Various festivities highlight AnTostal weekend

by Mark Perry

Editor’s note: This is the third part in a series of articles explaining the recommendations of the COUP report and their relation to the Campaign for Notre Dame.

A major focus of the Committee on University Priorities was on the Catholic character of Notre Dame. In response, the Campaign for Notre Dame seeks $5 million for the university’s retreats program.

In order to make the positions of rectors more clear, a report noted.

Another program that campus officials have cited is the retreat program. The retreat program could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus.

The COUP report stressed the importance of religious organizations on campus. The report stated that religious organizations have become increasingly expensive and are therefore a concern. This maintenance has become increasingly expensive, and there is a need to provide funds for their maintenance.

Another program that campus ministry leaders believe will enhance campus religious life is a religious studies program. In cooperation with other departments of the University, campus ministry wants to feature "first-rate religious thinkers" who will contribute to the discussion of important spiritual and theological issues on campus.

Programs can be funded by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus. The series could be fostered by an endowed series of articles explaining the liturgical and religious programs on campus.

Endowed Rectorships

The COUP recommendation focused on ND’s Catholic character. The report noted that religious organizations have become increasingly expensive and are therefore a concern. This maintenance has become increasingly expensive, and there is a need to provide funds for their maintenance.

The recommendation is to increase the number of endowed rectorships. The report stated that religious organizations have become increasingly expensive and are therefore a concern. This maintenance has become increasingly expensive, and there is a need to provide funds for their maintenance.

AnTostal’s frisbee toss called for exact aim and a steady hand. (Photo by Leo Hansen)

The COUP report stressed the importance of religious organizations on campus. The report stated that religious organizations have become increasingly expensive and are therefore a concern. This maintenance has become increasingly expensive, and there is a need to provide funds for their maintenance.

The recommendation is to increase the number of endowed rectorships. The report stated that religious organizations have become increasingly expensive and are therefore a concern. This maintenance has become increasingly expensive, and there is a need to provide funds for their maintenance.
Benda to speak at CCE

Dr. Ernest Benda, president of the Federal Constitutional Court of West Germany, will discuss Human Rights and International Law under the West German Constitution at the University of Notre Dame’s Center for Continuing Education tonight at 8 p.m.

Benda is president of the court which declared unconstitutional a West German law requiring abortion on request during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

The special lecture is offered by the Center for Civil Rights and the Law School in conjunction with an international conference on human rights to be held of Apr. 27-30. Benda’s appearance is sponsored by the John Marshall Law School in cooperation with Notre Dame.

Before becoming president of the high court in 1971, Benda had maintained a law practice since 1956 and had served in the Bundestag since 1957. He joined the federal government in 1966 as an Undersecretary in the Interior Ministry and from 1968 to 1971 he was Minister of the Interior.

Pollution control workshop resumes at CCE today

A workshop on new concepts, methods and advanced technology in air pollution control resumes today at the Center for Continuing Education through Friday.

The workshop was organized by Notre Dame statisticians further research in particulate-gas separation technology. It is supported by the National Science Foundation and the Environmental Protection Agency.

By Toan Adam, Notre Dame associate professor of aerospace and mechanical engineering, is chairman and workshop director.

Some 50 scientists and engineers from universities, industry, government and other research organizations will participate in the meeting. The goal is interaction among three groups of researchers - theoretical analysts, experimenters, and design and application specialists.

Two major lectures will be offered: "The Influence of Electrostatic Forces for Particle Collection in Fibrous Filters" by Friedrich Löffler of the University of Karlsruhe, W. Germany, on Thursday, Apr. 27 at 8 p.m.; and "High Temperature Filtration - Technical Prospects and as Means for Check on Theories" by Michael Benarie of the French National Atomic Energy Laboratories on Friday, Apr. 28 at 8:30 a.m.

The Observer is published Mondays through Thursdays and weekends during the summer session, except during the exam and vacation periods. The Observer is published by students of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary’s College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $30 per year ($30 per semester) from The Observer, 204 Andre House, South Bend 46635. Second class postage paid at Notre Dame, Ind. 46556. Copyright 1977 The Observer. The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All reproduction rights are reserved.
Las St. Mary's is now actively encouraging the establishment of an endowed chapel. The endowment, $2 million, is set up to benefit from their affiliation with Notre Dame. Several students participate in the original two-credit "Trends in Contemporary Human Development," and the University hopes to maintain and expand them.

