For graduation tickets

_Distribution procedure announced_

by Jean Powley
St. Mary's Editor

Note Dame seniors will receive five tickets and post-baccalaureate graduates four tickets to admit family and guests to commencement exercises May 22 in the ACC, it was announced by Robert E. Murphy, assistant president for Public Relations and Development.

The number of tickets available for distribution was determined by the number of graduates expected to attend and the number of seats available in the arena.

The size of this year's graduating class (2,177, the largest in history), the number of seats available in the stadium, weather-permitting, the possibility of still holding commencement, and Roemer said that the whole burden for the problem should not be placed on the bar owners and that students should have a sense of responsibility for the neighborhood when they go out to the bars to drink. Bar owners should not be held responsible for the actions of customers after they leave the bar.

A large part of the problem, according to Kanser, is that there is no law that prohibits customers from leaving the bars with drinks in their hands. Kanser said he hopes an ordinance will be passed to correct the problem.

“We're not planning to do anything drastically different from what we've been doing, Co-operation between customers and the neighborhood is what is needed,” Kanser said. “We're more than willing to help on this sort of thing.”

Kanser invited student leaders to come to association meetings to discuss the problems and suggest that a student group could be established with co-ordinated training by the South Bend Community, not only for vice-president of academic affairs and Joann Baggina for vice-president of student affairs.

Roemer expressed a similar concern and stressed the idea of not giving up with one attempt at something new. "Sometimes you think you're doing something everyone is interested in but then it fails. The (continued on page 10)
Committee searches for achiever

By Jean Pawley
St. Mary's Editor

St. Mary's Committee of Academic Standards is currently in search of a recipient for its recently re-established Saint Catherine's Medal, an undergraduate achievement award. The medal, which is sponsored by Kappa Gamma Pi, the National Catholic Honor Society, had for many years been awarded annually to an outstanding sophomore or junior until students' lack of interest in awards caused its discontinuance in 1970. However, a significant change in students' attitudes prompted the committee to re-establish the medal's re-establishment this year. Letters explaining the award were sent to all students, faculty, and staff members earlier this week, inviting them to nominate a student for the award.

According to the letter, the purpose of the medal is to honor "a superior student in her second or third year at St. Mary's who, in the opinion of the Committee on Academic Standards, exemplifies the high ideals of Catholic education for undergraduate women. Scholarships and service to the church, college, and civic communities are criteria for the award." Although the recipient will be a "good" student, there is no specific grade-point requirement, according to Gail Mandell, vice president of academic affairs. Also, nominees do not have to be of the Catholic faith.

Nominating letters should be sent to the committee in care of Gail Mandell, 134 Lemans Hall, before April 4. Letters containing specific statements in support of a nomination will be given the greatest weight in the committee's deliberations.

Plans for the award's presentation have not yet been decided upon, but it will definitely occur near the close of the academic year, possibly during the senior convocation branch, Mandell said.

Brian Regan, assistant to the president for College Relations at St. Mary's, has stated that 122 people have applied for the position of Director of Publications, not 22 as stated in yesterday's Observer.

ND to offer research program

Notre Dame will offer a 10-week undergraduate research program this summer for college sophomores and juniors in engineering and science. Each participant will receive a tax-free stipend of $900 through the program, which is sponsored by the National Science Foundation. The program will involve independent research in energy-related fields and will begin June 6. The deadline for applications is April 8.

The program is particularly suited to area students who attend schools other than Notre Dame, but who wish to broaden their training while at home during the summer, according to Dr. K.T. Yang, chair of Notre Dame's Department of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering and program director.

Interested students may contact Dr. Yang at Room 303 Engineering Building.
Academic Code amendment endorsed by Faculty Senate

by Maureen Flynn

Editorial Editor

A proposed amendment to the Academic Code that would allow students 20 class days to decide to take a course pass-fail or for credit was endorsed last night by the Faculty Senate.

The proposal was drawn up by the student representatives to the Academic Council and presented to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs. The current deadline for a student to decide whether to take a course pass-fail or for credit is 75 class days.

The Senate's amendment will be presented to the Academic Council at its next meeting.

The student affairs committee reported to the Senate that the proposal would “allow the student to make a more realistic judgment on the nature and quality of the course.” The committee noted that the proposed amendment would offer students a “flexible schedule” for changing their minds.

The Senate expects the amendment to be presented to the Academic Council at its next meeting.

In other action, the Senate voted to award the President $35,000 in salary increases in recognition of his outstanding leadership and the University's fiscal year end was moved to Friday, March 25, 1977.

