McKenna plans student forum

by Kevin Eicharhon
Staff Reporter

Student Body President Andy McKenna spoke last night about the importance of Student Rights and tonight's discussion forum in Washington Hall with Administration officials. Stating that "Student rights have steadily deteriorated in the past few years," McKenna outlined his criticism of the present input mechanisms and his proposed solutions.

"Student Rights, which are the mechanism for formal input into University policy, are much weaker now than they were a year ago," McKenna said. "There are three basic deficiencies in the Campus Life Council which makes it weaker than the former Student Life Council."

"There is no accountability on the part of the Vice President for Student Affairs. Many of the proposals from last year were made and then simply filed away," McKenna stated. He said the reason for this is that "There is no procedure outlined to cover CLC proposals."

"Legislative--students can have direct input...

McKenna said that Student Government was looking for an articulation from the Administration and the Board of Trustees regarding student input "hopefully in the form of the proposal that was drawn up by Student Government earlier this month."

"Secondly, a great amount of the student input into the writing of cludac and other University regulations has been transferred to Student Affairs. The SLC didn't delegate its power of 'legislation' to the CLC."

McKenna is seeking a restoration of this power to the CLC from the Board of Trustees in its upcoming meeting.

In his final point, McKenna said that the preamble of the SLC described it as a "legislative body" where the CLC's preamble describes it as an "advocacy body."

"We feel this difference is critical and understand that the SLC was not 'legislative' in the sense of having an override power for rules," McKenna said. "However, we look at 'legislative' as meaning that students can have direct input into University policy. If the CLC is merely an 'advocacy council,' we are reduced to simply reacting to policy developed by the Administration," McKenna said.

"Though we will seek to change this at the upcoming Board of Trustees meeting, it will probably take more than one meeting to do it," McKenna said.

McKenna also reminded students about the importance of the discussion forum with Administration officials. "It is obvious that they have lost ground. If we want to reassess our rights, we have to show the Administration that we really care. A large turnout will help in this effort," he said.

McKenna concluded by saying that "since we have introduced our plan, we have stuck to it and followed through on it. There have been no changes or modifications."
Beechcraft crashes

San Juan, Puerto Rico—An engine explosion apparently was responsible for the fiery crash of a small plane into a residential area of San Juan, killing the plane's six passengers and two persons on the ground. The twin-engine Beechcraft crashed and burned Tuesday night on a crowded street. The two killed on the ground were in a car crushed by falling debris. Six other persons were injured. Witnesses said the Beechcraft was clearly trailing an Eastern Airlines jet and appeared to collide with it. But the pilot of the Eastern Airlines plane said on of the Beechcraft's engines apparently exploded and densed, they had collided.

Students respond to CDC

The Saint Mary's Career Development Center (CDC) did not expect their Life Planning Workshops to be unpopular, but neither did they expect the tremendous response they have received.

The workshops involve skill building in resume writing, interview techniques, job search strategies, and work values/decision making.

"The response was extremely enthusiastic," said Betsy Twitchell, assistant director of Career Development.

"It was apparent that some students were interested in exploring other career paths which they had not considered before." Twitchell said.

In addition to the workshops, she said, "The students have received a lot of feedback about the workshops, and we have received many suggestions for future workshops.

The workshops are being held in collaboration with the Career Development Center, the Student Employment Office, and the Department of English.

The workshops are scheduled for the next four weeks, and are open to all students.

Student response to the workshops has been overwhelming, Twitchell said.

The workshops are being advertised in the campus newspaper, and students are encouraged to attend.

The workshops are also being held in the Career Development Center, and are open to all students.

Gulf Board member

Sr. Scully opens lecture series

by Mark Roat
Staff Reporter

Sr. Jane Scully, a member of Gulf Oil Corporation’s board of directors, said yesterday that her opportunity to serve on Gulf’s board is “a greater chance to hold the kingdom of God, greater than any other force in my life, including, perhaps, the Church.”

