Calendar dates announced

by Pat Ceneo
Senior Staff Reporter

Dean of Administration LeoCorbaci announced yesterday the schedule for the fall semester. The Saturday class day substitutes for the Friday after Thanksgiving, thus allowing students a four-day Thanksgiving break. The Friday sequence of classes will be transferred to Saturday.

The 70-day calendar begins Aug. 11 with the mid-term break scheduled for Oct. 16 through 24 and Thanksgiving break for Nov. 22 through 24.

The last class day will be Dec. 14 with the final exam Dec. 21.

Corbaci explained Sept. 11 was selected as the Saturday class day because it did not conflict with any athletic events, especially football.

When Saturday classes were employed in past years, they were scheduled at the end of the semester. "It was more or less a toss-up, but we figured an earlier date would be better," Corbaci stated.

Corbaci and officials of St. Mary's College collaborated on the final draft of the fall calendar and said the spring session remains unchanged.

No future Saturday classes

"Saturday class days in future schedules will most likely not be necessary," Corbaci stated.

Mike Gassman, academic commissioner, was satisfied with the calendar on a whole.

"For the first time, the students got the schedule they wanted. We now have two breaks and we start as late as possible and end as early as possible," he stated.

Gassman added, "Due to the calendar itself, the Saturday class day couldn't be avoided without giving 70 days." Gassman believes the calendar incident was one of the first times the students became concerned with an administrative policy and was a result of the students bringing about a change in the calendar.

The students wanted a calendar with two breaks, they were propounded that they should have two breaks, and they were consistent with the calendar they wanted," Gassman stated.

He continued, "The administration saw the change in the calendar to provide for a Thanksgiving break.

This question still remains whether students will go on class on a Saturday.

Visitors blamed for Fisher theft

by Frank Tennant
Staff Reporter

The Fisher Hall burglars were Notre Dame students, according to Dean of Students James Pears. Pears revealed yesterday they were students from an out-of-state college visiting friends here.

The burglars stole over $200 worth of food and equipment from Fisher Hall food sales at approximately 4 a.m. Saturday.

Roemer was contacted and informed that the stolen equipment was aboard a Greyhound bus headed for Notre Dame. A subsequent check with Greyhound proved the package had been sent.

Roemer added a check to cover the remaining damages was also in the mail.

"We are requiring full restitution for the damage," Roemer stated.

"After that I will contact the students to inform them prior to coming to Notre Dame again," he added.

After the incident Bob Waddick, Fisher Hall resident president, stated there is a good case for bringing back the hall monitors.

This called into question the effectiveness of security in residence halls.

"The hall monitors basically were a fire watch with no police power," said Director of Security Arthur Roemer.

Pears. With modern fire-detection equipment in the halls, Pears said, monitors were discarded because it was not worth it to keep them.

Although they did more than merely look for fires, Pears said, the added number of resident assistants in the halls along with students learning to do the job as effectively as the monitors.

Pears also stated that in many cases rectors did not want monitors.

No increase in burglaries

Pears pointed out there was no increase in the number of burglaries this year over the same time period last year. With the burglaries being "minimal," he sees no justification to bring back the monitors.

"The students and resident assistants can do what the monitors did, and even better, if they want to become involved," he said. Pears added any rector simply by asking to take the monitors back.

He added they cannot stop everything. If the serious thief is in the residence hall, he can prevent something on the fourth floor, he concluded.

Hall return monitor

Cavanaugh is one hall which still has a monitor. Mike Pavlik, president, said, "The security in our hall has been adequate." All doors are locked at the front, and the monitor can see all that goes on.

"I asked, "the measures taken in the hall have been a great deterrent to burglaries."

In Pears, Fr. John Mulcahy, rector, said there have been no incidents this year. He sees no

Powerful earthquake shakes Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala AP—A tremendous earthquake jolted a 2000 mile strip from Central America into Mexico before dawn Wednesday with the brunt of its force shattering Guatemala City.