Some 160 students participated in the original two-credit "Trends in Contemporary Human Development," and the University hopes to maintain and expand them. These programs are basically designed to improve the level of a diocese or university. The University believes, however, that more scholarships are available, more top seminars would study at Notre Dame. "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character: "Our Catholic character should be self-evident upon our intellectual work. But it should also permeate in a way we could hardly describe as secondary - the community of learners. The life in our residence halls, and the interactions between faculty, students, administrators and alumni must be a reality for us to fulfill the faith which is false if not verified by love," concluded the COUP section of Catholic character.

Gabriel receives insignia of French Legion of Honor.

Prof. A.G. Gabriel, director of the Folger Institute in Bibliography and Photographic Collection will receive the insignia of Officer of the French Legion of Honor today at ceremonies in Washington, D.C. Presenting the honor will be Philippe Olivier, French ambassador to the U.S., whose two-week-long French consul general in Chicago, at a reception to be attended by French and American friends of the medieval scholar.

Gabriel was director of the French College in Hungary from 1939 to 1948 and for most of that period was also a professor at the University of Budapest. He joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1948 and was director of the University's Medieval History Institute from 1953 to 1975, when he assumed supervisory duties of Notre Dame's effort to photograph and microfilm the scientific manuscripts and art treasures of the Ambrosiana Library with support from the Samuel H. Kress foundation.

Gabriel is a corresponding fellow of the French and Bavarian Academies of Science, member of the Royal Historical Society and of the Medieval Academy of America, and has received the decoration Commander of the Order of Merit from Italy.
Rep. Mitchell discusses black political events

Theater and school desegregation. I want to see how the Justice Department is going to react to that. I'm going to see how the Attorney General that if he comes out of his office, I'm going to ask him if it is good, that I would be the first to apologize.

THE OBSERVER: Newseum reported that Julian Bond was trying to persuade the Justice Department to desegregate public schools. Is this true? This may have been in the interests of the state of Georgia. But how did the other members of the Caucus react?

MITCHELL: I felt all of the members of the Caucus would have preferred a sa- Sino-Asian to stay in Congress. It was his purpose of the Black Political Congress? Is this true? The Caucus authorized me to do the works of Tolkien, Lewis, Sayers, Charles Williams and others. Admission to the symposium is free.
Fictioneering

Editor's Note: With the Observer office or solid literature short story, Observer Features introduces “Fictioneering,” an opportunity for members of the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community to submit works for publication in print. Hopefully, this project will provide an alternative to the more conventional outlets for the literary talents of students, staff and faculty. Anyone interested in submitting works for consideration need only bring them to the Observer office or call 1-800-999-HERE. I hope that you enjoy today’s stories, the first in what I hope will hopefully become a steady diet of solid literature by members of the university community.

"Leonard, I think I'll die next week," Walter said as the words between bites of pastrami pizza. "OK Walt, you do that," Leonard said with a frown. "But will you quit picking the mushrooms off your pizza? It really bugs me when you do that—it really does." Walter held a small mushroom on his thumb, and stared at it contemplatively.

"No, I mean it Leonard. I had this dream..." I dreamed... I was on this big ferris wheel. It was real dark, and I couldn't get out, so I started walking until I came to this cleared part, and saw a hole or something. And I walked up to it, and up, up, up, you know what it was? It was a grave, Lenny, and there was this big concrete tombstone with a spotlight or something on it—you know, like one of those lights that are attached to the top of big pictures in museums and places, and you know what it said?" Leonard noticed that Walter had a piece of cheese stuck between his front teeth, but didn't say anything. "It said..." Walter leaned over the table and squinted intensely behind his spectacles. "It said—Here Rests the Soul of Walter Bradley Hatford the Third. A Great Man with Simple Tastes." Walter was about to ask for the check, allowing his head to fall limply onto his hands. "Cut it out Walter," Leonard said. "You give me the creeps. Scotch opened his eyes, and shrugged. "It’s all I got. I don’t want to think about it. The whole material world would just become meaningless to me. No need for food, money..." Walter held his wallet gently in the night, Leonard. All the pieces fit. "He put his wallet down and picked up the last piece of pizza. "This is it, Lenny. The last time you’ll ever see me picking off mushroom." Leonard frowned, and walked without a word to the orders counter. When he returned, Walter had just finished the last piece, and was leaning back in his seat with his eyes closed and his hands folded on his lap. Leonard watched him for a while, and finally nudged his shoulder. "OK Walt, you can’t sit off it now. You are the biggest goddamn fake—you and your dreams. Last pizza, my ass."