Sr. Scully, the first woman ever elected to Gulf’s board, made the comment during a Cardinal O’Hara opportunity to serve on Gulf’s directors, said yesterday that her the kingdom of God, greater than which charged the corporation with board in 1975, just prior to the Richard Nixon’s campaign fund.

and cycle of “Invitation, Intervention and Aftermath” during her hour long speech and called the Gulf are like people ... they are sinners too,” $100,000 executive officers as a result of the action ever taken by a corporation it is appropriate to be on a board of corporation included the restructur­ing of the tax organization the ethical standing of the staff. principles committee and a human

She said that besides giving a unique perspective to corporate boards she has also gained a personal perspective on boards in general.

Boards are Closed Clubs

“Boards are closed clubs. The same people serve on board after board after board. The men on the boards in Pittsburgh are making a fortune. I’m not saying that it isn’t appropriate that they make money. I just think that more people should have the chance,” she said.

She said that, while boards are very powerful, corporations listen to the input of their stockholders.

“Corporations take very seriously one simple question raised at a shareholder’s meeting. Putting a billboard up does not get you that kind of attention,” Scully said.

As a nun, Scully said she felt that it is appropriate to be on a board of directors because she has “insights into religious and social concerns and their relation to public con-cer

In 1971 Scully, president of Carlow College, was the most extraordinary action ever taken by a corporation in an effort to restore to the corporation a sense of integrity and rectitude, she said.

In addition to the high level dinamists, the actions of the company included the restructur-ing of the tax organization and the establishment of both a business principles committee and a human resources committee to evaluate the ethical standing of the staff.

Sr. Scully related to the audience that she had a direct role in the outcomes of the corporate action that made “33 chief executive officers...trouble.” She explained the details of the “intervention” that followed the “invitation.”

She said that after reading John McClure’s company fired analyst report on the political contribution, “it was quite clear to me that there were people in the corporation very guilty of some illegal activity. My heart sank to my toes.”

She said Bob Dorsey, the company’s chief executive officer that she was going to have to ask for his resignation. When she went into what the New York Times de-scribed as a “23 hour marathon meeting,” she knew that she “wanted four people to go and all of them were my friends.”

Scully said the board that “nothing will correct this situation...except a change of ad-ministration.” A long silence in the board room was followed by a reluctant acceptance of Scully’s proposal.

Invitation, Intervention and Aftermath

Returning to her “Invitation, Intervention and Aftermath” theme, Scully observed that the cycle repeats itself. “Once the corporation turns itself around, (there exists) a higher level of awareness of re-sponsibility. That is the new intervention.”

Scully said that she feels her biggest contribution to both the Gulf board and the board of the Pittsburgh Port Authority, which she sat in on in 1971, is a unique perspective to corporate boards.

“What don’t we talk about the future? We sneak into religious and social concerns and their relation to public concerns.”

In 1971 Scully, president of Carlow College in Pittsburgh, joined the Allegheny Port Author-ity “because of the challenge and energy...as a citizen you are expected to contribute time and energy to the city.”

Besides the Gulf and Port -Authority boards, Scully has served on other boards in the Pittsburgh area. She observed that serving as a director is no easy.

in response to a question about the fuel shortage, Scully said that there "was a problem. We need to find new supplies and we have to find it in our own areas." She pointed out that it is "extra-ordinarily expensive" to search for oil, and once the oil is found there is a "time lag of the ten years before it can be used."

Scully said that she "couldn’t say" whether or not Gulf keeps their oil reserves "artificially low."

Scully said that besides giving a unique perspective to corporate boards she has also gained a personal perspective on boards in general.

Former police chief to run security

by Pat Mangun

Joseph W. Wall, former chief of police at Richton Park, Ill., and responsible for eliminating the corruption within that police force, will replace Arthur N. Pear's as director of campus security as of Oct. 2, 1978.