Walls caved in and sleeping inhabitants and one report said as many as 2,000 persons were killed.

Cul, Manuel Angel Ponce, the chief of staff said, 'There were over 2,000 dead.'

The official death toll in this capital was estimated at more that 300. The quake seemed to hit hardest in the southern and outer part of Guatemala City, populated mainly by poor families. The area is made up of two- and three-story housing. Guards, built with no serious earthquake protection, that have been divided into apartments and makeshift huts.

Seismological stations put the magnitude at 7.5 on the Richter scale. "We would call it a major earthquake," said a spokesman at the U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

"A magnitude of 8 would be a great earthquake."

Officials said they feared many were killed as the buildings collapsed while the residents slept.

People flocked to the streets trying to find possessions. Rescue efforts were hampered by the rubble, scattered small fires, and at least 15 aftershocks that brought down already weakened structures.

A volcano south of the city was spouting smoke when dawn broke. There were no reports of casualties in the other affected countries of Honduras and El Salvador, to the southeast of Guatemala, and Mexico, to the northwest.

However, the northern part of Honduras reported very heavy damage estimates.

Guatemala City government and rescue authorities in the stricken town of 4.5 million inhabitants were trying to compile an estimate of the dead and injured but hours after the quake had brought a column of dust and debris as far as seven miles north of the city.

Many persons gathered in a haze through the debris-blackened streets trying to find possessions.
Connelly served on the advisory board until his resignation as treasurer in July, 1973. One year later, Connally was indicted by a federal grand jury and accused of taking illegal gratuities from a combination of foreign and domestic sources. He was acquitted of all charges in April 1975.

Ford is expected to announce details of the intelligence reorganization in about 10 days.

In other developments, the House Intelligence Committee is giving quick approval to recommendations designed to give Congress more control over secret spy operations launched in foreign countries.

The panel, involved in consideration of a number of recommendations resulting from its study of U.S. intelligence agencies, approved a proposal Monday that Ford would abolish the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency and give highly sensitive intelligence agencies to let Congress see secret information.

Proposals the committee has yet to consider include creation of a permanent intelligence committee and a requirement that all covert operations be reported to Congress.

Other recommendations approved by the committee would require a six-member group to advise presidents on all proposed covert operations and require each of the six submit detailed reports to the president for or against each operation.

The six members of the recommended National Security Council intelligence oversight committee would include representatives from the State, Defense and CIA. The committee would replace NSC's 40 Committee.

The recommendation stems from a finding in the still unpublished report that for President Richard M. Nixon directed the CIA to supply weapons to Kurdish rebels, even though he had no authority to do so. The committee would be established in part to avoid the type of covert operation that had been carried out by runnym mountaineering expeditions during World War II, according to committee sources.
InPRIGR formulates semester goals

by James Flahaven

An Environmental Education Seminar for teachers and a study of nursing homes will be the first of many projects planned by the regional InPRIGR, this semester. At the recent Senate meeting, Public Interest Research Group presented the projects in an open meeting last night.

Appointments policy reassessed

[continued from page 1] set the specific demand from the Senate Committee on Collective Bargaining. This report contained nine objectives concerning governance and compensation, which the subcommittee felt should be seriously considered by the Senate in the immediate future. Robert Kerby, member of the Senate, added two more objectives, raising the total to 11.

The Senate, which had originally planned on establishing the priority of each objective, instead debated the order of priority. Kerby would order the objectives: finances, accessibility, and compensation, which the Senate, going along with the subcommittee's proposal, added two more objectives, raising the total to 11.

On February 28, InPRIGR will hold an Environmental Education Seminar for grade school teachers. Project Chairperson Julie English says the purpose of the seminar is to give the teachers ideas to use in the classrooms. Environmental education now is often just short sessions on ecology. We want to instill environmental values through other areas like English and history, according to Dave Carlyle who will head a study on area nursing homes. Carlyle hopes the study will not only turn up any other cases neglect on the part of the nursing homes, but also serves as a comparative study to be used by older members of the South Bend community.

