Arthur Pears, director of Notre Dame Security, announced yesterday that he will be retiring on Dec. 16. Pears, who will be 65 on Dec. 16, added that the University requested that he retire. Pears will be replaced by Joseph Wall.

Pears said he received a letter on Aug. 29 from Dean of Students James Roemer requesting that he retire. The letter also expressed appreciation for his 13 years of service with the Security Department.

The letter continued to explain the training of the new security director.

"We will enter the University and theissy's employment Oct. 1. This will provide an overlap for Wall's orientation and the letter emphasized that Pears' termination date could not be extended beyond Dec. 16.

Wall has been the chief of police at Richtown, Ill., since April 1975. He received a bachelor's degree in social justice from Lewis University and a master's degree from Roosevelt University in public administration.

When asked about his mandatory retirement, Pears said that it was the prerogative of the University to decide at all time whether or not a person should retire. Pears said he plans to look for another job after Dec. 16.

He said he would take a job with the University if he could find one

Roemer did say that he did not want to work for the Security Department. He felt that it would cause too many administrative problems if he was in | the office.

It is only good administrative sense to not have Art with security. It will cause confusion within the department, as people will not be sure who is the boss," Roemer added.

Before coming to Notre Dame, Pears worked with the Nile, MI, police department as an officer for 15 years and, more recently, as the police chief for 15 years.

Pears said he has enjoyed working with the University. "I've had the greatest satisfaction in years and, at this time, I would like to say I have enjoyed working with the University," Roemer said.

Roemer added that he has developed the security department from its original small size to one that has a few hundred people to the large organization it is now, designed to handle many problems.

Roemer said that Pears has gained the respect of many people, both on campus and off, because he has handled problems at Notre Dame.

CAMP DAVID, MD [AP] - President Carter arrived at this Marine- guarded Mideast summit site yesterday, pleading for compromise and saying chances for complete success are very remote.

"Compromises will be mandatory," Carter said as he left the White House. "Without them, no prospect can be expected. Flexibility will be the essence of our hopes."

He confirmed that the summit, which has no time limit and could go on for a week or more, will be held in extraordinary seclusion.

"I would say that we will be almost uniquely isolated from the press and the outside world," Carter said. "I hope this is that degree of personal interchange. Without the necessity for political posturing or defense of a transient or personal belief, will be constructive."

Carter praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for "their willingness to come when the political consequences of failure might be very severe, and when the prospects of complete success are very remote."

"I said to him in conferences that the only way to come, and even to begin, was the possibility of failure which we must be prepared for," Carter said. "It is the only way we can have a site that is acceptable to both Israel and Egypt.

Sadat and Begin will be meeting here by Carter this morning..."

Sadat was in Paris for talks with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. Diplomatic sources said Sadat was in Paris to discuss the Camp David negotiating position.

Carter praised for peace on Sunday a Bible school session at First Baptist Church, where he regularly attends services when in Washington.

Darragh stresses involvement

by Jean Powley
Saint Mary's Editor

Gail Darragh, Saint Mary's student body president, promises a year of diverse social, cultural and professor-oriented activities on the campus.

"We're not bringing up controversial issues this year. We're more interested in getting the student body involved in student-government-sponsored activities," she said.

"Last year, issues like parietals and the 21 Club were top priorities and although I'd love to see them go further, I feel they've gone as far as they can for awhile," Darragh continued.

Instead, Darragh's administration is busy planning such activities as Professional Week (Nov. 7-9) during which Saint Mary's alumnae from different majors will speak about their experiences in the working world.

"We decided to invite alumni because they know the kind of background and education we're coming from and what our problems and experiences are likely to be," she explained.

A committee of five students, one administrator and one faculty member has also been organized to work on developing a lecture series in which speakers such as actress
Cindy Tyson would visit the college.

Darragh said.

Woman's Week, which made its debut last April, will be continued again next semester. No definite dates have yet been set.

A hotline will be organized for students who wish to become involved in activities. During certain hours, the Student Government office will be manned so that students can phone or visit the office with complaints, suggestions and questions, Darragh said.

Social events planned for the year include an outdoor concert this month, Oktoberfest, a seven-part movie series and special holiday celebrations.