For the past three years Wall has been striving to clean up the Richton Park police department. The two previous chiefs before Wall resigned under fire. The first was indicted for arson and the second allegedly misused funds. During his three years as chief, Wall brought charges against six Richton Park officers and asked an additional three to resign. He also reorganized the department's record system, range program, maintenance program, court system, recording methods and accounting procedures for complaints. In addition, Wall said he updated past procedures and created a system which resulted in better police coverage.

According to the Richton Star, when Wall announced his resignation early in July, village officials said they would accept his resignation "with regret". William McGill, village manager said, "In my three years here I've worked with Joe; he's made every effort to develop a police department that Richton Park could be proud of."

When Wall was asked why he was leaving a chief of police position for a chief of police position, he explained, "I was losing my challenge. In 1975 there was much corruption, but now we're becoming an agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation." According to Wall, he has had an application in at the FBI for some time. But Wall says he wants something right now and that the position at Notre Dame is it. "I like working in schools and I like Notre Dame top notch," Wall commented.

Before being elected chief at Richton Park, Wall served as a police counselor at Rich Central, a high school. During the two years he spent there, Wall said that he had reversed a violent racial problem which existed there. He also described these two years as the most thrilling and rewarding of his career.

In discussing changes which he intends to make, Wall said that he hopes to abide by the Security audit which was recently conducted on campus. He also pointed out that the budget would probably be the first limiting factor placed on his plans.

Specifically, Wall said, "I want to be less corporatistic in our approach to dealing with students and faculty." He emphasized the need for public relations people at the main gate to give information to an influx of people where people are first met and gather their first impressions of Notre Dame. Wall also said, "I administration at Notre Dame has to think it's a good idea for more students to be involved with security."

Although Wall will answer to James A. Roemer, dean of students, and Fr. John E. Wolfer, vice-president of student affairs, Wall said that he believed that he was hired to run security.

He pointed out that his former position as chief of police at Richton Park was an elected position, not an appointed one. In turn he said that he had not been a political appointee, and that he and Roemer both had a helpful understanding of each other—"I stayed out of law enforcement." Although Wall was appointed to head the security force here and although he recognized his position here as involving more cooperation, Wall did say that he did not consider himself a political appointee. Wall also said that he considered the job as being candid and I like to be open.

That's my style."

In announcing Wall's arrival, Roemer both praised Pear's and welcomed Wall. Roemer stated, "Art's 60th birthday is in December and he has done a great job. He came here and started from scratch and built security into the professional organization that it is today." In reference to Wall, Roemer commented, "I'm confident in his ability. He's a great communicator and he has a real zest for life—I think you're gonna love him."

Wall is 35 years old, married, and the father of one child. His wife, Carol Ann, is a graphics artist for Illinois Bell Telephone company and his son, Eric David, is three. His academic accomplishments include a bachelor of arts degree in law enforcement from Thornton College of the University of Illinois in basic training, community relations, and youth officer training. In addition, Wall has completed the supervisory school of the Cook County Sheriff's Department and other special classes administered by the FBI, Illinois State Police and Bureau of Investigation, Kent College of Law and Moraine Valley Community College.
In railroad strike

Marshall vows to intervene

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Cartier Administration vowed on Wednesday to step in and "start the trains running again" by noon today as a clerks' union expanded its cripping two-day rail strike to strike all of the nation's major railroads.

Later Secretary Ray Marshall ordered officials of the striking Brooklyn office of Railway and Air Clerks (BRAC) and the Norfolk & Western Railway (N&W) to begin a non-stop, 24-hour bargaining session with the help of a federal mediator at the Labor Department.

Marshall said the union and N&W would negotiate around the clock in order to reach a settlement of their contract dispute. Failing agreement, he said, "we'll take action at noon to start the trains running again."

The parties began meeting at noon. Less than three hours later, the union leadership ordered pickets thrown up around 73 rail stations in 42 states N&W, units.

BRAC spokesman Henry Fletcher said the union was removing pickets wherever it had been served with court orders. However, industry officials were complaining they were having great difficulty locating union officials to serve the court papers.