Among the other projects planned is a food pricing survey to follow up a similar survey done last semester. Also a study of testing services used at the Universities, and investigations of various aspects of local government are scheduled to be undertaken.

The success of these projects and of InPRIGR in general, hinges on finding the solutions to two major problems: financing and volunteerism.

Last Tango showing defended by Donohue

by Mary Katharine
Staff Reporter

Maura Donohue, cultural arts commissioner, defended Bertolucci's controversial film in Monday's Observer. "Last Tango is not pornography," Donohue said.

"Our aim is to pick out a culturally-oriented film series," Donohue pointed out. An X-rated film such as The Stewardesses would have no place in this series while Last Tango, although its rating is the same, is significant because of excellence in acting and direction, she explained.

She added the Cultural Arts Commission sponsors films that are important in the history of film-making, artistically produced and well directed, not because of financial success or mass popularity.

Donohue expressed confidence in Sean Coleman and Laureen Goers, co-chairpersons of Cinema 1,000, who have been a part of the series, including Last Tango. She praised their knowledge of the history and significance of films, good taste and discretion.

Goers pointed out that Bernard Bertolucci, who wrote the story for and directed Last Tango, won best director award from the American Society of Film Critics for a previous film. The Conformist.

"In Last Tango Bertolucci is not concerned with sexuality as pornography," said Goers. "What he's really showing is that sex is at 7 p.m." He team is careful about what they bring to campus and gave serious thought to the advisability of ordering Last Tango.

Both Benesh and Bro. Just Paczeniey, vice-president for student affairs, were informed well in advance of plans to show Last Tango and were objectted.

Benesh, however, expressed worries about future scheduling of controversial films.

"I believe there should be some more specific guidelines for the kinds of movies shown," he said. "Perhaps the showing of Last Tango might spark some move to formulate guidelines."

He suggested a separate committee composed of students and faculty might be formed to judge controversial films if questions of propriety should arise in the future.

"This makes it hard for a hall to do business with them," he added.

Vietnamese in South Bend

a hemisphere away from the Land of the Buddha
they have found new lives

by Eileen O'Grady

South Bend, like many other cities across the country, is becoming home for a rising number of Vietnamese refugees. Nearly 100 immigrants have already planted roots here and began turning this pioneer group into a new life.

The journey from Vietnam to South Bend was a long and arduous process for most of these families. After their escape from South Vietnam they were placed in the refugee camp at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas. Case workers from Fort Chaffee contacted the South Bend Catholic Social Services in search of sponsor families. The social services then contacted all the churches in the area. They responded with names of families who volunteered to sponsor Vietnamese families. As more South Bend families volunteered, more Vietnamese families were brought up from Ft. Chaffee. However, there are still 10,000 Vietnamese still at the camp.

The Catholic Social Services have been the real driving force behind the adjustment here in South Bend. The service center collects clothes, food and money from parishioners for various parishes for all the Vietnamese to come to know people in the community. They also publish a bi-lingual monthly newsletter, entitled New Life, informing the families of new arrivals, social events and general information about their new community. Their most important role, however, is helping to integrate the Vietnamese families and the sponsoring community.

According to Pierre Konderofor, the Vietnamese coordinator for the Catholic Social Services and a Vietnamese refugee himself, the role of the sponsor is to help the family adjust to the American life-style. "The sponsor receives the family into their house, gives them food, assists them with money and helps them in looking for jobs, until they become self sufficient, he explained.

The Nguyen Family

The Nguyen family, for example, has nine sponsors. They immediately placed the family in a home of their own. The Housing Allowance Program aided the sponsors in finding the house and helps the family pay for the rent. The Nguyen family now earns $600 a month, instead of money, clothes, and food.