In addition, student government will be involved in traditional concerns such as the publication of "The Grapevine" (student government newsletter), the United Way campaign, a college charity and working toward improved security on campus.

Cafeteria staff returns to ND payroll

by Laura Larimore
Staff Reporter

Dining hall employees have been returned to the University payroll while management of the food service remains under contract to SAGA. According to Robert Robinson, food service director, the new contract went into effect July 1, giving SAGA management duties only.

Most of the changes instituted last semester will be retained, including the dining hall computer-entry system, originally planned by the old Notre Dame Food Service.

Robinson feels that the system has two advantages over the old checklist system, pointing out that students can eat in either dining hall and that lines seem to move faster with the machines. The expanded salad bar will also be retained and there are plans for further improvement.

Additional improvements in the variety of the menu will be disalyzed with the Student Food Committee, Robinson said. Organ-ed by the Co-cx Commission-or's office, the committee serves as a liaison between the students and the director meeting on a regular basis. Robinson anticipates to generate more student interest through the committee. He indicated that he would look to them for tips on the timing of special meals, so as not to conflict with other student activities, and also for some input on food budget planning, such as whether money should be devoted to expanding the entire selection or widening the dessert choices.

Salisbury, Rhodesia (AP) - Ten passengers who survived the crash of a Rhodesian airliner near the war-torn Zambian border were questioned by black nationalist guerrillas, Rhodesia's military newspaper reported yesterday.

A passenger who escaped by diving into the mess said most of the 36 passengers were children.

A military communique said 16 of the 36 persons aboard survived the Sunday night crash, and five went for help. When the guerrillas arrived they opened fire on the other 11, killing two, it said. Rescue teams found the three survivors of the guerrilla attack and the five who had gone for aid.

The other 36 passengers and crew were believed to have died in the crash.

Hans Hansen, who survived the crash, said about an hour after the crash, nine guerrillas emerged into the clearing gouged out by the aircraft, and, "when they first approached us they said they were going to give us water and help. Then when they gathered us together, they said, 'You have taken our land. We are going to kill you.'" and began shooting. The woman was bayoneted after being shot, Hansen said. "It was the most brutal thing I have ever seen."

The bullets missed the 35-year-old Hansen, his wife Diana, 31, and Anthony Hill, 39, all white Rhodesians. They ran into the brush and hid for the night.

Hill's description of the crash caused speculation that a ground-to-air missile might have downed the plane. "I ran into the brush and hid for the night. Hill's description of the crash caused speculation that a ground-to-air missile might have downed the plane. "I ran into the brush and hid for the night."

The pilot, John Hood, 36, had frantically raised that "I have lost both starboard engines." before the plane disappeared.

All the passengers were whites except for eight members of two Rhodesian Asian families. All were Rhodesians or South Africans except a Scottish couple visiting Rhodesian relations.

The military communique said the guerrillas arrived at the scene shortly after the crash and ordered the passengers to their feet.

"The terrorists then opened fire with Communist-made AK-47 assailed rifles and ten of the passengers died in a hail of fire," the communique said. The shots were not identified, but six were said to be women.

The military said the guerrillas then looted the aircraft and the bodies of those who died in the crash.

Nicaragua:

Unrest continues

Managua, Nicaragua (AP) - Political leaders backing the violence-ridden general strike against President Anastasio Somoza said yesterday nearly 700 persons have been arrested in the past few days.

Both sides braced for more battlefields.

The government pressed into service 500 civilians from state agencies to reinforce national guerrillas patrolling Managua.

Eduardo Chamorro Coronel of the opposition Conservative Party claimed that 60 political leaders and at least 600 other persons throughout the country are being held "incommunicado at undisclosed locations."

On Aug. 28, Somoza's opposition called for a general strike aimed at toppling the government. The strike is strongest outside Managua. The Managua Chamber of Commerce, which supports the strike, said 76 percent of the businessmen in the capital were closed. The chamber bases its survey on shopping centers. Gas stations, most banks, government offices and the open-air market remained open.

The government withdrew the chamber's charter after it joined the strike last week.