As Leonard slowly opened his eyes, a waitress was leaning over the table, reaching for the last straining pastrami pizza. "Now you sit there and tell me you can’t eat that!" Walter looked down at the plate, shaking his head. "I don’t know, Lenny. It’s just the way you sit there in my mouth. But I’ll try—really.

He picked up a piece and held it before him, shaking his head. He bit delicately at the tip, grinning. Lenny watched closely, entranced. He bit delicately at the tip, grinning. Walter looked down at the plate, shaking his head. "I don’t know, Lenny. It’s just the way you sit there in my mouth. But I’ll try—really.

I walked into the Stepan Center an hour before the first performance of the Emmet Kelly Jr. Circus. I wanted to take pictures of the clowns putting on makeup for a photography class project, but knew that this was usually a forbidden practice. Clowns, like actors, don’t want the public to see them making up for a show. It takes the magic out of the transformation from man to clown.

One of the circus performers pointed out a young boy with a car running in his hair and car and said, "Ask Paul about the clowns." The boy was short, but must have been at least 20 years old. He said that I could talk to his dad, who was a clown. We walked through the trailer area where all the motor homes and trucks were parked. He nudged his week after week folded on his hands, and I was ushered into the mobile home of Emmet Kelly Jr.

The dirty blue carpet of the mobile home showed evidence of heavy traffic, and papers lay on the floor in random piles. A stereo with large speakers played big-band music from the kitchen corner, and a black fur covered bed was raised on a platform at the near end of the trailer.

This is the home of one of the world’s best-known clowns and his wife, Kelly’s mother-in-law was sitting and she rested on a couch covered by a comforter. After introducing myself, I asked the performer if I could take pictures of him putting on his clown makeup. The thin figure clad in mismatched pants and shirt looked more like a 60-year-old farmer than a circus clown. He was unshaven and smoked an unfiltered cigarette.

He hesitated and then said, "I’m glad you were in the dream too. And after you sit down and pick up the last piece of pizza, I’m going to replacing the empty plate with another piece. Maybe someday you’ll want to think about it. You’ll go on and graduate this year, go to Law School, and maybe someday you’ll look through your yearbook and see my picture—they’ll have to leave me your picture in—maybe with a dedication or something. Anyway, you’ll see my picture and you’ll know who I am. You’ll be happy. You’ll be happy. You’ll be happy.

Walking back to the mobile home I saw Kelly standing outside, talking to television reporters. One of the camera men sneered at me, the amateur photographer, but changed his tone when he found out that this student had permission to watch Kelly put on his makeup.

"You’re really lucky," he said.

I walked to the mobile home with Kelly and we went inside and sat down. He offered me a cup of coffee and turned up the big band tape once again. It was from the Armed Forces radio broadcast of "One Night Stand," he said. He was collecting memories of the old days, he said, and had them on tapes and albums. He said it was the only music to listen to. The orchestra didn’t drown out the singer and you could understand all the words.

The slight man sat down, lit a cigarette and then began kneading his pink rubber clown nose. His makeup box was small and he used only a handmirror and desklamp. He said that he had to skip shaving in the morning so that his makeup would go on evenly. On a dream-shaven face, he said, the makeup smears and goes on in big smudges.

Kelly first drew on a large white frown, his trademark, and then proceeded to put on the pink putty nose and red and black greasepaint.

"I’ve been a clown since 1960," he said, "and have traveled all over the United States and parts of Canada."

As a kid, I guess I’m pretty stupid sometimes. Oh, here, would you like a piece?"
Escapee commits suicide after shooting girlfriend

PATTERSON, La. (AP) - A prison escapee shot and wounded a former girlfriend and her infant daughter, then held a young woman hostage for six hours before releasing her and killing himself, police said.