The sponsors also donated all the furniture for the house, helped to paint the room for the first few weeks, supplied food in the beginning and helped Mr. Nguyen and his 17 year old son Long find jobs.

Donohue new head of CAC

by Paul Stevenson
Staff Reporter

Maura Donohue has been named cultural arts commissioner by Tom Birsic, Student Union Director. Donohue, last semester's assistant commissioner, replaced Chris Mahon, who resigned for personal reasons.

Donohue has been with the Student Union for two years. Last year, she worked for the Services Commission as editor of the off-campus news letter and for the Cultural Arts Commission on the Sophomore Literary Festival.

"The Midwest Blues, the Sophomore Literary Festival and the Collegiate Jazz Festival require a great deal of administrative coordination and financial planning," Birsic said. "Chris was an extremely capable commissioner and his decision not to return this semester was quite a disappointment, but we feel that Maura is capable of handling the commission equally as well," he added.

Donohue and her assistant, Gerald Doyle, will oversee the workings of the Cultural Arts Commission.

"There won't be too many changes this semester," Donohue said. "Everything will stay basically the same." "The budget for the year was established last semester, and that has to be observed," she explained. "The main thing will be to reduce last year's expenses which were exorbitantly high."

The two major events Donohue must conduct this semester are the Sophomore Literary Festival and the Collegiate Jazz Festival.

Both of these campus events involve complicated finances which require undivided attention, Birsic said. The Sophomore Literary Festival, for example, has a budget of $11,000 provided by the Student Union that Donohue must administer.

"The new position requires a whole new perspective with a strong emphasis on coordinating events within the commission's budget and relating the Cultural Arts Commission to the Student Union as a whole," Birsic said. "I feel Maura will do quite well. She is enthusiastic and is learning very quickly," he noted.

The Observer
Thursday, February 5, 1976

INNSBRUCK (AP) - The East German team set records in both the men's and women's luger events Wednesday and a Colorado couple grabbed hold of third place in ice dancing as the 12th Winter Olympics opened in this Alpine capital.

Defeat Guenter, a 23-year-old East German technician, sped down the huge run on his back in a tiny sled in a record 52.38 seconds to edge three West German competitors who at least these three times. Total times in the races which continue through Saturday decide the medalists.

Margit Schumann of East Germany edged West German unknown Monika Schefchen by a tenth of a second to set the 42.85 seconds for the women's luger. The man race 1.22 meters, the women 1.27 meters.

In the first ice dancing competition ever held in an Olympics, Russia's Ludmila Pakhmutova and Aleksandr Gorshkov -- five-time world champions and the favorites here -- took a strong early lead by winning the compulsory round. They all three pattern dances easily.

The men's results remain Thursday and next Monday. They were followed by another Russian team, world titians Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov.

Making a bid for an American medal, were Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millas, silver medalists at the 1975 world championships on their home rink in Colorado Springs. They were in third place, very close to second, in the intermediate standings of the competition.

Switzerland's Philippe Roux broke the downhill ski record in the last of Wednesday's trials, clocking 1:47.02 minutes on the 3.145-meter course. That was more than 8.5 seconds faster than the record set on this course last year by Austria's Franz Klammer.

It came on a day when American leaders, led by Greg Jones' fourth-place showing place in the top 11 in the final downhill trials run. Other students questioned the wisdom of continuing the course Thursday.

Klammer, the downhill favorite in these Games, posted the second best trial time Wednesday at 1:47.23.

The Games were formally opened with 90 minutes of fanfare on an Alpine hillside. Competition hits full stride Thursday with a full slate of events in the men's 30-kilometer ski event, the men's downhill ski and the men's 1,500-meter speed-skating event.

On Friday, the U.S. hockey team takes on looks like an impossible show of strength in the men's Olympic hockey competition.

The schedule of the course was also discussed. Students pointed out the material was covered far too quickly, often to the extent that the book was not given enough attention.