The Somozas family has ruled Nicaragua since the late 1930s. The current wave of violence and strikes followed the takeover of the National Palace by members of the Marxist Sandinista National Liberation Front last month. The guerrillas demanded and got freedom for political prisoners and safe passage to Panama for the prisoners and themselves in exchange for the release of the hostages in the palace.
Watch out! He walks a big baby

INDIANAPOLIS [AP] - When Norman Morehead walks the baby, he doesn't take her by the hand. He takes her by the trunk.

"I hadn't had any previous experience," the 22-year-old trainer said. "Not many people do. It's not often you get a chance to train a 2-year-old elephant."

Morehead got his chance when he began working for the Indiana University here last March. He landed the job of caring for Kubwa, who stands 46 inches at the shoulder and weighs as much as 15,000 pounds - as good a reason as any for training her now.

Morehead explained. "It's just their nature when anything gets in their way to just try to get it out of their way any way they can. During the get-acquainted stage, she'd try to slap us with her trunk, butt us, ram us in the wall, kick and bite. Yes, elephants do bite. Since then, Kubwa has been shaping up. Under Morehead's tutelage, the elephant has learned to respond to four basic commands: halt, forward, steady and the elephant keepers' equivalent to 'heel,' in which the animal assumes the keeper's pace, walking with the elephant's left shoulder even with the keeper's right one."

Morehead said he plans to teach Kubwa to raise her trunk on command, back up in a straight line and hold a position with her left front and right rear feet lifted.

"I like the work - it's very unique," he said, adding, "if someone had told me a year ago that this is what I'd be doing, I wouldn't have believed it."

SMC Founder's Day planned

by Jean Powley

Saint Mary's Editor

Next month's Saint Mary's Founder's Day, which will celebrate the college's 135-year history, will be different from any such celebration in the past. Sephora President Adel Trigani told the Saint Mary's Board of Governance last night.

"Tentative plans, which should be finalized next week, call for a special buffet sit-down dinner on Thursday, Oct. 12, for students, faculty, administration and the Board of Regents, complete with a stage and entertainment, according to Trigani.

"Although the sophomore class will be responsible for planning the day's activities, the other classes, faculty, administration and the Board of Regents will also be expected to help, she said.

"Board members also decided to re-establish the weekend check-cashing service initiated last year," Trigani said. "Student government members will cash checks up to $5 on the LeMans side of the dining hall during Saturday night dinners, except on home football weekends."

In addition, Marlene Frost, co-ex commissioner, announced that the possible co-ex tickets for Notre Dame students with late Tuesday-Thursday classes at Saint Mary's is being explored.

"Special tickets for off-campus students are also being considered," she said. The next Board of Governors meeting will be Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Student Government office in the basement of Regina North.

ND Evening escort service for women discontinued

by Maribeth Moran

Staff Reporter

The evening escort service for women implemented last May by Dean James Roemer has been discontinued.

Roemer cited several reasons for the termination of this security measure, which involved driving women students to their residence halls. His reasons included the extreme increase in traffic on the campus roads as well as the hazards imposed to the pedestrians.

According to Roemer, campus security officials estimated an increase of 500 cars on campus during any given weekend night.

"There was no way to tell if all these cars were really dropping off people or an abuse of the privilege," Roemer said.

The simple road restricting the campus is also a drawback to the continued practice of allowing extra vehicles on the University grounds. Roemer cited the steady increase of joggers, cyclists and pedestrians crossing the road at many places as an additional consideration for discontinuing the policy.

Headlights of cars are not always an adequate means of identifying persons on the road.

In addition to a question concerning male students driving their dates to residence halls during the weekend, Roemer stated that students who had been drinking posed a serious threat to safety of pedestrians using the campus roads.

As an alternative to the drive-on policy, Roemer cited the Security Escort Service.

The evening escort service for women discontinued. A security escort will be available for anyone, but will cost $444 and waiting for approximately 10 minutes until a security person arrives to take them to their particular dorm.
ATHENS, Greece [AP] - A sex scandal involving color photographs showing a 60-year-old Greek Orthodox bishop with an unidentified woman has shaken the church here. The bishop claims the pictures are forgeries but a government investigation says otherwise.