Alumni Family Hall planned for summer

by Chris Dazman
Senior Staff Reporter

"Instead of taking the children to a crowded beach resort or a costly country villa, why not enjoy the scenic beauty and outdoor vitality of Our Lady's campus?"

With this description from a brochure sent out last week by the Alumni Association, some 57,000 alumni have been invited to spend their summer vacation here at Notre Dame. According to the brochure, for just $10 a night an alumnus and spouse can enjoy all of the comforts of resort living: golf, tennis and swimming. Two children can be accommodated in another double for an extra $5 charge. In addition to these are the many cultural events sponsored by the Notre Dame Summer Session and O'Shaugnessy Art Gallery.

Accommodations are provided in Lewis Hall, which according to the description is "situated on a picturesque mall extending from the University Administration Building to St. Joseph’s Lake." The hall is only a "short distance across manicured lawns" to the high points on campus: the Rockne Memorial, the Memorial Library and the Bookstore.

Though meals are not included in the lodging fee, "modestly priced meals are available in the Oak Room of the South Dining Hall or the elegant Morris Inn." The hall is "well-appointed for temporary residence and their families may want to venture into South Bend for an evening or two. There will be packets available at the Hall containing a list of recommended restaurants, movie theaters, and shopping malls.

Beginning its second season of operation, the Alumni Family Hall provides graduates with an opportunity to visit the campus at a time other than football or basketball weekends. Last summer the Lewis Hall housed some 1100 people who stayed an average of five days each.

The response was so overwhelming last year, that John N. Cackley, director of the Alumni Association, is predicting another great tourist season this year. "We may have to turn some people away during peak periods this summer," he said. "We just sent out the brochures last week and already we have reservations sent back."

Cackley explained that the summer program is not primarily a money making event. Though the Association did not incur a debt with the project last year, any profits went back into the Alumni budget to start off the year.

Cackley added that if the summer was a hot one, vacationers might want to bring a small window fan since Lewis Hall is not air conditioned.

Presently the summer program is restricted to graduates of Notre Dame and their families. Undergraduate students must be content with Notre Dame as a winter resort.
Clinics held for prospective cheerleaders

by Diane Wilson

Anyone interested in trying out for cheerleading must report to the ACC pit Sunday, March 27 from 1:30-5:30 p.m. This is a new clinic and will be held Monday, March 28 but attendance is not required.

Wednesday morning the first cut will be made. There will be at least six judges present from the South Bend area. None of the judges will be connected with Notre Dame or St. Mary’s. The prospective judges include dance and gymnastic teachers.

The first cut will narrow the field to 15 men and 15 women. The finalists will have another practice session Thursday where the women will learn another dance and the men will learn more tramp stunts.

On Friday, all the finalists will have a personal interview with the judges. These judges will not necessarily be the same as the ones for the first cut. Assistant Director of Student Activities John Reid explained. The reasons for the personal interview according to Reid are that while the actual job of the cheerleader is charting, another important aspect is public relations work. The personal interview will count approximately ten percent in the final judging.

On Saturday, April 1, the final cut will be made. Tryouts will be from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., and the cheerleading squad for 1977-78 will be named at 3 p.m. At the same time as the cheerleader tryouts will be tryouts for the 1977-78 Leopards. Any interested male under 5’7” should report to the first clinic to learn the routines necessary for tryouts.

For the first cut, women will be judged on partner stunts, dances (two), optional, chants, and jumps (two). The men will be judged on partner stunts, gymnastics, optional, chants, guys’ dances and the personal interview.

The final cut Reid hopes to have cheerleaders from nearly colleges such as Michigan State and Indiana University for judges but nothing is definite yet.

As of now, Reid is expecting approximately 40 women and 20 men to fill the 10 vacant spaces. He stated that there could be very easily as many as 70 girls and 35 guys when the time comes to actually cut.

Reid stressed that spectators were welcome for the two session when cuts will be made. He said everyone should see the work that the people trying out for go through. He described it as “unbelievable” and “strenuous.”

An informational meeting was held last night for anyone interested in cheerleading. If anyone was not able to attend and is interested, they should contact either Sue Olin 1631, or Pat Bergin 3454, co-captains of the 1977-78 cheerleading squad.

Dear Editor:

No matter what the charge, no matter whether he is innocent or guilty, Professor Enrico F. Patti should be suspended immediately. It would be inconsistent with Notre Dame policy and precedent to do so.

Remember those four students last year who were arrested of drug charges? Long before they ever came to trial, the Administration saw fit to judge them guilty by "suspending" them from the University. Why then is there no mental self-righteousness now? Does it not equally apply to Prof. Patti? Or is it that there is one dictatorial, whip-cracking policy for students and another more benevolent one for others?