Tony Zippel, another student, proposed streamlining the seminar to be over or in six months to ensure that each book is covered in depth. Other students suggested fewer books during the present two semester seminar.

Zippel also suggested grading the seminar on a pass-fail basis. Student Mark Grove felt that this would eliminate "the student who feels obligated to spend a number of comments to receive an 'A', but pays no attention to the quality of what he is saying."

Grove also felt students should have more say in choosing the books they read. He said this would mean more results in students reading the books more thoroughly.

One student also said students should be able to choose their instructors, if possible instead of being assigned arbitrarily to a particular section.

There was, however, praise as well. Brown noted the student organizations and the knowledge gained about Western culture as benefits of the course.

One student, Bruce Zerfas, countered, "I do not see what is so bad about Collegiate Seminar. The classes are usually dominated by a few students, which leads to poor discussions.

"The books chosen have no value. I feel, for personal growth, they should be optional instead of required," he added.

The syllabus of the course was also discussed. Students pointed out the material was covered far too quickly, often to the extent that the book was not given enough attention.

Tony Zippel, another student, proposed streamlining the seminar to be over or in six months to ensure that each book is covered in depth. Other students suggested fewer books during the present two semester seminar.

Zippel also suggested grading the seminar on a pass-fail basis. Student Mark Grove felt that this would eliminate "the student who feels obligated to spend a number of comments to receive an 'A', but pays no attention to the quality of what he is saying."

Grove also felt students should have more say in choosing the books they read. He said this would mean more results in students reading the books more thoroughly.

One student also said students should be able to choose their instructors, if possible instead of being assigned arbitrarily to a particular section.

There was, however, praise as well. Brown noted the student organizations and the knowledge gained about Western culture as benefits of the course.

One student, Bruce Zerfas, countered, "I do not see what is so bad about Collegiate Seminar. The classes are usually dominated by a few students, which leads to poor discussions.

"The books chosen have no value. I feel, for personal growth, they should be optional instead of required," he added.
Dantley excels as ND rips Explorers

Record crowd watches A.D. bomb LaSalle with season-high 41 points in Irish’s 108-89 win

In one of the best total team efforts of the season the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame downs La Salle, 108-89, before the largest throng ever to witness a collegiate basketball game in the history of Pennsylvania.

Notre Dame players saw action in a performance highlighted by the devastating play of consensus All-American Adrian Dantley. Dantley scored 41 points and tied his career high of 17 rebounds before leaving the contest for the first time with just over two minutes left.

Total team effort was the password of victory as Notre Dame boasted four players in double figures. Freshman center Bruce Flowers hit for a career high 14 points while Dantley and Toby Knight netted 13 apiece.

Toby Knight helped out with 13 rebounds.

The Irish reeled off the first eight points of the contest before Explorer guard Charlie Wise hit the first La Salle basket of the evening. "Sweet Charlie" as he is known in the athletic world was to net 26 points in a losing cause.

With La Salle in a man-to-man defense and 6'10" guard Darrell Charles guarding the taller Dantley, the Notre Dame scoring machine was producing at will. Dantley’s jumper with 8:30 left in the half gave Notre Dame a commanding 27-12 advantage.

It was the great height advantage that helped net Dantley a quick surge of points. The Washington, D.C. native hit six of his first eight field goal attempts and at times single-handedly outscored the Explorers.

The three-guard La Salle offense, the same type of game plan which worked so well for Maryland just three days before, was forced to work from long range as the pressuring Irish defense forced numerous turnovers. When the teams went in for the halftime respite, the scoreboard told of a 52-34 Irish lead.

In the first two minutes of the second frame La Salle outscored Notre Dame 8-3 and cut the Irish margin to 55-42. With Dave Batton and Dantley leading the charge the Irish ran off a string of 30 unanswered points forcing La Salle to play catch-up for the rest of the night.