Ioannis Varvitsiotis, the government minister of education and religion, turned the pictures over to church officials and said the press, “I consider it my duty to protect the standing of the church.”

The case has made headlines here, around the bishop’s parish in a village that has had turbulent turmoil within the church hierarchy.

At the root of the scandal are color photographs purportedly showing black-bearded Bishop Stylianos of Preveza, in western Greece, having sex with an unidentified woman. Church officials said the woman in the pictures apparently is a priest’s wife or the wife of a Preveza notable whose identity is being protected.

The bishop claims the pictures are “forgery. It’s small change plot to undermine my position.” He said they were forged by his former chauffeur, also a priest, demanding the equivalent of $6000 in blackmail.

A church spokesman said an investigation by the nationally funded Research Department “proved beyond doubt that the pictures are genuine.”

The spokesman said Varvitsiotis turned the pictures over to Archbishop Jerzegam after they were certified as genuine.

Varvitsiotis did not say how he got the pictures. The archbishop showed them to the Holy Synod, the 12-member governing body of the church, which has made its estimates public.

Church officials said the bishop will ultimately go before a church tribunal and be defrocked if found guilty. The religious charge against him is “scandalizing the conscience of the faithful.”

The bishop gave a political explanation to the scandal. He has said he is being targeted because he reached his position during the 1967-74 period of military dictatorship in Greece.
Intercom installed in locker rooms

by Frank LaGrotta

As a result of a planned increase in security measures at the University of Notre Dame, an intercom-security system has been installed in the women's locker rooms at the Rockne Memorial Building and the ACC. The new facilities will provide a means of communication between the locker rooms and the building's security personnel and are seen as protection against intrusion and possible attack.

A buzzer device was installed at the ACC with connections in the issue room and the office of John Plouff, ACC managing director. "Should a girl require assistance, she could press a button and both myself and the issue room attendants would be notified," Plouff said.

"It's a real boost in building security," said. "This is not only a means of preventing attack. It also protects the girls against accidental intrusions, which are quite possible on football weekends when we have visitors at the ACC."

The system at the Rockne Memorial is slightly different in that an actual intercom has been installed allowing women in the locker room to speak with the attendants on call.

"It's a great idea," commented Rockne Supervisor Ed Karmierczak. "Actually, we've been considering installing something like this for quite some time. It's a real boost in building security."

The recent measures are a result of a study of Notre Dame's security policy conducted by Security Audit Incorporated, an independent firm based in Olympic Falls, Ill.

According to Assistant Provost, Sr. Miriam Jones, the study was suggested by the Committee to Evaluate Co-Education at Notre Dame. "They asked us to take a look, so Dean Beemer initiated this audit out of which came a very thorough study of security at Notre Dame."

Sr. Jones, who has personally inspected the system at the Rockne Memorial, is very satisfied with the measures taken.

"It's better than what Security Audit Incorporated suggested," she pointed out. "It's a real improvement in security measures. I haven't yet seen the system at the ACC, but I understand it is just as effective."

According to Plouff, the entire system was installed by Notre Dame maintenance workers, making costs minimal. "All we had to pay for was the actual equipment involved," Plouff said. "The whole system, Sr. Jones said, "is really a tribute to the people who went to such extremes in such a short period of time."

Minority service office
Blackwell named as director

by Alice Levin

Staff Reporter

A new member of the Notre Dame community, Edward Blackwell, has been appointed as Director of Minority Student Affairs.

This position was designed to meet the needs of minority students in all areas, and, according to the policy as adopted last March, Blackwell will be responsible for providing academic, social and career counseling to the students.

His duties also include assisting in fund-raising endeavors, maintaining records and collecting data pertinent to minority students, and working with the Recruitment Office to increase graduate and undergraduate minority enrollment.

Blackwell explained his present goals, "I want to define what would be needed in terms of establishing and keeping alive the paper college for minority students."

He will maintain a constant communication with the offices of Admissions, Financial Aid and Registrar.

He will design the survey according to the information he obtains through communicating with the administration as well as the students.