I personally would like to see a benevolent policy for everyone, not just a chosen few.

Gary Makowski

Editor's Note: Three students were suspended by Dean of Students last April when they were arrested on charges of possession and delivery of a controlled substance.

Parents' income misleading

Dear Editor:

Your article "ND Parents' Median Income Rises" (3-17) is misleading. The Consumer Price Index ratio for 1976 compared to 1973 was 1.334. Thus if the national median fresh new family income in 1972 was $15,000, we would expect it to be $20,000 in 1976, which it is course. If the Notre Dame freshman family income was $20,000 in 1972 dollars, it would be $26,700 in 1976 dollars just due to "dollar-devaluation." The actual 1976 figure of $27,800 indicates that Notre Dame family income was 110% above inflation-wealthier, but not nearly so much as your article implies.

Don't you make enough $$$$ ?

Dear Editor:

I recently had a look that I owned out of the nice men who work in the ACC. I had been in the practice of hanging my gear down to the ACC and putting my lock on an empty locker. I never left it overnight or even more than a few hours.

The thing that bothers me is not the loss of my lock but the penny ante ethic when this University has to make money. Doesn't the ACC make enough money on basketball games, hockey games and a thousand and one conventions? The weight room is frequently closed because of car shows, RV shows, roller shows, antique helicopter shows. You name it, they have it. They destroy an area so I can't lease theirs. There is something unethical about the whole thing, financially sound but real reasing anyway.

You would think the people who think these things up would put their work force to better use than making them play Al Monday with my lock.

Protect that flag!

Dear Editor:

I would like to publicly that the five Notre Dame men who helped "psych-up" the Irish crowd, and also got their season suspended from flag-stalking. "Ditchmen" at Notre Dame pulled it off. These men showed that spirit that is uniquely "Fighting Irish." I'm proud of all who witnessed it and all who worried they'd be caught. They were.

Thanks again, men. You were a great help!

Joe Cosgrove

Editor's Note: A letter in The Observer transition, the letter was written by Steve Salimando last year.

WASHINGTON — Dr. Heinrich Applebaum has just completed a study on the effects of television on children. In his case, though, he was not concerned with violence, but how television gives children a false sense of reality.

Dr. Applebaum told me, "The danger of television is that it presents a world to children that doesn't exist, that's why expectations that can never be fulfilled." I don't understand, Doctor," I said.

Well, let me cite an example. Have you ever seen a television show where a person in an automobile doesn't immediately have a parking place on the very first try?

"Come to think of it," I said, "I haven't."

"Not only is there always a parking spot available but the driver doesn't have to hunt for it. There are two parking spaces available whenever someone is a show before one hour. Children are being led to believe that when they grow up they will always be able to find a parking place when and where they want it. Can you imagine the trauma when the driver who spent the day driving around a block for three hours and still not find a place to park your car?"

"I never thought of it but it's true." What else do they show on television which gives a distorted picture of the real world?

"Have you noticed that whenever a character walks out of a restaurant or office building or apartment and says in the doorway, 'Get me a taxi. I can't get one. It's raining,' what's the matter with the cab immediately arrives?" Millions of children are under the impression that all a doorman has to do is blow his whistle and a taxi will be there. I have never even seen a show where the doorman has said, "I'm sorry, I can't get you a taxi. You better take the bus."

"I'll course," I said. "I never knew before that bothered me about those TV shows and programs, but now I do. There is always a yellow taxi waiting outside." Dr. Applebaum said Applebaum.

"Have you ever said to a taxi driver, 'I'm taking my car and don't leave him?'"

"Not really."

"Well, if you had, the driver would have a say to blow it out your car. No leave drive, and the moment to follow another -- "Be sure that means he's going to get involved. But when the observer looks as if he'd like nothing better to do than to drive 90 miles per hour through a rain-swept street trying to keep up with a carful of children, then something is that the kids believe it."

"What else have you discovered?"

"Kids have a perverted sense of what emergency wards of hospitals are really like on TV shows they take a kid to an emergency ward and four doctors come rushing down to bandage his leg. In a real life situation the kid would be sitting on the bench for two hours before he even saw an intern. On TV there always happens to be a hospital bed available when the kid needs it. What the kids in this country don't know is that some of the doctors in the hospital get a hospital bed and they have to pay a cash deposit of $500 and then take it to a charity ward and give it to you."

Applebaum said the cruelest hour of all is when TV shows a lawyer defending someone innocence.