Robert Broomfield, 27, was found shot once in the head after tear gas was fired into the house where he was hiding, Police Chief Jessie Paul said. He said police fired no shots.

Momenlists earlier, Broomfield had released his hostage, identified as 19-year-old Neva Oggin, unharmed. Police said he was armed with two pistols but had agreed to trade the girl for a shotgun and five shells.

Broomfield never got the gun, which had been shoved through an open door, because the girl brought it out with her, Paul said.

"When he released her, we asked him to come out, but he said he wasn’t coming and wouldn’t be put in jail," Paul said. He said officers then fired the tear gas and heard two shots.

Continentals got a good deal going for you next time you use one of our many domestic destinations—our Economy Excursion Fares give you 24% savings all summer long, or you can skip a meal and save 10% on our Economy Fares, good any time of the year.

To put you in the mood for your vacation, we’ve got the only Coach Pub in the Sky on board, a full-service DC-10 with a萨ラリド and sports. And our spacious 727’s offer free stereo, overhead storage and a middle seat that folds down when unoccupied to give you lots of room to relax or spread out the books.

Don’t forget to ask about our special travel programs, such as our California Campus Tours, California Fly/Drive Vacations or Yucatan Safari Holidays. For more information, call your Travel Agent or Continental Airlines and remember, if you can’t fly Continental, try to have a nice trip any way.
Inner city housing offers advantages

by Karen Hinko

Editor's note: This is the last in a three-part series describing the influence of the economic, social and political heritage of South Bend.

People become interested in buying and living in an inner city to restore it to its natural state only to discover they cannot receive a loan. Jeff and David Gibney, brothers, are currently renovating an old house, attribute the problem to racism and sociology.

"Let's face it, people stay away from the inner city because of the interacial balance," they said. "They fear the crime associated with the inner city, especially if it is 25 miles away from the city because of the crime." Jeffrey, who are currently renovating an old house in South Bend, is in good condition and the crime in the area is not "the safest neighbor- hood in town, but we don't walk the streets with steel helmets on. This neighborhood had the same reputation for twenty years--really ever since the neighborhood be- came integrated."

According to the brothers, not only are the city dwellings inexpensive but because of its questionable state, neighborhoods are difficult to purchase. An example of this is the house they bought in the Chapin Street area for $7500. The structure, as described by the owner, was abandoned, in a maintenance-free for five years. The question of who would buy it is a disad- vantage and is difficult to find a mortgage. "We sold the house to a developer on a land contract and interest free because it was the best way to get the present owners to feel the crime in the area was not as bad as it was to be."

After the encounter with the loan department of the banks, the Gibney's left discouraged. "They had learned of an organization, the Southbend Foundation, Inc., who would give a land contract and interest free to the owner. We were told we would have to foreclose on the house, "they explained.

"We bought the house from the Gibney's, "the neighbors reported. "The new owners feel the crime in the area is not as bad as it was to be."

The "spare-time" spent hand-painting the houses, raffles, other than wall-papering, skylighting ceilings, installing hard wide-board floors, are all spent toward home improvement. The Gibney's explained that "savings are the only thing things is lost. "Personally, no one one more thing, but it is a great deal of work," they explained when asked if they would redo those kinds of things and do any more work at the same amount of time. We just choose to spend it doing relatives kinds of things."

So the Gibney's attempted to make a living, probably to restore a second job. The home was sold to a developer and "we saved a bundle of money and don't have to go it again anywhere else but in our own home. Essentially, it's a poor investment for us, "the brothers said.

The present owners feel the crime in the area seems to be the only place to go. The Gibney's, who are currently renovating an old house in South Bend had learned of an organization, the Southbend Foundation, Inc., who would give a land contract and interest free to the owner. We were told we would have to foreclose on the house, "they explained. "We bought the house from the Gibney's, "the neighbors reported. "The new owners feel the crime in the area is not as bad as it was to be."

According to the brothers, not only are the city dwellings inexpensive but because of its questionable state, neighborhoods are difficult to purchase. An example of this is the house they bought in the Chapin Street area for $7500. The structure, as described by the owner, was abandoned, in a maintenance-free for five years. The question of who would buy it is a disad- vantage and is difficult to find a mortgage. "We sold the house to a developer on a land contract and interest free because it was the best way to get the present owners to feel the crime in the area was not as bad as it was to be."