Blackwell also intends to use the office in an indirect way to help minority students. "I want to be a support for other resources on campus available to the students, in other words, to supplement services already in existence."

The duties of the office are not confined to the University. The job description explains that Blackwell will be expected "to institute consortium programs with surrounding colleges and universities."

Presently, Blackwell will continue to research the problems of minority students. As with any new office, Blackwell feels it will take time to realize its potential. "We are in an embryonic stage," Blackwell said.

Self-defense class initiated
Kathy McKeeze  Staff Reporter

As part of the effort to increase student awareness of security problems on campus, the Physical Education Department will sponsor a self-defense class starting Monday, Sept. 18.

Sgt. Joel Wolvos of the South Bend Police Department will conduct the class which will meet each Monday and Wednesday from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. for three consecutive weeks. The classes are open to all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students.

According to Coach Dennis Stark, chairman of the Physical Education Department, the students will learn various methods of surprise retaliation to quickly escape an attacker rather than ways to disarm an attacker.

"Our aim is not to develop karate experts," noted Stark, "but rather to teach students how to protect themselves in case of an attack."

Assistant Provost, Sr. John Miran Jones, Dean of Students James Roemer and Stark attempted to institute a similar program last year following a few security-related incidents on campus, but "it never got off the ground until too late in the school year," explained Stark. The recommendation of such a program in the recent report by Security Audit Incorporated finally made the idea become a reality, according to Jones.

"The basic impetus for the class grew out of student interest," noted Jones, "but the turnout will demonstrate whether there is sustained interest or just a case of a hot issue."

Stark hopes that people will take advantage of the opportunity and urges any interested students to "drop in and see what the class is all about."

Depending on the turnout for this class, additional classes may be scheduled for later this semester or next semester. According to Stark, if enough interest is evident, there may also be the possibility of inclusion of a self-defense class in the regular physical education program.

The class is currently slated to be held in the Rockne Memorial but Stark is considering moving the class to a more centralized location. Members of student government have urged Stark to move the class to accommodate the North Quad residents who wish to attend.

WASHINGTON [AP] - President Carter moved yesterday to emphasize that the burgeoning of the General Services Administration will go after whatever high officials have been involved in corruption and fraud.

Carter held a surprise Labor Day meeting with Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and GSA Administrator Jay Solomon, just before the president left for Camp David to prepare for the Middle East peace summit.

Solomon and Civiletti said Carter reaffirmed his support for the probes into allegations of bribery, fraud, corruption and theft at the $5 billion-a-year agency that is the federal government's main landlord and supply house.

Civiletti said after the meeting that the investigation will be pursued wherever it leads.

"No one is exempt from the investigation at all - either inside or outside of the government," he said.

A White House official who asked not to be named said Carter wanted to signal to possible witnesses in the scandal that they should implicate any high officials who were involved.

"This thing is getting to the point where high officials are involved, and some people are uncertain whether to name the bigger fish," the official said. "Some people apparently thought this was all going to go away, and they could keep their mouths shut. Well, it's not going to go away."

Solomon said he briefed Carter on the last month of activities by the various probes into GSA wrongdoing. Solomon said last week as many as 50 people would be indicted in the scandals.

"We wanted just to apprise him of everything that was going on - no specifics, just in generalities and what they would feel comfortable that we were pursuing the investigations," said Solomon, who was on a hiking trip in the Shenandoah Mountains when the White House called for the meeting.

"I think it's very important to have the backing of the White House. I've had it all the time," he said.

The allegations under investigation by several grand juries, the FBI, U.S. attorneys across the country and an internal GSA task force are ranging, varying from simple theft to complicated contracts rigging and bribery.

There have been allegations of theft and fraud at GSA self-service stores, where other government agencies obtain office and other supplies. Another probe is aimed at vendors who allegedly supply less goods to the stores than contracts call for and then pay off the store managers or their employees to look the other way.

Several large procurement contracts are also under investigation. Allegations have been made that GSA contracting officials took bribes to give the contracts to a specific company.

Frosh 'materialistic'
by BRIAN JOHNSON

\[\text{Camps Digest} \text{ News Service}\]

Only 29.7 percent of '78 freshmen are marked 'materialistic.' Fifteen percent of freshmen are the kind with 'great materialist' or 'very materialist.'