"On the screen the lawyer spends day and night digging up the evidence to clear his client. In real life the lawyer says to the defendant, 'You've got 20 minutes. Tell me your story and I'll plead you guilty and make a deal with the DA.' In real life the defendant might say, 'But I'm innocent.'"

"So what? I can't afford to find out that my client is innocent!"

Then what you're saying, is Applebaum.

What counts is violence on TV but the fantasy that is doing harm shows."

"Exactly. Even the commercials are taking their toll. Children are told that if they grow up they'll use a certain mouthwash they'll find the mate of their dreams. When they don't find him or her after a galant all night they go to a restaurant and man of them never come out of it."

"What do you think is the biggest fear little girls have?"

"I have no idea."

"What about boys?"

"Beeps, ways that they'll only go around once in a while and in the way they don't have all the gall of one of their beer"
Letter to a Lonely God
Moderate and Reasonable Commandments
Reverend Robert Griffith

We were sitting at dinner in one of those private clubs of the Eastern establishment where no one under the age of 25 is allowed to eat, and there was enough to constitute a generous down-payment on a Rado-Royce, if cars are what you are after. I was talking about this and we were speaking of children in college, and suddenly the waiter, who I was saying, "that I would pick up the tab for my son, if ever he got into trouble," I wanted to stay in school. The only condition was that they stay away from marriage, and perhaps not go beyond the Baccalaureate degrees. The day one of them chose to marry, I would cut my relations entirely. My obligation to him was to get his degree in business administration and to be a shrewd young man. The next day he told me:

"I don't want to do pre-marital sex. It's just a form of indulgence to the other person, and I feel uncomfortable with annoyance. It's all right, but you're not making love. Love is what makes us love each other, and I'm not getting anything from you."

I was so disappointed, I didn't know what to say, but I was so thrilled that he was thinking of his own life. My obligation to him was to get his degree in business administration and to be a shrewd young man.

"The boys all understand that while they were in their college years, a wife was not the thing. It's too many headaches."

"And you are in the market for instead of golf, and wine, and stuff."

"I don't feel it has to happen; yet it does happen to men and women of all ages. It's like the old saying: I, as a Christian, am not the one who is responsible for the sins of my parents. I never want to write to my children that any of their vices are yours."

Better Than Baseball

In recent years, the professional theatre has provided us with a new entertainment: the one-man play. Al- though its roots probably reach back to Homer and his Odyssey, the modern one-man play theatre in the 1950's when a young man named Henry Drummond appeared on the stage dressed in a white suit and convinced audience after audience that he was Mark Twain, seventy years of age. Holbrook is doing it again on Broadway these days.

Since that time, we've met many famous historical personages on a one-to-one basis: Lincoln, Washington, Abe Lincoln, Harry Truman and Clarence Darrow. James Whitmore will soon be appearing as Teddy Roosevelt. The thing that has led to miscarriages of justice, all of these "people" seen through the people who play them is that we like them. When we then see them as they walk onstage and feel a friendship with them as we leave the theater. They invite us into their study-office or living room to share private moments of joy and sorrow, doubt and inspiration as they reflect on their lives.

The ND-SMC Theatre production of Clarence Darrow does not betray any of the beauties or intimacies of the one-man show. We like E. W. S. who is Darrow as Darrow and desire to know Darrow better as we leave Washington Hall.

The beauty of David Ristols play is likewise the beauty and wonder of Dan Daily's performance and Professor Reginald Bain's direction. The play is meant to be one man in search of an audience and the production continually draws one upon the visitors who come to watch it, reaching out, retracting, retaining itself. The thing that has led to miscarriages of justice and gross neglect in the voting. Network, seventy years of age. When Hollywood meets Monday night to announce the Oscar winners for this year, there will be more to the awards than the distribution of gold statues. Despite what nominated, fine filmmakers like Lina

Some categories to watch:

Best Cinematography: Haskell Wexler, Bound For Glory. The cinematographer (or "Director of Photography") is usually responsible for the visual beauty of the film. Wexler is one of the best in the business, and Bound For Glory gave him a chance to use his talent in an exciting and visually interesting results.

Best Sound: The late Bernard Herrmann, for Obsession. Herrmann was one of the best music writers in Hollywood until his death. Wexler wrote for Taxi Driver, for which he was also nominated, and his work has earned him a nomination for his music for the Brian dePalma film.