Marshall said the union had told him it was "reluctant" to end its picketing until it had settled with a N&W.

Some 4,600 clerks struck N&W on July 9 because of a dispute over job protection benefits the union wants for workers who may lose their jobs to automation.

Union President Fred Kestl said the union picketed the other carriers so the industry, which has been subsidizing the strikinghouse
N&W with about $800,000 a day under a mutual aid pact, would pressure the N&W to settle with the union.

The industry estimated on Tuesday the picketing had affected two-thirds of the nation's railroads in 42 states. There were no immediate estimates of the extent of yesterday's picketing.

SMC seniors seek commencement speaker

by Joan Powley
St. Mary's Editor

The St. Mary's senior class has begun its search for a speaker for the May 19th commencement exercises. A deadline of Monday, Oct. 2 has been set for students, faculty members, administrators and regents to suggest names at the Academic Affairs office, 132 LeMans.

"We would like to see a good graduation speaker this year who means something to the college and our class," Donna Noonan, class president, said.

"Although it would be nice to get someone who is well known, the main thing is that the person be a good speaker," she continued. A letter sent to Saint Mary's seniors this week clarified the qualifications the graduation speaker should possess.

"The Commencement speaker should be a person of national reputation, if possible. Although political figures are difficult to get firm commitments from, you may know someone personally whom we could contact. A person from business or higher education would also be considered. The person should be an articulate and forceful speaker," the letter explained.

Noonan said that the college would consider both male and female candidates.

Once the names are compiled, the list of candidates will be reviewed by an ad hoc committee of the Academic Affairs Council, according to Noonan. That committee will narrow the list down to the 10 or 15 candidates most relevant to the class of 1979.

The list will then be reviewed by the Academic Affairs Council, which will be able to add and remove names. Then, sometime in November, the seniors will be asked to vote for a speaker they prefer, according to Noonan.

Names are tallied, she said, the graduation committee will begin with the most popular candidates and work its way down the list until a speaker makes a commitment.

Nominations are also now open for honorary degree candidates, according to Noonan. The deadline for those nominations is Nov. 1. Honorary degree recipients should have demonstrated "those qualities which St. Mary's seeks to foster in its graduates," an extra-ordinary service to the college, or outstanding contributions to Catho-llic education, the letter the seniors received stated.

Outstanding artists, scholars or public figures will also be considered, it added.

Students interested in working on the graduation committee should contact Noonan at 4459 as soon as possible. In addition, graduation plans will be among the items discussed at the Senior Assembly meeting at 6 p.m., Sunday in 161 LeMans, Noonan said. All seniors are welcome to attend.

WASHINGTON [AP]- President Jimmy Carter has moved swiftly to try to heal a rift with the congressional Black Caucus after a heated White House meeting during which a prominent black Democrat walked out on the president.

Conyers and eight other members of the Black Caucus were urging Carter to push harder for passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill.

The proposal, passed by the White House last week, requires that Congress account for Carter's victory more of the projects.

"Our support for the Humphrey-Hawkins is strong, has been strong, and will continue to be strong. We will continue to push to try to see its passage this year," he added.

At a news conference after the meeting, Mitchell said, "We had a tough, tense, hard session." He added that caucus members left the White House "with the feeling that a maximum all-out effort will be made to get full employment legislation passed in this session."

Black voters were among Carter's strongest backers in his campaign for the presidency and some political analysts have said the black vote accounted for Carter's victory in 1976.

Administration sources, who asked not to be named, said trouble erupted at the meeting after Carter rejected a Conyers suggestion that a Camp David summit be convened to spur action on the jobs bill.

InPig to hold first meeting

InPig, the consumer group on campus, will hold its first meeting this Sunday, Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. in the LaFortune theater room 1C.

Paper and can recycling projects for the campus will be discussed along with a new energy conservation awareness program. Other topics of discussion will include off-campus surveys, a consumer "tips" column, campus seminars, and political involvement.