For example, Art, 29, says, "I did the math. It's cheaper to buy a Zippo lighter than to carry a lighter."

Freshman's future plans show a rising interest in business. 6.5 percent more students are interested in entering the business world after they leave school.

More students are planning to enroll in such courses as 'materialism and economics.'

Freshmen also are going to college to improve their reading and study skills. More students say they are 'very interested' in college reading and study skills, according to a poll.

But Art also discovered that the 29.7 percent of freshmen are marked 'materialistic' in several areas of knowledge. For example, only 29.7 percent of the freshmen can recite the emblems of the U.S.

Only 18.3 percent of the freshmen can use a slide rule.

The percent of 'materialism' in freshmen is decreasing. Art says he doesn't "wanna be a you-know-what" anymore."

Schools may open; teachers still strike

[AP]—Classes reopen for the fall semester today, but in thousands of classrooms the teachers will be absent.

Schools are underway in Philadelphia, New Orleans and Pontiac, Mich., and in such other districts as Richmond and Marion, Ind., where teachers have been threatened in Cleveland and Dayton, OH, for example, and in Boston and Seattle. Most of the issues involve pay.

In Philadelphia, with classes scheduled to open Friday for 250,000 students, school officials were resuming negotiations last Tuesday after striking 21,000-member Philadelphia Federation of Teachers.

Talks broke off Friday after the old compromise—$6,000 for all, and teachers began picketing the next day.

In New Orleans, a district serving 97,400 pupils, a strike has been on since school opened last Wednesday.

Schools have been running with reduced staffs and new administrators, substitutes and a few teachers, but by Friday bus drivers and janitors had joined the strike and only a third as many students have been attending classes.

Cleveland classes are to open Friday but may be delayed by an uneasy Thursday, don’t want a third strike in a month, and some officials say they can’t afford a fourth.

In Pontiac, MI, where the teachers system has received an emergency $20.7 million that will cut into bonds budget-cutting, talks are scheduled for today.

The Dayton Education Association votes today on whether to strike that city’s schools, which serve 37,000 students. School is to open Monday with a minimum number of teachers reporting tomorrow.

School officials and teachers are trying to fill a desegregation plan, now in its third year, for the failure of this tax review.

In Boston, where classes are to open Wednesday for 60,000 students, contract negotiations are stalled over class size and working conditions, according to Henry Robinson, president of the Boston Teachers Union. A strike vote is scheduled today.

Wage negotiations failed to produce agreement in Pontiac, MI, and the school board fears that some of its teachers who have been on strike in advance of school’s opening to report to work today or for the Superintendent Odei Nails delayed a start of classes for the 31,000 students from today to Thursday.

In Seattle, the school board says classes, scheduled to begin next week, will not begin until a contract is signed with teachers to resume.

Mediators aided negotiations are continuing, but even with a new contract, they could be a strike by custodians, gardeners, security officers and food service workers.

The 4,000-member Seattle Teachers Association, they have no contract.

Thousands flee; monsoon flooding rages on

NEW DELHI, India [AP]—Lewis Maclean, a 76-year-old Scotsman, struck with a fury this weekend, swept away the thousands of residents in seven northern states and forcing hundreds of thousands to flee to their swamped villages.

Thousands of persons were unaccounted for near Calcutta, the worst hit state, the state’s home minister chief of Bengal, denied reports that 15,000 persons had been washed away there, but said, “It is one of the greatest disasters."

Authorities confirmed at least 42 persons drowned or killed by monsoon floods in West Bengal, but officials say they can’t afford a fourth.

Civil-air force helicopters were operating in Haryana, west of Uttar Pradesh, and others were making airdrops, the United News of India reported.

A hospital spokeswoman said 19 persons drowned or killed by monsoon floods in West Bengal, about 75 monsoon communities are dependent on the airstrip, the United News of India reported.

Delhi municipal officials have asked about 200,000 refugees to shift to relief camps set up in schools and stadiums in the capital area. Many camps provide tents and drinking water but lack electricity and basic sanitation facilities.