The "spare-time" spent hand-painting the houses, raffles, other than wall-papering, skylighting ceilings, installing hard wide-board floors, are all spent toward home improvement. The Gibney's explained that "savings are the only thing things is lost. "Personally, no one one more thing, but it is a great deal of work," they explained when asked if they would redo those kinds of things and do any more work at the same amount of time. We just choose to spend it doing relatives kinds of things."

So the Gibney's attempted to make a living, probably to restore a second job. The home was sold to a developer and "we saved a bundle of money and don't have to go it again anywhere else but in our own home. Essentially, it's a poor investment for us, "the brothers said.
S.M.C. Women's sports finish

McKann combined for a second

Robillard, O'Haren, Behnke, and victorious as Behnke, McKann,

Suzanna Behnke captured first

Weber and O'Haren were clocked place in the squads from Marion, St. Francis, finishing 4th in the Marion College

meet and this weekend found them

they travelled up to East Lansing, the meet with Purdue capturing the squad ahead

left on the clock,

Judy Temple.

It

was Temple to

SMC

was halted, speedster Ferguson their points came all in the championship clash. In three years while Montana added five buckets.

Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

as Dubenetzky hit on a tum-around

Scored a two-point

the Whites their only score. Tom switched to the Blue team later in

for the Blue team, intercepted a and at intermission the Blues led,

14~7.

the Blues their only score. Tom the offensive achieved the day as the game's leading

Blue score. With the ball on the Blue team was on the offensive

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

and the touchdown. Joe Montana twice. Bookstore for his contributions to

Toby Knight led Ebony Magic to the same player twice.

while Montana added five buckets.

Tom Sudkamp was named Mr.

the 1977 tourney. Chris "Hawk"

Stevens captured the Dr. J Award, the championship.

TILCS

ostered once again

for a total of 49 yards, although the

the Blues' offense to their final points of the

for a total of 49 yards, although the

"Hawk"

though Terry Eurick did bruise his

the obstacles a double second time to come up to the Baccum.

"Duck's" and "Dice's" roll, a team consisting of

Betta, Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

on 17 carries

Grace's section of

by Tony Pace

The Notre Dame football team

fielded its annual Jocks vs. Girls basketball tournament. Commenting on the scrimmage,

Kevin Munro directed the Blue
touchdown and extra point on short

kept an eye on his good friends

Yardline before being knocked

for his contributions to the only score. The score

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

"Duck's" and "Dice's" roll, a team consisting of

Betta, Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

on 17 carries

Grace's section of

by Tony Pace

The Notre Dame football team

fielded its annual Jocks vs. Girls basketball tournament. Commenting on the scrimmage,

Kevin Munro directed the Blue
touchdown and extra point on short

kept an eye on his good friends

Yardline before being knocked

for his contributions to the

only score. The score

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

"Duck's" and "Dice's" roll, a team consisting of

Betta, Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

on 17 carries

Grace's section of

by Tony Pace

The Notre Dame football team

fielded its annual Jocks vs. Girls basketball tournament. Commenting on the scrimmage,

Kevin Munro directed the Blue
touchdown and extra point on short

kept an eye on his good friends

Yardline before being knocked

for his contributions to the

only score. The score

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

"Duck's" and "Dice's" roll, a team consisting of

Betta, Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

on 17 carries

Grace's section of

by Tony Pace

The Notre Dame football team

fielded its annual Jocks vs. Girls basketball tournament. Commenting on the scrimmage,

Kevin Munro directed the Blue
touchdown and extra point on short

kept an eye on his good friends

Yardline before being knocked

for his contributions to the

only score. The score

for the Blue team, intercepted a

the ball on the

"Duck's" and "Dice's" roll, a team consisting of

Betta, Bill Hanzlik and Tom Sudkamp

on 17 carries

Grace's section of

by Tony Pace

The Notre Dame football team

fielded its annual Jocks vs. Girls basketball tournament. Commenting on the scrimmage,

Kevin Munro directed the Blue
touchdown and extra point on short

kept an eye on his good friends

Yardline before being knocked

for his contributions to the

only score. The score

for the Blue team, intercepted a