Anyone interested is invited to attend and get involved with one or more of the projects.

Tonight, students must prove they deserve to have input into rules governing their lives. Their chance to prove this is the All Student Rights Forum, scheduled for 7 p.m., in Farley.

While students are watching this evening, President Roemer and Van Wolvis will do the watching to see if the students will do anything. There is no doubt there will be some student action. The question remains of whether or not that action will show strength and organization.

The first step students must take is to attend - en masse. Poor student attendance will encourage poor responses from the administration. But, if Roemer and Van Wolvis feel the students are emphatic about these issues, and if students really care, the forum will have greater impact. The administration will then have to afford to make a poor showing in front of hundreds of students. By the same token, students cannot afford to make a poor showing in front of the administration. Tonight, the student body must act together.

Students can no longer sit back and watch others act for them. The Hall Presidents Council, the Student Council, the Campus Life Council, the Student Government all represent the students. In the wake of student reaction to the now infamous alcohol directive, the HPC and Student Government formed a committee to negotiate. It is negotiating to increase student input into the making of rules and regulations that directly affect them.

Tonight’s forum turns these negotiations over to the student body at large. But students must do more than show up. They must demonstrate that they are organized. The best way to do this is by following the tenets of the Student Rights Forum. There is no time on petty questions. Questions must be specific.

Students must support each other in their questioning by acting politely and in good faith. There can be only one question at one time. People should keep quiet so that you can be hearing the student body. However, if students fail to attend, if they fail to cooperate with one another, if they fail to support each other, the administration will need no need to go forward on these issues. Their point will have been proven for them.

Student Government formed a committee and negotiated a compromise. But there was still movement. A judicial system which guarantees the rights of students and to which the campus turns for redress in grievances of threats against personal property.

Dean Roemer and Fr. Van Wolfsvar feel the students are emphatic about these issues; if they see anything. There is no doubt there will be some student action. The question is the Student Rights Forum, scheduled for 7 p.m. on September 7 in Farley Hall.

Dean Roemer and Fr. Van Wolfsvar feel the students are emphatic about these issues; if they see anything. There is no doubt there will be some student action. The question is the Student Rights Forum, scheduled for 7 p.m. on September 7 in Farley Hall.

Students must prove they are organized. The best way to do this is by following the tenets of the Student Rights Forum. There is no time on petty questions. Questions must be specific.

Students must support each other in their questioning by acting politely and in good faith. There can be only one question at one time. People should keep quiet so that you can be hearing the student body. However, if students fail to attend, if they fail to cooperate with one another, if they fail to support each other, the administration will need no need to act. Their point will have been proven for them.

Student Government formed a committee and negotiated a compromise. But there was still movement. A judicial system which guarantees the rights of students and to which the campus turns for redress in grievances of threats against personal property.

Yes came to Notre Dame last Friday night, and the reactions from the listeners and viewers are quite varied. Some feel the group, backed by its solid reputation, performed superbly, while others regret spending the time and money for the evening. Why the great degree in difference of opinion? One can only speculate, but time and place must be considered. After a hectic week and a disappointing start to the football season, the crowd, a mixture of students and South Bend residents, might not have been in the mood to sit through long solos or to appreciate the group's blend of talents. They had either experienced the pure impact of Bruce Springsteen the week before or had been badgered by reports of his show, and their expectations might have been channeled along inappropriate lines. On the other hand, the music of Yes might have been the change needed to refresh some audience members.

There is no absolute explanation; everyone who attended the Yes concert has his own personal reaction and opinion. Those reading this feature and those who did not attend can just take these quotes for what they are—conflicting opinions from a diverse group of people who viewed the same event.

Senate okays compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate handed President Carter his first major victory on his energy program in more than a year yesterday, approving 57-42 a compromise bill to lift federal price controls from natural gas by 1985.