Best Adapted Screenplay: More and more, filmmakers are turning to the new non-fiction works of literature for their material. With each year, this category takes on more importance as the number of non-fiction novels translated for the screen increases. The five nominations, three (All the President's Men, Bound for Glory, and The Damned) are non-fiction novels translated to the screen. The fourth, Cassavetes', also notable, comes from the American classic, The Seven Per-Cent Solution. Nicholas Meyer's script is a brilliant adaptation of a splendid novel of nobly as a film. The winner here should be All the President's Men, which received the ultimate test of adaptation when Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward complimented McCarthy and Stewart's "great reporting job" by the filmmakers.

Those are my picks, and I'm sure you have heard them and will be discerning for the movies, one of the best in recent years, and I think the Academy has done its fine job of indicating so with such strong nominations in all categories. Let's hope the winners reflect the same level of achievement. Let's also hope I picked the right ones.

Better Supporting Actress: Marie-Christine Barrault (Couze, Couze) and Sissy Spacek (Carrie), both fine actresses, can be eliminated on the basis of the unintentional films they starred in, a riotous French comedy and a unique horror movie, respectively. Both Barrault and Spacek are newcomers in a Hollywood begging for fresh leading ladies, and their time will come. But their time is not now.

Talia Shire has been consistently good, in both Godfather films and now in Rocky, but her relative lack of credentials will hurt her chances, despite the tremendous popularity of Rocky. Liv Ullmann (Face to Face), the other is Eva Duzyan, up for her portrayal of a ratings-mad executive in Network. Both fine performers, both nominated for handling difficult roles with style and grace, it's a shame that one has to lose. My pick is in Duzyan for well-deserved first Oscar.

Best Supporting Actor: Bert Young (Rocky) and Ned Beatty (Network) are two superlative actors who are finally getting a lot of work and recognition. Burgess Meredith (Rocky) was good but not outstanding as the hero's trainer, Laurence Olivier may win. If he does, it will be honorably, and for his work in Marathon Man was far from his best, which is still good enough to merit the nomination. Jason Robards is too good to lose. His performance in All the President's Men was as good as it could have been, an impeccable job by a true pro.

Best Supporting Actress: By far, the hardest to pick. Jane Alexander (All the President's Men) is the logical choice: she combines the two qualities that most interest the voter: consistency and quality. But Beatrice Straight (Network) turns in a formidable performance as William Holden's wife. The threat to her winning is the fact that she had but one major scene in the film, lasting under two minutes.

Piper Laurie (Carrie) and Lee Grant ( borough of the Damned) have been around the block, but Laurie's character was too blase against Spacek's crazed mother, who eventually dies a grizzly death at the hands of Spacek, and Grant's vehicle as a whole is much more appealing along the way.

It will come down to a battle between Miss Alexander and 15-year old Julie Foster, who played a teenage prostitute in Taxi Driver. Depending on the mood of the voters, Foster may well win. She deserves the award, but not quite as much as does Alexander.

Best Director: The usual procedure here is to pick the director of whichever film you pick for Best Film. But the Academy seems to be trying to impart more significance to the award than it has in recent years by nominating directors whose films weren't nominated for Best Picture. Of the nominees, Lina Wertmuller (Seven Beauties) and Ingmar Bergman (Face to Face) have both left us. Oscar Nominees: For All the President's Men, John Avildsen for Rocky, and Sidney Lumet for Network.

Alas, there may be more to the awards than the distribution of gold statues. Despite what nominated, fine filmmakers like Lina

The thing that has led to miscarriages of justice and gross neglect in the voting. Network, seventy years of age. Holbrook is dead. He died early this year.

The threat to her winning is the fact that she had but one major scene in the film, lasting under two minutes.

Tony duing the film. "It is the duty of the voters..." says Darrow and so is Daily's. Daily has played Darrow before in an Oscar-winning performance last night that Daily likes this. Daily's trademark. The best thing about all of these categories is the idea of the reasoning behind the batting: the winners reflect the same level of achievement.

A few years of age, this has led to miscarriages of justice, for Rocky, and Sidney Lumet for Bound for Glory. The cinematographer (or "Director of Photography") is usually responsible for the visual beauty of the film. Wexler is one of the best in the business, and Bound For Glory gave him a chance to use his talents in an exciting and visually interesting results.

Some categories to watch:

Best Cinematography: Haskell Wexler, Bound For Glory. The cinematographer (or "Director of Photography") is usually responsible for the visual beauty of the film. Wexler is one of the best in the business, and Bound For Glory gave him a chance to use his talents in an exciting and visually interesting results.

Best Sound: The late Bernard Herrmann, for Obsession. Herrmann was one of the best music writers in Hollywood until his death. Wexler wrote for Taxi Driver, for which he was also nominated, and his work has earned him a nomination for his music for the Brian dePalma film.