At the 14:00 minute mark, Toby Knight hit a driving lay-in giving him exactly 500 points on the season. The Irish reached the century mark when Bernard Rencher hit a free throw at the 2:24 left in the game. Digger Phelps substituted for the remaining minutes as the huge crowd of 16,297 prepared for the second game of the college extravaganzas between Villanova and South Carolina.

IRISH ITEMS: Dantley’s 41 points gives him as even 1900 in his storied career. His 17 rebounds net 26 points in a losing cause. The Irish hit on 40 of 83 field goal attempts. The 28 for 40 free throw performances gives the Irish a 26-8 margin as well as giving the Irish a 52-34 Irish lead.

If the Notre Dame hockey team is to make the top four places of the WCHA and play in the Frozen Four at the Spectrum in Philadelphia this weekend at Alpine Valley in Michigan. The Irish hit on 40-10-2 WCHA record are currently tied for fifth place with Colorado College so all they need to do is move up one place before the end of the season and Notre Dame will open the play-offs at home.

Krause named to Hall of Fame

Edward “Moose” Krause, Notre Dame Athletic Director, has been named to the Basketball Hall of Fame it was announced yesterday. Krause, who has served as Athletic Director at Notre Dame for 26 years, will be inducted at the Hall at Springfield, Mass. on April 26th.

As a student here during the years of 1927-1931 Krause excelled in both football and basketball, and was named All-American in both sports. In his senior year he held the season and career scoring records for a Notre Dame player. He captained the basketball team in his senior year.

If the Notre Dame hockey team is to move to the top four places of the WCHA, it appears that sweeps are a very difficult thing to do. As a matter of fact, the Michigan Tech and Minnesota are well ahead of 500, while everyone else is floating right around the break-even mark.

It’s hard to find the reason why we, and others have had trouble sweeping. Pirus explained. ‘I’ve been thinking about this a lot and the only thing I can think of is that there is a letdown after Friday night, especially if you win on Friday night.

Pirus felt that winning was a habit-forming thing, like losing. The more you do it in the past, the more you’ll do it in the future. ‘I guess the way to explain it is that it’s an electrifying feeling, and once you start winning a number of games, you don’t worry about it. You fall behind, because you just know that you’re going to end up on top in the end. Tend and momentum carries this year and it is a hard thing to get, but it takes hard work and a good winning tradition.’

One, however, that can be noticed from statements made by both Smith and Pirus, is that they may be optimistic, but they are in the same breath, cautious. The combined record of the teams left to be played is 57-57, however, that record is brought down primarily by Denver and Wisconsin. The two teams who the Irish would have the easiest time sweeping because of poor records, will offer special difficulties because they will be played on the road.

Denver is the mile-high city and Pirus pointed out that playing there gives problems because of the altitude. ‘You can only play 45 second shifts there, where here we play a minute and 15 second shifts usually. You get psyched up a lot more easily.’ Wisconsin will be tough because the fans get riled up over hockey there, to say the least.

The home games then will have to be the pivotal ones. The Irish will need to sweep Minnesota-Duluth and probably one of the others and the best chance will be Michigan State. Then Notre Dame will hope to hit the insanity that has infected the WCHA and continue and teams suddenly don’t get hot.

ND ski team finishes first

The Notre Dame ski team captured the first place finish in the combined scoring of the Denver Newscup at Alpine Valley in Michigan. The race, which was the second part of a four part series hosted by the News, hosted ten men’s and eight women’s teams.

ND captured the first place combined finish by placing first in the slalom on Saturday and third in the Giant Slalom competition. Captain Gorm Gormsen, however, injured his ankle in the slalom race, must five-tenths of a second out of first. Freshman Pete Rowell placed fourth. In the slalom, Wilson was fourth, while Rowell was 12th and senior Chris Cannon finished 14th.

The women’s team finished fourth out of eight telesin races with points scored by Nora Duffy and Ann Hawkins.