Immigration minister S.S. Barmala, making a tour of struck-in states of the capital, said flooding would result in a critical stage.

With over 700 people participating in Sunday’s Student Union Election, tickets for the upcoming Yes concert appear to be in greater demand than for any previous concert at the ACC.

Helmet crashes, kills seven at festival

DERBY, Pa. [AP]—A helmeted driver slamming balls with prize membership certificates into a crowd at a Labor Day church festival killing seven persons, authorities said.

A hospital spokeswoman said 19 persons were injured and 33 of them were admitted for treatment.

The craft, which apparently had engine trouble, plunged into a congregation stood at the parking lot of St. Joseph’s Catholic Church in this Western Maryland resort town of 50,000 miles east of Pittsburgh.

Witnesses described a scene of blood and severed bodies after the craft and its whirling, fell to the ground.

“There were bodies everywhere. One of them was just half a man,” said Chuck Klatz, 28, a visitor from Connellsville, Ohio.

Although police first reported that the pilot struck a utility pole on an approach that was too low, Federal Aviation Administration officials said later the pilot said engine trouble may have been the cause of the crash.

The pilot indicated the possibility that the engine might have failed. She said she did not attempt to land.

Kounts said the blade tips of the three-seat helicopter were traveling at 350 to 400 mph.

State police identified the helmeted pilot as Pam Nelson of West Mifflin in Allegheny County. Roxborough and Curran’s 12-year-old daughter, Mary Beth, 27, was killed. The helicopter occupants were injured.

Just like going up against any other player.
All of the brother combinations stressed the importance of letting the younger brother make his own decisions. "When I was just like recruiting anyone else," remembers Dave Huffman, "I just told the truth - that's the most important thing.
Sophomore halfback Jim Stone recalls his advice for younger brother Mike. "I told him what I liked and didn't like, but I left the decision up to him. I didn't like it when people pressured me when I was being recruited, so I didn't want to bother him.
"I think Boushka had a similar attitude toward Mike. "I didn't like the people telling me which school to go to, so I let Mike make his own decision. Now I try to help him out, especially with classes. When I started last year, I was pretty young, so it's a little bit easier for me.
"I thought both Dave and Tim Huffman play on the offensive line, praise hasn't been given along many secrets that helped make him an All-American. "Although the basics are the same, guard and center are different positions," Dave pointed out.
"I've learned more about holding up in the nose tackle than in the rest of my life," Tim added.

Cowboys crush Jones-Colts

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas quarter­back Roger Staubach winged four touchdown passes, including a 91-yard pass to slip away to Tony Dorsett, Monday night as the Cowboys easily took the national crown and the punchless Dallas Cowboys crushed the Dallas Cowboys 38-0 in the Cotton Bowl. The victory opened to both clubs.
Staubach, Pro Football Weekly's offensive rookie of the year last season, righted the ship and caught three passes for 107 yards through Mike Delches, a sopho­more, "Stack Pack.
The Cowboys rolled up their second largest offensive total in the history of Dallas, 222 yards.

Baltimore (AP) - Scott Mc­Gregor retired 23 consecutive bat­ters after Jim Rice slugged a three-run homer - his 30th - in the first inning Monday night, and Lee lyle's two-run sixth inning double left Baltimore ahead to play the Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the Red Sox.
The loss reduced the Boston's American League East lead to five games over the New York Yankees, who split a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers.

Rice chases elusive mark

BOSTON (AP) - With perennial American League batting champ­ion Red Carew of the Minnesota Twins still hitting rips, the coveted Triple Crown goes to Jim Rice this year.

However, the Boston Red Sox slugger is closing in on a little known, but ever elusive mark.
Way back in 1959, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees smashed his way to 418 total bases on route to the Hall of Fame. DiMaggio never again was able to reach 400 total bases.

Neither has any other American League hitter since Ten National League players have done it - Stan Musial in 1944 and Hank Aaron in 1959.

Going into Monday night's game at Baltimore, Rice had 349 total bases - with 27 games remaining. He leads the major leagues with 37 home runs and 119 runs batted in.

But the hitting record that Mike's family is most interested in is 400 total bases. That would put the best hitting of the season at 800.