Best Adapted Screenplay: More and more, filmmakers are turning to the new non-fiction works of literature for their material. With each year, this category takes on more importance as the number of non-fiction novels translated for the screen increases. The five nominations, three (All the President's Men, Bound for Glory, and The Damned) are non-fiction novels translated to the screen. The fourth, Cassavetes', also notable, comes from the American classic, The Seven Per-Cent Solution. Nicholas Meyer's script is a brilliant adaptation of a splendid novel of nobly as a film. The winner here should be All the President's Men, which received the ultimate test of adaptation when Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward complimented McCarthy and Stewart's "great reporting job" by the filmmakers.

Those are my picks, and I'm sure you have heard them and will be discerning for the movies, one of the best in recent years, and I think the Academy has done its fine job of indicating so with such strong nominations in all categories. Let's hope the winners reflect the same level of achievement. Let's also hope I picked the right ones.
The program will feature an annual Student question-and-answer period with members who are presently attending Notre Dame and Northwestern.

Gauthier, the HPC Chairperson, said that a policy change can be passed a proposal to circulate each hall council to put in effect. The constitution will have to be found the best possible solutions to a given number of problems, and then bring these ideas back to HPC for the formulation of proposals," stated Gauthier.

"Representatives from all class- and dorms will be able to gain valuable insights from each other," noted Gauthier.

HPC voted to change the constitution to allow the HPC chairperson to be a full hall president. Gauthier pointed out two advantages to the new ruling. It would allow the chairperson to devote more time to the position in addition to having an extra year's experience.

St. Mary's Hall President's Council (HPC) met last night and passed a proposal to circulate petitions to all students in an effort to reopen the parietals issue. The HPC, in conjunction with the parietals' committee, is still confident that a policy change can be implemented this year, according to Sassy Gauthier, HPC Chairperson.

"The petitions will be distributed to dorm section representatives by the hall presidents," stated Gauthier, "and they will hopefully be given out by the middle of next week."

We want to have the results tabulated before Easter break so the HPC can write a proposal or endorsement in favor or opposed to an extension of parietals," she continued. "It will then be presented to Dr. Duggan and the Board of Governors," Gauthier added.

"I know we’re going to come through successfully on the parietals’ issue," asserted Gauthier.

Other business conducted at the meeting included a unanimous decision by HPC members to establish a uniform constitution for all halls. Julie Pelletiere, Holv Cross dorms.

New Indian prime minister changes policy

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's new prime minister, 87-year-old Morarji Desai, took office yesterday and promptly announced a major foreign policy shift away from the nonaligned foreign policy of his predecessor.

Desai said he would immediately begin negotiations with the Soviet Union to end an era of special relations with any country. "We won't have any special relations with any country," Desai said. He added that more than 80 percent of India's diplomatic personnel have already been reassigned in line with the new policy.

Desai, who has been in Awami League politics for 30 years, said he would now focus on improving India's trade relations with the West. He also announced plans to renegotiate the terms of India's nuclear deal with the US, which was signed in 1975.

Desai said he would also seek to improve India's relations with the United States, which has been critical of India's nuclear program.

Desai's predecessor, Indira Gandhi, had maintained a nonaligned foreign policy, which included bipartite meetings with the Soviet Union and China. Under Gandhi, India also had a friendly relationship with the United States.

Desai's announcement came as India prepared to mark its 50th anniversary of independence. The country's government is facing a number of challenges, including a slowing economy and high unemployment.

Irish Wake to start An Tostal

WAKEFIELD, Ireland [AP] — The traditional Irish Wake will begin on Wednesday, April 20, and end on Saturday, April 23, according to chairman Bob Smith.

Under the direction of Smith and co-chairman Mick Mancuso, the Irish Wake will feature a variety of events, including a new look for the traditional Irish Wake.

"This year," Smith said, "we're going to have an Irish Wake deal, with ticket packages selling for $30.00, which is a couple of dollars more than last year, but approximately $7.00, will be a double ticket with additional coupons attached." Smith encouraged all students to take advantage of what he termed "definitely a great deal."

On Wednesday, one-half of the double ticket entitles the student to beer and half-priced mixed drinks at Fat Wally's for two pm until 3 pm. The Wake will continue at Bob's Public Defender with a "two-for-one" special from 3 pm until 7 pm.

The other half of the ticket advises the student to the Irish Wake dance, April 23 in St. Patrick's Hall, starting at 9 pm lasting until 1 am, the dance will feature "Chicos," a Chicago-based band.