The legislation, which the White House has depicted as the most important remaining part of the energy plan, now goes to the House. A battle also is expected there but supporters of the measures appear to have the upper hand.

House leaders hope to combine the gas-pricing bill with a number of other, less controversial parts of Carter's energy plan and pass the entire package just before the scheduled mid-October congressional adjournment.

Carter expressed optimism the House would go along with the measure. "I think it proves to us our nation and the rest of the world that we, in this government, particularly Congress, can Courageously deal with an issue, and one that tests our national will and ability," he said.

George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association, said the Senate vote "is an important step toward adopting a national energy policy which will provide U.S. consumers with sufficient supplies of gas energy."

But James F Flug, director of Energy Action Educational Foundation, said in a statement: "If this monstrosity ever becomes law it will be a disaster."

Carter asked Congress in April 1977 to join him in declaring "the moral equivalent of war" on the energy crisis by approving a package designed to conserve scarce fuels by making them more expensive and taxing their inefficient use.

The House passed most of what Carter requested in August 1977. But until yesterday's vote, that was the last congressional victory the Carter program enjoyed at the Senate. The Senate began systematically dismantling the plan's major provisions.

Senate passage of the gas-pricing bill followed an intensive White House lobbying effort. Administration officials prodded the plan as crucial to U.S. energy policy and stability of the dollar.

Supporters said the measure would allow enough new gas to be found to reduce oil imports by about 1.5 million barrels a day by 1985 going a long way to meeting the reduction of two million barrels a day Carter vowed at last July's economic summit in Bonn.

However, opponents of the compromise - a coalition of liberals who called it too costly for consumers and conservatives who complained it didn't deregulate quickly enough - claimed the measure would not have any appreciable effects on either gas production or oil imports.

Congressional economists estimate the proposal will cost consumers who heat with gas about $16 billion in higher gas bills through 1985.

Supporters claim the measure will add about $25 a year to the average family's heating bill. Liberal opponents argue that the additional cost will be $100 or more a year.

Controversial Laetrile to be tested

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Cancer Institute wants to test Laetrile on several hundred advanced cancer patients in an effort to resolve "once and for all" the debate about the controversial substance, the institute's director announced yesterday.

Dr. Arthur C. Upton, said a human trial, was justified in the wake of a recent, investigative review of the medical records of patients who used Laetrile, which some claim is a cancer cure.

The institute launched a nationwide appeal for records from Laetrile patients last January. It got 50 responses, but only 22 provided all the necessary records and involved patients who had used only Laetrile. Of those 22, six cancer patients who used Laetrile showed improvement, nine stayed the same, and seven got worse.

The Food and Drug Administration, which has led a federal fight against Laetrile, still must approve the Cancer Institute's plan to use Laetrile in the human experiments. FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said he did not believe the institute's review of the 22 cases "demonstrates any effectiveness of Laetrile."

But Kennedy added, "There are other reasons that we all recognize that a controlled clinical trial might be desirable and NCI has been persuaded by them."

The FDA has been under pressure from Laetrile supporters who want the substance tested.

Kennedy said the FDA would review the cancer institute's request objectively and decide "as quickly as possible."

Upton noted that proponents of Laetrile claimed 50,000 to 70,000 Americans have used the substance, which is made from the pits of apricots and other fruits.

By virtue of the fact that thousands of people are now receiving Laetrile and the fact that we have this evidence, inconclusive as it may be in humans, we can justify a trial to resolve the matter once and for all," Upton told 200 institute workers and reporters.

The cancer institute's action comes 15 years after it was first asked to test Laetrile in humans. Upton noted that repeated tests in animals have produced no evidence that Laetrile can reduce the size of tumors.

But he noted that the results of animal tests do not always hold true for humans. Upton said a minimum of 300 patients would be tested. He did not say they would all be terminal patients, but said only those for whom all other therapies had been tried.

Other institute officials said the tests would involve groups of 15 to 30 patients with one of 10 different types of cancer. The tests would be conducted at major medical centers around the country where doctors normally try out new cancer treatments under contracts from the cancer institute.

