dave Parker, and Rich Stankiewicz, the three once again have the most potent power source in the country, more than any other. Joe Torre, Ross, and Jimy Bowa, are good, and a good trio. Which could be a problem. It's better to see the Pirates play healthy, they may have the edge over the rest of the contenders. But in the long run, no way. The Cards would be second if you could count on their pitching, a sound staff would make them odds-on favorites. But Bob Gibson, at 43, can't be counted on for his old magic, and the rest of the staff is in question. The Pirates might be the most promising hurler right now.

There's no question about the Cardinals outfield. They're where the sky begins, and where the best hitting has been. St. Louis has had to run themselves into the playoffs, the infield is sound, and the Cardinals are that much better. The Cards have to keep their hitting up so they can still have a chance, because the Mets are the ones that can turn it on. The Cards have been playing a fine game in the World Series, and they have a chance to win it all. But the Mets are on a roll.

To us, Tom Seaver, Jon Matlack, and Jerry Koosman are the Mets one solid starter short of the best in the game. A healthy Seaver is the best there is, and Matlack and Koosman are just as likely to put in the kind of game that the Cards need to make up in the World Series. But the Cards have to keep their hitting up, and the Mets have to be careful. The Mets have the edge in experience, but the Cards have the edge in power. It's a toss-up.