Smith stressed the importance of adding coupons provided by the Observer. Each double ticket will have several An Tostal coupons attached to it. Two of these coupons can be redeemed for $1.00 off the price of a pitcher of beer at Fat Wally's. Additional coupons allow for a free mixed drink with the purchase of one at the regular price. Smith is presently working on the possibility of adding coupons provided by the Observer.

Tickets will be sold, beginning March 28, at both the North and South dining halls during all dinner hours and at the Student Union ticket office. At St. Mary's, tickets will be sold in the lobby of LeMans Hall from 4:30 pm until 7 pm. Ticket sales will end April 15.

Smith stressed the importance of buying tickets early, "because only a limited amount of tickets will be sold." Additional information about the Irish Wake is available at 4-4509.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that the American people should be told what is going on in foreign policy, President Carter yesterday outlined an agenda for negotiations in Moscow, designed to begin an effort to eliminate nuclear test explosions.

Carter also said that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will be urging Soviet leaders to join the United States in efforts to end outside interference in Afghanistan and to ease the conflict there.

Carter said at a nationally broadcast White House news conference the topic Vance will be discussing in Moscow talks next week. He said the description was not so detailed as to impede negotiations. The President said his administration will follow a policy of maintaining "serious consideration of a policy of noninterference directly from the people."

He said the administration has spent "a great deal of weeks in detailed study of the agenda for the Vance mission, and it is important for the American people to know what is on it."

Carter said he wants it known that "when I do speak, I don't speak with a hollow voice," but with the support of the American people and the nation. He said that should be clear, for example, in his expression of concern about human rights issues.

Carter's list of topics for the Vance mission to Moscow included:

- Discussion of arms limitations "with and actual reduction for a change," as the focal point for negotiations,
- Limitations on arms sales to other nations.

Carter said the United States is now "the No. 1 exporter or salesman of arms of all kinds," but that would change and also will seek Soviet agreement on mutual arms reductions.

Carter said, "We would like to eliminate these tests, and the Soviets will agree," Carter said.

Coal train derailed

A Penn-Central coal train became partially derailed about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening, on the spur that parallels Douglas Road. Six cars of the 13-car train hit the tracks when the rails parted and left the train lying on its side. The locomotive remained on the tracks. The locomotive moved all the coal cars still on the tracks Wednesday morning and a crew repaired the damage later in the day.

None of the detailed cars overturned, although each contained approximately 60 tons of coal. The track is owned by the Penn Central.

Boston Zone tamed by stabbing

The crackdown began after a sidewalk brawl last November. According to court testimony, a group of Harvard football players went to the Combat Zone on a lark after a season-end dinner. A prostitute stole one player's wallet. They gave chase, and protectors came out of the bars to defend the woman.

Star defensive back Andrew Polk said there was stabbing and heartache during the struggle and died a month later.

Three Boston men, Leon Easter­line, 41; Edward J. Soares, 23; and Richard S. Allen, 36, were convicted of first-degree murder Thursday and given life terms in prison moments later. Before the stabbing, 25 or 30 prostitutes would line up at dusk along the sidewalks of block-long Lan­Grange Street. They barricaded the area legally zone as the "adult entertainment district." Customers discriminate suit. "They cannot go to the bars and get the publicity." Baggino said.

Organized labor, Congress conflict

WASHINGTON [AP] - Organized labor, overmanned in its Congress and court fights this spring, faces even more difficulty in the summer, according to congressional leaders said yesterday.

"Labor is having to go to make an appeals case, anything else through, both Congress and the public," said House Majority Leader James Wright of Texas.

The surprising defeat in the House on Wednesday night of a bill authorizing unrestricted picketing at construction sites has shot up the chances for major labor legislation in this session of Congress, the leaders said.

"We got caught with our pants down," said labor lobbyist, top lobbyist for AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

But, on the same, Kamier and his fellow lobbyists predicted the sting of defeat would also work for the amnesty bill.

"We may suffer for it initially, but we won't say it won't be bad," said, "Sure we're going to have to fight, but that's going to be more difficult for us, too."

The section in the Taft-Hartley Act that bars the organizing of teachers remodeled an old garage on campus, a parent of two years. Notre Dame and St. Mary's students have been tutoring the children all year.

Anyone is welcome to participate and may do so by calling Joe Collins at 8603 or John Dierer at 8914.

Rocke Memorial events planned

The section of the University of Notre Dame campus is scheduled for Sunday, March 27. An 8:30 a.m. mass in the basilica, followed by a breakfast in the South Dining Hall. Mr. McHenry, assistant coach of the team, will be the speaker at this year's event. A former Sports Editor of the University of Notre Dame, he was a long time friend of the late Rocke.