HPC scraps Homecoming ‘royalty’
by Brandy Underwood

Elections for Homecoming King and Queen were scrapped Tuesday night at the Hall Presidents Council meeting. The news came as a result of overwhelming negative feedback from the Notre Dame Student Council. “Regressive” was the recurring term used by the presidents of the Notre Dame women’s halls as being the most opposed to the idea. “They seemed to feel that the competition would intensify the stereotyped Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s women’s rivalry,” he said. “A lot of the hassle could have been avoided bysurveying the student body prior to entertaining the election.”

Ellen Done, Badin Hall President, said that “Notre Dame earth is actually pointing where the women are respected for what they are and are competition for the queen dettracted from any development in that direction.” She claimed that most of the women “took it as a joke or were very upset at the idea.”

Michelle Kelly, Farley Hall President and chairman of the Woman’s Council, said the consensus was that the idea of Homecoming Queen and King was “childish and degrading.” Kelley said that in Farley Hall, no response was received in selection of section Queen representatives.

no one would have done it except as a joke and since that was the case, we thought it best to drop it.”

...not intended to be sexist...

José Marrero, Pangborn Hall President, said “everyone laughed” when the idea was presented to the hall. Marrero felt the idea “was not intended to be detrimental or sexist.” He pointed out that although the king and queen were “not essential” to a Homecoming event, most other college campuses still participate in the tradition.

When asked why the elections, several halls were reported to have noised various unlikable characters as a form. Some nominated to the positions include the Zahn mome mousy, the Holy Cross hog, a roach from Badin and Farley’s janitor.

Saint Mary’s hall presidents apparently were not approached with the proposed abandonment of the Homecoming royalty. Leanne Walsh, Lemass Hall President, said “the Saint Mary’s women were able to follow through with what they had agreed to do regarding the Homecoming elections, and we wanted to see why the Notre Dame girls were unable to fulfill their agreement.” Saint Mary’s section elections were held and all candidates resumes were submitted without incidence of problems.

Joe Guckert, Homecoming chairman declined comment on the matter.

WSND to broadcast hockey games

Reverend Edmund Joyce were also informed. Reverend Edmund Joyce is the official license-holder of the state of Indiana.

The station’s director said that “there has been no indication by the administration that they object. The hockey games are listed in our comprehensive and

WSND was licensed as a non-commercial public broadcasting station. According to Paul Stauder, sports director for WSNDFM, “there is a demand for hockey.”

So, some 2000 people attend each N.D. game, and for many going to an away game is not possible, hence the need for a radio broadcast. The AM station is only heard on campus. Since there are more hockey supporters from the South Bend community than the N.D. community it doesn’t make sense to air games on the AM station. With a radius of 35 miles the staff of WSNDFM feels that it has a responsibility to serve the public.

That public has asked that away hockey games be broadcast and WSNDFM will do so beginning Oct 27.

In many parts of the country the average cost of car insurance has risen in 1986 in the past five years.

Liability insurance protects you against the claims of others. It cost, that of any woman, of what the insurance company has to pay in claims plus its overhead. And the cost of everybody’s individual liability insurance is inflated by large court settlements and compensated claims.

Although liability insurance is required by law in many states, in light of the trend toward higher settlements, you should be sure that your coverage is adequate.

But in the “voluntary” parts of your car insurance—collision and comprehensive (fire and theft)—that cover damage to your own car, there are some things you can do to lower your insurance bill.

Safe drivers pay lower premiums for both liability and collision coverage. Insurance insure rates are set so that because drivers with a good past performance are less likely to have accidents in the future. Many insurance companies and ‘safe drivers’ as those with two or less moving traffic violations and no “chargeable, at fault” acidents within the past three years. Their premiums may be as much as 25% lower.

You can often cut your premiums for collision and comprehensive by 25% to 50% by raising your deductible. Many people still choose full-coverage comprehensive and $50 deductible collision

Helmet delay cuts
I-H football schedule

by Robbie Moore

Despite the recent delay in the kickoff of the interhall football season, due to a problem in the delivery of new helmets, the Department of Non-varsity sports has no intention of canceling all of the games. Richard O’Leary, Assistant Director of Club Sports, stated yesterday that this year’s schedule will have to be revised. A meeting of team captains will be held as soon as the Department receives news of its delayed shipment of NCAA regulation football helmets.

According to O’Leary, several options are open to team captains for rescheduling the games.

If the teams elect to play longer into the season, they could play all presently scheduled games by pushing back the playoff date. If the teams prefer to play a shorter season, they could limit the number of games to be played and still finish by the scheduled date. Or, they could hold some type of elimination tournament in order to determine which teams would go to the finals.

The main problem standing in the way of rescheduling all of the games before the presently scheduled championship date are the two upcoming breaks—Mid-Semester and Thanksgiving—which will eliminate five playing dates.

The delays are due to a ruling made last year by the NCAA regarding safety regulations for football helmets worn while playing university sports. Team captains have been waiting since September 15 for a shipment of 520 football helmets which would comply with the new NCAA safety standards.

According to O’Leary, the entire shipment was due to arrive from the Wilson Manufacturing Company in time for the opening games. As of yesterday, only half of the helmets had arrived. O’Leary is expecting one hundred more of them to arrive today, with another shipment of 60 coming sometime in the near future. When the entire shipment is filled, there will be plenty of helmets to go around with, each team receiving 6 helmets.

In the meantime, all games must be postponed as the department cannot be discriminatory by allocating equipment to some half teams and not to others.

Hall practices continue to be held, as team members refuse to give up hope. "The guys still want to play; they've put in too much time and hard work to quit now," Paul Chervenak, sorts Hall Sports Commissioner, commented.

O’Leary is hopeful that most of the delays can be worked out tomorrow, if the shipment does indeed arrive today.
Mardi Gras chairman must attend meeting

There will be a mandatory meeting for all Mardi Gras hall chairman, architects, and raffle ticket chairmen on Monday, Oct. 2 at 7 p.m. in the LaFortune Little Theater.

These attending are asked to come with ideas for their booth and what hall they would like to work with. The main topics at the meeting will be booth themes and the pairing of halls. The theme for this year's Mardi Gras is "Once upon a Classic."

Any club, class, or other organization interested in having a booth should contact Bob Morin at 6718 before Oct. 2.

Anyone with any questions should call Morin or John McMurray at 7820.

Interested in technical crew?

There will be a mandatory organizational meeting today for all those interested in working on the technical crew for "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," the ND Student Players' fall musical. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the basement of LaFortune.

At the meeting the set design and construction timetable for the play will be discussed. The meeting should not last longer than 20 minutes.

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" will be playing Nov. 9-12, and no previous experience is necessary to work on the stage crew. For further information, contact Reed King at 5718.

Irish defeat Albion: extend streak to 24

Paul Mullany
Sports Writer

If all good things must indeed come to an end, coach Rich Hunter and his Irish soccer team don't seem to be the least bit worried. The second-year varsity coach has a lot to be proud of.

Although the final score was quite lopsided, the Irish were given an early score by their Michigan neighbor. Notre Dame captain Jim Sabitus was the first to score when his clear pass went 13-34 of the game inadvertently channeled past Irish goalie Brian Cullather into the wrong goal.

The 1-0 Albion lead marked the first time all season that the Irish had trailed at any point in a game. Things grew increasingly scary for the Irish as Albion goalie Scott Williams added scores as the Irish walked away with a 53-4 goal advantage over their eight opponents of the season.

Hunter was pleased with his team's performance in the final 20 post-season minutes. "We played well after the first ten minutes we played badly."

They played well, in fact, that Hunter later celebrated this as "the best overall team game we've played all year." Hunter also indicated that the game like this before facing our opponents."