To the Break

Happy Birthday! Sorry (this wasn't in Wednesday's Observer) if you were not aware of the intention of scheduling 14th. I don't think anyone could guess where it is.

And, in a later postmortem, this year's program apparently was rushed to the bill through by some optimistic reports that it would happen again.

The rule of politics that you should not field the team unless you will win," the speaker warned.

Contractors, home builders and right-to-work states have a long way to go. Don't O'Connell described the ban on intensive lobbying effort he had even one of the companies in my office alone, received 50,000 letters.

The picketing bill, which would have allowed workers to picket for an entire job site, was rejected by the House on a vote of 217 to 205. A similar bill passed Congress last year only to be vetoed by then President Gerald R. Ford under the terms of a legislative package. Because last year's measure passed the House, by a majority, labor figured it would pass the toughest fight in the Senate.

"We misconstrued," said Kamier. "We knew we had the week the voting was getting tight and the opposition was mounting a very effective campaign against us, but we thought that we had lost the House and the battle was still in the Senate."

Both labor and the Democratic leadership agreed that the big problem was convicting the Senate of the bill, in the same campaign cost about $1 million.

Associated Builders and Contractors alone bailed out the picketing campaign and organized a special insurance for labor's vote on the bill, which was later organized and inducted in labor.
Bad luck, or bad design, to describe it well. Just ask Tom Fallon, coach of the Notre Dame tennis team. Entering the 1977 season as head mentor of the nettlers, Fallon looked towards spring for the first time in many years with new optimism. In the fall, Fallon saw his team in excellent shape, and four straight singles players from last year's squad along with a good crop of upper classmen. But bad news hit early for Fallon as he was faced with the first of several losses that would be the services of some of his key men to graduation. Stager had been a major contributor to the 1975 campaign helping the Irish to the number two spot in the nation. Another disappointment was the loss of freshman tennis man Tom Slager to an academic problem.

Stiller's Irish started the spring season with a strong team captained by senior Randy Stiller. Out of Peru, Indiana, Stiller became the number two singles player in the nation by his senior year. While still a junior, Stiller competed in the NCAA championships. He was a successful singles player and doubles partner was another sophomore returning from last year's squad. Marty Horan out of Washington High School in Worthington, Ohio contributed nine wins in doubles and eight wins in singles as a freshman for the Irish. The other sophomore has identical 5-3 records in singles and doubles. In high school he lettered three years and was co-captain of the team his final season.

Looking to end their losing streak, the Notre Dame tennis team.

By Tom Powanda

Sports Writer

Here's some odds and ends from the past week:

Coach Fallon

Fallon's tennis team will be the first of many to play the Irish on their spring tour. In the fall season they played four matches of their spring trip easily, defeating the University of Louisville, Guilford College while squeaking out a 4-3 victory over High Point College.

Playing in competition every day they have had to suffer three victories, turns out sour for the Irish, while they lost four of their matches to lose their next four matches.

Playing two of the top twenty teams nationally, the Irish fell victim to North Carolina and UCLA.

Just one day after Digger Phelps and his team was to suffer a setback, the Irish tennis team played their first match of the year at home against the Notre Dame.

Continuing their slide, Notre Dame again went down to defeat playing their second match in as many days. The score was 6-2, 6-0.

The score however did reflect the depth of the Irish. Three of the losses came in set three losses.

The seventh round proved Foreman's downfall for the Irish. A very aggressive and powerful player, the seventh round proved to be even more so. The score was 6-0, 6-0.

Houlding started the fall season with a singles spot but lost it during the winter practice. Out of St.

For spring break, Trueblood decided to remain in South Bend and practice his tennis skills away from the talented squad in their Northern Indiana home. A top player for the Irish, Trueblood decided to stay in South Bend and practice his tennis skills away from the talents in their Northern Indiana home.

The other sophomore from Colorado is Bob Koval out of Vista. Setting out last year with a broken leg, Koval contributed to the team in singles and doubles. With a fighting spirit of overcoming a difficult injury, this year he suffered one deficiency and has come away with five wins in eight tries in doubles competition. Koval doubles partner is another sophomore returning from last year's squad.

Marly Horan out of Washington High School in Worthington, Ohio contributed nine wins in doubles and eight wins in singles as a freshman for the Irish. The other sophomore has identical 5-3 records in singles and doubles. In high school he lettered three years and was co-captain of the team his final season.

After coming away with four victories which saw the Irish netters seek to improve their fortunes next Saturday and Sunday at St. Joseph's. The club continues its voting campaign to attend this novice skipper's regatta. The Notre Dame tennis team will be the first of many to play the Irish on their spring tour.
